Moint de Luna his great Favourite advis d'him to fly. Prince Henry gathering his Forces befieg'd the Place, but would not batter it, in respect to the King. Prince John, the Archbinop of Toledo, D. Alonfe Enriquez, the Admiral and other Nobles assembled to revenge this Affront. Hunger began to pinch in the Castle, and they cat their Horses and other fithy Beafts. At length the Siege was rais'd by them that came to relieve the Place, and Prince Henry went away to Ocana, a Town of his own as he was Master of Santiago, resolving to stand upon his Guard. After his Departure the King return'd to Talavera, and was met upon the way by the Princes John and Peter of Aragon. Great demonstrations of Affection passed betwire them, and the King by the Advice of Alvaro de Luna, who rose apace to give the greater fall, commanded them to return. This alter d the Posture of Affairs: The 1421. King kept his Christmas, and the beginning of the Year 1421 at Talavera. Thence he went Ang kept his confirmed, and the beginning of the Year 1421 at a movera. I heater the weath old Caffile, where he had more Forces, and the People were better affected towards him. Prince Henry had the Marquifate of Villena given him with his Wife, which those People refented, because it had been purchased for a sum of Mony of the King of Aragon, and ought fented, because it had been purchas'd for a sum of Mony of the King of Aragon, and ought not to be alienated from the Crown. Prince Hony setz'd and garrisor'd all the Towns of that Dominison, except. Macron, which being naturally strong held out against him. The King commanded him to disband his Forces, and he refusing to obey, that Estate was taken from him by Force. Besides the King recall'd his Patent which made the Mastership of Samiago hereditary to the Heirs of Prince Hony. This to provoked him that he set out from Ocana after the King with 1500 Horse. He palled the Mountains, and without making any stop came to Arevalo, where the King was. There was danger of a Battle, and therefore Queen Ellenor in care for her Son Prince Hony undeavour'd to lay that Storm, that threatifd. The Archibishop of Samiago did the same. They persyaded the Prince to lay down his Arms, and thus, for that time War was prevented. Blanch Daughter to the King of Newbere on the 20th of May was brought to Bed at Arevalo of a Son, who was call'd Charles, as his Grandstather by the Mother's side. The Cortes were summond sirst to Toledo, and then to Madrid, and in otder to meet them the King and Queen set out towards new and then to Madrid, and in order to meet them the King and Queen fet out towards new Castile. On the 23d of Oliober they came to Toledo. Prince Henry of Aragon, Ray Lopez, Davalor the Constable, and Peter Manrique the Lieutenant being summon'd excus d themselves, saying, they had powerful Enemies at Court: Mean while Alonso King of Aragon, felves, faying, they had powerful Enemies at Court: Mean while Alonfo King of Aragon, compell and Luis Duke of Anjou contended for the Kingdom of Naples. King Alonfo kept in that the Ring of City. Avorfa, a Town near it was held by the French, and Excursions were made by both of what are a vigorous Defence. Prince Peter of Aragon being call'd by his Brother, with the consent of the King of Castile went away to serve in that War, at the beginning of the Year 1422. The Cortes lat at Madrid, Prince John of Laffargon and other great Men were present. The Archbishop of Toleda was not being then sick Prince Edway and his address, because the King would oblige them to come, resolved the Prince and Garci Fernandez. Magrique, at terwards Earl of Castineda, should go, but the Constable and Peter Marrique should stand upon their Guard in Places. Of Safety. On the 14th of June the Prince and Garci Fernandez.

terwards Earl of Calianeda, inould go, but the Conitable and Peter Marrique inould stand upon their Guard in Places of Safety. On the 13th of June the Prince and Garci Fernandez, came to Madrid, were kindly seeived, but the next day apprehended. Prince Henry was Henry im. Sent Priloner to the Castle of Mara, and the care of him committed to Garci Alvarez, de Topsloud. Ledo, the Earl of Orgal, who had been some years a Priloner there, being removed to Madrid. An impeachment of high Treason for corresponding with the Moors was brought into the Certes against those Lords. 14 Letters written by the Constable to King Joseph of Grandad were produced and read. Therefore the Estates of Prince Henry, and Garci Marrique were conficated, and the same was decreed against Peter Marrique, who having notice of what were produc'd and read. Therefore the Estates of Prince Henry, and Garci Maurique were conflicated, and the same was decreed against Peter Maurique, who having notice of what was in hand fled to Taraspana. The like Sentence was given against the Constable, who with the Lady Catherine Prince Henry's Wise, fled first to Segura, a strong Place towards Marcia, and thence to Valencia. He left a mighty Estate in Califle; for Arou, Arjana, Ossand, Ribado, Caindeleda, Arenas, and many other Towns were his, so that the House Davasol began to decay. Several other noble Families, as the Enjardot, Enriquez, Sandovals, Pimenteles, and Zunigas rose out of the Ruins of the Davasol, his Secretary. The Carrie consessed he had of the Constable were forg'd, and afterwards his Secretary John Garcia confess'd he had Awar de Contable were long u, and anerwards nis obercenty Joint Ortica Collesia de lieu and others were concern'd Awar de the Conflable was not reflord. Now the King created Awar de Luna Earl of Samiffeon an Bail toach as Mafter of Samiffeon. The Conflable Contable Mexic Commendary of Segura was impower'd toach as Mafter of Samiga. Their things being concluded, the King went apply to Alcaha, and at the fame time the Queen was deliver'd of a Daughter at Illefont, on the 15th of Ollebra Contable ber; she was call'd Catherine. This caus'd great Joy, being an Argument the Queen was not barren, as had been fear'd. The Archbishop of Toledo after a tedious Sickness dy'd at Alcala de Henares, and was put into a curious Marble Tomb, built by himself in the Parish Church of St. Peter. D. John Martinez de Contreras, Dean of Toledo, by the King's Interest was chosen Archbishop. The Chapter rather savour'd the School-Master, John Alvarez de Toledo, but the King's Recommendation prevail'd. The elect Archbishop went away to Rome to be confirm'd by Pope Martin the Vth, as was then the Custom, and spent two years in that lourney.

The Death of the Moorish King of Granada. A Truce between Castile and Portugal. The Interest of the Aragonians decays at Naples. Joseph King of Granada dies. Mahomet succeeds him.

A T Toledo (whither the King of Castile went, as soon as the Cortes broke up) the form Govern-of Government was alter'd, the Town being before divided into Factions, and subject to Mutinies. It was the Custom every two Years to choose 6 Officers, fomewhat in Toledo all the Common of Alders and the nature of Aldermen, 3 of the Commonalty, and 3 of the Gentry. These with the two Alcaider, who are not unlike to our Sheriffs, and the chief Alguazil, made up a Court, or Council, and govern'd all the Affairs of the City. All Men were free to come to their Comults, and Vote with them, which occasion'd Diorders. The King regulated this Affair, and order'd as King Monfo had before done at Burger, that there should be 16 Regideres or Aldermen, chosen half of the Gentry, and half of the Commonalty, who were to continue for Life, and the most Votes among them should take place. When any of these dy'd the King was to name another. This caus'd another inconveniency for those Places were expos'd to fale. At Pamplona, the Government of that Place which was divided betwirt Alfo at three Governours, was afterwards also reform'd. One of these Governours had charge of Pamplona. the Suburbs, another of the City, and the third of a certain Quarter call'd Navarreria, which often caus'd Disputes about the extent of their Jurisdiction. King Charles ordained there should be but one Governour, and with him 10 Aldermen, who should have the whole Power in their Hands, and that all the City should compose but one Body and be subject to one Tribunal. John Earl of Faix had now a Son born to him call'd Gaffon, who in time Gaffon through strange Revolutions came to be King of Navarre, Prince Charlet Son to Prince Gaston John of Aragon, and the Lady Blanch his Wife dying. He ought to have inherited his Navarre Grandsather's Crown, and his Father sent his Mother with him to be bred in her Father's born. Court. As foon as the Prince came to Court he was created Prince of Viana, and feveral other Towns, particularly Corella and Peralta given him, a thing new in Navarre, but done in imitation of the neighbouring Kingdoms. It was enacted that those Dominions should for the future ever belong to the Heir of the Crown. This Law passed on the 20th of January 1423. Five Months after to satisfy the desires of the People, the Oath of Allegiance to the Prince, as next Heir was taken by the three Estates, at Olite, where the King being very antient, commonly resided, by reason of the Pleasantness of the Seat, and the Beauty and Magnificence of a Palace, he himself had built. Ever since his Minority, the King of Portugal had pressed him of Castile to settle a lasting Peace, and enter into a League, both Nations being wasted with tedious Wars, and desirous to put an end to the Miseries it occasin'd. So far the Portugues was comply'd with, that a Truce was concluded for 29 Years, and it Truce bewas also agreed that after the Expiration of that time neither Party should commit any Ho-twixt cafility upon the other, without declaring War a year and a half before such Breach made, file and This Truce was proclaim'd at Avila, where the King then was, to the great Joy and Sa-Portugal. tisfaction of the People. Processions of Thanksgiving were made, and all manner of Sports to express the publick Satisfaction. In certain Justs that were kept at Court, Ferdinand de Cafro, the Forugines Embaldaor, was Challenger, and all others refuling to run againft him, Roderick de Mendoga, Son to John Hurtado de Mendoga, threw him out of the Saddle at the first shock, and had like to have kill'd him. The King comforted, and presented him, and as foon as recover'd fent him home well fatisfy'd. Emballies pass'd now betwixt the Kings of Castile and Aragon. John Hurtado de Mendoça sent to the latter at Naples, gave him the Reasons why Prince Henry was confin'd, and demanded in his King's Name to have Catherine the Prince's Wife, Ruy Lopez Davalos the Constable, and the other Fugitives of Castile deliver'd up. Dalmatius Archbishop of Tarragona was sent by the King of Aragon to Castile, to shew that the Reason why he did not grant what that King requir'd, was, that it was contrary to the Antient Liberties of the Kingdom of Aragon, not to protect any that fled thither for shelter, besides that he had given them a safe Conduct, which according to the Laws of Nations could not be violated. He also declar'd to the King the posture of Troubles Affairs at Naples, how many Jealousies arose betwixt the King and Queen, whereupon the of Naples. Country was divided into Factions, and that the Fortune of the Aragonians began to decline, it being much fear'd they would come to blows. The Queen complain'd that King Alonfo took more upon him than was his due. That he bestow'd all places of Trust, chang'd Garrisons, and made the Souldiers take an Oath of Fidelity to him: In fine that he turn'd all things which way he lifted, and incroach'd upon the Laws and Liberties of that Kingdom. These things she lay'd to the Charge of her adopted Son King Alonso, 23 an inconstant and changeable Woman grown weary of him, and now she was deliver'd of Fear, prov'd as ungrateful as she had been liberal in her Distress. King Alonso fear'd the Inconstancy of the Queen, and could not bear with her open Leudness, therefore he order'd a Fleet to be sitted Queen had notice of it, and from that time the Friendship betwirt those two Nations began to grow cold. Both parties complain'd that their Adversaries dealt not ingenuously, but lay'd Snares to intrap them, and it was true enough. The King kept at Castelhovo, the Queen at Porta Capuana, a strong Place. From this beginning sprang two Factions in Naples, one at Fora Capitana, a trong race. From this beginning apraing two ractions in evaples, one of the Anagowines, and the other of the Anagowines, or Anjovines, Names odious in that Kingdom, and which lasted till our Days. The Enmity and Contrivances went on. King Alonso feign'd himself sick. John Caracciolo the Seneschal, came to see him. He was great in the Queen's Favour, and that more than became her Modesty, therefore he was secured at the Queen's rayour, and that more than became ner modelity, incretore ne was secured at this Visit, and the Aragonians immediately repair'd to Porta Capuana. The Queen's Party shut the Gates, and drew up the Bridge, so that King Alonfo was forc'd to go off not without some Danger; for they cast Dartsat him from the Walls. Thus by degrees they came to sight in the very Streets. At first the Aragonians got the better, possessible themselves of the City, and having plunder'd and burnt several Houses, besieg'd the Queen in her strong Palace. Its own Strength, and the Resolution of the Garrison defended it against all the h. Along Paiace. Its own stringin, and the resolution of the part the Queen Bernard de Cabrera came out of Sicily to remotree the King, as the a ricet of 22 Galleys, and the Queen Stage Ships from Catalonia. This Fleet arriving at Naplet, on the 10th of June, recruited in her the Aragonians, who were now grown weak and declind. Encouraged with this Relief Palace. went away to Averfa, and Sforcia with her, as alfo a good Garrison, and coo Citizens, who offer'd to ftand by her. Prisoners on bothsides were exchang'd, and thus Caraccial recooffice a to frame by first. Therefore on boundary recommending a man time consecution recommend the trib of func the Queen at Nolar recalled, and made void the Adoption of King Alonfo, as an ungrateful and unworthy Person. In his fread she adopted and appointed her Successor, Luis Duke of Anjou, the third of the Name, and Son Luis Duke to the 2d. To this effect she sent for him from Rome, and created him Duke of Calabria, a adopted adopted favour, gave the Queen this Advice. From this time the good Fortune of the Aragonians. favour, gave the Queen this Advice. From this time the good Fortune of the Aragonians began to change and decline. King Alonfo fent for Braccio de Monton, out of Alonazo, where he was besseging Aguila, a great City, designing to set him up againt Sforcia. But he excus'd himself, either not liking the Party, or because he hop'd to make himself Master of that City, and all its Territory. For this reason King Alonfo was oblig'd to resolve upon returning to Spain to settle his Affairs and gather new Forces to carry on the War, tho he gave out it was to set at Liberty his Brother Prince Henry. He lest his other Brother Prince Peter his Commissioner with full Power to Command in his Absence. With hims stay'd James College, and several other considerable Officers of both Nations. Caldora, and feveral other considerable Officers of both Nations. Amony de Luna, Son to Antony de Luna, Earl of Calatabellars was appointed Governour of Catta. At the same time the King of Castile took a Progress to Plasencia, Talavera and Madrid, and his Queen was brought to Bed on the 10th of September of another Daughter, call'd Ellenor. Joseph the Moorish King dy'd at Granada, and Mahomet his Son, called The left-handed, succeeded him. He was afterwards Famous for being three times depos'd, and as often reftor'd to his Kingdom, and for his many Misfortunes rather than any great Actions. At first he observed the Peace with the King of Castile, and obligd Maley King of Timez. Thus he endeavour'd by the Friendship of these Princes to secure himself against his Enemies, but took no care to gain the Affections of his People, the surest Prop of Princes. So that he appears to have been as imported in his Independent as he was in his Baday and England Castilla Proposition. as imperfect in his Judgment, as he was in his Body; and Fortune prov'd his Enemy.

CHAP. VIII.

The pretended Pope Benedict dying, another is supported by the King of Aragon, who plunders Marseilles, prepares to make War upon Castile, but comes to an Accommoda-tion, yet loses all his Interest at Naples.

Beneditt the present the Luna, who during the time of the Schifm, call'd himself Beneditt the XIIIth, as to long as he lived, kept at Penifeda relying on the Strength of that Place, and persisted rended of the Age of 90 Years, a wonderful thing that he should live fo long amidst so many Troubles.

Luis Pangana Citizen of Sevil, and follower of D. Alonfo Carrillo, Cardinal of S. Thomas, who was very familiar with him, and that he being afterwards by his own Confecfion found Guilty of the Fact, was torn in Pieces by four Horses. He further adds that the Cardinal of Pifa fent to Aragon to apprehend Benediët, gave this Advice, and that it being put in Execution, he fled from Tortofa, where he had flay'd to fee the Event, fearing D. Roderick, and D. Alvaro, who refolved to revenge the Death of their Uncle Berediët, by killing the Legate, if he had not made his Escape, having perform'd what he came for, but not wholly put an end to the Schism. For by two Cardinals that remain'd of the faction of Beneditt, one Giles Muñoz a Canon of Barcelona was fet up in his place. He was a Man of no Note, and the election of fo little Value, that he himself was dubious whether he should accept of it, till King Monfo of Aragon encourag'd and perswaded him to take upon him the Monfo K. A General Council which began to affemble at Pavin, in pursuance to the Degree of the Council of Confiance, was by reason of the Plague, which rag'd in that City, removed to Siens in Tuscany, and thither the Bishops and Embassadors repair'd from all Parts. King Alonso fent his, with Orders to ju-Billiops and Emeditie, and complain of the wrong done in depoining of him. This struck a Terror into Pope Martin, and made him slacken in favouring the Faction of Anjon fleedily broke up the Council, Proroguing it to a farther time. He fear'd left the Schifm should again be reviv'd, and Christendom farther involv'd in Difficulties. D. John de Contrerat, Arch-bilhop of Toledo took place of all the Spanifb Arch-bilhops at this Council, by order of Pope Mavin, as appears by two Bulls of his ftill extant among the Records of the Church of Toledo. But thele things happen'd somewhat later. King Alonso having resolv'd Chirch of 1 leted. Dut their things nappen'd iomewhat later. King Alonjo having refolv'd to pass over into Sprin, imbark'd on a flect of 18 Galleys, and 12 Ships. About the middle of Ottober he fair'd from Naplex. The Weather being bad the Fleet was dilpers'd, but as Musfeilles from as it clear'd up they joyn'd again, and fair'd together to Marfeilles, on the Coast of stack by Provence, a City belonging to the Duke of Injun. Having broken the Chains, they entred the Alone the Port and assaulted the City. The Service was hot, and lasted till Night, when Folch Communication of the Chains, they communicate the Ships advised to delift become they communicate the Ships advised to delift become they be they be the start of the Chains, they are the ships advised to delift become they be they be they be they be the start of the Chains, they are the ships advised to delift become they be th Earl of Cardona, who commanded the Ships, advis'd to delift, because they knew not the Streets, and in the dark, tho the Gates had been open the confusion would be great, and the Townsinen have a considerable Advantage over them. John de Cerbera on the other side affirm'd the Townsimen were now in a Consternation, and ought to be press'd before they ament a the Townmen were now not contentation, and sognt so be present the Affault had time to recover themselves. This Opinion was approved of by the King, the Affault was renew'd, and the City enter'd. Night and Darknefs gave the Souldiers an Opportunity to commit all manner of Infolences, but the King shew'd himself Religious, for he or der'd that no wrong should be offer'd to Women who had taken Sanctuary in Churches, nor any thing that they carry'd with them taken from them. This Order was proclaim'd and punctually observed. They Ship'd the Booty, and left the City about the end of the Year. Among other Things the Bones of S. Luis Bishop of Toulouse, Son to Courte the 2d King of Naples, were carry'd into Spain to the City of Valencia, where the King landed. The King of Caffile hearing of his Arrival fent Embassadors to him at the beginning of the Year 1424, to Congratulate with him upon his fafe Arrival, and the Victories he had 1424. obtain'd, as also again to demand the Fugitives and Out-laws should be deliver'd up to him. obtain o, as ano again to demand the regitives and Our laws mount be deliver a up to mm, to answer to such things as should be lay'd to their Charge. His Death was no ples. way Advantagious to the Aragonians, for Francis Specia his Son supply'd his Place. Pope Martin, and Philip Duke of Milan joyn'd with the Faction of Anjon. The Duke fitted out a Fleet at Genaa, and sent it to the Relief of the Queen, under the Command of Guida Tanrello. This Fleet and the Army by Land befiegd Gaeta. It might well have been defended, but was foon furrenderd, only upon Condition the Aragonian Garrifon fhould have liberty to depart. From Gaeta the Army and Fleet mov'd towards Naples. James Caldora to whom that City was committed, agreed with the Enemy who promis'd him the Arrears due to him from the Aragonians, and he open'd the Gates to them. He pretended to justithe principle of the pr Rept two Cattles there, viz. Cultulorvo, and that called Del Ovo, which is very little, but fitrong, being feated on a Rock encompass'd by the Sea. After the taking of Niples all other Towns furrender'd to the Victors. The King of Aragon was much concern'd that the King of Cafile imprisoning his Brother had oblig'd him to quit Naples, which was the cause it was lost. He meditated Revenge, yet resolved to try all ways rather than declare War. Datman de Man, Arcli-bishop of Taragona, sent Emballador upon this Account, deliver'd his Message before the King of Cassile and Nobles at Ocasia. He demanded the Prince's Liberty, saying if he were Guilty of any Crime his long Imprisonment was Punishment enough, and he ought to be forgiven, being some finear of Kin to the King of Cassile, he ment enough, and he ought to be forgiven, being so near of Kin to the King of Castile; befides that his Brother the King of Aragon, would never defift till he had obtain'd his Demand. There were many about Court who had advis'd the Prince's Imprisonment, and mand. There were many about Court who had advised the Prince's Imprinoment, and fear'd if he were released they should suffer. Others were apprehensive of lossing what they had got of the banish'd Person's Estate. These opposed the releasing of the Prince; and Alvaro de Luna, proud with his vast Preferment, sided with them. Thus nothing was concluded, and the Embassadors departed. The King of Cassile went away to Burgas at the same time that his Daughter Casherine dy'd at Madrigal, a Town in Old Cassile, on the 10th of Angust. She was bury'd in the Monastery of Huesgas. Soon was the Grief conceived for her Death converted into Joy, the Queen being delivered on the 5th of January 1425, at Valladolid of Prince Hemy. In April the three Ethates took the Oath of Allegiance to him, as Heir to the Crown. The King of Aragon was making all necessary Preparations for War at Zaragoça. At Valladolid a Council was held to make the necessary Provision to oppose him. Opinions vary'd, as is usual in such Cases. Some were for declaring War impoint min. Opinions vary d, as is that in their cases. Some were not declaring was in-mediately; a hot fort of People, where there is no Danger. Others more prudent faid, all possible means ought to be us'd to prevent a Breach. The King was doubtful, and knew not which Advice to take. Charles King of Navarre fearing this Dispute might be destru-Ctive to Spain, fent Peter Peralta his Steward, and Garci Falces his Secretary, Embassadors to Caftile, to offer himself as Mediator. When this Proposition was ready to be embraced. it was obstructed by Letters from the King of Aragon, requiring Prince John his Brother to repair to him immediately. He having obtain'd leave of the King of Cassis, to the Commission to treat with that King of an Accommodation. The Army of Aragon lay at Taragona, ready to break into Castile, and the King was so intent upon this Expedition, he seem'd to have lay'd aside all Thoughts of Naples. And Yet he had receiv'd Intelligence that Braccio who befieged Aquila, was overthrown and killed before that Place on the 25th of May. James Caldora General of the Pope's Forces in the Service of the Queen obtain'd this Victory, being affilted by John and Samcho Carrillo, Nephews to the Cardinal of that Name. They in pursuance of the Victory soon made themselves Masters of Marca de Ancona, which Braccio had before taken. The Body of Braccio was carry'd to Rome, and bury'd before the Gate of S. Laurence, he being an Excommunicated Person. In the time of Pope Engening the IV, he was translated to a beautiful Tomb at Perofa, by Nicholas Fortebrachie, who took Rome, and did this Honour to his Uncle by the Mother's fide. In May 'at Florence dy'd D. Peter Fernandez de Frias, Cardinal of Spain; his Body was brought over and bury'd in the Cathedral of Burgos. He was of a mean Extraction, but his good Parts obtained him that Preferment, together with the Favour of the Kings, Henry and John. His Life was scandalous for Avarice and Leudness. Having some Words at Burgos with the Bishop of Segovia, a Servant of his cudgell'd the Bishop, which render'd the Cardinal very odious, the afterwards the Servant confess d he had done it without his Master's Knowledge. ous, the attention the state content of his and content without in manets's moving the year many faying he ought to be punish'd, he was forc'd to withdraw into Italy, The King feiz'd upon all the Mony he had gather'd, which was a great Sum. He was Governour of Marca de Ancona for the Pope, and in Cassile built the Monastery of Espeja of the order of S. Hierome. Prince John was nobly receiv'd by his Brother at Taragona. Whilst the said Prince John made Propofals for an Accommodation, and expected a more ample Commission on from the King of Castile to determine the Points in Debate, the two Brothers march'd accord the heat of Summer being then over. The Commillion being come from Calitie, certain PerCalificated fons of all three Kingdoms met at Arnel, and on the 3d of September came to this Conclufion: That Prince Henry be immediately fet at Liberty, and all his Honours and Estate restor'd him, as also the Arrears of the Profits thereof which had been deposited during his Confinement. The same was decreed in favour of Peter Marrique, who was also banish'd. This Resolution appear'd very hard on his side to the King of Castile, but it was natural for Prince John to favour his Brother; besides that the King of Aragon would hear of no Conditions without the Prisoner were releas'd, which made the King of Castile and his Nobles to condescend.

CHAP. IX.

The Death of King Charles of Navarre. King John proclaim'd. D. Alvaro de Luna banilo'd the Court of Castile. Villanous Practices of the Nobility. The King of Granada deposed.

UPon Saturday the 8th of September, being the Feast of the Nativity of our Blessed Lady, Charles R. dy'd Charles the Noble King of Navarre, at Olive, of a sudden fit that seiz'd him, and of Navarre are needy could be found for it. His Body was bury'd with great Pomp in the Cathedral of Pamplona. His Daughter Blanch was with him at his Death, and had been not long before deliver'd of a Daughter called also Blanch, who prov'd very Unfortunate. As soon as her Father was dead she sent her Husband the Royal Standard in token of his Accession to the Crown, and he was proclaim'd King of Navarre in the Camp. Some blamed this Acti-K. John on as Precipitate, and faid they ought first to have taken the usual Oath of preserving the Pro on as recipitate, and had need ough the control and the receiving the pro-liberties of the People. The News of Prince Henry's being fet at Liberty reach'd his Bro-claim'd, there in a day and half, it being so order'd that the Beacous should be fir'd, whereof there is a great number in Cassile. Hereupon the Forces of Aragon return'd to Taragona, and in November following were dismiss'd. Prince John went as far as Agreda to meet his Brother November following were dilmils d. Prince John went as far as Agreeds to meet his Brother Hemy, and conduct him to the King of Aragon. It was a joyful Day for the three Brothers not only for the Liberty Prince Hemy had obtained, but because it was a fort of Victory to have reduc'd Cafilie to Complyance. About the lame time at Valencia, on the 20th of November dy'd D. Alonfo the younger Duke of Gandia, without Issue. His Dominion of Ribagor as was given to Prince John at this time King of Navarre. D. Hemy de Gunnan, Earl of Niebla after many Disputes was parted from his Wife the Lady Violante, Daugh ter to Marin King of Sicily, to the great Regret of her Bastard Brother D. Frederick Farl of Luna. It griev'd him to fee his Sifter fo wrong'd without any fault committed on her Side, only for the extravagant Amours of her Husband, and therefore endeavour'd to gain the Affections of the Nobility of Caffile, hoping that way to fecure his Revenge.

Prince Hemy's Liberty reduc'd the Affairs of Caffile to a worse Condition than they were Fastions.

in before. Till this time the Kingdom was divided into three Factions, that of D. Alvaro de in Cafille. Luna, and those of the two Princes, John and Huny of Aragon. The rest of the Nobility according to every Man's Inclination adher'd to some one of these Parties. Now the two Princes being reconcil'd, the three Factions were reduc'd to two. Most of the Nobility confpir'd against D. Alvaro. It griev'd them to see him and a few Creatures of his ingross all the King's Favour, and Envy push'd them on to contrive his Ruin. But he relying on his Prince's Favour, with whom he had been Familiar from his tender Years, despis'd them all. infomuch that it was given out, and great Men affirm'd, he had the Boldness to make Love to the Queen, but this could never be prov'd, and it is to be believ'd that many things were wrongfully lay d to his Charge through the Envy of his Adverfaries. This Confiracy was first begun against him at Transport when the three Brothers of Argon met. It was brought to Perfection the following Year 1426. The King of Cafile kept his Chriffman, and new Year 1426. at Segovia, and John the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the New King of Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother, hav-Configuration of the Navarre at Medina del Campo with his Mother at Medina del Campo with his Medina del Campo with ing not long before met the King of Castile at Roa. Prince Henry was gone to Ocana, being cy against forbid coming to Court, or intermedling with the Government. The King of Areas red Linux fielded at Valencia at fuch time as the Lady Conflance, Daughter to the Conflable Ray Lopez. Davados was marry'd to Luis Moffle a noble and rich Youth, the King paying the greatest part of her Portion. This Prince was so generous, he not only supported the Father, but afterwards when he recover'd Nafes gave great Possession bis Son D. Inigo Davidos, and to his Grandson call'd D. Inigo de Guevara. The Queen Davager of Aragon with her Daughters the Princess Ellenor went to Valencia, at the Request of the King her Son, but soon return'd to Medina del Campo. She was unwilling by her long Absence to offend the King of Castile, who had now sent the Earl of Urgel from Castrotaraf, whither he had been removed Capital, who had now that the said of Malencia, impossing he might be useful in Acagon by reason of the Troubles that threaten'd Cassile. He was put into the Cassile of Xation, where he ended his Days, and redious Impriforment. At Toro the Cortes met, where it was proposed to Retrench the King's Expences, because they exceeded the Revenue. Therefore the Guards that conlisted of 1000 Horse were reduc'd to 100, and D. Alvaro de Luna made their Captain, which increased his Power, and the Envy conceived against him. At this same time dy'd John de Mendoga, Steward of the Houshold, and Alonso Enriquez the Admiral sell sick of a Discase that carry'd him off three Years after, their Employments were given to their Sons. The great Men by Letter, that their Meeting might not cause Sufpi- Conspra-tion, associated themselves. The chief of them were the Masters of the Orders of Calatra-volte-va and Alcanara, Peter Velasic Lord Chamberlain, the King of Navarre and his Brother Nobles. Prince Harry. They took a solemn Oath to stand by one another, and with regard to the King's Majesty use all means that the Publick might not suffer by evil Counsellors. This Allociation was concluded about the beginning of November, at the Hermitage of Orgilla in the Territory of Medina del Campo. From Toro the King of Castile went to Zamora, at the 1427. beginning of the Year 1427. Prince Henry of Aragon, the forbid the Court, mov'd from Degining of the Year 1427. Frince Hemy of Dadgm, the foliation the Court, moved from Ceana towards Old Castile with a great Retinue well Arm'd. The King was gone to Siman-cas, and the Princes of Aragon with the Competitors stay'd at Valladolid. Such of the Nobility as were not in the Association stood Neuters. His People being divided the King was Weak and Naked, besides his natural inclination to Ease. A Petition was presented was Weak and Naked, belieses his natural inclination to Ease. A Petition was presented by the Configrators, representing what they found fault with in the King's Family, and the Crimes of D. Alvaro de Luna. Having consider'd this Assair, Judges were appointed to regulate it, most of them were in the Association, viz. the Admiral, the Master of Calarrava, Peter Manique, and Ferdinand de Robles, who tho of mean Extraction was very Richard, and High Treasurer. These were Commission'd to examine into the Crimes imputed to D. Albaro de Lima, and to them was joyn'd the Abbot of St. Benedit, that in case they were divided, the most Votes should decide the Matter. They having consulted together Deductored, That the King should remove to Cigales: That the Princes of Aragon should have D. Albaro leave to visit him, and That D. Albaro de Lima should be banished the Court for a Year banish'd and half. I know not whether it was more shame to the King or Kingdom, that the the Court King should be commanded by his Subjects. The King, as had been ordain'd, went to Gir. King fhould be commanded by his Subjects. The King, as had been ordain'd, went to Gigales, where the Conspirators visited him, and among them Prince Henry, who kneeling shed Tears in token of Repentance. Such is the Power of Dissimulation. D. Alvaro went to Ayllon, a Town of his own, many Nobles bearing him Company. After his removal the Nobles fell at Variance, every one striving to gain the King's Affection, because he was institutely govern'd by his Favourite. Ferdianad Alonjo de Robles had got the start of all others, for having been in Favour before, now his Competitor was remov'd, he grew still greater, insomuch that upon pretence he was indispos'd, the King and Nobles often went to Council to his House. It rais'd Envy in many to see a mean Person lifted up to that Height, and the King was displeas'd at him for having rashly given Judgment against D. Alvaro de Luna to whom he ow'd many Obligations. His Enemies making use of the King's Displeasure, reveail'd with the King of Navaro to accuse him of many Crimes, as that he was a Seprevaild with the King of Neurose to accuse him of many Crimes, as that he was a Se-ditious Person, kept Correspondence abroad, and Conspir'd with the Nobility against the King, and often spoke irreverently of him. His Case being hear'd he was secur'd at Segovia, and at last dy'd a Prisoner at Ozeda, leaving an Example of the uncertainty of The K of Court-Favour. This Year the King of Granada was by his Subjects expell'd his Kingdom, and went over in a miferable Condition to beg the King of Timez his Affiftance. Mahamet call'd The Little, as foon as he was feated in the Throne perfecuted all the other King's Friends, putting some to Death, banishing others, and seizing their Estates, which he prodigally gave away. One Joseph of the noble Family of the Abencerrages, who was Godigally gave away. One sopep of the none laining against the Using per field to Murcia, hoping to bring the Forces of Castile upon the new Tyrant before he was well fix'd in the Government. At the same time two remarkable Things happend in Castile. One was that the King obtained of Pope Martin the Thirds of Ecclelastical Revenues for ever. The other, that the Order of St. Hierome was divided into two Branches. One F. Love de Olmedo, who was familiar with Pope Martin, was the Author of this Separation. Near Sevil he founded a Monastery of the Invocation of St. Isidorus, which was the Head of his Reformation, and of it the Fryars were called Isidorians. This Division lasted till King Philip the II again united the whole Order under the Antient Rule of St. Hierome. Let us return to the Troubles of Castile.

CHAP. X.

D. Alvaro de Luna returns to Court greater in the King's Favour than ever. The banish'd King of Granada restord. Some Affairs of France, and final end of the Schism in the Church.

Strange Some natural Sympathy, or other extraordinary hidden Cause. it was doubtless, that so frondness beat inak'd together the Assection of the King of Cassist, and D. Assure de Luna, that they twint the could not live assure to not institute the Assection of the King and particularly D. Assure to such a degree, that it exceeded all the Malice the Antient ReD. Assure was reasonable to their Emperors. They were so blind the Luna. In their Assection that neither the King took Notice how prejectical that Familiarity was to him, nor D. Assure was sensible that he was driving headlong to his Ruin. Nothing pleas'd the King, nor was fisculted that he was driving headlong to his Ruin. Nothing pleas'd the King, nor was is Countenance ever smooth or ferene since D. Assure was remov'd from him. Of him he commonly spoke in the Day, and thought of him at Night.
The Courtiers perceiving that of necessity, D. Assure must shortly be restored, and that then his Power and Interest would be much greater than before, as having overcome the Malice of his Enemies, and conquer'd his ill Fortune, made all their Efforts to gain his Favour. Even the King of Neware, being envisous that his Brother Prince Henry should have a greater Interest in the King of Castile than himself, began to favour D. Alvaro, and have a greater interest in the King of Copies than influence began to latous D. Albano, and of Glisich the might return to Court. On the 6th of Jamany 1428 dy'd D. Ruy Lopez, Davidos 1428, at Valencia, where the King of Aragon then was. This Gentleman was more Fortunate in The Fahis Islue, than in his Life. By three Wives he had seven Sons and two Daughters. From this Life. By three Wives he had seven Sons and two Daughters. From the Manufiel of Manufiel and Parish the Manufiel of them in Italy are descended the Earls of Potencia and Bovino, the Marqueses del Vasto and Pefewra, and many other Honourable Families in Spain. His Body was depolited at Valuetia, thence afterwards translated to Toledo, and bury'd in the Monastery of St. Angustin. He us'd to give ear to Astrologers, being himself much addicted to that vain Science, yet he could never foresee his own Fall: When he dy'd he had not altogether lay'd aside the hopes recovering his Estate. Prince Hemy of Angon began to labour to bring it about, but Fortune and all his Friends fail'd the Unfortuate Ruy Lopez. Only Alvar Nuñez de Herrera, a Fidelity Citizen of Cordeva, his Steward in the time of Prosperity continu'd faithful to him till the of a set last, and was cast into Prison as accessary to the Crimoshis Master was accused of. As soon van. as discharg'd he never gave over prosecuting John Garcia, the Forger of that Contrivance, for Perjury, till he was executed on that Account. To relieve his Master he fold all he had for Perjury, till newas executed on that Accounts and Perjury, till newas executed on that Accounts and Cold, which he put into the Timber of a Loom, that it might not be difcover'd, and loading it upon an Afs, fent his Son a Foot in a Difguize with it to him. A wonderful act of Fidelity well deferving a particular Encomium. His Death fecur'd D. Alvaro de Luna in the Ministery. The King of Cafilie resided at Segovia, his thoughts taken up in disappointing the Designs of the Nobility, and breaking their Cabals. He publish'd an Order, commanding them to release one another of the foleman Promiles they had made to ftand together, and granted a general Pardon for all paft Faults. To the Princes Catherine, Wife to Prince Henry, in lieu of Villena, he gave the Cities of Truxillo and Alcaraz, and some lesser Towns in the Kingdom of Toledo near Gaudalajara, as also 200000 Florins, which was a prodigious Portion. At the Instance of Prince Hemy the King also revers'd the attainder of Ruy Lopez, Davalos, but his Estate and Honours were not Amg and reverse the attained to Any Dept. Sections, but his standard models were not reflord to his Children, as of Right they ought to have been. After this the King went to Turnegano. Thither by his Order came D. Alvaro de Luna, with a great and fplendid D. Alvaro Retinue, and joyful for the Victory he had obtain'd over his Enemies. He advanc'd daily de tuna in the King's Favour, and his Interest alone was greater than that of all the Nobility. The returns to Lady Ellenor, Sifter to the King of Aragon was contracted to Edward Prince of Portugal, who Court. was 36 Years of Age, the Marriage by Proxy was folemined at a Village call'd Ojes Negros in the Territory of Dareca, the King of Aragon being prefent. Her Portion was 200000 Florins. The Lady Confinence de Towar, D. Ray Lapies Davalos his Widow, was appointed her first Lady of the Bedchamber. This Princes from Valencia travelled through Cafille, and and Fally of the Education of the Francis from Fallow travels and organized and at Valladid the King entertain'd her nobly, and thence she went on richly presented towards Portugal to meet her Husband. The Joy for this Match was the greater, because that Prince had so long put it off, and it was fear'd he would not Marry. At the same time Per Pater Inter, Brother to Prince Edward, after his long Travels, in which he visited the Emperor Si-fante of ter, Brother to Prince Edward, after his long Travels, in which he vilited the Emperor Sis-Entee of gifnmed and Tamerlan the Tartar, return'd to Spain, and many fabulous Stories are writ of Fortagal 4 his Perceprination. He landed at Valencia in June, and in September marry'd Elizabeth afterwards Daughter of the Earl of Orgel, who was in Prifon, By her he had Elizabeth, afterwards Queen of Portugal; Philippa who became a Nun; Peter Conflable of Portugal; James a Cardinal and Bilhop of Libbon; John King of Ciprus, and Beatrix, Wife to Adolphus Duke of Cleves. Prince Peter after his Marriage vilited the King of Caffile at Aranda, and came fafe to Portugal. Whole Towns went out to meet him, admiring him as if he had dropped from Heaven, the Ienorance of that Ace making his Travels appears Ducernatural. The King-Edsugal. Whole Towns went out to meet him, admiring him as it he had dropped from Hea-wen, the Ignorance of that Age making his Travels appear Supernatural. The King of Ca-file having feeled Old Cafile, and releas'd Garci Fernandez. Manrique, who as has been faid, was apprehended at the same time with Prince Hemy of Aragon, and restor'd him his Estate, return'd towards the end of this Year to the Kingdom of Tolede, and having spent some time at Alcala, went thence to Illescat. Thither came to him Joseph Alencerrage, who seed from Granada to espouse the depos'd King's Quarrel. The King treated him generously, and sent along with him Alonso de Lorea to the King of Timez, to exhort him to take Com-passion on that Injur'd King, and assist he was the Serces to recover his Crown, promising not to be wanting on his rest. The King of Timez encouraci'd by this Emplast's test King panion to the wanting on his part. The King of Timer, encouraged by this Embagy fent King Mahomer into Spain with a good Fleet, and 300 Horfe. He landed at Vers, and immediatly a The bawonderful change appeared, for all places similarted to him, and even the City Granada was nifted K. deliverd up at the beginning of the Year 1429. The Ulurper retired to the Caftle called described to the Caftle called the Ca Alhambra, where he was foon after taken and put to Death, leaving the Crown he had un-ed justly possess to the rightful owner. Thus much in Spain. France could hardly be in a worse Condition, the English being Masters of Paris, and the greatest part of that Country. Charles the VII, King of France in that Distress, sent Embassadors with great Submissions. fion to beg Affiftance of feveral Princes, and among them of the King of Aragon. Mathia. Rexaque fent on this Embaffy, came to Barcelona in April. At that time the King of Aragon was bent upon two feveral Wars. That of Naples troubl'd him most, Prince Peter his Bro-Preparathere being return'd thence into Spain, having lost all hope of Success. Dalmatius Safera was on for a left in his Place to preferve what remain'd in the Hands of the Aragonians. Besides, the King War in of Aragon was making great Preparations for a War with Castile. For these reasons the French Embally had no Success. But the Affairs of France were recover'd out of that defi-

perate Condition by a wonderful Providence. The English had belieg'd Orleans seven Months, and Hunger began to pinch the belieg'd, when on a Judden a Maid about 18 years of Age, whose Name was Joan, and is commonly called The Maid of Orleans, persuaded the French the was fent from Heaven to relieve Orleans. She gain'd Credit, and put Relief into the Town, and at length the Siege was rais'd. From this time the English lost many Towns. this Maid encouraging and leading the French. At last the was taken by the English, carry d this Maid encouraging and leading the French. At last the was taken by the English, carry'd to Roms, where the was tryed, condemned, and burnt for a Witch. Manyare heen of Opinion the was wrongfully put to Death, and the French to this Day reverence her as a Saint. Her Statue is upon the Bridge of Orleans, kneeling on the left Hand of a great Crucifix, and the King on the Right. But these things belong to the Histories of France and Symod England, where they are handl'd at large. Pear Cardinal of Faux, Legage from Pope Maratrages in the V, assembled a Symod of the Bishops of the Province of Tarageons in the City. What man, and the Acts pas'd in that Symod is not known. But the matter of greatest Concern there brought end of the Acts pas'd in that Symod is not known. Schille is to Perfection was, that they prevaild upon the Canon Giles Manez to relign the Title of the Pope, and the Cardinals that follow'd him were deprived of that Dignity. This was done by the King of Anger's Order to oblige Pope Martin, whom before he kept under by Terror, and now endeavour'd to oblig'd by this Courtely. Penifeola which before being'd to the Knights of St. John was now annex'd to the Crown. Give Musics, in requital for his Refigaction, was made Biltop of Majorca. Alush de Borgia was alfo chofen Biltop of Valucia in recompense of the Pains he had taken to reduce Giles Minioz. and his Companions to Complyance, and this was the first step Borgis made to attain the highest Dignities. All this was done at Tortofa in August. This was the end of that Schism which lasted longest. and was hottest maintain'd of any that has been in the Church. Processions and all manner of Devotions were perform'd in Thanksgiving for this Blessing, and to implore the Mercy of God, that such Judgments might be averted for the suture. It will be well we conclude this Book with Peace, to begin the next with a bloody War betwixt the Kings of

CHAP. I.

The War betwist Aragon and Navarre on the one side, and Castile on the other. The King of Navarre crowned. John King of Castile breaks into Aragon with a powerful Army, and does much harm there.

Pain had of late years enjoyed Peace, the Kings there of being tyr'd with the former Wars, and now ally'd to one another in a very strict Degree. With the Moors of Granada there was a lasting Truce, or if there happen'd any Breach it was of no great Moment. True it is, the Christians wanted not the Will to extirpate that perverse Moment. True it is, the Chriftians wanted not the Will to extrepte that perverfe Nation, and a good Opportunity feem'd to offer it felf, the Moor being divided into feveral Factions among themselves. But these Thoughts were lay'd aside, by reason of a new War be. War that broke out betwixt the King's of Aragon and Navarre on the one side, and host twins to Castile on the other, and yet the noise prov'd much more than the Execution. We shall now flith, Arden the cause of this War, and its event, as also the rise and fall of D. Alvaro de Luna, Navarre, who now the second time began to tend to his utter Ruin, perfusating the King at his return to Court, to command all the Nobility to retire from Court to their own Houses, which Advice was bad in it felf, and provd figtal to him that gave it. Peter Fernandez, de Velusio, Peter de Zuniga, D. Roderick Alonso Pimentel, Earl of Benavente, and the Masters of reasses, reter as Daniga, D. Roserier Anisip Finance, Earl of Democratic, and the Interest the Orders of Calarrava and Alcantara understanding the King's Pleasure, immediately retir'd to their own Houses. There only remain'd the Princes of Aragon, who seem'd too great to be turn'd off; but D. Alvaro was so bold he doubted not to ingage them. He first attack'd the King of Navarre, whom all the World blam'd for neglecting his own, to apply himself to the Buliness of another. This Censure of the World was pleasing to the King and D. Alvaro, and fome Persons of Note were fent to signify the Kings Pleasure to lim. Once Blanch his Wife foresceing the Danger, sent to invite him home in the Name of all the People of Navarre. King John was offended at these Contrivances of D. Alvaro, yet feeing he must submit to Necessity, he had a Conference with the King at Valladolid, where the Cortes then fat. Here the League before made betwixt Caftile, Aragon, and Navarre Peace con. was renew'd and fworn to by the two Kings. Dr. James Franco was fent Embassador to get cluded. the Ratification of the King of Mayon, who was not prefent at the Treaty. Their things being thus concluded the King of Nayone went away to his Kingdom. He of Magon after many delays at Barcelona, told Dr. James Franco he did not approve of many of the Articles, which ought to be alter'd, and believing this Embassador a fit Man for his purpose, he cles, which ought to be alter'd, and believing this Emballador a ht Man for in s purpote, he fent by him a private Mcsiage to D. Alwaro, acquainting him that Peter Manique was the Man who blew the Coles, and sow'd Discord betwixt his Brothers. That he was a Double-dealing Person, and therefore ought to be expell'd the Court. The cause why the King of Aragon was displeas'd with Peter Manique is not known. At the same time the Archbishop of Zaragoga was cast into the River. Archbishop of Zaragoga were also executed. They were accused of keeping private Correspondence with D. Alwaro; the Truth is, they were too free in speaking of the King, saying he ought to be oblig'd to observe the Peace made with Castile, lest the whole Kingdom food of the for his Micrariages. Executed Creum Bishop of Barcelons dicceeded the Archshould suffer for his Miscarriages. Francis Clement Bishop of Barcelona succeeded the Archnound tuner for his Milcartiages. Francis Clement Billop of Barcelona tucceeded the Archbillop. The two Brothers, Kings of Aragon and Navarre, plotted to joyn their Forces to rum D. Alwaro de Lima. He of Aragon call'd to him his Brother Prince Henry at the beginning of April 1420. They met at Tervel, and refolv'd upon the War with Cafille. The King of Navarre was not prefent at this Interview, being then buly about the folemulty of King fow his Coronation which was perform'd at Pamplona on the 14th of May. The King and Queen of Nain their Royal Robes, and their Crowns on their Heads, after the manner of the Gabi, ware were lifted up on the Shoulders of the Nobility, the Royal Standards were difflay'd, and they proclaim d by a Herauld. Prefently after Levies of Men were made underhand in both Kingdoms. It was given out the Pacaragina ware to affilt the Event, but in tenth they Kingdoms. It was given out those Preparations were to affift the French, but in truth they were defign'd against Cossile. This could not be so secret but the King of Cossile understood it. Embassadors pass'd betwirt them, but to no essect. Then the two Kings advanced as it. Emballadors paised betwirkt them, but to no enect. Finen the two Kings advanced as Breach of this purpose Jupon the Borders of Angon, designing to break into Castile on that side. To the Peter, this purpose James Gomez, de Sandoval put a Garrison into Penassel, and Prince Peter of Angon came to the Camp from Medina del Campo. The King of Castile made great Levies, and commanded all the Nobility to affilt him, particularly Prince Henry of Angon, and Frederick Duke of Arjona were summon'd. Besides he oblig'd the three Estates to take an Cath they would serve him saithfully in that War, and discover any Designs against him, wath a Vow if they fail'd to go bear-footed to Hierofalem, without ever defiring to be abfolv'd of that Vow. This was done at Palencia at the beginning of May. D. M. varo de Luna, the Admiral, Peter Maurique, and Peter Fernandez de Velasco were appointed to guard the Frontiers with 2000 Horse, no sufficient Force to oppose the Aragonians. James Lopez de Zuniga was order'd to follow them, as a referve with another Body of Horse. Lopez, at Linga was older to bolom and the Army undertook the Siege of Penafet. He encamped before it, and summon'd the Inhabitants to surrender upon pain of being us'd as Traitors. before it, and summon'd the Inhabitants to surrender upon pain of being us'd as Traitors. The Townsinen immediatly surrender'd and were pardoned. D. Peter de Aragon, and James. Comez. de Sandoval Earl of Cossive retir'd to the Castle, which was not belieg'd because it would require much time. The Kings of Aragon and Navarre enter'd Cossilia, by the way of Cogoliuda, and encampd in an open Plain. The Castlians on a Hill a League and half distant. The Forces of Aragon and Navarre consisted of 2500 Horse, 1000 Foot, all well Armed and old Soldiers. In the Camp of Castlia there were but 1700 Horse, and 400 Foot. Both Parties being eager to sight mov'd forwards on the first of July, the Generals exhorting their Men. D. Alvaro de Luna, when the Enemy came in fight perceiving the Castle of the Parties of the Parties of other Parties. greatness of the Danger, order'd the Carts to be drawn up about his Men in the Nature of a Trench, resolving not to fight unless he had some Advantage, or were fored. Prince Hemy for the one side, and the Lieutenant Peter Manrique for the other met, and concluded nothing, having only affronted one another. Some Skirmishes pass'd betwixt them, but the Cardinal of Faux, the Pope's Legate in Aragon interpoling, the Battle was deferr'd till the Cardinal of Fanz, the Pope's Legate in Aragon interpoling, the Battle was deferr'd till next day. That delay prov'd Advantagions, for the Queen of Aragon, a Woman of a manly Spirit came and pitched her. Tent betwirt the two Armies, and manag'd the Affair fo King John.

King Joh raise new Troubles. Nevertheleis the King of Castite advanc'd with 10000 Horie, and 50000 Foot. His Sister the Queen of Lington, and the Cardinal of Faux told him what had been agreed, and advisd to lay down his Arms. But he desirous of Revenge said, that Treaty was concluded without his Consent, and that it was but reasonable to chastite the Infolency of the two Kings. He lay near Balmaçan, a Town on the Banks of the River Duero. Thither came Frederick Duke of Arjona, and Earl of Trassamera, who was immediated. diately apprehended and fent Prisoner to the Castle of Penasied, now in the King's Power, where he dy'd the following Year. Thence the King of Castlie mov'd into the Dominions of Angoir Briking a mighty Terror into that Country. The Country People with what they could save sled to Places of Strength, whilst the Soldiers burnt and plunder'd the deformance. late Villages. Hariza is a strong Town seated on an Eminence, thither the Army came, and because the Townfinen retird into the Cassile the Town was plunder'd, and great part of it burnt. At the same time Peter Velasco, who commanded upon the Frontiers of Navarre, enter'd that Country with a Body of Cassilians. They took and burnt the Town of St. Vincente because the Cassilians and James de Zuning his Nephew took the Town and Cassilians. Besides D. Roderick Alonso Pickles and Cassilians and C nement, Earl of Bensemete, with other Forces possess' change it and of Bensemete, and of Bensemete, with other Forces possess' the Head of his Patrimony, with other the Sorders of Peringal upon the Banks of the River of Sogues, a Castle on the Borders of Peringal upon the Banks of the River Guadiana. There he left the Princess his Wife and return d to Truxillo, to endeavour since he had lost the rest, to do some harm on that side. Thither came to him his Brother Prince Peter, a youth of a great Spirit, and who had learn'd experince in the Wars of Naples.

CHAP. II.

Actions of the Aragonians against Castile. Several Assemblies of the Cortes. The Estates of the Princes of Aragon in Castile consistend. A Truce concluded with that Crown for sive Years. War with the Moors.

Affile was now Successful, had gain'd Reputation, and chastiz'd the Insolency of its Enemies. It was tedious to befiege the Cassile of Hariza, and the Advantage when taken, small; therefore the King of Cassile return'd to Medina Celi, where having dispos'd good the King went away for Medina del Campo, where he had appointed the Cortes to meet him. His Abfence encouraged the Enemy. The King of Navarre was gone to defend his own. The Aragonia gathering his Forces enter'd Cassile by the way of Soria, took the Town Aragonia of Depa, and the Castles of Ciria, and Borovia: Bozmediano was fold to him by the Govern an invade. or. This having taken a great Booty of Corn and Cattle, and many Prifomers, they re-Cafile.

turn'd without any Loss to Calatayud, whence they set out. On the Borders of Portugal next the River Guadiana, the Princes of Aragon did greater harm, that Country of Estremadura, being plentiful of Cattle. Nor could the Earl of Benavente, sent thinter to that purpose, make Head against them. Therefore D. Alvaro de Luna, and by his Order Peter purpofe, make Head against them. Therefore D. Avoaro de Luna, and by his Order Peter Penee, Lord of Marchena, repair'd thither. They sent to demand the Booty of the King of Portugal, because it was convey'd into that Country, but obtain'd nothing. For the King of Portugal was glad of the Troubles of Castile, which gave him an Opportunity of sixing himfelf in that Kingdom he had Usurp'd. The Princes of Magon sinding themselves too weak to withsfand D. Alwaro, burnt the Suburbs of Truxillo, and fortify'd the Place, putting a good Garrison into the Castle. They themselves surprized Albaquerque, a strong Town on the Frontiers of Portugal. This Losswas the more resented by the Castilians, because they were Jealous that the Partugales might secure that Town. By the Advice of D. Alwaro the King wont thither in Person, that his Presence might influence, and the Success might be King went thither in Perfon, that his Prefence might influence, and the Success might be attributed to him. Truxillo and Montanges were taken, but Albuquerque could not be reduc'd. The King and D. Alvaro return'd to Medina del Campo, leaving the Master of Alcantara, and D. John, Son to Peter Ponce, to command upon the Frontiers. At the taking of Truxillo there Truxillo happen'd a remarkable Passage. D. Alvaro the Constable was in the Town, and the Castle recovered happend a remarkative ranage. D. Awaro line Contianie was in the 10wn, and the Callie was theld out for Prince Henry. One Garci Sanchez, de Quinozes, who had great influence over by a the Garrison, hinder'd the Governour from treating of a surrender. D. Alvaro with much Conti-Difficulty obtain'd to speak with him at a Wicket, which look'd towards the Camp, to vance. which there was a feep Acent. They met, and Gare's Sauchez, giving no ear either to Threats or Promifes, the Constable classed him in his Arms, and both roul'd down the Hill, fo that before he could be reliev'd from the Fort, he was taken by 100 Men lay'd in Ambush to that purpose, upon which the Castle immediately surrender'd. At the same time the Forces of Castile receiv'd a Defeat in the Plains of Acabiana, that lie at the Foot of the Mountain Moncayo. Rny Diaz de Mondoza call'd the Bald, tho born in Sevil commanded agoo Horse of Navarre. He deseated Tingo Lopez de Mendoza, Lord of Hira, who ventur'd to fight him with a lesser Number. Few were killed, for the Commander perceiving his Men to give way retir'd to a rising Ground which he made good with a few that stood by him. The most fled and escap'd because the Enemy knew not the Country, and Night came on. At the beginning of the Year 1430 the Cores of Cafile affembled at Medina del Campo, and those of Catalonia at Torsofa, both Kings being present at their respective Assemblies. Mony was the common want of both, and both complain'd of the Persidiousness of the Nobility. The King of Aragon would fain have reduc'd Frederick Earl of Luna, who favour'd Castile, but could not require the confidence of the Nobility. could not prevail, nor lay hold of him, therefore he confifcated all his Estate, which was very great. He of Castile did the same by the Princes of Aragon, and that they might have no hopes of being reftor'd, divided all their Possessions among other great Men. Several noble Estates of fores of being retior of, divided an their rontinions among other great men. Several none guates of Families raised out of the Ruins of those Princes, are fittli great in Cassile. To Frederick Earl the Princes funds, who filed out of Aragon and came to Medina del Campo, were given the Towns of Ca. eco of Aellar, Villalan, and Arjona, with other Revenues to support his Grandeur. Queen Ellenor of Casson in Aragon was put into the Monastery of S. Care at Tordessillan, and had three Cassiles taken from consider her, that she might not be in a Condition to assist her Sons. Yet soon after she was set at Li-ed. berty, and her Cassles restor'd to her upon promise that she would not be aiding to them in that War. An Embassy came from Portugal about concluding a Truce betwixt Cassile and Aragon till they could agree upon Articles of Peace, but prov'd unfoccessful. Some Authors write, that this Year on Palm-Sunday a most fragrant Smell islu'd from the Tomb of Pope Benedict at Peniscola; I cannot give much credit to this particular, but this Report was the cause why his Nephew John de Luna translated him thence to Illueca, a Town of his own, betwixt Tarragona and Calatayud, having obtain'd leave for fo doing conditionally he bury'd him not in hallow'd Ground, as being Excommunicate when he dy'd. The King of Castile having gather'd his Forces, march'd to Ofma in order to enter Aragon, having order'd Frederick

Enriquez the Admiral with the Fleet to do all the Mischief he could upon the Coasts of that Kingdom. Both the Kings of Aragon and Navarre prepar'd for War, but advanc'd little, their Subjects looking upon that as very unfortunate. On the 14th of June Embassadors from the King of Aragon arriv'd at Osma to treat of Peace. Being admitted to Audience they cast all the Odium of that War upon the King's Favourites, whereupon D. Alvaro and the Earl of Renavente spoke for themselves and others, which rais'd some hard Words among them. Raymund Perellos one of the Aragonian Embassadors offer'd to make good what had been fay'd by Combat, but the King being present the Dispute ended. Afterwards the Embaffadors spoke with all the Castilian Noblemen apart and inclin'd them to Peace. The Army of Castile lay incamp'd at the Bridge of Garay, supposed to be the Place where Numania

5 Years upon these Conditions; That Commerce should be restor'd: That the Princes of Aragin should deliver Albuquerque, and not come into Castile during the time of the Truce; That the King of Caffile should not take from them the other Towns they were then posses'd of; and laftly, That Frederick Earl of Lima, and Godfrey Marques of Cortes, who were then fled into Caffile should not be wrong'd by the Kings of Aragon and Navarre. To agree other Differences seven Commissioners should be appointed on each side, with Power to determine. Immediately this Truce was proclaim'd in the Camp, and soon after in all other Places, to the great Satisfaction of the People. Expresses were sent to carry the News, and particularly to Portugal, where that King then celebrated the Nuptials of his Daughter Elizabeth with Phi-Portugal, where that King then celebrated the Nuptrals of his Daughter Flixabeth with Philip Duke of Bargundy. Of her was born Charlet the Bold, Duke of Bargundy, no lefs famous for his great Exploits, than for his unfortunate End. The King of Aragon lent a Fleet to bring his Brothers from Portugal, deligaing to employ them in the War of Naples, upon which he had bent all his Thoughts, but they came not then. The Army of Caftile broke up at Ofma, with Orders to be in a readiness the next Spring to make War upon the Moors of Grandal. All the rest of that Summer the King spent at Madrigal, where the Queen then was.

War with The end of the War of Aragon was the beginning of two others, viz. that of Naples, and the Moors, that of Grandal. Now another Embassy came from him to the same Effect, it was answer'd nothing could be concluded till he pay'd what was due. Alonfo de Lorca fent to the King of Timez with rich Prefents to acquaint him how ungratefully the King of Granada acted, prevail'd with him to Freients to acquain tillin low unjudictivily the King of romana access, prevait with limit to fend Mahomet no relief out of Africk. The Cortes met at Salamanca, and granted a greater fupply than had been ask'd, because the War was against the Insidels. D. Gonzálo Bishop, of Jaen, and James de Ribera Lieutenaut of Andahusia, with 800 Horse, and 300 Foot enter'd the Plain of Granada, where they lay'd two Ambushes. 80 Horse advanced to draw out the Moors, who purfu'd them cautiously till they saw the first Ambush fly, as had been order'd. Then the Moors thinking the Danger over follow'd diforderly, and fell into the other Ambuscade, where 200 of them were kill'd, and 100 taken, the rest knowing the Country escap'd. Ferdinand Alvarez de Toledo with a Party made an Incursion towards Konda, but was forc'd to retire with some Loss. Soon after Roderick Perez Lieutenant of Cazorla, making another inroad was furpriz'd, most of his Men cut off, and he had much ado to escape. Garand the state of t Sanguessa. The King of Castile summon'd James Gomez de Sandoval, Earl of Castro, and D. John de Sotomayor, Master of Alcantara to appear before him, but they favouring the Princes of Aragon refus'd to obey. At the same time D. Alvaro de Luna, his sirst Wife dying, marry'd Joanna, Daughter to the Earl of Benavente at Palencia, but without much Solemnity, because the Brides Grandmother dy'd then. The King and Queen honour'd the Wedding. This 1431. was at the beginning of the Year 1431.

The declining posture of the Aragonians at Naples; Tet that King is again invilted thi-ther and adopted anew by the Queen. He agrees with Castile. King John of Portugal dies. Edward fucteeds.

The Art. A Longo King of Aragon returning into Spain (as has been faild), his Party wholly declin'd golden in Napler. His Adversaries, grew firong, most of the Naplative field with them, and decline at but few inclin'd to the Aragonians. Yet, they tho too weak to imilitatin that War, understook another. The Family of Preso, very powerful at Genou being expell'd thence by which is bother of Milan, had recourse for fuccour to Prince Peers, who then supported the trees highle King his Brother in Naple with a very small Power. He hoping to make himself Masker of that City, or at least to be revenged on the Duke of Milan for the wrongs done during the late War, joyind his Forces with the Freegofs and Fiscos, and recovered several places glong the Codiff of Genoa. The Duke searing to lose Genoa, sent Embassadors to Spains, photonising the King to deliver to him the City Bonisato, the Capital of Confest, for which Islandshul Aragonians and Genoeles had long contended. The King lik'd the Proposals, and sent an Embassador

dor into Italy to conclude the Peace. Bonifacio could not be deliver'd the Senate of Genoa oppoling it, but instead of it they gave Portovenere and Letici. Prince Peter came from Sicily, whither he had return'd, put Garrifons into those Places, and leaving 6 Galleys with Duke Philip to guard the Coast, fail'd away with the rest of the Fleet. Then having plunder'd an Island on the Coast of Africk, call'd Circina, now Charcana, and settled the Affairs of Sicily and Naples, he'return'd to Spain to affilt his Brothers without any hopes of recovering the Kingdom of Naples. King Alonfo however despair'd not, believing the Forces of the Enemy would decay, the Minds of the Natives would alter, and the Queen her self grow weary of those Guests. Nor was he deceived; for the Duke of Anjou was sent by the Queen into Calabria with orders to apply himself to the Military Affairs without concerning himself with the Government. Caracciolo; Seneschal of Naples, gave this Advice, hoping to draw all the Power in- Alonso K. to his own Hands, and perceiving he was thereby grown odious, he invited the King of Ara-of Aragon gon into the Kingdom, promiting to stand by him. Antony Orsino Prince of Taranto, a noble Person, and ambitious of Honour, sollicited the return of the Aragonians. These advices mov'd Naples the King of Aragon, the he did not wholly confide in those Men, nor would be utterly reject their offers. Therefore having fitted out a Fleet of 26 Galleys, and 9 great Ships, and left the Government of the Kingdom to his Brothers, he resolved to fail over to Africk, there to gain Reputation, and he the nearer to his fanisheds. With this slefting he fet fail from Valencia, and after touching in Sandinia, artiv'd in Sicily. The French had beliefed the fitting Calife of Trapia in Calabria; and reduc'd sit to fluch extremity, that the belief d promised to furrender, if not reliev'd in 2.0 Divis. Storms hinder'd the King from coming in time, and the Place was deliver'd inhistight. At Malfina 70 sail joyn'd, the Fleet of Agrae, and they altogether, fixer'd their Courbe for Celves, an Illand on the Coaft of Africk. It is the saids, being but four Miles from the Canimar, full of Inhabitants and a delightful Place. On the West it draws nearer the Continum, to which it is joyn'd by a Bridge a Mile in length. This enterprize was difficult, the place being firong and well guarded, for Bafries King of Timez. having intelligence of the Defign was come thither to defend it. At full landing the Arage the over-times took the Bridge, and overthrew the Moors, forcing them to retire to their Camp, which throws also they entered, and after a hot Dispute near the King's Tent, but them again to flight. The the Moors slaughter was not great, nor the Booty, but 2.0 pieces of Cannon were taken. Neverthe- in Africk lefs they could not make themselves Malfers of the Illand, for the Il to gain Reputation, and be the nearer to his kniends. With this defign he fet fail from Valess they could not make themselves Masters of the Island, for the Islanders spent much time in capitulating, till, as they had design'd, the Fleet for want of Provisions was forc'd to rein captulating, til, as they had delightd, the Fieter for want of Provinging was forced to return to Melfina. There it was confluited how to recover Naples. To forward this Delign it happen'd that John Carracciolo was murder'd by the Contrivance of Corbella Rufa, Wife to Aniony Mariano, Duke of Seff, the being the next to him in the Queen's Favour, and hating him mortally. The King, who let flip no Opportunity to advance his Interect, semantic medicately Embassadors to the Queen, and went over himself to the Island Jichia, to be the nearer actely Embaladors to the Queen, and went over himself to the Illand Ishia, to be the nearer to her. Most of the Summer was spent in treating, but at length the Queen disamplif the Adoption of the Duke of Anjon, and renew'd that of King Alonfo. This was all privately transacted by the Advice of Cobella, by whom the Queen was wholly directed. Whilst these Differenthings were in Agitation at Naples, the Princes of Aragon were in great danger, Peter being ces be a Prisoner, and Henry belief dain Albuquerque. A greater War was fear'd, because the Arrivine a ticles agreed on before had not been observed, whereof the Emballadors of Calife complained lite and the complete of the Calife Complained of the complete of the Calife Complained of the same and the complete of the Calife Complained of the complete of th to John King of Navarre, who was Lieutenant to his Brother of Aragon. At length it was composed agreed that the two Princes flould deliver up Albaquerque, and all other Placesthey held, and so depart Caffile. This being concluded by the Mediation of the King of Portugal, the two Brothers, and Catherine, Wife to Prince Henry, with the Mafter of Albanturar, and Binop of Coria embarked at Libbon, and went thence to Albantura, designing to try their fortunes again in Spain; or if that fall'd to go over into Italy, which was what their Brother desired, being refolv'd to conquer the Kingdom of Naples, as knowing well the Queen was more in-clin'd to his Competitor, and only study'd to amuze him. Frederick Earl of Luna kept up his Intelligence with Caffile intending to betray Targona and Calasqued, Towns on the Frontiers of Aragon, to King John. This seem'd the more easy, because at the same time there arose a Dispute about the Jurisdiction of the Church of Toledo. D. John de Comreras, Archbishop of Toledo with six others was appointed by the King of Cassile to compose the Disferences betwith him and the Crown of Aragon. D. John as Primate of all Spain carry'd the Cross before him, which the Bilhop of Taragona lirst, and then the Arch-bilhop of Zaragoga as Metropolitan complain'd of. This Dispute betwixt the Prelates hinder'd the most important Assair of the Peace, which was the general Concern from being brought to an Issue, and it was fear'd the Truce being expir'd the War would again break out. Both Parties prepar'd for it; and both were streighten'd for Mony, but chiefly the Aragonians exhausted with such lasting

The Pope accepted not his offer, for within the 5th Month the Tumults of Rome ceas'd, and the Citizens submitted themselves to him admitting a Gar-rison into the Capitol, which done they were absolved of the Centures they had incurr'd by affronting the Pope. On the 16th of September dy'd D. John de Contreras Archbishop of Toledo at Alcala de Hinares. His Body was bury'd with Pomp in the Cathedral of Toledo. The Chapter was divided about choosing one to succeed him; some were for Vasco Ramirez de Guzman Archdeacon of Toledo, others for the Dean Ruy Garcia de Villaquiran. This difagreement gave the King an Opportunity to intrepole, and by his Procurement D. John de Cereçuela Archbishop of Sevil was elected. At the same time that the King was at Madrid, D. Hemy de Villena dy'd there. He fustain'd the Loss of his vast Fortune with great Patience, living to a great Age, and wholly devoted to his Study. His Inclination to Learning was such, that he fludy'd Magick, and some of his Books were afterwards burnt by the King's Order. The Nobillry Nobility of Naples weary of the Government of a Woman, and of her Extravagances in-favour the clind to favour the King of Aragon. He drew to his Party with great Promifes, Nicoloda Aragoni-Pieimus then a renounced Captain in Italy, and Kinsman to Braccio. At Palermo he also joyn'd and. in League with the Prince of Tarana, and all his Adherents, who being injur'd by the Duke of Anjou and James Caldora, had recourse to the King of Aragon for Relief. It was agreed they should espouse the Quarrel of the Aragonian, he affisting them with 2000 Horse, and 1000 foot, which they judged a fufficient Force to oppose the Enemy, but it prov'd otherwise. For the Prince of Tarano was soon stripp'd of all his Possessions, which were great, except fome few small Places of very great Strength. The War feem'd to be near an end, when the Duke of Anjon worn with Fatigue, and overcome by the Unhealthiness of the Air dyed in Calabria about the middle of November in the Flower of his Age, and the height of his Prof-Calabria about the mindie of November in the Flower of this fage, and to solve the perity, being almost policifed of the Kingdom, and then newly marry'd to Margaret, Daughther to Amedie Duke of Savey. The Queen of Naples also departed this Life in that City, at Jamas Q. the beginning of the Year 1435. Her Body was bury'd with little Ceremony in the Church dies.

Annunciada. The Death of the Queen and Duke advanc'd the Interest of Aragon, and weaken'd 1 that of the French. Yet the People of Naples without any Order, or confulting the Nobility proclaim'd Rence, Brother to the late Duke their King, as the Queen had order'd in her Will. But there was little help to be expected from him, being then a Prifoner. He had marry d the Daughter of the Duke of Lorain, and he dying without Illue-male poffers d minfelf of that Dukedom. Amony Earl of Vaudemon, Brother to the deceased, overthrew, took him Priloner, and deliver'd him up to the Duke of Bungundy. Or in Carracciolog. George Alemani, and Baltafar Rata, the most noted Men of the Fronch Faction were appointed Governours at Napter. In Spain D. Roderick de Velafce, Bilhop of Palencia was unfortunately kill'd by his own Cook, who being diffracted and going about with a Club in his Hand, was ask'd what he defignd to do with it, he answerd, kill the Bishop, but being a Forreigner and not well understood, because he spoke not plain was laugh'd at, yet presently after he came upon the Bishop and beat out his Brains.

THIS prov'd a dangerous Winter in Caftile, by reason of the great Rains. The Roads were so deep there was scarce any Travelling. Many Buildings were carry'd away by the Floods at Valladolid, and more at Medina del Campo. In 40 Days no Corn was ground; fo that the People fed upon the Grain boil'd for want of Bread. At Sevil the River Guadalquivir swell'd within a Yard of the top of the Walls. Some of the Inhabitants liv'd aboard Ships for fear of being drown'd, others Day and Night were repairing the Walls, and Cauking the Gates. Thele Rains and Storms began on the 28th of Ottober, and continu'd without ceasing till the 25th of March. Mean while the War with the Moors was Carry'd on with various Success. James de Ribera the Lieutenant at the Siege of Alora was kill'd with a Dart from the Wall. At another place in a Skirmish the Moors slew John Faxardo, Son to Alonso Faxardo the Lieutenant. Perafan Son to James Ribera, tho but 15 years of Age succeeded him, in recompence for the good Service done by his Father. These Losses were in some measure made up by the taking of Huestar, a very strong Town, by Assault. Roderick Manrique, Son to the Lieutenant Peter Manrique, took it. Belides, a great Body of Moors that was marching to the Relief of it was overthrown by the Lieutenant of Cacorla, and the Lord of Valdecorneja, whereupon the Castle, which still held out, surrendred. But another Missortune soon allay'd the Joy of this Victory. D. Guierre de Sotomayor, Master of Aleantara made an Incursion into the Lands of the Moors with 800 Horse, and 400 Foot to attack Archidona. Slaughter The Moors gave the Alarm, firing their Beacons, upon which about 500 Men got together of the Arm'd with Darts and Slings, and fecuring the Passes kill'd most of the Christians, so that Christians he escap'd with a very few. This Misfortune mov'd the Lord of Valdecorneja to raise the Siege he had lay'd to Huelma, tho it was near furrendring, fearing the Moors, encourag'd by this Success, would come to relieve it. He soon gather'd more Forces, and joyning with the Bishop of Jaen wasted all the Territory of Guadir, burning the Corn which was fit to cut. His Force was 1500 Horfe, and 5000 Foot. A great Number of Horfe, and 40000 Foot march'd from Granada to oppose him. Nothing daunted at that Multitude he engag'd, and Body of put them to flight, killing 400, the Night hindring the pursuit. This Day the Lieutenant Christians Perca signalized himself, for his thorse being killed, and he wounded in the Leg, he still sought decan a great one to barrely associated that the Moors were glad to leave him. In the Kingdom of Murcia, not far from Hussen, there are two Towns, called Velez et Roxe, and Velez et Blanco. The Lieutenant Faxardo lay'd Siege to, and had them both furrendred. These things we have related are what happen'd in three Years against the Moors; we have put them together to avoid confounding the Memory. This Year we now write of was Remarkable for the Peace concluded betwixt France and Burgundy, which provid very Advantageous to France, but this belongs to their Histories. In Spain the Queens of Aragon and Navarre, whilst the Kings their Hus-

The Death of the Senefehal, John Carracciolo, the Duke of Anjou, and Queen Joanna, feem'd regards to have made way for the King of Aragor to obtain the Crown of Naples. Many of the Noragonian bility having confulted together, feiz'd the City and Caftle of Capua, and fent thence Region Male Adjustion into Sicily to offer their Service to the King of Aragon, provided he would insmediately come to their Aid, before the Enemy gather'd strength. With the King were his mediately come to their Aid, before the Enemy gather'd Irrength. With the Knig were his three Brothers, all of Age, fit for War, and well inclind to it. Prince Peter was left in Sicily to gather the Fleet. The King with his Brother of Navare, and Prince Henry fet fail from Matshim only with 7 Galleys. He touch'd at the Island Ponea, then at Island, and ally came to Sessa, whither a great Number of Noblemen was come from Capua to meet him. The chief of them was Antony Marsino, Duke of Sessa. Here they consulted about carrying on the War, and it was resolv'd to beliege Gaeta. On the 7th of May it was invested by the Neaphitam Forcesat Land, and the Fleet of Aragon at Sea. The Prince of Taranto came thither with his Forces. The King of Aragon possess the City, whereby great hope was conscied it would divergate. The Townstine being tops the City, whereby great hope was conceived it would furrender, the Townsimen being in a Consternation, and wanting Provisions. But the Geneeles, who were numerous there by reason of their great Trade, resolv'd to defend the City. They chose Francis Spinola, a Man of Note, who chiefly encourag'd them, for their Commander, and then turn'd all useless People out of the City, whom the King of Aragon reliev'd and sent to the Neighbouring Villages, which gain'd him the Affections of the Befieged, and of all the Country. understanding the Danger their People were in by the Duke of Milan's Order, sitted out 12 great Ships, 2 Calleys, and a Galliot, Manning them well, and putting in flore of Provin-ons. Blas Affareto was appointed to Command this Fleet, a notable Souldier, who had rais'd himself from a very mean Condition to that height by his Valour. The King of Aragon set out to meet this Fleet with 14 Ships, and 11 Galleys. With him went most of the Men of out to meet this Fleet with 14 Ships, and 11 Saileys. With him went more of the vien of Note, not doubting of the Victory. The Aragonians anker'd at the Island Poppa, and the Goneofer on the Coast of Terracina. Thence they fent a Herauld to acquaint the King of Aragon they came not to fight, but only to carry Provisions to their Countrymen. The Galleys were of no use, the Ships being ingag'd together, and so much higher above the Water than the Calleys. It was now late when the 3 Genesles Ships, which at first were thought of the fight and the Aragonian, and gain'd the Victory. The Enemy enter'd the King's Ship, and he finding it made much Water, say'd he yeilded himself Prisoner to the Duke of Milan, tho not present. In the same Ship were taken the Pruce of Tamane, and Duke of Softa. 12 other Ships were taken, and in them many Prisoners of Note, among them the King of Novarre, whose Life Roderick Robolteds say'd at the beginning of the Fight. After this famous Victory the People of Gatta fallying routed the Argonian, enter'd their Camp; and plunder'd all the Baggage of those great Men. Many were taken Prisoners, the rest of the Army was dispersed. This Battle was sought on the 5th of Angust near the sidnal Points. Who would not have thought this Overthrow had quite defeated the hopes of the Argonians? and yet contrary to all humane Probability, this very Missortune was the best step towards their gaining the Kingdont of Naples.

After the fight the Victorious Genesses seturn'd home, where they secured the greatest number of Persons to pay the Charge of the Fleet. The Kings, with about 300 Men of Note, were carry'd to Miss, where the Genoss seturn'd made his Entry in the nature of a Triumph, and such a oneas had not been seen in many Ages. Many Councils were held in Spain to consider what could be done for the Kings. The Gories of Aragon met at Zaragona, and it was agreed to equip a Fleet to fe-cure Sicily and Sardinia, for all thoughts of Naples were given over. At Soria the King of Carfe, and Sarama, for all thoughts of evaples were given over. At Soria the King of Caffits, and Queen of Aragon prolong dithe Truce for 5 Months longer. Queen Ellenor, Mother to the Kings that were Priloners, dy'd fuddenly at Medina del Campo, and was bury'd at S. John de las Dueñas, a Monaftery fine built. At Milar the Duke and his Priloners concluded a League Offensive and Defensive. The King of Navarre went into Spain with full Commission to govern Aragon, and raise Mony. The Prince of Taranto, and Duke of Sessa went to Navarre and Canada Canad Naples to encourage their Party, and order Prince Peter with the Fleet to allift them. The Kings of King's Orders were obey'd, and immediately the City Gaeta was deliver'd up to him or Augus & Christman day. The chief contriver of this Revolution was Francis Spinola, who had gain'd Reputation by defending Gaeta, and was therefore puffed up with Pride, besides that he did it in hatred to the Family of the Fliscos and Freegos, who savour'd the Aragonians. Many other Towns follow'd the Example of Genoa, and expell'd the Milanese Garrisons. They kept the Spanish Prisoners they had, for whose Ransom the King of Aragon was forc'd to pay them 70000 Crowns. The Sicilians, on account of antient Friendship, were released Gratis. Only 3 Sons of John de Vinemilla remain'd long Prisoners at Genoa, the cause of detaining them is not known. The King of Aragon at the request of Duke Philip endeavour'd to pacity the People of Genoa with the Fleet his Brother Peter sent him from Gaera, but desifted for fear of loging time in reducing those People when the Affairs of Naples call'd upon him. From Porto Venere he fent his Brother Henry into Spain, and gave him the Territory of Ampurias, ordering him to be affilting in the War against Cassil, in case that King did break, as was fear'd he would when the Truce expir'd. The King himself set sail, and arrived at Gaera on the 2d of February. Mean while Prince Peter his Brother had taken Terracina, to the gate regret of the Pope, to whom that City belong'd. Upon the King's Arrival the Neapolitan Nobility repair'd to Gasta. He appointed Francis Picinino General, to oblige Duke Philip, whose ceft Favourite the Father of this Francis was. All Italy was alarm'd, and many Cities combind the City of the Company of the Property gainst the joyn'd in a League at the Sollicitation of Pope Eugenius. At the same time the War with the Moors went on in Spain. Peace was like to be establish'd betwixt the other Kings at the procurement of the King of Navarre, who defign'd to bend all his Forces against Italy. Two Ca-files, the one call'd Galea, the other Cashileja were taken from the Moors by Roderick Manrique, who was abroad with a Party. Troubles

Seam was now under great Apprehensions of new Troubles, the Nobility of Cafilic being Iroubles, incard against the King, for the unjust Imprisonment (as they term'd it) of Peter Mannel Cafilic.

Among the Clergy was be less Contention, because Pope Engenius labourd to distibly and in the the Council of Basil, which was only a Delign to lessen the Appropriate Gouncils, because they alone were a check upon Pope's Yee the desified, being warn'd so to do by the Emperor Sigismand, and Cardinal Casarina his own Legate. The Bishops at Basil summon'd the Pope to appear there in Person, and he refusing to obey, threaten'd code pope in time. The Christian Princes agreed not what was best to be done, but Sigismand the Emperor Seasing a Schism, tho he lov'd not the Pope, oppos'd the deposing of him. His Authority soon cass'd, for he dy'd on the gate of December. His Soon in Law Albertus, Duke of Austria, then King of the Romans, succeeded him, and was crown'd on the first of January 14,28. This year at Maddruto, a Town in Old Cassile belonging to D. Mouro de Luna, there fell Stones as big as small Cassiloss, which yet did no great harm, being very light. John de Agreda Carry'd fome of them to Kok, where the King then was. About the same time Husima, a strong Town and well-Garrison'd was taken from the Mours, by Inige oper. de Muchan, Lord of Hise, who then commanded on the Frontiers about Jan. Soon after Roderick Person, Lord of Hise, making an incursion with 1400 Men, was kill'd, and of all his Party, only 20 escap'd, the Emeny being very numerous; and yet bought not this Victory cheap, for many of them were stain, and among them the Governour of Granada. The King of Angore being offended at Pope Legamins, favour'd the Fathers at Basil, and the more now, because John Vittleso.

Patriarch of Menondria with Forces of the Popes enter'd the Kingdom of Napler, which gave at Pôpe Enginius, favour'd the Fathers at Bafil, and the more now, because John Visilesco, Patriarch of Alexandria with Forces of the Popes enter'd the Kingdom of Naples, which gave minny of the Natives occasion to change their Affections. Particularly the Prince of Trame, and Earl of Caferia, Menor little Faith went over to the Pope. On the other side Antony Commit was reconcilld to the King 8th Angoni, being put in hope he should be reford to the Principality of Saferno. The Patriarch was overthrown by the Angonians, and drove out of the Kingdom of Naples. The Nobility was soon reduced. At the same time Renee, Duke of Anjon having been Ransom'd arriv'd with his Fleet at Naples on the 19th of May. His Arrival Safe and Captain supported the Interest of Anjon. Renée to gain Reputation challengd the King of Angons, and Cathim his Gauntlet; the Angonians accepted the Challenge, but it came to nothing, for they could never agree upon the Time and Place. A Rhonges the King of France by Proclamation approv'd all the Acts of the Cancil of Basil, whereupon Pope Engenius order'd the Council to remove to Ferrard in Indy. Cefarinss the Legate; and 5 other Cavillasis immediately repair'd to that City. It was given out that the Caule of removing the Cardinals immediately repaird to that City. It was given out that the Cause of removing the County of Constantinople being come into Italy to that purpose. From Ferrara the Council remot to Herenez, the Plague being in the other City. Here the Affair of the Union was long debated to little purpole. The Fathers at Bafil would have the Greek go thittler, but they refused. For this reason, and because the Pope had dissolved that Assembly they they into Heats, and began to assume more than belong dto them. In Italy whilst Reme, was only reducing some Castles in Abrazzo, the King of Aragon resolved to beinge Males then waste be weak, because most of the Youth had follow a Reme, and Provisions were caree. Prince Henry of Argan, and his Brother the King of Novarre, entred Cafile with 500 Horfe, hoping during those Tumults, to recover the Lands that had been taken from them. Both Parties sent to Court them, neither knowing what they designd, if they agreed among themselves, that the King of Novarre should go to Caellar, where the King of Cafile, then was, and Prince Henry to Pennich, a Town which had been his. Their design was to look on till they found which side Princes of was likelies to restore them to their Estates. Mean while Inigo de Zamiga, Brother, to the Aragen Earl of Ledssma, with a Party of 500 Horfe secured Palladdid, a Large, Rich, and the interest Casile fearing these Beginnings might produce greater Mischies, went to Olimado, to be the of Casile. They had several Conservation this purpose, but all without success. For the Frince after amuling, both Parties for some time, at last joyn'd with the Rebels. This was supposed to be done with the Advice of the King of Novarre, that the might have a sure Stake, whoever done with the Advice of the King of Navarre, that he might have a fure Stake, whoever was uppermoft. The whole Kingdom was under great Apprehenions of a New War. Therefore fome Religious, Pious, and Learned Perfons interpost. They ipoken if Rebellious Noblemen, and represented to them the Mijeries of a Civil War, advillage compose Differences before any Blood was spilt. They labour'd so much, that they persivaded both Parties to meet at Castro Nuño, there to treat of some amicable Accommodation.

Movre came to conful about carrying on the War they had in Hand. His coming more incensed the Mutineers. Most of them were at Arevalo, and the Queen her felf favour'd her Son and Brothers against the King their Mushand. The King sent the Bilhops of Burges and Asila, to try if there were any way of composing Differences, but they could not prevail. James de Valera, a Gentleman who follow'd the Prince, wrote a Letter to the King, advising him to incline to Mercy rather than Severity. It being read in Council, no Body faid any thing to it but the Archbishop, D. Her Death put an end to the Treaty of Peace, and the Queen of Castile return'd to Arevalo, where she was before. War broke out in several Places at the same time. The Chief Heads of the Rebellion were Prince Hemy of Aragon, the Admiral, and the Earl of Benavente. D. Alvaro de Luna, and his Brother the Archbishop of Toledo bravely made head against the Rebels. Inigo the Action was kill'd Laurence Davalor, Son to the Constable D. Ruy Lopez, Davalos. John de Mena a famous Poet in those Dayslamented his Death in Elegiack Verse. At the same time the King of Navarre came into New Castile with a good Body of Men in favour of the Rebels, because the Royalists were too hard for them, and being dispersed about the Country plunder'd it, and ravish'd the Women. In Old Castile the King took Medina del Cumpo, and Arevalo from the King of Navarre. At a Village call'd Nabarro in that Neighbourhood, he had a Conference with Ellenor, Queen Dowager of Portugal. Noin that Neighbourhood, he had a Conterence with Ellener, Queen Jowager of Portugal. Nothing was concluded touching the Rebels, but the King fent Emballadors to advise Peter, Duke of Coimbra to do the Queen right. The King of Aragon also fent an Embally from Italy to Portugal to the same effect, but nothing was done, for that Prince would not quit the Government, and the Kings were not at Leasture to use Force. So that Queen Ellenor ended her days in Cassie. The Princes of Aragon halted out of the Kingdom of Toledo to Old Cassie to fecture their Interest there. Arevalo open at the Gates to receive them, and thence they went to Medina del Campo and sat down before it. Some Skirmish happen'd, but the Siege lasted not long, for some of the Townshine by Night gave entrance to the Rebels. The King had dispos'd his Forces about the Streets, and publick Places. The Townshien kept close in their Houses. D. Alvaro de Luna, his Brother the Archbishop of Toledo, and the Master of Alcantara in Difguize escaped through the midft of their Enemies, being advised so to do by the King, knowing their Lives were in Danger, if taken by the Rebels. They came and kissed the King's Hand, conducting him to the Palace with feign'd Respect. The Queens and Prince R. John of Henry hearing what had happen'd came thither, and after a long Consultation in hatred to D. captile Alvaro, all the Officers of the King's Houshold were remov'd. Others that had adher'd to made a the King were turn'd out of the City. It was propos'd to compose Differences, the King be-by the Reing then a Prisoner, and Judges were appointed to decide all Controverses. D. Alwaro was bels. commanded not to depart out of such Towns of his own as should be assign'd during the term of 6 Years, and that he should not write to the King, unless the Letters were first perus'd by the Queen and Prince Henry. Moreover that he should not make any new Alliances, or maintain Soldiers, and for Security that he would perform all this he should deliver his Son D. John as Hostage, and nine Castles within 30 Days. These things much afflicted D. Alvaro, who yet ceased not to study new ways to rise. But all Men shun him that is falling, and the Rebels strengthned their Party by fresh Allyances. Joanna, Daughter to the Admiral was contracted to the King of Navarre. Beatrix, Daughter to the Earl of Benavente, to Prince Henry of Aragon. These Matches were contriv'd by James Gomez, de Sandoval, Earl of Castro, who fought by that means to unite the Malecontents, and ruin D. Alvaro de Luna.

Progress
of the War

The Civil War in Spain seem'd to be at an end; but Italy was all over tin a Flame with the War of Naples. The Forces of Renee wasted with delay; and this Wife and Children being sent to Marfeilles, seem'd to denote there remain'd but small hopes. Besides, James Caldora the great Prop of that Party, dy'd suddenly as he was going to Plunder Circalles, a Town of the Pope's juridiction, and the rest of his Family after his Death joyn'd with the Aragonians, whose interest daily advanc'd. They took the City Aversa, substitute and Canada. They was all the Aragotion. Flavouring and Canada. They have the Aragotion. Flavouring and Canada. They have the Aragotion. Flavouring and Canada. deleased the rotes of Transaction of Manual Aragonians out of Italy. To this purpose the Cardinal of Trans entred the Kingdom of Naples with 10000 Men; but they being Raw Soldiers did no great matter. The Army of Aragon march'd directly to Naples, and fate down before it, Rena not daring to come into the Field. Some Provisions and Recruits were brought to it, Rove not daring to come into the rield. Some rroyllons and recruits were brought to the Belieg'd by the Genoels. These were finall Helps; for the Multitude within was great, and began to fuster much Want, Corn being excessive dear. Some advis'd to Surrender upon any Terms, but that not fucceeding, one Inello and his Brother, both Bricklayers, fled to the Camp, and offerd to flow, how the City might be taken without much danger; to they were well rewarded. Their design was to convey Men into the Town through an Aqueduct that well rewarded. Their delign was to convey Men into the Town through an Aqueduck that carries the Water into the City. 200 Men were chosen for this purpose, and order'd to obey the two Brothers. The Way was so difficult, that must of them were jeft behind, and only 45 wan through, and came to the Wallof a Private House, where a Wonnai trye out, and had betray'd them, had they not soon stopped he would be were within. It was feared they were all Cut off; and yet the Forces appointed to give the Malut, apply'd the Scaling Ladders but faulty, hearing no Noise within. The 40 Soldiers hearings the Noise Kenby the them, and Renee to drive them out; and there followed a hot Disputs; but at length, the Aragonians having forc'd some of the Gates, enter'd the City. Renee, after having done all that became a good Commander, and brave Soldiers, retir'd to the Castle. Some Houses were Plunder'd, but no body Kill'd. Thus the Aragonians made themselves Masters of Naples upon Saragedy the 2.0 of Jime, 1422. The Soldiers were publickly commended, and twanded according to the Morit of every Man; and particularly Rene Mariness, Commander of those who can't through the Aqueduch. The Two Bricklayers received more than could be expected by such means persons. Some curious Men observed, that Bellewin took that City from the Goths by the lame Stratagem. Rene having no hopes left, capitulated to deliver up all Places. by fuch mean persons. Some curious Men observed, that Beltjarius took that City from the Gobb by the same Stratagem. Rene having no hopes lest, capitulated to deliver up all Places that held out for him, upon liberty to depart freely. This done, he went to Florenze to see Pope Engenius, and, thence into France. After his departure, Abruzzo, Apidia, and all other Places, submitted to the Aragonium; and thus Lody, was in part pacity the In Spar the Troubles, did not cease, the Nobility slighting the Government. De Luike desumman, Master of Colory 200, lay desperately Sick, and was given over. John Ramivez de Gustoma, Chiefe Commendary for that Order, and Ferdinand de Padilita, the Master's Deputy, extended who should succeed him. The latter had secured the Votes of the Chapter that was to Elect. Therefore D. Fohr resolved to obtain that Dignity by Force, securing the Fowis that belong drog that Order. D. Ferdinand with 400 Horse met him at Barajas, defeated, and took him Pristiation of the Condens of his own Men was throwing at the Enemy. After this Death, Let Moofe was made Mafter Rebellion of the Order. D. Alvaro de Luna refided at Escalona, and contriv'd to regain his former Power. His Brother the Archbishop of Toledo dy'd at Talavera on the 4th of February, which was a great Loss to him. There only remain'd D. Roderick de Luna his second Cousin, whom afterwards he promoted to the Archbishoprick of Santiago. In that Confusion of times every noble Man feized upon Famous to the Archbinoptick of Santiago. In that Continuou of times every noble Man feixed upon Famous what he could get, and among them Peter Xiares, Eccurd Talaevers, Carce admitting the King, Men about who came to quel those Diforders. The Archbinop was bury'd in a beautiful Chappel of the Cathedral, built by D. Alvaro. After much Contention, D. Guiterre de Toledo, Enchbinop of Sovil was promoted to the See of Toledo. He was a Man too upright for those times an enjoy'd that Digailly abut, three Years. The Bishop of Oviedo was Translated to Sevil, he of Orense to Oviedo. To conclude, the Bishoprick of Orense was given in Commendam to John de Torgateriada, a Dominican, afterwards Cardinal of S. Sixtus, a Person of great Learning, as appears by his Works: "Fig Contemporary was Alongo Tostado, born at Madvigal, renowned for his many Writings." He came in process of time to be Billiop of Avila. A K. Siena in Tuscany he put up several Propositions in Divinity, offering to defend them in the Schools. Some of them were dillik'd, and the Cardinal Torquemada writ against him. Tostado answered him, not sparing the Pope's Authority to defend his Opinions. He dy'd on the 3d of September 1455.

The Success of the Aragonians in Italy. The Rebellion in Castile. The Death of the Queens of Portugal and Castile. The Bastle of Olmedo, and Death of Prince Henry of Aragon.

HE Affairs of the Spaniards succeeded better in Italy than in Spain. The great Difference betwixt the Castilian and Aragonian, but their Fortune was no great coording to the Quality of them that governd. The King of Aragon was an active and ambitious Prince, and spar'd no Labour to advance his Glory. Before, his Goodness and Bounty gain'd him the Affections of all his Subjects, as well that an active and are the subjects as well that are the subjects are the subjects as well that are the subjects are the subject as the subject are the fight, his Goodneis and Bounty gain'd him the Anections or an ins subjects, as well tratians as Ariganian. In Cafile the Power of D. Alvaro continu'd, tho his Perfon was remov'd. The King of Navaro endeavour'd not to redrefs what was amils, but to make himself Mater of the King, who always left the Government to another. The King of Cafile had fome good Qualities, but the bad were more prevalent. He was addicted to Poetry and Mufick, and had Castine that way loved through and Scotch but could not addite the Reference of the Reference and Scotch but could not addite the Reference and Scotch but could not addite the Reference and Scotch but was a subject to the Reference and Scotch but could not a subject to the Reference and Scotch but was a subject to the Reference and Scotch but the Scotch and Scotch but was a subject to the Reference and Scotch but was a subject to the Reference and Scotch but was a subject to the Reference and Scotch but was a subject to the Reference and Scotch but the Scotch but was a subject to the Reference and Scotch but the Scotch but was a subject to the Reference and Scotch but the Scot Qualities, but the bad were more prevaient. He was addicted to rotery and haulek, and had a Genius that way, lov'd Hunting and Sports, but could not endure Business, and therefore gave little attention to it, and answer'd short. His first Minister did what he would in his Name. The King of Aragon having taken Naples, and subdu'd all the Faction of Anjon, on the Success of 26th of February 1443, surred that City in Triumph after the manner of the antient Romans, the Araon a Chariot drawn by 4 White Hories, another of the same fort being led before him. The People with loud Acclamations wished him a long and happy Reign. He would not be crown'd, faying, That Honour was due to the Saints, who affilted him to gain the Victory. All the Streets were firew'd with Flowers, and richy hung, and all Places full of fweet Odours. It only remain'd to gain Pope Engenim, with whom a Treaty was fet afoot at Siena, where he then was. On the 1sth of July they agreed upon the General Siena, whom the Market him to his Son Ferginand, whom, the Illegitimate, he appointed his Heir, as to that Crown only: That the King of Aragon should pay yearly to the Pope Soco Qunces, a fort of Coin then in the: That he should anderway to guel Farmer Species who. tended form right on account of his former Election, and had now fome Votes for him, flood up against D. Peter Giron. Albaquerque still held out for the Angonium, but the King going thither in Person it was delivered up by the Governour Ferdinand Davalet. Laguage the King went back to Toledo, and at the fuit of the Citizens took that Government from Peter Lopez, de Ayala, giving it to Peier Sarmiento, which proved afterwards of ill Confequence, and at prefent oftended the Prince, who favoured Ayala. At the end of this Year, and on the 4th of December dyed D. Guierre, Archbishop of Toledo at Talavera. His Body was certainly bury'd in the Cathedral. There is a Dispute whether it was afterwards removed or not; But it

ry'd in the Cathedral. There is a Dilipute whether it was atterwards removed or not; but is matters nothing. D. Alonja Carrillo then Bilhop of Signenga, was preferred to the Sec of Totad at the beginning of the Year 1446. He was a Man of a haughty, and reftlefs Spirit, as appeared by the Dilorders he afterwards cauled in the Kingdom. Only Airerga and Korja held out for the King of Navarre, but they were well garrifoned and provided. Belides it was reported that the King of Navarre was preparing to return to Cafilia. The Morrifk King allogat, the Instigation of the Aragonians, entring the Frontiers of Andaluzia, tooks Benamant, and Renzalema, two strong Towns. It was not practicable to oppose both Lenemies as once, therefore the King's Foorce marched against the Aragonians in May and having bessered. Aimed fore the King's Forces marched against the Aragonians in May, and having belieged August three Months, they began to treat of furrendring. It was agreed that Town and Torija should be pit into the Hands of Queen Many of Aragen to hold them in trust, till such Judges as should by Confest of both Parties be appointed, decreed to whom they should be delivered. This by content of both ratters be appointed, active to within they made be derived in the done the King was feelfvel into the Town on the 12th of Angult. He caused part of the Walls to be east down, and some substitutings to be fired. The Townsmen looking upon this as a breach of Articles, refused to admir him into the Castle, which obliged him to return to Vallaidid without doing any thing to the purpose.

A This Departure from Attença the King left the Archbishop of Toledo, and D. Charles de Archano to observe the Angoniani, and seize upon that Town and Torija if an Occasion offered. From those Towns the Angonians sent out Parties as far as Guadalajara, where the Archbishop and Archano resided. Some ill affected Persons sowed Sedition through all those Parts; which the King of Navarre had more Considence in, than in his Strength. Bethouse at Variance, and D. John Packets to advance their own Interest, put the King and Prince at Variance, to ficking degree that both Parties raised Men. In a treaty between the King and his Son, I find the King pardons the Earl of Castro and his Children, and orders them to be his Son, I find the King pardons the Earl of Caftro and his Children, and orders them to be reflored to their Effates. D. Roderik Manrique without any other right than what he grounded on these Confusions, "called himself Master of Santiago, at the Instigation of Polic Fighnius and the King of Angen, "without any conferr of the Kinghts. By this means he hoped to feize the Towns belonging to 'that Order', but D. Alvaro opposed him, and there ensured much Towns Mischief. Whilst Messengers passed betwint them, Duke Philip dyed in the Caltle of Milan on the sigh of Magnit. That fame Month the King of Cafile married the Lady Elizabeth, but without much Points by reason of the Tunults raised by the Nobility. Immediately the King and Queen began to contrive the Ruin of D. Alvaro de Luna, which was the Reward of his making that Match. King Alonso of Aragon was by Duke Philip appointed his Heir in his Will. In pursuance thereof Raymund Buil, the King's Commissioner, caused all the Officers in the Gallle of Milan to take the Oath of Fidelity to him as Duke; but the Rabble foon made themselves Masters of Both Cattles, and raied them. King Alons could not repair thither, being employed in the War with the Florentines, from whom he had taken Kipa, Maranica, and Castellan de Pescara, The Florentines implored aid of Frederick, Lord of Urbino, and Malatefin, Lord of Artifino. The King belieged Piombino, and took an Island near it called Lillo. The People of Phosphiobaltical to pay yearly as an Acknowledgment, a Gold Cup with 500 Crowing. The Photonilus valiocame to Agreement with the King, who went away to Sulmona, leaving Gairifons in the Mand Lillo, and Caffelles de Pefearl. Next King Alonfo marched towards Milan, but Trantis Sforcha prevailed and wrested that Duchy from him. In him began a new Rate of Dikes, as also an Hereditary War betwixt France, Italy, and Spain, which has

After a long Siege Torija furrendred to the King, but at the same time the Aragonian Garrison in Atienca surprized the Castle called Pena de Alcagar in the Territory of Seria, This moved the King to march to Soria with 3000 Horse. At the same time the Corres of Aregon fat at Zaragora to make Proparations for War, and ordered that every tenth Man by Lot should be listed. However they fent Emballadors to the King of Castile to know what his Defign was, and advise him not to break the Reace. The King an light of the ways used to go well attended, but that the Aragonian had done illin affilting the King of Navarre, and if they did not forbear he would take other Measures. He also sent Heraulds to make his Complaints in the Cortes, and the Argonium for back another Embally. While these Mef-fages passed betweet them, a Party of Cashie surprized the Casses of Verdejo, in the Territory of Calatayud. Thus all treaty of Peace ceafed, and they had foon come to blows, but that a Configuracy of the Nobles in Caffile obliged the King to return to Valladelid. There he kept Confpirescy of the Nobles in Cafile obliged the King to return to Valuabelia. There he kept his Christom, and began the Year. 1448. At the same time a party of Navarra, took the Town of Campege, and the Governoun of Albarrain Antana, a Town on the Borders of Cafile. The chief care was to reduce the Noblity and reconcile the Prince to his Father, for he was a reflects and inconfant Youth, never fixed. The Ambitingon D. But allowed the weaken the weaken the basin has ended to the Alexandre. He sind the was given up a Hostage to Amaron the T Stard Daughter, and with her the Town of Medellin in Estremadura near Guadiana. Thus himself too weak alone to oppose that great Power, he laboured to get forreign Aids, and to this propose made a League with the Venetians, implored the Favour of the Popes, and to this propose made a League with the Venetians, implored the Favour of the Popes, and fort a foliem membally to the King of Angun at the beginning of the Year 141, offering if he Yeheved him with Men and Mony, that after the War was ended, that Province flouid pay the fame Tribute to hint, tured to pay to the Tank. The King sent some supplies, but too finally to oppose the walk Power of the Enemy. This Year was Fortunate to Spain, for the Birth of the Princess Elizabeth, for whom Heaven design'd the Crown of Calpite, her Brothers of ging. She was an incompatable Princess, and the Glory of Spain. She was born at Mindigal on the 23d of April. Honry, Brother to the Admiral, who had been taken up with the other Noblemen three Years before, made his escape out of the Castle of Languine surface with the Might-cap, as if he had been there, went up to a Tower, where with the Thred he drew up a Rope that some of his Friends had ready below for him. The Rope was knotted, and so he let himself down. Mean while the Governous looking into his Room and seeing something in the Bed thought he slept and went away satisfyed. It Portagal, Elstow the King's Sifter was contracked to the Emperor Frederick at Lisbon on the get of Angust. Soon after the Bride was fent by Sea to Pifa, and went thence to Siena in Italy, The Nobility of Caftile falling off from him, and the Prince of Viana revolting the King Decay of

of Navarre's Interest declined both at home and abroad. All this was the Contrivance of D, the K, of Alvaro de Luna to secure himself, but it turned to his Ruin. By his advice there was a fort Navarre's About of Lana to secure numers, our it turned to instrum. By instalvace there was a fort around of an Accommodation made betwirk the Kings of Cassis and Navarre. It was agreed that the Admiral and Earl of Cassis, and other Noblemen should be pardoned and restored to their Estates, as also that D. Alonso, Son to the King of Navarre should again have the Mastership of Calarrays. But this succeeded not, for Peter Giron who was in Possession made himself strong in the Town of Almagor resolving to stand upon his Guard. So D. Alonfo was forc'd to return to Aragon as he came, which highly offended the King of Nature, To add to his Trouble, Prince Himy was by the means of D. Almago entirely reconciled to his Father. But the most grievous thing of all was, that a tedious and bloody Civil War broke out in Neware. That Nation had been long divided betwie two Factions, the Bia-Two Fa. monteles, and the Agrammetels, headed by the Earl of Levin, and Marques of Corres, and dions in much Blood had been fpile. The Agrammetels were for the King, the Biammetels incled Navarre. the Prince to take up Arms against his Father, who they fald Wrongfully with-held the Crown from him. In the first Place they made a League with Caffile and France. The King of California and of Cafrie promifed to affit the Prince, provided he would declare and take up Arms. The King of France did the same, being then in a Condition to do it, having recovered all Guienne from the Englip. As soon as the Civil War broke out in Neware, the Biamontefe seized leveral Towns and Cities, and among them? Amplona, the Metropolis of the Kingdom, Olize and Arvar. Yet the greateft part of the Kingdom and the Principality of Vians remained in the King's Power, he having in time put Garrillon and given the Covertment of Towns to Men of approved Fidelity. Prince Honry, and foon after his Father the King of Capitle came and layed Siege to Effeta, where the Queen of Navarre was. The King her Husband peeded from Zarzeoza to her Rellef, but bringing small Force with him, and the Agramonte first the being yet able to oppose the Enemies, he was forced to return to Zarzeoza designing to raise Men in that Kingdom. As soon as he was gone the King and Prince of Castile as if the War were ended, tho they had done nothing, at the Request of Prince Charles returned to Burges. His mild Nature was hurtful to Prince Charles; for his Father having raifed an Army, tho fmall in Number, yet composed of Old Soldiers lay'd Siege to Ayiar, a well fortify'd Town. His Son came to relieve the Belieged, and on the 3d of Oldover both' Armies drew out. Some Religious Persons laboured to reconcile the Eather and Son. Fince Charles was willing to lay down Arms upon Condition all that had followed him lhould be pardoned; That the Principality of Vinaa, and half the Revenue's of the Crowin hould be given to him, and that the King of Cashie, without whom he had sword he would make no Peace, should approve of these Articles. The King of Navarra allowed part and rejected part of the Conditions, whereupon the signal for Battle was given on both sides. At first the Biamont of it made their Enemies give way, but Roderick Rebolledo the King's Lord Chamberlain shood his Ground with such bravery, that he gave time for those with had not engaged to come my, and then they that field before rallying endeavoured to blot out the shame of berlain flood his Ground with fuch bravery, that he gave time for those wild had not energied to come up, and then they that fled before rallying endeavoured, to blot out the flame of having tuned their Backs. Thus the Prince's Forces being an indiciplined Multitude, not able to bear the Charge were put to Flight. The first that rai were the Horse of Addition. But a few were killed, many taken. The Prince inmifel being befet edivered his Sword and Gauntlet to his Brother Anno. Authors do not write what Numbers fought, or what were killed, nor give any particular Account of the Battle. The Prince was feat Princer to Tafalla, and thence to Monray. It is reported he was always sulpicious of being Poiloned, and therefore when taken would not eat till his Brother, had tasted. The King Potioned, and therefore when taken would not can in a Brothing and a start of Neware after this Victory returned to Zuragosa with his Wife, who proved foon after with Child. Yet the Biamont server no way diffinated at this Lofs, especially because Prince Henry came to their Assistance. Besides, the Nobility of Aragon savoured Prince Chailes, and Henry came to their Assistance. Besides, the Nobility of Angon favoured Prince Charles, and plotted how to release him. Navarre was in a miserable Condition, the Country plundered by Soldiers, and the Towns divided into Factions, which often fell to blows. In Andalusias Soldiers, and the Towns divided into Factions, which often fell to blows. In Andalusias Case the Assistance of the Christians succeeded better. On the 1st of February 1452, a mixel less than the Assistance of Christians routed 600 Novill Horse, and 800 Foot, who wasted the Country feats of the Moor. In Navel 600 Horse, and 1900 Foot of the Insidels were overthrown with great Slaighter, In March 600 Horse, and 1505 Foot of the Insidels were overthrown with great Staighter, by 300. Christian Horse, and 2000 Foot near Lorca, in, the Kingdom of Minesia, and a Bobty of 40000 head of Cattle they had gathered, recovered. This Victory was obtained by Almos the Almos of Minesia, Garcia, Manrique his Son in Law, and Jame's Ribera, Governour of the civil Affairs and the City Marcia. Thus the Moors were checked and began to be mutinous among themselves, grown weary of the Government of Mabonate the Lame. Nothing remarkable happend this Year in Spain, but that the Queen of Marchar's on the toth of March at a Town called Son, on the Borders of Arigon and Navarie, was delivered of Son called Ferdinand, to whom Heaven had alotted valt Kingdoms, and immortal Renown for his orthandard to Marchard the Kingson Transcriptor. for his extraordinary Actions both in Peace and War. At Siena in Tuscany the Emperor Frederick met the Lady Ellenor his Bride, who came thither by Sea from Portugal. There they ratithe Contract; at Rome they were marryed and crowned by the Pope, and at Naples the Marriage was confummated. The Feafts and publick Expressions of Joy were so great as no Man living had feen the like.

ET us now come to the unhappy Death of D. Alvaro de Luna, Constable of Castile, and D. Alvaro Mafter of Santiage who from a low Condition afcended to the height of Worldly Hapmatter of Santiages who from a low continion accuracy to the neight of Worldly Halphis Chairafter and pinefs, whence he was caft headlong by an unbrideled Ambition. He had good Natural Parts, and no lefs good Qualities, a ready Wit, a piercing Judgement. His Words were always Premeditated, but fharp, tho he had an impediment in his Speech. His cunning and art of Diffembling were great, his Pride and Ambition nothing inferior. Of Body he was little, but it was ftrong and cunred to Labour. The Features of his Face were pleafing, and withal Majeftick. As he grew in Years he also grew in haughtiness, was difficult of the best of the best of the state access, fpoke harfuly, and fuffered himself to be swayed by Passions, rever putting any mean to his Revenge. He had been often impeached upon several Articles, as that he had gato his Revenge. He had been often impeached upon feveral Articles, as that he had gathered more Treasure than suited with his Quality, and ceased not still to heap up more. That he had diffraced the Nobility. That he had the King in his Power and governed absolutely, wanting himself nothing but the Name of a King, having 'gain'd the Affections of the People, and being possess for many strong Holds, and vast Riches drawn out of the King's Costers. These things the King was sensible in part were true, and yet he only durif sometimes complain to the Queen, till at length a fair opportunity of destroying him was offered. D. Peter de Zwinga, Earl of Plaseries was withdrawn from Court to Bejar, and D. Alware believing it was in hatred to him wesolved to do him all the habits he could. Note the fair believing it was in hatred to him, refolved to do him all the harm he could. Near Bejar is the Castle of Piedrabita, whence D. Aborro de Lunn was to be apprehended the next Day. No Body offered to give him Notice of it but one Journe Goor, his Servant, who advised him to fly to his own Lands, but, he refused to thir as undervaluing his Enemies. On the 5th of April the House, where, he Lodged was befet, and after some Meslages had passed to and fro he surrendred himself, having first received a Promise under the King's Hand, that no wrong should be done to him. He was secured in that same House, and thither the King's cane to dine aster hearing Mass. "D. Monfo de House as the House, and thither the King's side. D. The King answered," That he had received more than ever Prince bestowed on a Sub"ject. That as to affishing him in recovering his Liberty he was also the Cause that he "lost it. And as to the wants of the Exchequer, fince he had made them it had been rea-" fonable he had supplyed them out of his own Fortune, yet Justice should be done. It is a wonderful thing, that none of all those D. Alvaro had raised now, appeared for him. He was sens Prisoner to Pontiles, in keeping of James de Zuniga. Son to the Marshal Inigo de Zuniga. This Year so remarkable in Spain for the Death of this great Man, was satal to Christendom, for the loss of the City Constantinople, taken by Mahomet the Great Turk, after a Constantidom, for the lofs of the City Confaminale, taken by Mahomet the Great Turk, after a confamiliation of 54 Days. Great Cruelties were committed in it when entred, and it has ever fine apple takbeen the Metropolis of the Turkij Empire. For Security of Performance he delivered Luis de Biamoure, Earl of Levin, and Contable of Newarre, and his Children, with other Noblemen as Holtages. The Joy for this Agreement was not lafting, for new Tunults began foun after. The Father's Coyclounders, and Son's Impatience for a long time confumed the Kingdom of Mentine, as final he related in its place.

THREE years before this we write of, there began a bloody War in Haly. Francis Storeia being policifed of the Dutchy of Milan, demanded of the Venetians certain Towns belonging to the Dutchy, which they held along the River Aladan. They refuling he refolved to the Force, and to that purpole joyned in League with the Florimines. In revenge the Venetians commanded all Florenines to depart out of their Territories, and forbid all Commerce with them. Befides by the means of Leanello, Marques of Ferrara, they joyned in League with the, King of Aragon. William Marques of Moniferrat was fent with apply Aragonian Horle, and 2000 Foot to invade the Duke's Territories on the fide of Alagandria la Palla. Ferdinand the King's Son, and Duke of Calabria, who had now 3 Children, Maplo, Frederick, and Ellenor, had 6000 Horle, and 2000 Foot to make War, upon the Homerines. He entred the Territories of Corrona and Arezo, wasted the Country, burnt the Villages, and took the Confiderable Town of Toyano. He also overthrew Alfor de Fanga, who came first to the Alifedance of the Homerines, whereupon some other, Castles were taken. On the other side Anany Oleina having made himself Master of Vado, 14. Town in the Territory ceafed not thence to infest the Lands of the Forenines. The War went on no less vigorously in the Dutchy of Milan. Francis Specia endequoired to draw Rence, Duke of Anjou to his Afed not thence to intelt the Lands of the Florentines. The War went on ho lefs vigoroully in the Dutchy of Milan. Francis Sprease and exported to draw Rende, Duke of Mijou to his Affiffance, promiting when that War was ended to aid him in recovering the Kingdom of Naples. Rende found the Patics on the Mountains guarded by the Duke, of Savag, and Marques of Montieran, and therefore came to Genos by Sea with only two Ships, and a final Retinuc, which Goon rendred him contemptible. Luis, Dauphin of France, who was afterwards King, came as far a Mi with Forces to favour the Dukesof Milan and Anique, but at the end of three Months that Army returned into France without doing any Thing. Thus the Affairs of the Milanefe: and Florentines were in a dangerous Politure, put the Ruin of others proved their Safety. The loss of Conflantinople inclined, all Parifics, to, harken to Peace, and the more readily, because it was given out the Tank designed, to pass over into Indy. Simin the Camerine, an Angulin Fryar, a Man more active, and Information, Camerine, an Angulin Fryar, a Man more active, and Information, complained of the Fallipood of the Venetians in that they flould conclude any Confloracy without his Kinowigelige or Conlient. The King answered, he neither began the War, nor would be any hindrance to the Feace; that he forgave the Affiond cone him in the Ruine in the Milanefer were pead, and were to t the Dutchy of Milan. Francis Sforcia endeavoured to draw Renee, Duke of Anjou to his Affiftance, promiting when that War was ended to aid him in recovering the Kingdom of Nafage through his Country, or furnish them with Provisions, but rather oppose them with all his Power. These Conditions with only some small Amendments were approved of by the King. All the Cities and States of Italy were included in the Confederacy, except the Genoefes, Sigismund Malatesta and Astor de Euença, who were not admitted by the King. The Geneeles, because they observed not the Articles of Peace, concluded on some Years before. but all fell to nothing by the Death of Pope Nicholai, who supported this great Coloffus, and departed this Life on the 24th of March. Within 14 Days the Cardinals elected in chosen. his place Cardinal Monfo Borgia, who had before vowed and given it under his Hand, if he his place Cardinal Thiology Birdy, who has voted the Turks, calling himfelf Caliaxus, to great was his Affarance of obtaining that Dignity, it being, as was given oit, foretold him when a Child, by F. Vincent Force. To requite whom for that Prophecy he Canonized him, as he did S. Edmund an Englishman. This Pope was born at Xativa in the Kingdom of Valencia, and S. Edmind an Engliphoso. In its rope was norm at Nativa in the Kingdom of Valencia, of them Yarentage, but he never, cidd any thing that was little. He proved a Conftant Enemy to the King of Aragon, either because he thought it conduced to his Grandeur, or that, as it generally happens, he hated him being more obliged than was in his Powerto pay. Thus he could never be prevailed upon to grant a new Bull of Investiture of the Kingdom of Naples to the King and his Son. He was more studious of advancing his Kindred than became him, for in ohe Day he made his two Nephews, John Mila, aid Redwik fiorgia, Cardinats: He alfo conflitted Peter Borgia, Brother to Redwick, Victor General of all the State of the Church. Pope Alexander, and Dake Falenine, two Perfors afterwards odious to the World for their wicked Practices, were Branches that fprang from terwards odious to the World for their wheat reactives, were brainess that plang from this Papacy. Peace-was ratifyed betwirk Cafilie and Angen, and the King of Navarre, as had been agreed, ceafed pretending to any Towns in Cafilie, receiving a Pension in lieu of them. The Tumults in Navarre did not cease, the People being divided into Factions A great Number followed Charles Prince of Viana, most Men believing he had the best right. His Sifter Blanch efponed his Quarrel with all her might, which so highly offended the King their Father, that he treated with the Earl of Faux his Son in Law about making over the Grown to him, and difiniteriting Charles and Blanch. The better to secure their Delign, they courted the King of France to joyn with them. The King of Casille savoured Prince Charles, and therefore there was danger of a War betwixt France and Spain. At the fame time King Henry was making Preparations for the War with the Moors of Granada, and concluding a new Match then in Hand. The Cortes met at Cuellar, where all degrees off People encouraged one another to take Arms, and laboured to express their Loyalty to the new King. During the King's ablence the Archbishop of Toledo, and Earl of Haro were left at Valladolid joynt Commissioners to govern the Kingdom. This done, having there of gathered a powerful Army in which were 5000 Horse, the King entred the Territories Cassistence. of the Moors, and marched to the Plain of Granada. Soon after he destroyed all the Ter-vages the of the Moors, and marched to the Plain of Granada. Soon after he deltroyed all the Terriority of Malaga with Fire and Sword, in 60 fhort a time, that a single Man a Horfebar field the could feared have overrun it so soon. Joanna Sister to King Aloufo of Porregal flad been Moors, & contracted to the King of Cassile by Proxy. The Marriage was celebrated at Condows on maries the 2ist of May, with great Solemity and loy, the Nobility and Commonalty from all Joanna, parts slocking thistory. There was running at Tilt, and other Sports and Shows among the the K. of Milltary Men. Some looked upon it as an ill Omen that the Marriage was folemized in the Portugal head'of War, and therefore said that Joy would not be lasting. They were married by the Archbishop of Tours, then Embassador in Cassile from the King of France, with whom Cassile was in amity, and at odds with the English, they being mortal Enemies to the French. The saim of the War against the Moors brought such Numbers of Men, that the Army consisted of 14000 Horse, and 50000 Foot. With these Forces three Incursions were made into the Territories of the Moors brought all the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Territories of the Moors brought all the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Territories of the Moors brought sign all the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Territories of the Moors brought sign all the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Territories of the Moors brought sign all the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Cerritories of the Moors brought sign all the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Moors brought sign all the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Amers sign and the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Moors brought sign and the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Moors brought sign and the Plain even in sleat of the City Granada in the Moors brought sign and the City of the Moors brought sign and the Moors brought sign and the Moors brought made into the Territories of the Moors, firing all the Plain even in fight of the City Granded, The Moors affembled on all fides, but the King thought not fit to come to a Battle, having refolved for three Years continually to defiroy the Corn, and by that means reduce them to extream want. This highly offended the Soldiers who gaped after Plunder, and they threatned fince so many Opportunities were let pass, they would not fight when their Officers commanded. The Nobility also conspired to seize the King and carry on the A Conspired War after another manner. Peter Giron, Master of Calatrava, was the chief of the Conspirators. Inigo de Mendoça, third Son to the Marques de Santillana, advised the King to return Henry. from Alconder, where that contrivance was hatched, to Cordova, without acquainting him what was intended against him. At Cordova the King was informed of the Conspiracy. For that Reason, as also because the Season was far advanced, he dismissed his Army with Orders to be again ready in the Spring. The Nobility were also difinished, and their Portsgiven to others, which was a Punishment for their disloyalty, and showed their Intrigue was diffcovered. The King went away to Avila, and thence to Segovia to hunt, resolving to return to Andalusia very from, and to express his Resolution, took two Branches of a Tomptantae Tree knotted together for the Orle of his Scutcheon, that being the Coat of Arms of the Kings of Granada. This denoted he would not design till he had quite expelled the Mobis. In Naples at the beginning of the Year 1456, D. Alonfo de Aregon, Prince of Ca- 1456.

pua, and Ellenor his Sifter both Grandchildren to the Klug of Argen were married to Hippolite, and Siorcia Maria, Son and Daughter of Francis Siorcia, Duke of Milani. Pope Calizatus was much alarmed at this Allyance, it being chiefly defigned againft him. The King of Cafiile returned to the War with the Moori, but without the Noblity. He observed the fame method he had done before, of washing the Country, and the Soldiers being kept from fighting were ready to Mutiny. To prevent any Tumult, the King salled them together, and in few Words shewed how much better it was to subdue the Enemy without hazarding themselves, than to try the event of a Battle which must colf many Lives. This the Army was rather appealed than satisfyed, and returned to Cordova, where some were dismified, and others put into Winter Quarters. About the latter end of the Year the King went away to Madrid. Mean while the King of Portugal stat a great Fleet towards Italy to joya with the Confederates. It arrived there at such time as the heat of the Princes of Italy was abated, and new Commotions began to break out at Genoa and Siena. Thus the Portugue Fleet returned home without effecting any thing. Einzbeith Queen of Portugal deta at Elora. On the 12th of December. It was suffected, and even agreed on all Hands that she was Poisoned. The great Leve the People bore her whilfs she lived made this Suspicated their Affection. The King tho he was in the prime of his Age would not marry for several Years. This year was very unfortunate to the City and Kingdom of Naplet for great Earthquakes, which overthrew, or at least endamaged many Towns and Castles. The greatest Mischief was done at Brindez and Isrania. In the farthest parts of Italy some Buildings were levelled with the Ground from the very Foundations, others were abandoned, and a Town called Boyano was swallowed up, a Lake remaining in the Place of it to this Day, as a Memorial of that Disafter. Ring Hemy coming in time from Segois with a fufficient Force to quell these Disorders overthrow many of those Houses, which served as an Example to others mot to commit the like Indicates. This happened in February 1451. Upon the way the King received into his Family a Youth born and Daradge, his Name Perucho Manner, who afterwards became his great Favourite. Being so near Nevarre the King was willing to a difference the Aragonians and Earl of Fenne had abandoned the Country. Bessel to was reported, that the King of France was in League with them, which moved him to pass over to France to gain that King, but on a fuddain Prince of Manner and Earl of Fenne had been to the Country. Bessel to the United States of the States

gaged the Enemy. They were few in Number, and the Enemy many, confequently they Country were early overthrown, most of them killed, and among the rest Garcilasso de la Vega, and the were easily overthrown, most of them killed, and among the rett Garcilasse de la Voga, a of the Knight to Samingo, of great Renown. This disafter so incensed the Knight that he not only some burnt the Corn, as he fitted to do, but also sired the Vines and Orchards, which before wasted he spared. Besides, having taken a Town, called Adon, by Assault, they put all the Inhabitants to the Sword, without sparing Women or Children. This they Moore were so humbled, that they field for and obtained Pardon. A Truce was concluded for some Years, by which the Infidels were obliged to pay the yearly Tribute of 12000 Ducates, and to release 600 Christian Captives, which Number if they had not they were to make up with Moors. 'The Frontiers about Jaen were excepted in this Capitulatito make up with a superior on, where the War was to continue, and D. Garcia Maurique, Earl of Cafrancia was left to command there with 2000 Horfe. To encourage this War, Pope Calishus fent at the beginning of this Year his Bull, granting the Croifade to the Living and Dead, a thing new in Spain. F. Alonso de Espina preached it up, and sent Word to the King a thing new in bytain. F. Atonjo at Hipma predicted it up, and tent word to the King then at Palentia, that the Mony collected could not be figure any other way but in the War with the Moor. It railed almost 300000 Ducats. Very little of it was employed against the Moore. After the War was ended an Embassaco came from Rome to Madrid, who brought the King a Hat and Sword usually blessed on Christmas Rome to Madrid, who brought the King a rate and sword unually blelled on Christmas Night, and fent to great Princes, such as King Henry was then esteemed. There is no Joy in this World perfect. News was brought that the Earl of Cassaneda purtuing a party of Moors fell into an Ambush, was himself taken and most of his Men cut off. Another Commander of more foreight was put in his Place. The Earl was ransomed for a great sum of Mony, and the Truce changed into a Peace. In Italy the City Genea was in Arms, being divided into Factions. The King of Aragon favoured the Adortional Cassaned State Cassaned S now was in Arms, being divided into ractions. The King of Aragon lavoured the Adornos, and John Duke of Lorrain, Son to Renée Duke of Anjous who filled himself Prince of Calabria the Fregolos. Mean while the King of Aragon fell fick on the 8th of May 1458. He was very ill at Caffelnovo in Naples, till the 13th of Jime. Then the Differe increasing he caused himself to be removed to the Caffle del Ovo, but nothing availed. Moule the for he gave up the Ghoft on the 27th of Jume at break of Day. He was a most tree, 5th King to the Caffle and Ovo, but nothing inferior to any of the Antient ones, and the Honour of Spain dies are nowned Prince, nothing inferior to any of the Antient ones, and the Honour of Spain dies at Besides his other Virtues, he was a great encourager of Learning, and very familiar Naples, with Lawrence Valla, Antony Panormita, and Georging Trapezunting, Men famous for their Knowledge. He was much concerned at the Death of Barthlomen Faccio, who writthe Knowledge. He was much concerned at the Leanus Dathoner Facto, who writ the History of this King. Hearing that a King of Spain had faid, Learning belonged nor to a King, he faid, that was an Expression of a Beast, nor of a King. Many sharp and witty Sayings of this King are related, which I thought needles to insert here. Not long before his Death a Comet appeared betwixt Cancer and Lee, whose Tail was 60 Degrees in length. He made his Will the Day before he dyed. In it he appoints his Brother, John King of Navarre his Successor in the Kingdom of Aragon. That of Naples as won by the Sword, he leaves to his Bastard Son Ferdinand, which was the cause of great Troubles and Wars. He made no mention of the Queen his Wife. It is reported by grave Authors, that he defigned to have been Divorced from her, and to have married a Miltress he had called Lucrecia Alania. There is still extant a Letter of Pope Calixtus, writ with his own Hand to the Queen, in which he tells her, she is more bebolding to him than to her Mother, but that it is not convenient it should be publickly known. That Lucrecia came to Rome with a Royal Retinue, but could not obtain what the came about, because he would not have a Hand in so great a Sin. King Alonso's greatest Crime was that of Incontinency, but at his Death he shewed great Tokens of Repentance and dyed like a good Christian. He ordered that his Body should be buried without any Tomb at the very Church door of Poblete, the Burial Place of his Ancestors. A great fign of Humility and Modesty. About the same time dyed D. Alonso de Cartagena, Bishop of Burges, who composed some Books, among them a short History of the Kings of Spain in Latin, called Anacephaleosis; his other Works are all mentioned in the History, called Valeriana. D. Luis de Acuna succeeded him in the Bishoprick.

The Seeds of Sedition which had been long fowed in Caffile at length broke out. The Grounds King befines his other Faults was wholly devoted to Women. First, he loved one Catherine of Troubles. de Sundoual, but left her, because she admitted the Courtship of another, yet som after made in Casile. her Abbels of the Monastery of S. Peter de las Dueñas at Toledo. Alonso, de Cordova her Gallant was beheaded at Medina del Campo. In the Place of Catherine de Sandoval he took the laint was the headed at Medium del Campo. In the Place of Catherine de Sandoval he took the Lady Guiomary, the most Beautiful Woman next to the Queen. They two as is usual in such Cases fiell at Variance. D. Amp de Fonsea, Archbishop of Soul favoured the Missis, the Marques de Villma sided with the Queen. Thus the Court was divided, and the Servant grew to hanginy as to Cope with her Sovereign. It came to that pale that they gave one another ill Language and at length the Queen laid violant Flands upon the Mistriss and treated her severely; which the King highly referred. Another flands upon the Mistris and treated her severely; which the King highly referred. Another flands upon thing happened, which was, to whom he had given a plentiful Fortune, grewinto Familiarity with the Queen. The People generally judged ill of that Freedom; and some were of, Opinion, the king knew they were faulty, and contented to it; to hick his own lappostucy, it is, to be subjected that a greatipart of this fable was forged in favour of King Serdinand and Queen Elizabeth, when they came afterwards to the Crown. Some time after his Sendal gathered drength, when upon account of an Emballador coming out of Britalysmillo Bettergering, of a Feat upon account of an Emballador coming out of Britangani D. Belevan was Challenger in a Feaft

of running at Tilt that was in Madrid and Pardo, and after the Sport was over made a Banquet greater than was thought could be done by any private Perion. The Ring was opleafed, that in the Place where the Tilting was, in memory of it he caused a Monaltery pleased, that in the flace where the along was, in includy for it no caucat, anonatery of Hieronimites to be erected, which because the Place was unhealthy was afterwards removed to that where it now stands. The People after the Example of the Court were addicted to all manner of Ludeness and Prodigality, and the Nobility without any regard of the King combined to raise new Troubles. About this time many extraordinary Accidents Prodigies were thought to forestell the Calamities that were threatned by these Disorders. There appears the company of the control of the contr were thought to recent the Calameter and were the controlled the East and vanished, the other continued some time. In the Territory of Burgis' and Granada there fell a shower of great Stones, which killed much Cattle. At Penalver, a Town made there fell a shower of great Stones, which killed much Cattle. At Penalver, a Town in the Country of Marria, it was reported, a Child of three years of Age foretold the Troubles that would ensue, unless the People did Pennance for their Sins. The King's Lions at Segovia fought, and the little one killed the biggett and earlipart of him. The People made Processions to appease God, being terrify'd with these frames Omens, but they mended not their Lives. Particularly the Clergy was extraordinary depraved, in so much that about this time D. Roderick de Luma, Archbishop of Santiago forced away a Bride on her Wedding Day to debauch her, which caused the People to Mutiny, being Headed by D. Luis Oforie, Son to the Earl of Trassmarra. In revenge of that hainous Crime they deposed that Bishop, and seized all he had. His End was answerable to his Life, the rest whereof he spent in Poverty, yet wickedly and hated by all Men. Thus he soon endured the Punishment of his foot Pleasure. being severely chaffired by the Hand of God as he the Punishment of his short Pleasure, being severely chastized by the Hand of God, as he had well deferved.

CHAP. I.

The Councel of Mantua; Beginnings of Tumults in Castile; War at Naples betwiet the Aragonians, and House of Anjou; Scanderbeg, Prince of Epirus, comes to the Asseflance of Ferdinand, King of Naples,

Ope Pius the Second having appointed a General Councel to meet at Mantua, a great General number of Bishops from all Parts, and Ambassadors of Princes, repaired thicker, as Council number of Bishops from all Parts, and Amballadors of Princes, repaired thither, as Council did the Pope himself. His only Care was, to the up all Christendom to unite its For-at Montale. Ces against the Common Enemy. David, Emperor of Trebizonde, a City in Asia the King of Perse, offered great Numbers of Horse and Foot, and a mighty Fleet, but there was little Confidence to be reposed in their Promises. The Western Countries were so employed with Broils and Confidence as home, they little could be board from them. Neverthere tangled with Broils and Confusions at home, that little could be hoped from them. Notwithflanding all these Difficulties, the Pope was not discouraged, but resolved to use his utmost flanding all thele Difficulties, the Pope was not discouraged, but resolved to use his utmost Endeavours to promote the Holy War, and therefore in a full Affembly of those that came to the Councel, made a most Learned Speech, laying before them, how great a Reproach to Christianity the los of the Eastern Empire had been, and how much nearer since that time the Danger threatned all the Western Part of the World. He pressed from the Prince time the Danger threatned all the Western Part of the World. He pressed for some Prince to encourage that War, by taking upon him to be General, and then offered to carry the Cross before them himself. His Words moved the Auditory, but the Ambassadors of Princes wasted the Time in Private Controversies. Particularly John Duke of Larrain, Son to Romee Duke of Larjou, complained that the Pope had given the Investiture of the Kingdom of Naples to Ferdinants his Enemy. Thus nothing was done to any purpose, only a Verbal Decree was made for carrying on the War. The Pope published a Bull, in which, contrary to his own Opinion at the Councel of Bassa, he ordains, That none shall Appeal from the opening of it. The Aragonian Ambassadors, after the Councel broke up, went away to opening of it. The Aragonian Ambassadors, after the Councel broke up, went away to Asplet, to Congravulate with the new King upon his Accession to that Crown. Tingo Lopez de Mendoga, the Ambassador of Cassie, obtained of the Pope a Jubilee for all that gave certain Alms, employed to build at Tendilla a Monastery of Friars of St. Islatons, of the Invocation of St. Ann. Mean while the City Guadalajara was taken from his Brother James de Mendoga, he Alms, employed to build at Tendilla a Monaftery of Friars of St. Ifiderus, of the Invocation of St. Ann. Mean while the City Guadalajara was taken from his Brother James de Mendeça, he having possefield himself of it wrongfully. John Fernandez Galindo, a famous Officer, furpized it with 600 Horse. This the Nobles took for a new Cause of Discontent, and combined against the King. Deterick the Admiral heightned their Discontents. He follicited Castile. With him joined the Archbishop of Toledo, D. Peter Girm Malter of Calstrava, and D. Alonso de Remises of Manyique and Mendoga. Their Pretence was to reform the Government. Reward for this good Service, the Archbishoprick of Samiago, vacant by the Death of D. Rode. Reward for this good Service, the Archbishoprick of Samiago, vacant by the Death of D. Rode. Sevil, But and Washing of the Revenues of that Church, considing in the Power of his Father the Earl of Trassamara. None but a Person of great Authority in the Power of his Father the Earl of Trasfamara. None but a Person of great Authority could reduce him, and therefore the two Archbishops changed Sees by the King's Consent. The Church of Pamplona, upon the Death of D. Martin de Peralta, was given to Cardinal Befarion, a Greek, but very Learned, and of a godly Life.

Jaron, a Greek, but very Learned, and of a godiy Lite.

The Troubles of Naples were the chief Thing that diffutbed Pope Pius, otherwise wholly War et bent upon the Holy War. The War began again to break out betwixt John the Son of Renee, Naple between the new King Ferdinand, most of the Napolitan Nobility, as given to Change, sharp twist the the House of Anjou. The first that appeared in Arms, was Anthony Centellus, Marquis of Cro. Arms. to, who having got his Liberty, meditated Revenge; but the King was too quick, and again House of lid him in Prilon. Martin Marciano, tho married to Ellenor the King's Sifter, headed the Re- mign. best; many joined with him, among whom the chief were, the Prince of Taranto, Authory Cardora, and John Paul, Duke of Sera. Francis Sforcia, Duke of Milan, being at the Councel of Manua, adviced the Pope to enter into League with King Ferdinand, for that the French being expelled Italy, all Difficulties that obstructed the War with the Turks would be easily furmounted. The Pope approved of this Councel, but it was not calify to be put into Execution, for that King Ferdinand was then befieged in Barletta, a City of Apulia, and knew not well how to defend himself. The Pope would fend him no Relief, because the Enemy had Seanderbeg fecured all the Avenues by Land: Therefore he fent to George Seanderbeg, Prince of Epirus, comes to then a most Renowned General, who understanding the Pope's Will, fent before Coicus Strothe Afti-flux with 500 Albanian Hofe, and foon after gathering a good Fleet, failed to Ragufa, and flance of hence to Barleta. Immediately upon his Arrival, the Rebels raifed the Siege. King Ferdi-King of nand having joined the Succours fent him by the Pope and Duke of Milan, overthrew his Enemies in Battel, and soon recovered the Towns that held for them. Scanderbeg having spent a Year in this Expedition, returned home well fatisfied with the King, who gave him and his Heirs the City Trani, and the Castles of St. John and Siponto. After this he obtained several Victorics over the Turks, and died at the end of Seven Years, leaving a Son called folia under the Care of the Venetians. Nevertheless he ordered him, till he could recover his Principality, to live at Naples upon what Estate that King had given him. From him is descended the most Noble Family of the Castriots, Marquisses of Civita de Santangelo in the Kingdom of Naples. In Spain, Charles Prince of Visna having obtained Pardon for himself and his Followers, and the Promife of a competent Revenue for his Maintenance, came from Majorca to Barcelona on the 22d of March, 1460. It was proposed to marry him with Catherine, Sister to the King of Portugal. When the Match was as good as concluded, the King of Castile took it off, offering him his Sifter Elizabeth, with Affurance of obtaining what he defired of his Father with the Affiftance of Castile. Hereupon Prince Charles no farther thought of the Match with Portugal, and the Princes Catherine went into the Monastery of S Clare at Libon, where she ended her Days, at such time as it was designed to marry her to Edward IV. King of England. D. Frederick, the Admiral, discovered the Prince's Designs to the King of Aragon: He fent for him to Lerida; where the Cortes of Catalonia then fate, and those of Aragon at Fraga. He was advised not to go, but resolved to obey, and was received with Demonstrations of Love, but presently after committed to Prilon, notwithstanding he loudly complained of Breach of Faith, and the Defigns of his Mother-in-Law. The Nobility affociated themselves, engaging never to give over till their Prince were fet at Liberty.

War renewed by the Moors of Granada; the Prince of Viana imprisoned, and released; his Death; the Rebellion of Catalonia, also in Navarre; the Kings of France and Ca-

THE Peace established with the Moors having lasted about Three Years, was now broken. Ismael, King of Granada, had Two Sons, Albohaçen and Boabdelin: Albohaçen desiring to or orange. 2500 Horfe, and 15000 Foot; with this Force he entred the the Peace. Territory of Estepa in Andaluzsa, did great Mischief, and drove away a vast number of Cattel. Roderick Ponce, Son to the Earl of Arcos, being informed hereof, with the Affiltance of Luis Pernia, Commandant at Ojuna, mustered about 260 Horse, and 600 Foot, and marched after the Enemy who was going off in diforder, and fearing no Encounter. It feemed a Madness for so small a Number to engage that Multitude; but D. Roderick from an Eminence obferving, that part of the Moors with the Booty had passed the River called De las Teguas, and only the Horse remained behind, commanded the Trumpets to and, and his Men to fall on. The Christians charged the Moors, who were divided into three Bodies, and received them with Resolution. The Fight lasted long, but at length the Moors were put to the Rout, and 1400 of them flain. Of the Christians, 30 Horse and 150 Foot were killed. Our Men quartered that Night at a place called Fuente de Piedra, and being next day gathering the Plunder, saw the Cattel coming towards them in great Flocks. At first they imagined the Enemy had rallied, but it foon appeared that the Cattel being left was returning, as naturally they will, towards their own Pasture. The Peace thus broken, Incursions were made on both sides, but nothing remarkable happened: Only D. John de Guzman, first Duke of Medina Sidonia, prepared to befiege, Gibraltar, nothing difcouraged by the Misfortune of his Father. The War, Rebellien raifed against the King of Aragon in his own Dominions, was more dangerous. The Catchof Carale nians fent Deputies, to beg of him to fet at liberty the Prince of Viana: He refused, and from Words they came to Blows A great Number of Men fet out from Barcelona, and pollefied themselves of Fraga, on the Borders of Aragan. Gonçalo de Saavedra, fent by the King of Cafile to the Assistance of the Catalonian with 1500 Horse, was a great Encouragement to them. D. John de Cabrera, Earl of Medica in Sictly, was General of the Catalonians. On the other fide, D. Luis de Biamonte was on the Frontiers of Navarre with a good Body, ready to enter Aragon if the King would not grant their Request. Necessity obliged him to set his Son free 1461. on the First of March, 1461. ordering the Queen, his Mother in Law, to conduct him from Morella, where he was Prisoner, to Villafranca. There he was delivered to the Caralonism. who nevertheless would not admit the Queen into Barcelona, tho they laid down their Arms. Yet for all this, contrary to his Father's Will, they fwore to him as Heir to that Principality, obliged his Father to declare him Governor of all his Dominions, a Dignity usually given to the eldest Sons of those Kings, and to consent that he should be Absolute in Catalonia.

These were hard Terms; but there was no other way to appeale the Catalonians. Now again the Treaty of Marriage between Prince Charles and the Princess Elizabeth of Galtile was hothy purfued, and it was looked upon as good as concluded; whereupon the Prince fent to Compliment the Princeis and her Mother. War broke out at the fame time in Novare; for Charles Articla, as foon as the Prince was at liberty, feized in his Name the Town of Lumbier in that Articula, as 1001 as the Frince was at norry, letzed in his manie the 10wn of Lumbier in that Kingdom. D. Alonfo (afterwards Duke of Villabermofa) fent by the King, befleged and fu. GivitWat rioufly battered that Place. The Prince's Party was weak; but the King of Caffile fent Ra. in Naderick Ponçe and Gonçalo de Suavedra with Forces, who raifed the Siege. Greater Preparations warre, were making to continue that War, when the News was spread abroad that the Queen was with Child. This pleased some; yet others gave out she was with Child by D. Beltran de la Cueva; but it could never be proved whether this were true, or that it was only so allowed afterwards in favour of King Ferdinand, when he came to the Crown. D. Alonfo de Ponseca afterwards in layour of King Fernandam, which he cannot to the Crown. D. Liongo at Fonjeca the Archbifliop, was fent from Court on pretence of doing him Honour, to refide at Valladolid, and Govern the Kingdom, whilft the King was absent at the War he designed in Navarre. This was done by the Advice of his Competitor the Marquis de Villena, who removed him from the King, hoping thereby to become absolute in his Favour, and promised to reduce from the King, noping unersy to become another in the Favour, and promise to reduce the Diaffected Nobility, particularly the Archbilhop of Toledo, and the Admiral; for the Mafter of Calatrava had already fubmitted, and was raifing Men for the War in Navarre. As foon as D. Alonjo de Fonsea was gone to Valladolid, the Marquis de Villena went into the Kingdom of Toledo, and at the same time the Master of Calatarva came to Aranda de Duero with 2500 Horse. With that Force the King of Castile marched towards Almagan. The Aragonians were much alarmed; but the Army marched away towards Navarre, and in May came to Lograno, a great Town in the Territory of Rioja; there having received Supplies from all Parts, they advanced into Navarre. The Town of St. Vincent and Guardia turrendered. Viana was besieged, and at last delivered up by Peter Peralia, who was Governour thereof, Name was beingers, and at last desired up by few terms, who was Gorenhous interests, and Conflable of Newspare. Lerin was very throng, and could not be taken. D. Alonjo, Son to the King of Aragen, took the Town of Arbacuea by affault, all the Capillian Garifon being to the King of Artigon, cook the Lowis of Zaraman by analist, all the Copyright Santon cong killed or taken. All these high Designs came to nothing, by the death of Charles Prince of Viana at Barcelona: It was supposed Trouble and Toil was the cause of his death of the Bita-tion of the Charles of the Cha was supposed to the had a flow Poison given him in Prison. He died on Prince of monteles could never be persuaded but he had a flow Poison given him in Prison. He died on Prince of Panadies. monterer could never be permaned out the med a now 1 oning given min in Finon. Fie ched on the 23 do 5 speember, begged pardon of his Father at the Hour of his death, and was buried at Poblete. He lived 40 Years, 3 Months, and 26 Days, more famous for his Misfortunes than any other thing. His Device was Two fierce Mastives fighting for a Bone, denoting the Kings of France and Castile, between whom Navarre was consumed. Other great Men died now, as Charles VII. King of France: His Son Lewis XI. succeeded him. Prince Henry, Uncle to the King of Poringal, departed this Life on the 13th of November, having never rouched Woman, tho 77 Years of Age. Of all the Brothers only D. Alonfo the Baltard, Duke of Bargamapa, remained, and he allo died the next Year. By his Wife Beatrix, Daughter to the Constable Norm Pereira, he had a Son called Ferdimand, from whom are lineally descended the Dukes of Bragança in Portugal.

Prince Charles dying, the Cause of Discord was taken away; and yet the Effect ceased not. Ferdinand, Brother to the Deceased, was immediately sworn Heir to the Crown; first at Calatayud for Aragon, and then at Barcelona for Catalonia. Nevertheless, the People took Arms, the Nobility giving it out that the Prince was poiloned by his Mother-in-Law. The chief Incendiary was F. John Gualves a Dominican, who with feditious Sermons stirred up the People A Frian to Rebellion. Barcelona being in an Uproar, the Queen went away thence to Girona. The first up King of Aragon perceiving the Danger that threatned, follicited foreign Princes, particularly of National Conference of the Property of the Pr Amg of Aragon perceiving the Danger that threathed, foliation for fines, particularly of Matter King of France and Capille, to affill him; or at least that the latter would not offend him, warre to fince Prince Charles was dead. King Henry was at Madrid, joyful that the Queen was with Rubelli. Child, having cauled her to be brought thither on Men's Shoulders, that the Journey might on not do her harm. At the beginning of the Year 1462, the was delivered of a Daughter called 1462. Journa, who was immediately foorn Heires of Capille. The People believed her the Daughter 1462. ter of D. Beltran, and the more because he was then created Earl of Ledesma. Andrew de Cabera, his great Friend, was made Steward of the Houshold, which was a step for him to atof France to fettle Peace. The Archbishop of Toledo being reconciled to the King held the Supreme Power. On the 23d of March, the Aragonian Ambassadors at length concluded a Peace between Castile and Aragon; and for Security, Cautionary Towns were given to the King of Castile, who put others into a Third hand, to remain as Pledges on his part. On the 12th of April, the King of Aragon made a League with the King of France at Olite: It was there agreed, That the King of France should send the Aragonian 700 Men at Arms, and 200000 Crowns, for which the States of Cerdagne and Ruffillon were mortgaged to him, the Revenues thereof not to be accounted any part of Payment. To ratifie this Contract, the

Two Kings appointed an Interview at Salvatierra, a Town in the Province of Bearne. At the same time the Earl of Faux had the Lady Blanch, Sifter to Prince Charles, and Heirels of Navarre, delivered up to him, notwithstanding her grievous Complaints of the Wrong done her. She was confined to the Castle of Ortes in the Territory of Faux, and there soon after poisoned: Her Body was buried in the City Lascar. Both the Kings of Castile and Aragon ratified the Peace concluded at Madrid. On the 30th of May the Catalonians helieged the Queen of drogon in Girona, forced the City, and had taken the Old Caffle called Gironeta, where the Queen was, but that the French Horfe coming, obliged them to quit that Delign and the City. The King of Aragon also hashed to the relief of his Wife, and having worsted the Rebels in feveral Rencounters, and taken many Towns, encamped near Barcelona at last. The Rebels in feveral Rencounters, and taken many Towns, encamped near Barceiona at laft. The Queen of Castile miscarried at Aranda, with the Fright that her Hair took fire by the Sun shining through a Glass. The Grief for this Loss was soon forgot, by reason of the great Joy and Festivals at the Wedding of the Count de Ledeson with the younger Daughter of the Earl of Santillana at Guadalajara, the King and Queen being present. Thence the Queen went to Segovia, and the King to Asievs at County Thicker came a Gentleman, called Copones, from the Cataand the King to Attempt to Figure . A interest came a Generating Canada Graphers, from the Catalogue in the Control of the Catalogue in the Ca King of Castile, but much more to hear that D. by the Re- to be inferted among his Royal Titles. Incursions were made into Valencia and Aragon; and that Kingdom might have been subdued, had King Henry been resolute: Therefore the King of Aragon laboured to be reconciled with him.

To this effect the Admiral of France and that King's Ambassador came to

Almagan, where King Henry was, at the beginning of the Year 1463. He was splendidly entertained, and in a Ball Danced with the Queen; whereupon he swore never more to Dance with any Woman. It was agreed the Kings of France and Castile should have a Conference, 1463. rence of and accordingly they met near Fuenterabia about the end of April. The Castilians vied to the Kings outdo one another in rich Apparel, whereas the French, and particularly their King, were of France very plain, which caufed the Cafilians to jeer and reflect upon them. The Spaniards paffed

the River Fidefao, some say by way of acknowledging the King of France to be the greater: Our Historians say it was because all that River belongs to Spain; and therefore King Henry being come to the High-water Mark on the surther side, said, There were the Borders of Caltile and France; and that King Louis answered, It is true. Here the Judgment given by the King of France, as Arbitrator between Cassile and Aragen, was read; the Heads whereof were, That the Cassile lians should quit Catalonia and Navarre: That the City Estela and its Liberty should remain tians mould quit canaonia and Aucourte: That the Cuty Espenia and as Liberty mould remain at Roga, in cultody of the Archbilhop of Toledo, as Holtages for performance of Articles. This Judgment offended all the Three Nations concerned, and nothing more was effected at this Conference. Philip de Comput, a famous French Hiltorian, abfolutely condemns this, and all fuch Meetings of Kings, as the Incentives of Emulation and Difcord; whereas all they can propose to do at an Interview, may be as well settled by their Ambassadors, without any Hazard or Discontent to either Party. He relates how the Spaniards came over into France, and his Garb was disagreeable to the France; whereas the Spaniards attributed the Plainness of the French King's Habit to Covetoniness. He adds, the only Fruit of this Meeting was Plots and Contrivances among the Nobility, which at length proved the Ruin of King Henry, whom, he says, he saw sortaken by his Subjects, and reduced to Misery. This Year, on the 12th of November, passed from this Life to a better the Holy P. James de Alcala, in the Monastery of Franciscans at Alcala de Heneres, built by D. Alonso Carrillo, Archbishop of Toledo: He was born at S. Nicholas, in the Diocels of Sevill. His Life, and the Miracles he wrought were fuch, That Pope Sixtus V. WO Ambassadors from the Catalonians were at the Conference between the Kings of France and Castile, to follicit they might not be for the not be the state. France and Caffile, to follicit they might not be forfaken; but their Negociation proved fuccessels. At Tolofa, a Town in Gaspalcoa, the Rabble killed a few called Gaon, on the Masing as 6th of May, for attempting, whilf the King was at Fenereabia, to collect a certain Tax, about the theoret had been great Mutinies before. This Murder was not punished. Soon after, at Segovia, whither the King went, great Broils were railed by Two Friars: One of them in his Sermons affirmed, That many Christians turned Jews; which was meant to reproach the Liberty allowed that People: The other as hotly opposed him. Sevill was in an Uproar, for that D. Alonso de Fonseca the Elder, follicited to be restored to that Church, which he said he had only given in trust to his Kinsman. The Nobility and Commons were divided between him and his Competitor; but the King coming thither in Person, put D. Alonso the Elder into possessing and caused 6 of the principal Mutiniers to be executed. The King of Portugal at this time returned into Africk with a powerful Fleet. Prince Ferdinand his Brother, and at this time returned into segment wait a powerful rice. Finite returnant instruction, and D. King Henry began to diflike the Archbishop of Toledo and the Marquis de Villena, suspensing Rebels of they had not dealt sairly betwist him and Aragon; for this reason they were not with him in coshit the Field, nor at the Interview with the Portugus, but went away from Madrid to Alcala; join with Thither came to them the Admiral, the Master of Calastrava, the Family of Manique, D. the King Peter Giron, and the Earls of Alva and Plasenia. The King of Aragon upon account of oil Aragon. great Promiles made him, joined with them, which was the beginning of mighty Troubles. Their Pretence was, That the Princess Joanna was not lawfully begotten, and consequently could not inherit the Crown. Therefore they refolved to feize Prince Alonfo, and the Lady total not finish the Crown.

And the Kings Brother and Sifter, who resided with their Mother at Magueda. Upon Hostages given by the King for security of his Person, the Marquis de Villena came to Madrid, Holtages given by the King tor security of the Person, the Marquis de Pinena came to Manaria, but with an ill Defign, which was to withdraw the reft of the Nobility from their Allegiance. To this purpose he Advised the King to secure the Archbishop of Sevil, and at the same time gave him notice of what was designed, so that he sleet, and joined with the other Rebess. This success made D. John Packeto so impudent, that he attempted with a Body of Armed Men Success made D. John Kalereo to impudent, that he attempted with a Body of Armed Men to feize the King, and broke into the Palace, but the King retiring to a part thereof that was firong, he refolved to force it at night; yet the King having Intelligence, he was difappointed. Many Advifed the King to fecure the Marquis, but he refuled, because he had given him a Safe-conduct. Thus the Pofture of the Kings Affairs was daily worse, especially because that time the Popes Bull came, which Conflituted D. Belran de la Cueva Master of Control of the Kings Affairs was daily worse, especially because that time the Popes Bull came, which Conflituted D. Belran de la Cueva Master of Control of the Kings Affairs was daily worse, especially because the Residuence of the Kings Affairs was daily worse, especially because the Residuence of the R came at that time the Popes but came, which Confittuted D. Beltran de la Cueva Matter of Santiago, a thing very offensive to the Poople, who looked upon that Dignity as Prince Alongis's due. D. Beltran was raised in opposition to D. John Pacheco, who again attempted to feize the King, perswading him to go to Villacossim, but was discovered and prevented. From Burgos the Conspirators, now in open Rebellion, sent a very Infolent Letter to the King, the Heads whereof were; That the Moores had too much Liberty at Court; That Presements were fold: That the Mastership of Santiago was undeservedly given to D. Beltran; That the Princels Joanna, as unlawfully begotten, could not inherit the Crown; Laftly, That if these Grievances were Redreffed, they were ready to lay down Arms and fubmit. This Letter the King received at Valladolid, and made no account of it. D. Lope de Barientas, Bishop of Cuenca, pressed the King to subdue the Rebels by force of Arms, but could not prevail, there-Guenca, present the King to income the Kores by force of Arins, our count in the open Field force a Treaty was again fet on foot. The King and D. John Pacheco met in the open Field between Caheçon and Cigaler in Old Caftile, there they agreed upon these Articles; That Prince Alongo should inherit the Crown, provided he Married the Princes Joanna; That D. Prince Along mould inherit the Crown, provided he interfered the Princes Johns ; That D. Beltran floud relign the Mafterfihip of Saminge ; That to decide other Differences there floud be Two Arbitrators chosen by each Party, and F. Alongo do Propela, General of the Order of S. Hierome, to be the 5th, all things to be decided by the majority of Voices. Then Prince Alongo, being but Eleven years of Age, was brought to the Kings Camp, fivorn Heir to the Crown, and delivered to the Nobles, which caused new Troubles. In lieu of the Ma-D. Baltem Hership, the King created D. Beltran Duke of Albaquerque, giving him that Town, Cuellar, d. la Cue. Roa, Molina, Ationas, and other Revenues in Andalussia. The Rebels choic D. John Pacheco, washers, and the Earl of Plajencia; The King Peter Hernardes, de Velafoe, and Genzalo de Sucavarda, on his vourite, to be Judges of the Differences between them. The Archbishop of Toledo, and the created parts, to be Judges of the Differences between them. Admiral, were reconciled to the King, but their Friendship was not lasting, and therefore suspected to be seigned. It was scared if these Judges came to give Sentence, they would leave the King nothing but that bare Title. He therefore ordered the Mafter of Alcantara, and Earl of Medellin, in whom he reposed much Confidence, to come to him with what and card of reasons, in which the important meets of confidence, to come to find with what force they could gather, to dilappoint the Defigns of his Enemies. Genepalo de Saverdera, and Alvan Gemez, the Kings Secretary, to whom he had given Maqueda, Torrigin de Velafos, and S. Silvefire, in the Territory of Toledo, were fen for. The Rebels perfusaded all four, that the King defigned to Secure them, and therefore their only way was to join with them. The the King designed to secure ment, and treated the only way was to foll with them. The King hearing hereof, protested against the Judges, as Partial, and ordered Peter Arias, a Citizen of Segovia, to take Terrejon by sorce, which he did, and left that Town to the Earls of Punomostro his Successors. Peter de Velasco sided with the Rebels, notwithstanding his Father, Full mount of the Earl of Have, blamed, and would not hupply him with Money, which cauled him to be but poorly attended among the Nobles. On the 14th of August at Anoma died Pope Pins II. He was carried to that City, tho then fick, designing to gather the Forces of Christendom, and go in Person against the Turks. He held the Papacy but 6 years. Cardinal Peter Barbo, a Venetian, was cholen his Successor on the 30th of the same month, and took the Name of Paul II. He was but Forty feven years of Age when Elected, proved a great Friend to Spain, and affifted King Henry in his Troubles.

PEter Constable of Portugal his coming to Barcelona animated the Catalonians above their strength. Lerida, after a long Siege, was forced to surrender to the King. All that Province was miserably wasted with the War. D. John Archbishop of Zaragoga, Bastard Son to the King of Aragon, and steer for the Sword than Miter, commanded for his Father. Philip Duke of Burgandy sent a small Party of his Subjects to the Assistance of the Constable. A Duke of Burgandy tent a insali Party of ins Subjects to the Amitiance of the Confiable. About 2000 Catalanian Foot, and 600 Horfe, joined them at Manrefa. The Earl of Pradet befieged gervera for the King, and the want of Provisions had almost reduced the Town. D. Peter refolved to Relieve it. The greatest part of the Kings Forces were upon the borders of Navarre, to reduce that Kingdom. Prince Ferdinand, tho but 13 years of Age, was sent with some Forces by the King to join the Earl of Prades. Necessity obliged him to take up Arms so young, which is the reason he never learned to write well, as appears by his Hand. The Constables Forces marched to a place called Prados de Rey, with a Resolution to Fight. Prince Ferdinand advanced to meet the Enemy: He halted on a Hill, from whence the Ca-Halmians were discovered. The Portuguese chose his Ground, and intrenched on another Hill: He drew out his Forces. Peter de Deça led the Van, in which were the Burgundians. Bestran and John Armanderia followed him with the Castillians and Navarrois. D. Peter himself comand John Armanderia followed him with the Caftulam and Navarras. D. Peter himlell commanded the Rear. Prince Ferdinand had but 700 Hofle, and 1000 Foot. The Earl of Prades led the Van, Hugo Rocaberbi, and Matthew Moneada, commanded in the Wings. Henry Son to Prince Henry of Aragon, had charge of the Referve. Prince Henry was in the Rear with many Noblemen. Bernard Gafon was ordered with fome Foot to fecure the Mountain, that they might not be attacked on that fide. Before the Fight Prince Henry Knighted feveral Men of Quality. The Signal of Battle being given, the Cataloniam foon gave way, and at 100 March 10 last sted, the Foot to the Mountain, the Horse along the Plain. D. Peter having cast off his Upper Garment, mixt himself with the Victors, and the next day made his escape. Most of ingosofthe the Burgundians were killed, of the others many taken, and among them the Earl of Pallas, Rebels in the chief Promoter of this War. This Battle was fought upon the last day of February 1465. Catalmia. Not one of the Aragonians was killed, and but few wounded. D. Peter returned to Mamefa. Beltran Armendario, with great Courage, put part of the scattered Army into gervera, and fortified it. Thence the sury of the War was carried to Ampurias, the Aragonians still getting the better. The Tumults in Navarre were near quelled, the Biamontese being reduced and pardoned. The Earl of Faux, and Eleanor his Wile, were also declared Heirs of that Kingdom. Ismael King of Granada, died on the 7th of April; his Son Albehazen, a Man of great Courage and Resolution, succeeded him. This King had Two Wives, one a Native Moor, Mother to Boabail, afterwards called the Little King; the other a Renegade Christian, called Zoropra, who had two Sons, Cado and Nacre, who when Granada was taken by King Ferdinand, became Christians, as did their Mother. In Italy King Ferdinand of Naples having subdued all his Enemies, settled his Kingdom. He overthrew John Duke of Lorrain, and torced him to fly to the Island Island, and thence afterwards into France. This done, King Perdinand on the 14th of September came to Naples, where he was received with great Joy and Pomp. Queen 14th of September Carlot of Supersylvine to the September Carlot of September Carlot o King Ferdinand, Reigned above 30 years, always facesfird in feveral Wars he undertook for his Allies. Alonfo Duke of Calabria, his Son, overthrew the Turks, who had posselled themfelves of Otranto, and drove them out of all the Country.

Prince Alonfo of Castile, being in the Power of the Nobles, was the cause of greater Troubles Prince Atomo of Courte, peng in the Fower of the Nodes, was the cause of greater Troudes Troubles, which were defigned to be quelled by those very Means. The King from Cabeçan increase went to the Kingdom of Toledo, and the Nobles to Plasevia. D. Peter Giron, Malter of Caia. in Costilit trava, went away to Andalaja, where he had the Town of Ossana, designing to fit up that People to Rebellion. D. John de Valencuela had the grand Priorship of S. John taken from him, and the Bishop of John him, Goods and Revenues, only because they were Loyal to their King. Befides this, D. Peter Giron raifed Men, and endeavoured with large Promiles to Debauch all the Nobility of that Country. The Duke of Medina Sidonia, the Earl of Arcos, D. Alonjo de Aguilar, and the Councils of Sevill and Cordona, refolved to join with the Rebels. King Henry perceiving the Storm gather, affembled a Councel at Madrid, where he asked what was best to be done in that Exigence. All being filent, the Archbishop of Toledo faid his Opinion was, The first shing to be procured was, that Prince Alonfo should be put into the Kings Hands, as the fittest Person to secure the Pledge of Peace; which if the Nobility bused, then they ought to be proceeded against by force of Arms: That to this purpose the Court should remove to Salamanca, to be near to the Rebels, either to Treat of Peace, or to carry on the War, These things being thought to be meant as they were said, were easily agreed to. A Message was fent to the Nobles, and the Forces ordered to march to Salamanca. The King himfelf went away to Old Caffile, and with what Forces he had laid Siege to Arevale, then held by the Rebels. Thence the Archbilhop of Toledo putting off his Difguile, went away to Avila, whereof he was made Governor by the King: Thither the Confiprators repaired to him. The Admiral, as had been agreed, feized Valladolid, where they defigned their Forces should Rendezvous. as had been agreed, leized Valladouls, where they designed their rorces mound kendezvous. These sad News having awaked the King out of his Lethargy, he is said to have sallen down before a Crucifix, and uttered these Words; Thy Aid I implese, my Lord, Christ the Son of God, by whom Kings Reign; To thee I Recommend my Person and Dignity; I only beg the Punishment, which I confess injerior to my Deserts, may be for the good of my Saul; Lord give me Patience to endure it, and permit not the People to suffer for my sake. Then he asted away Salmanuca, Advantage of the People of the People to Salmanuca, Advantage of the People of Salmanuc dure it, and permit not the People to Juffer for my Jake. Then he hatted away to Salamanica, At Avilla the Rebels refolved upon a moft Batbarous Action, to the Eternal Infamy of Spain; A moft Without the Walls of that City they Erecked a Scaffold, and placed on it the Statue of Villanous Riptemy in his Royal Robes on a Throne with his Scepter and Crown. Thicher the Vil. Aktion of Ianous Nobles, and a Multitude of People, reforted, Then a Cryer proclaimed Sontence the Caffer againft the King, laying to his Charge many horrid Crimes. Whillf the Sentence was reading, then Reagainst the King, laying to ins Chaige many norm Chines. Willie the Seature of all its Robes, and at last, with Reproachful Language, threw it down from the Scaffold. This Villany was acted upon Wednesday the 5th of Jane. Immediately Prince Alanso, who had been all the while present, was brought upon the Scaffold, there listed upon the Shoulders of the Nobles, and proclaimed King, the Royal Standard because its few many control of the Shoulders of the Nobles, and proclaimed King, the Royal Standard because its few many control of the Shoulders of the Nobles, and proclaimed King. ing Displayed in his Name, as was the Custom at the Inauguration of Kings. The Multitude ing Dipiayed in his Name, as was the Cultom at the inauguration of Nings. The Multitude prefeintly cryed, God Save King Allohof, which was ingaging themselves in the Quarrel. The News of this horrid Treason being spread abroad, some approved of, others condemend it. It was easile for the new King to be Liberal of what was not his own, to Gutterre de Solis, at the Request of his Brother the Master of Alexantra, he gave the City Coria, with the Title of an Earl. Burgos and Totelo approved this Act of the Nobles. On the other side many great Men declared for King Henry. D. Garcia de Toledo, Earl of Alva, being reconciled, came to him with 500 Horse and 1000 Foot. The Queen and Princess Elizabeth were lent to the King of Portugal, to beg Succours of him: They met him at Guardia on the Borders of Portugal, yet obtained nothing but good Words and Civil Entertainment. The Rebels Rendezvoused at Valladolid, the Loyalists at Toro, being more Numerous than well Disciplined. Penaftor was besieged by the Rebels, who because it made a Vigorous Desence, threw down its Walls to terrific other Places. Thence they removed to Simaneas, whither the King fent John Fernandez Galindo with 3000 Horfe, which fo encouraged the Besteged, that the Rabble formally condemned the Archbishop of Toledo, and having dragged his Statue about the Streets, burnt it, in revenge to the Affront offered to the King at Avila. Hereupon the Rebels raised the Siege, but especially because they heard the King had an Army of 80000 Foot and 1,000 Horse at Toro. This Army matched to Simancas; By the way, in a Skirmish, John Cavillo, a Captain of the Rebels, was wounded, and taken; being at the point of Death, he discovered a Conspiracy, naming the Persons concerned in it to the King in private, but the King fearing his Discovery might be seigned, concealed their Names. He laid Siege to Valladolid, but could not take it, by reason it had a strong Garison, or rather because the Kings Men had no stomach to fight. There a Treaty was again set on foot. King Henry and the Marquis de Villena met again: Much was promifed, and nothing performed; yet the King was perfwaded, fince his Revenue could not bear to great a Charge, to difmits his Army, and then Prince Alonfo, quitting the Title of King, with all the Nobility, would fabruir,

Rebels

Thus both fides disbanded, and the Noblemen who were with the King, tho they had done no Service, were highly Rewarded. The Rebels went away to Arevalo, and fo Valladolid returned to its Duty. Prince Alonfo was kept in the nature of a Prisoner, and they threatned to kill him because he designed to make his escape to his Brother. The Treaty of Peace went on, and the Rebels promifed to fubmit, provided the Princess Elizabeth were Married to the Malter of Calatrava. The King consented, and immediately sent the Duke of Albuquerque and Bishop of Calaborra from Court, because they were Enemies to the Master. This Project afflicted the Princess, who wept bitterly, and having told the cause of her Grief to Da. Beatrix de Bobadilla, her first Lady of the Bedchamber, that Lady shewing her a naked Dagger, promised she would with it kill the Master of Calatrava rather than he should have her. But God ordered it better, for as he hasted from his Town of Almagro to celebrate the Marriage, he fell fick by the way, and died at Villarubia, at the beginning of the year 1466; He was buried in a private Chappel at Calatrava. His Two Sons inherited his Estate. D. Alonfo Tellez Giron, the eldest, in pursuance of his Fathers Will, was Earl of Urena, D. Roderick Telles. Giron, the younger, had the Maltership of Calatrava, having before obtained the Popes Bull to that effect. He had also a third Son called D. John Pacheco; all three unlawfully begotten. Not long before the Mafters Death, in the Territory of faen, there appeared fuch a multitude of Locusts, that they hid the Sun. Every one interpreted this and the like Inch a militude of Locuits, that they find the sun. Every one interpreted this and the like Prodigies as his Fear dichated, rather than according to any Reafon. At this time Rederick Sanchez, the revalo, who commanded the Caffle of S. Angel at Rome, wrote in Latin a Hi. flory of Spain, more Devout than Elegant. It is called Palentina from the Author, who was afterwards Bishop of Palentia. Pope Paul II. gave him that Bishoprick at the Request of King Henry, to whom he Dedicated that History. The said Roderick Sanchez, tho a Spaniard, was

Affile was full of Confusion and Tumults, nothing but Rapine and Murders appeared in all Places, the Government being too weak to punish these Insolencies. For this Reafon the Towns and Cities Aflociated themfelves, and by the Kings Confent Rules were pre-fcribed the Heads of the Aflociation to be governed by. The People generally feared left the Moores should again Conquer Spain, the Kingdom being no less Debauched than in the time of King Roderick, and the Archbishop of Toledo was commonly in scorn called D. Oppas, which was the Name of him that had helped to betray the Country to the Infidels when they over-ran it. These Divisions encouraged the Earl of Faux to invade Navarre, as his Wise's Dower, not content to expect the Death of his Father-in-Law, tho he had blamed that forwardness in his Brother-in-Law Prince Charles. Not so satisfied, he resolved to o-blige King Henry of Castile to deliver up those Towns of Navarre in which he had Garisons. At the first onset he took the City Calabora, and laid Siege to Alfaro. King Henry sent James Enriquez del Castillo his Chaplain, who also wrote a Chronicle of this King, to Treat with the Earl, but he finding nothing was to be done by fair means, gathered what Forces he could, and drove him out of the Country. Calaborra was also restored to the King, the Townsmen expelling the Garison of the Earl of Faux. In Catalonia the Aragonians in several places worst-Peter the ed their Enemies, and recovered many Towns. But what was most considerable, D: Peter, pretended the pretended Earl of Barcelona, died at Granobla on the 29th of June. His Body was buried at Barcelona. He was thought to be poisoned, as was very usual in those days. In his Will he left that Earldom, wherein he had so small a share, to John Prince of Portugal, his Nephew. The Aragonians using the advantage of his Death, took Tortosa and other Places. To put a stop to all these Losses, the Catalonians in a great Assembly at Barcelona, chose Renee Duke of Anjou, the perpetual Enemy of Aragon, their King. On the other fide the King of Aragon follicited the Duke of Savoy and Galeazo, who had fucceeded his Father Francu Sforzia in the Rebels in Dukedom of Milan, to join in League with him. He also Courted the English, and at the be-Catalonia ginning of the year 1467, sent Peter Peralta, his Constable, to Castile, to join in League choose the with the Consederate Lords. For the better compassing his Ends, he gave Commission to Anjou for Treat of Matching his Daughter Joanna with Prince Alonfo, and his Son Ferdinand with Beatrix Daughter to the Marquis of Villena. Neither of these Marriages had effect. The Earl of Benavente at this time got Prince Alonso from the Archbishop of Toledo, for pretending to Enthe periwasion of the Marquis de Villera, reflored him to the Rebellious Lords. Thus all things tended to open War, which King Henry earnestly desiring to prevent, condescended again to have Two Conferences with the Marquis de Villena, but all to no effect; notwithstanding the Earl of Plasencia's Lady, a Person of great Parts, and well affected towards the

King, was present, in hopes she would reduce her Husband and some others. The Marquels de Villena was more subtle to gain an Advantage, than King Henry to disappoint him. Another Interview was appointed at Plasencia, which the Loyal Nobility were concerned at, saying, ther interview apparent in the state of the Olmedo. Peter de Silva, Commandant of the Garison, delivered it up. Mota de Medina Lords. King Henry moved by all these Affronts, ordered great Levies to be made. Then he summoned the Nobility. There came to him the Earl of Medina Celi, the Bishop of Cala. horra, the Duke of Albuquerque, who till then had been absent from Court; and Peter Hernan. dez de Velasco, who being pardoned his former Fault, was now sent by his Father with 700 dez, de velaço, who being partoned his former Pauli, was now hent by the Kauter with 1904 Horfe, and a good Body of Foot. For this Service he had die Tenths of the Admiralty granted him. Sogreat Fear had possessed the King, and he was so destrous to gain the Nobility, that to secure the Marquis of Santillana, he delivered up his Daughter Joanna to be kept by him in his Town of Buytrago. Every one fold his Service the dearest he could. The King hill in the Town of Empiricage. Every one tout instance the teater he could. The King having gathered a good Army marched towards Medma, but being come to Olmedo the Rebels drew out to hinder his Passage. King Henry was defirous to avoid fighting, but could not olmedo contain his Men. Upon the 20th of August the Two Armies met, and after a sharp Engage-doubtful ment parted again upon equal Terms, yet both fides pretended to the Victory. Night fepa-Fight of ment parted again upon equal Terms, yet both indes pretended to the victory. rugur tepa-rated them, the Rebels returned to Olmedo, and the King with his Forces, which were 2000 with the Foot and 1700 Horfe, marched on to Medina del Campo. King Henry was not in the Fight, with the being advised by Peter Peralta not to hazard his Person. Some were of Opinion he meant not honestly, being a Friend to the Rebels. Neither was the Marques de Villena there, being then at a Chapter of the Order of Santiago, where he was chosen Master, which made the Nobility very jealous, feeing him Preferred and Rewarded, when he deferved the feverest Punishment. Ellenor Countels of Faux Governed Navarre for her Father. Nicholas Echavaria, Bithop of Pamplona, recovered Urania, which till then was held by the Caffilian. A Son of this Ladies called Gafton, as was his Father, had at this time by his Wife Magdalen, Silter to Louis Ladies called Galpon, as was ins radies; had a this time by ins who anagement, Silver of Deabetts, King of France, a Son called France, who for his great Beauty had the Sirname of Phaebets, His Daughter Catherine, her Brother dying, by Marriage united the State of Albert and Crown of Navarre, as shall appear in its place.

The King of Aragon resided at Tarragona, to be near to give Orders for carrying on the War in Catalonia, and tho very aged, and blind of both Eyes, had flill a great Spirit. In that City, on the 22th of January 1468, Ellenor, his Baftard Daughter, was Married to D. Luis de Biamonte Earl of Lerin. Her Portion was 15000 Florins, and the Defign to fecure that Family fo Powerful in Navarre. The Queen was 15000 Froms, and the Length of action at xaming to rowerian in Nation 1. There she died on the 13th of February, to the great Grief of the King, who lamented it the more because he was so aged himself, and his Son, to whom she might have been a great support, so young. Not long before she met her Daughter in Law, the Countes of Faux, at Exea on the Borders of Aragon, and there they concluded a League Offensive and Defensive. Her Body was Buried at Poblete. Only one Crime was laid to her Charge, which was the Death of her Son in Law Prince Charles, and this they say troubled her Conscience at the hour of her Death.

The News of the Troubles in Caffile was come to Rome. King Henry follicited the Pope to ThePopes Depose the Bishops that were in Rebellion, and to Excommunicate the Nobility if they would Legate not submit. Antony Venerio, Bishop of Leon, was therefore sent Nuncio into Spain. First he Affonted waited upon the King at Medina del Campo. Then endeavouring to Treat with the Rebels, R was by them twice put off with Reproachful Language; and he threatning to Excommunicate them, they answered. The Pope had nothing to do with the Affairs of the Crown, and that they would Appeal to the next General Councel. Another Misfortune befell the King, which was, that D. John Arias, Bishop of Segovia, in revenge that his Brother Peter Arias had been wrongfully imprisoned, tho now fet at liberty, resolved to deliver up that City to the Lords. The Place is strong, being seated on the Mountains that part Old and New Castile. The Queen and Dutchels of Albuquerque, who were there, were so surprized at the coming of the Rebels, that they could scarce have time to get into the Castle, nor were they easily admitted, Peter Munfares the Governor, being of Intelligence with the Rebels. The Princess Elizabeth, who hew of the Delign, flaved in the Palace, and then went to her Brother Alonfo, deligning to take part with him. This News was foon carried to Medina del Campo, where King Hemy was, which troubled him more than any other Lofs, because he loved that City, kept his Treasure there, and it was the place where he Diverted himself. From this time forward he seemed disturbed in his Brain, trusted no Body, was suspicious of all Men, and unsettled, sometimes for Peace and sometimes for War, but Peace was more fuitable to his Nature. He appointed to meet the Marques de Villena at Coca, notwithstanding all his Friends opposed it, which made many forsake him. Nothing was done at Coca, therefore they agreed to meet again in the Castle of Segovia. There they agreed upon these Articles, which were no better observed than others had been; That the Castle of Segovia be delivered to Prince Alonfo; That the King have Liberty to take out his Treasures, which shall be kept in the Castle of Madrid by Peter Muncares; That the Queen be left with the Archbishop of Sevil as an Hispage for Performance hereof; That these things performed, the Nobles within 6 months Restore the King to the Government, and submit to him. These were hard Conditions for the King. But the worst was, that the Queen in the Castle of Alabejos, whither the Bishop sent her, took a Liking to a young Man, and proved with Child by him, which confirmed all the former Suspicions of her Dilhonesty, and made for the Rebels. The King distracted with these Missortunes, went from place to place, almost like a Private Man, forfaken of most Men, only 10 attending him. He resolved at last to try the Earl of Plafencia, and put himself into his Power. He was there well received, and lived about 4 months The Re. in the Calife of that City. The Pope fent a new Nuncio to perfuade the Lords to fubmit bels Exto the King, but they perfilling Obstinate, he Excommunicated them. This did not correct, community the troubled them so much, that they sent Deputies to Rome, who were not suffered to come cated within the Walls of that City till they had taken an Oath, not to give the Title of King to Prince Alonfo. The Pope severely Reproved them in the Confistory, affuring them God would punish their Difloyalty, and that it was to be feared the young Prince would come to an untimely Death for the Sins of others. This Saying of his proved Prophetick, and his Severity did some kindness to King Henry. At the same time the City Toledo was restored to the King. Peter Lopez, de Ayala was Governor of that City. F. Peter de Silva of the Order of S. Dominick, and Bilhop of Badajox, his Brother in Law, Treated with his Sifter, the Governors Wife, about delivering up the City to the King. They fent to him, he came from Plajencia in two days, and enting the City by night, was lodged in the Dominican Monaflery. His coming being known, a Bell was Rung, and the People took the Alarm. Peter Lopez advised the King should not shew himself, because the People would not pay him any respect. Therefore about midnight he lest the City, with him went Perafan de Ribera, and the two Sons of Peter Lopez, de Ayala, Peter and Alonfo: At the Gate the King found his Horfa-was tired, having travelled 18 Leagues that Day. He asked one of the Company to give him his Horfa, which he relifed; but the two Sons of Peter Lopez, immediately alighted, and on their knees begg? of the King to accept of theirs, one for himfelf, and the other for his Squire of the Body. The King did fo, those Gentleman followed him a Foot: Being come to Oline, the King gave Peter Lopez de Ayala and his Sons, for ever an Estate of 70000 Mervidies a Year. The Bilhop allo was forc'd to leave the City; yet within Four days the Governors Wives tears prevail'd with him to call the King again. He came, and found all things better diffood than he expected, and at the fuit of the People, confirm'd their Charter, granting them new Privileges. But Peter Lopez, de Ayala was created Earlof Fuerfalida, and continued Governor of the City; then the King went away to Madrid; there he fecur'd the Governor of that Place, Peter Magares, but foon after diffinited him. The loss of Toledo so nearly touched the Rebels, that they immediately Marched from Arevalo where their Forces were, to Beflege that City. In their March near Cardenola, Prince Alonfo fell fick and died on the 5th of July, which put a ftop to their proceedings. His Body was Buried in the Church of St. Francis at Arevalo; thence afterwards translated to the Carthoffan Monastery of Mirasfores at Burgot. Some faid he died of the Plague, which then raged in those parts, others that he was positioned. Alongo de Palencia who wrote his History, positively afferts his being positioned by the Marquelsof Fillena: But I cannot find to what purpose that Nobleman should undertake such a hainous Crime.

John Duke R Ence Duke of Anjou, having accepted of the offer made him by the Catalonians, because of Lorrain R was himself too Old to undertake that Expedition, sent his Son John Duke of Larin Catala- rain, who we faid before was by the Aragonians drove out of Italy. The King of France not rain, who we fail decide was by the Aragon, fent him Supplies as foon as he had ended the Civil War Father.

with his Brother the Duke of Berri, and Charles Duke of Burgund. John Earl of Armagnac, between whom and the Duke of Lorrain there was a professed friendship, brought him some Supplies; with these Forces he began the War fortunately, but the end was not fuitable. Barcelona received him with joy, and it was refolved to carry the War to Ampurian. The King of Aragon tho' Old and Blind repaired thither, near Roses a Party of Aragonians was deseated. The Body of the French Army marched towards Girona, resolving if the Commandant Peter de Rocaberty came out, to fight him; if he kept close, to Besiege the Place. The Aragonians Marched out, and in feveral Rencounters worfted the Enemy. Prince Ferdinand came and put his Forcesinto the City, whereupon the Siege was raifed. Soon after, the Prince going out with a Party, was defeated by the French, and many of his Men killed; Roderick Rebolledo who had behaved his fell behaved. himself bravely in defence of the Prince, was taken. It was resolved to wear out the heat of the French, therefore all the Frontiers were Garrisoned, and Duke Alonso de Aragon lest to Command there, and observe the Enemy Prince Ferdinand returned to Zarogoza, where the Corres fate, and was present when his Mother died (as has been faid above.) His Mother being dead, and his Father 70 years of Age, all the weight of the Government fell upon him, therefore to give him the more Authority, he was declared King of Sicily. This was about the time that Prince Alonfo of Castile departed this Life, as we have declared. The death of the time that Anna Anna Prince Alonfo being known at Zaragega, immediately Peter Peralta was fent to the Factious Lords of Caffile to ask the Princes Elizabeth in Marriage for Prince Ferdinand. His Father flayed at Zaragoça, and he went away to carry on the War in Catalonia. The Duke of Lorrain flayed at Largeon, and in well away to carry on the via in communication that Duke of Lorran defining to politics himself of Girona, tailed 15000 Men in Rushilan and Gerdague, which with the Forces he had before, was a Power too great for the Aragonian to cope with; to that they could put no Relief into the Town, which was closely besieged. Nevertheless, through the Valour of the Bishop, of D. John Meliguerite, and other Commanders, it held our. Mean while, Prince Ferdinand had a Town called Verga delivered to him on the 17th of September, From this time the Affairs of the Aragonians began to look with a better Afpect, and the more for that the King recovered his Sight, a thing then thought miraculous: A few of Levida undertook the Cure, and couched a Cataract in the Right Eye on the 11th of September, when he refused to proceed to the other, faying, There was no favourable Aspect of the Heavens; but being pressed by the King, on the rith of October he persected the Cure upon the Lest Eye. To add to this Publick Joy, the Weather and want of Necessaries obliged the Enemy to raise the Siege of Girona. In Portugal, Prince John married his Coulin Eleanor, not regarding the Promise he made to marry Joanna Princess of Cassie: Her Mother's loose Life made her Birth fuffpecked. Ferdingul Duke of Vifee, Father to the Lady Eleanor, paffed over into Africk, obtained there some Victories over the Moors, and returning home, by his Wife Beatrix, the Daughter of D. John Master of Samiego in Portugal, had a Son called Emanuel, who came in time to be King of Portugal. The Portugues talk of strange Prodigies seen at the Birth of that Child, denoting his future Grandeur.

Upon the death of Prince Alonfo, many fubmitted to King Henry; but the Peace was Some Renot lafting, and the War that enfued walted the Power of Spain. Burgor returned to its bels fub. Duty, and at Madrid the Archbishop of Sevill, the Earl of Benavente, and other Noblemen, did mit, but Duty, and at total is the Archimop of second the Earlier Energether, and other incolerant, did mir, our freshrence to the King. The Rebels having lost Prince Alonfo, refolved to offer the Crown freshrence to the Princes Elizabeth, as they did at Avoila, the Archbishop of Toledo making an Harange lose once to perfuade her, and railing at the King. She thanked them for their Offer, and wishing long Life to the King her Brother, intreated them to pay to him that Duty they offered to her. Her Modesty surprized them all, and she was thought the worthier to Reign. They bent their Thoughts upon Peace, and the more, because the King had sent Commissioners to offer them all his Free Pardon. At length Peace was concluded at Avila, by the Archbishop of Sevill and Andrew de Cabrera Lord Steward of the Houshold, upon these Articles: That the Princes Elizabeth be sworn Heires to the Crown: That the Cities and Towns of Avila, Welda, Medina del Campo, Olmedo, and Escalona, be given to her; but upon Condition she shall not Marry without the King's Consent: That the King be divorced from the Queen, the Pope confenting to it: That the and her Daughter be fent to Portugal: That all the revolted Nobility be pardoned and restored to their Estates and Preserments taken from them during the Troubles. Four Months were allowed for the Performance of these Articles. These Conditions pleased not the Marquis de Santillana and his Brothers, who thought it more for their Interest to have the keeping of the Princess Joanna. The Queen, with the Assistance of Luys de Mendoga, was gone away by Night, from the Castle where she was kept, to her Daughter at Buyrrago. This much troubled the Archbishop of Sevil, who had the Charge of keeping her. During her Consinement, she was delivered of Two Sons, Ferdinand and Apparatus fol, who it is affirmed were bred in the Monaftery of S. Dominiok the Royal of Nuns in To-The Monaftery of Guisando, in the mid-way betwixt Madrid and Avila, was appointed for the King and the Lords to meet: There many Conditions were agreed to, and much granted to the Nobles, none of them doubting but the King and his Sifter being weary of those Confusions, would refuse them nothing they could ask. It is said the King and Marquess de Villena had a private Conference, the Substance whereof is not known; but by what followed it was supposed it only tended to the securing the Marquess and advancing his Family. On the 19th of September, the Nobility did their Homage to King Henry, and fwore the Princess Elizabeth Heiress to the Crown. Immediately, upon the Submission of all the Cities to the King, he took the Government of the City and Callle of Segovia from the Two Brothers of the House of Arias, and gave it to Andrew de Cabrera, who afterwards obtained great Preferments and Riches. About this time, near a Town called Peromoro, in the Ter-A Prodiritory of Toledo, great flore of Blood ran from the Sheaves of Corn newly mowed, which gythen surprized all Men, and afterwards was found to denote the great Calamity that ensued in Spain. The Marquils de Villena being reftored to his former Favour, grew absolute, to the great Dislatisfaction of the Nobility. He persuaded the King and Princess Elizabeth to remove to Ocaiia, at the beginning of the Year 1469. His defign was to marry the Princes to the King of Partugal; and to that purpose D. Alonfo de Neguera, Archbilhop of Labon, with other Men of Note, came Ambassador from thence. The Archbilhop of Tolelob, was for Matching her with Ferdinand King of Sieily, and spoke of it openly, after the departure of Peter Peralta, the Aragonian Ambassador: This Match pleased her best; and she had declared the would not marry in Portugal. The Marquess advised to marry her by force. King Henry was dubious; but at last resolved to dismiss the Portuguese Ambassador, telling him it was not yet time to treat of that Assair. The Cardinal of Arras came Ambassador from Luis XI.

King of France, to demand the Princess Elizabeth in Marriage for his Brother Charles Duke of

Ggg &

Berri, which caused more Divisions among the Nobles. Andaluzia was not yet persectly reduced. John Duke of Medina Sidonia dying, Henry his Baltard Son inherited his greate Effate and rebellious Spirit. D. Alonfo de Aguilar, and the Earl of Aron fided with him, and difurbed the Peace of that Country in the Name of the Princess Elizabeth. It was thought fit the King should go in Person to quell those Troubles. The Marques selvillena at the same time resigned and made over that Marquistee to his Son fame Lopez Pacheco, hoping to obtain the Construation of the Mastership of Santiago from the King and Pope. The Princes was left at Ocana, being again obliged to swear she would not marry or treat about it, without the King her Brother's Confent or Privity. The Earl of Benavente and Peter Hernandez de Velasco went to Valladolid, to Govern the Kingdom during the King's ablence.

The Marriage of Ferdinand King of Sicily with the Princess Elizabeth of Castile, and of the Duke of Guienne with the Princes Joanna, who is sworn Heires of Castile: Differences betwixt the Knights of Alcantara and their Master, and Troubles in Biscay: The Portugueses take Arzila and Tangier in Africk.

Rebels re- K ling Henry going into Andaluzia, was nobly entertained at Jaen by his Conftable Irançu:
Soon after, he reduced the City Cordova, delivered to him upon Articles by D. Alonfo de Aguilar, and quelled the Tumults railed by that Gentleman and D. Peter de Cordova, Earl of The Aguilar, and quelled the Tumults railed by that Gentleman and D. Peter de Cordova, Earl of Colora. In the Summer he went to Sevuil, and did the fame there. The Moors did not infect our Borders, being closely observed by those that Commanded on the Frontiers, and divided among themselves. Alguirpote, Governor of Malaga, an able Soldier, finding himself Mafter of that City, rebelled against his King Albobacco, many siding with him, who were disgusted by the King, or out of their metural Inconstancy. They came to a Battel, and Alguirpote being the weaker, was overthrown. He proposed a League with King Homy, and came to meet him at Archidona, on the Borders of the Kingdom of Granada, bringing great to the Colorada and the Colorada and the Colorada. Rebelli-

Presents, and was dismissed with a Promise of Succour. Hereupon Albohagen made several Incurfions into the Christian Territories, carried away great Numbers of Captives and Catrel, and burnt all the Country. He did much more Mischief than had been usually done of late upon the like Occasions, yet took never a Town of Note. Many Parties of Moors over-ran Andaluzia and Murcia, but rather in the nature of Robbers, than in warlike manner. Let us return to the Princels Elizabeth, whom many great Princes courted: She was a Woman excellently Qualified, and Virtuous; but above all, her Dower, which was no lefs than a Kingdom, drew for many to pretend to her. At laft, Ferdinand King of Sicily took place of the Portugues, who was a Widower, and the Duke of Berry being too much a Stranger. His Father the King of Aragon left no means uneflayed, but gave rich Prefents, and made large Promifes. Guiterre de Cardena was her great Favourite, and Gonzalo Chacon his Uncle govern'd him: To the last was promised the Town of Casarrubios, and that of Arroyo Molinos; to the other the Town of Maqueda, besides rich Gists in hand, and Assurances of Favours to come. By their means, with the Affiltance of the Archbishop of Toledo, the Match was made up, and Articles agreed upon, which chiefly tended to the giving all due Respect to King Henry as long as he lived, and after his death that the whole Government should be in the Power of the Princes; so that the King should bestow no Preferments on Strangers, nor on others, without her Confent. That Match was privately concluded. The War in Catalogia detained King Ferdinand, for Girona was again befieged by the Enemy, and at last forced to furrender: Besides, another A Bishop Storm was raised in Navarre. Nicholas Bishop of Pamplona going to Tafalla to meet the Prin-

murdered cess Eleanor, was murdered by the Procurement of Peter Peralta. Messengers were sent to the King of Aragon to demand Justice; they also complained the Murderer had possessed himself King of Aragon to demand juntee; they ailo complianted the Mulderer had potented himleit of Tudela, and that the King was too free in giving Charters to feveral Towns. They allo prayed he would recover Efela and its Territory, ftill held by the Cafillians. The Earl of Euras was dilfiastified, and feemed to threaten War; for which reafon he was no less thateful to the King his Father-in-Law than Prince Charles had been. The King gave the Deputies good Words; but Peralta was not punished for that heinous Crime. The Princes Elizabeth being unease, fled from Ocaha towards Old Cafile; and being denied admittance at Olmedo, went to Madrigal, where her Mother was. It was contrived by the Master of Samiago and Archbishop of Sevil to seize her; but they were disappointed by the Archbishop of Toledo and the Admiral, who with a Party of Horse carried her to Valladolid. King Ferdinand searing to be disappointed, leaving the War in Catalonia, went away to Valencia, to raise the Money he had promised his Bride to keep House. Thence he returned to Zaragoga, and fo in a Difguize, with only four Perfors attending him, came into Caffie Ferdinand At Ofma he met the Earl of Trevino, who was privy to the Match, and with him and zo king of Horie removed to Durina, a Town belonging to the Earl of Buendia, Brother to the Archbishop Still mark of Tallah. stelly mar of Toledo: There he faluted his Bride, and on the 18th of Oltober they were married at Vallabeth Sifter dolid, the Archbishop of Toledo pretending he had a Dispensation from Pope Pins II. but it apbears to have been faile, by the Bull afterwards granted upon that occasion by Pope Sixtm IV.

King of King Ferdinand was but 16 Years of Age, but proper and frong. The new married Couple sent Letters to the Pope, King Henry, and other Princes and Great Men, excusing their being fo halty in marrying. They were forced to borrow Money for their Expences. About the fo halty in marrying. They were torced to borrow money for their Expences. About the fame time, Henry, Son to Prince Henry of Aragon, was by the King his Uncle created Duke of Segorve, and Alonfo the King's Baffard-Son Earl of Rilagorge. On the 6th of December died at Rome D. John Cavajad, Cardinal and Bilhop of Plagorge. On the 6th of December Legate to Three Popes, and a Man of a good Life. He built a Bridge over Tagon in Effre. madura, which is still called the Cardinal's Bridge, madura, which is thil called the Caramar is pringe.

Whilft King Hemy was busine settling the Assairs of Sevil, advice was sent him from Cantillana, by the Master of Santiago, of his Sister's Marriago: His Displeasure was very greats. Immediately he set out for Trussilo, designing to give that Town to the Earl of Plasmora, for his good Services during the Troubles. The Townstein resolved to oppose it; and therefore the Trussilo of the Santian State of the Santian State of the Santian State of the Santian Santian State of the Santian San the King, rather than use Violence, gave him in lieu of it the Town of Arevalo in Old Castile; and because it was not worth so much as the other, added to it the Title of a Duke. At and became it was not worth to had fided with Prince Alonfo, was pardoned, and the King gave or reftored the City Coria to Gutierre de Caceres and Solis his Brother. Thus many who deferved Punishment received Rewards. Here Letters were brought the King from his Sifter, excusing her marrying, and promiting she and her Husband would be as dutiful as if they were his Children, if he would treat them with the Affection of a Father. No other Answer was returned, but that the King at Segovia would consider of that Affair. Another Aniwer was returned, but that the saing at occors would confide of that Analy. Another Message was sent to Segovia, at the beginning of the Year 1470, to press the King to give 1470s Meliage was tent to Segrem, at the Segriming of the Teal 1470, to pres the King to give leave to the Prince and Princes, that they might pay their Respects to him, promising their future Behaviour should make amends for the Displeasure they had done him. All the Anfiver was, a Business of that Importance required the Advice of the Nobility. This was the Pretence: but in reality he was offended at the Princess Elizabeth, and had fixed his Affection on his Daughter Joanna, whom Lewis King of France had sent to demand in Marriage for on its Daughter Journa, Annual Law Annual Befides, he prefied King Henry to join with him in calling a General Councel, in opposition to Pope Paul, with whom he was at vahim in calling a General Counter, in opportunit to rope rame, with whom ne was at variance. This Requelt was flatly denied by the King; the Business of the Marriage was put off. At the same time. D. Alonso de Aguilar at Cordova, apprehended the Marcschal D. James de Cordova, who suspected no such Design. He was soon released by the King's Order; but thinking he should obtain no Satisfaction for that Wrong, went away to Granada, and thence with the Confent of the Moorifb King, sent a Challenge to his Adversary to fight upon the Plain of Granada. On the appointed Day, having waited till Sun-set, and D. Alonso not appearing, he dragged his Effigies at his Horse's Tail: That done, he sent Letters to all Parts with Pictures representing that Passage. The Knights of Aleantara would not submit to Diffetheir Mafter, and the Diffute came to open Hoffility. The Mafter not being able along the too oppose fo many, begged Affiftance of his Brother Guiterre de Solie. They wanted Money the thing and Gmet Alvarez de Toledo, Earl of Alvas, lent them a Sum upon the Mortgage of the City of Alena of the City of Ceria. Thus the Earls, afterwards Dukes of Alva, got that City, which being confirmed to tara and them by Grants of Kings, remains in the Family to this day. Nothing remarkable happed their Masbetween the Mafter and Knights, only they hindred his Forces paffing the River Tagent, and foon after they were differed.

The Mafter being thus outed his Eftate, died fome Years after. D. John de Ziniga, Son to the Duke of Arevala, fucceeded him, and was the laft Mafter of Alcantara, he religning up that Dignity to King Fredmand. D. John Pachero, Mafter of Santiago, lay fick at Occina, being greater in the King's Favour than ever, notwithstanding all his Mifdemeanours; which occasioned the People to say he had bewitched the King; and it was given out the Court removed to Madrid only to be near him. When he returned to Court after his Sickness, the King went out to meet him, and gave him the Town of Escalona; the Inhabitants whereof refusing to receive him, the King went thither in Person to deliver it to him. The Earl of Armagnac fled into Spain, for fear of being killed, because he privately marry'd the Earl of Faux's Daughter without her Father's Confent. He was well privately marry of the Ling, and from after returned into France, the Cardinal of Albi in that King's Name affuring him his Life; but it proved fatal to him, as will appear hereafter. The Bifconfulence agrees, who had been long divided into the Factions of Overs and Gambears, about this time fell in Bifary. into great Confusions. Peter Fernandes. de Velasso, Earl of Haro, was fent by the King to appeale them, which he soon did, banishing the two Heads of the Factions, called Peter de Avendaño, and John de Moxica. Pope Paul II. granted a Juline to all that gave Alms, two Use. King Henry went thither from Madrid to gain this Jubilee.

In Portugal the luke of Viseo died at Setuva on the 8th of September, being 37 Years of Age: James his Second Son succeeded him. He was buried in the Monastery of S. Francis in that City, and thence translated nuceeeeed nim. He was oursed in the resonated you observe an unat carty, and mence cramated to the Charch of the Conception at Beig, which, with the Monastery of Nams it belonged to, was built by his Wise Beatris: In Valladolid the People mutinied, and took up Arms against those that were descended of Jews; the Christian themselves; King Fordmand and his Queen could not quell them. The Party opperssel of miplored the Protection of King Henry, by which means that City was reduced to his Obedience. The Earl of Beauty of the Christian of the Concept of the C vente was left to Govern there, and King Ferdinand with his Wife returned to Diemas?

from France to press the Marriage before Treated of, and it was now agreed to. All things being concluded, the Marquels of Santillana brought the Princes Joanna, for which Service, and for having kept her, the King gave him the Towns of Aleager, Valdalivas, and Salmeron, which belonged to the Marquels de Villena, in the Right of his Wife the Countels of Santiltevan, who in lieu of it had the Town of Requena, with all the Duties belonging to it, which are confiderable, because that place is near the Frontiers of Valencia. A Monastery of Carthusians celled Paular, between Segovia and Bustrago, was the place appointed for Contracting the Princes. Thither went the King and Queen, with their Daughter, and the Master of Santiago, the Archbishop of Sevil, the Duke of Arevalo, the Bishop of Siguença, and his Brothers, there they all publickly renounced the Allegiance Sworn to the Prince's Elizabeth. On the 26th of Ottober the Ceremony of the Princesses Marriage was performed. The King and Queen Swore she was their Lawful Daughter, and the Nobility did Homage to her, and the was Sworn Heires of the Kingdom. After the Solemnity, as they returned to Segovia, there arofe fuch a Storm of Wind, Rain, and Snow, that the French Ambassadors were in danger, and fome of their Servants perished, which some looked upon as an ill Omen to that Wedding. From Segovia the Ambassadors returned home, well satisfied with their Negociation, the Bishop of Siguença, by the Kings Order, accompanying them as far as Burgos. This had been the Occation of a Bloody War between Spain and France, had not Heaven prevented it.

For the King of France had not long before a Son born, which cut off the Duke of Guienne's hopes of inheriting that Crown, and he died two years after, as shall be related in its

Troubles in Aragon, Sardinia, and Na-

As the Power of Aragon had been increased by the Marriage in Casilie, so was its Quiet much disturbed by the War which still continued in Casalonia, and new Commotions in Sardinia and Navarre. Leonard de Alagon, Son to Artal de Alagon and Benediësa de Arborea, in her Right pretended to the Elfate of that Family, the Marques de Orifan Salvador de Arborea, dying without Islue. He fought to do himself Right by force of Arms, and took feveral Towns belonging to the King and other great Men. Nicholas Carros, the Viceroy, had veral Towns toering to the King and other great veral Towns of the Vicerby, had of a fufficient Strength to suppress him. In Navarre the Earl of Faux, with the Affiliance of the Biamonte(is, possesses, burnels) are a functionally and the Kingdom, and laid Siege to Tudela. The King sent the Archbishop of Zarapopa before, and notwithstanding his great Age, followed him with a good Force, which obliged his Son in Law to raise the Siege. A Treaty was fet on foot, and at length at Olite it was Agreed, That the King of Aragon should still retain the Title of King of Navarre, but the Government should be wholly in the Power of the Earl of Faux and his Wise. News was here brought them of a sad Missortune that had happened in France, which was, That at a Feast of Tilting made by Charles Duke of Guienne for Joy of his Marriage, a Splinter from his own Lance broke upon his Adversary, struck or how to the Earl of Raux, through the fight of his Helmet, and killed him. This was on the 27th of November. He was 26 years of Age. His Body was carried to Bourdeaux, and there buried in the Cathedral of that City. He left Two Children by his Wise Magdalen, and therebuted in the Catherian of that Coly. The target and catherine, who both came to the Crown of Navarre. This grieved the King of Aragon, but above all the Danger of his Son Ferdinand, whom he thought not fafe to leave in Caffile, where he had many Enemies, and among them that King, nor yet to call him away unless he had fecured his Succeffion to that Crown. He was the more perplexed, for that the Biffing of Toleda, a Man of great Power, was Discontented, and took it ill that King Ferdinand was more Familiar with, and had more Confidence in Guterre de Cardenas, and the Admiral D. Alonso Enriquez, than in him. Besides, that King had let fall a word, fignilying, That he would not fuffer himfelf to be governed by any Man. This troubled the Archbifliop, and he refolved to withdraw. The King of Aragon being informed of it, endeavoired to appeale him, writing a Letter to his Son, wherein he Advised him to Prefer the Archbifliop before all others, and use him as a Father. Yet this did Advised nim to Prefer the Archbilhop be ober all others, and the him as a Father. Yet this did not fully fatisfic the Archbilhop. The Affairs of Aragon were in a good pofture in Catalonia, for John Duke of Lorrain died at Barcelona upon the 16th of December, and was buried in the Cathedral. The Rebels were not at all diffinayed hereat, but hoping the King of France would fland by them, published an Ordinance, enjoining all Places that were without Governours, not to admit of any, unless Renee Duke of Anjon, or his Grandson Nicholar, Son to the decasted, came to them in Perspin. In Cafile the King of Aragon used all Means to Oblige the Nobility. D. John Pacheco was promised his Estate should be enlarged, and the Archbishop of Toledo. that his Sons Groba and Love flould be Pressived for Many where of Toledo, that his Sons Troylo and Lope, should be Preferred and Provided for. Many others of the Nobility were reduced either by Fair Promifes, or great Gifts, yet neither D. John Pacheco, nor the Archbishop, could be prevailed upon. King Henry used the same Art, especially towards the Archbishop. It was thought he would not be overcome by fair Means only, therefore Vasco de Contreras took from him the Town of Perales. The Archbishop gathering some Forces besieged that Town, but the King at the beginning of the year 1471, hasted to Ma. drid, and marching thence with 800 Men, raifed the Siege, which done, he returned back to Madrid, and the Archbishop to Alcald. A new way was found to reduce the Rebellious Pre-Method lates, but especially those of Toledo and Segovia. The King obtained of the Pope Two Bulls, of reducthe Observation of the Bifhop of Segovia to Appear before him at Rome within 90 days after the Notification of it. By the other the Archbifhop was Commanded to Submit to the Skelli-Guige, and in case he was Refractory, 4 Canons of Tokdo were empowered to draw up a Prolates. though the Contrivance of the Mafter of Santiage they proceeded not upon that Affair. To the Master of Santiago the King gave the Town of Alcaraz, and to D. Roderick Ponce, Earl of Arcos, the Island of Cadiz, and the Title of a Marques, by way of Portion with Beatrin Daughter to the Master of Santiago, in order to make an Interest against the Duke of Medina Sidonia, who was an Enemy to them both. Bifeay was again in an uproar, Avendano and Moxica, the Heads of the Mutineers, being returned from Banishment by the help of the Earl of Trevino, who affulted them in hatred to Peter Fernandez, de Velasco, Earl of Haro, who banished them. Both these Noblemen marched with Forces into Biscoy, and on the 27th of April came to a Battle near a Town called Mongaia. The Earl of Trevino was firongest in Foot, which were of most use in that uncouth Countrey, so that he overthrew his Adversary. Many were killed, especially of the Gentry, and more made Prisoners. King Henry hearing of it, polled away to Burgos, and thence to Ordina, upon his coming all was prefently quiet. He made a Truce between the Two Parties till fuch time as they could be fully Reconciled, and fet all the Prisoners free. After this great Levies were made throughout Custile, and the Nobility was summoned, to the end to force King Ferdinand and Elizabeth his Queen, to depart the Kingdom; yet by the Advice of the Malter of Samingo this Defign was laid afide.

Toldo and Sevil mutinied at the fame time, both Cities being divided into Factions. Those Mutiny of Toledo were the Ayalus and Silvas. The Earl of Cifuentes was Head of the Silvas, and he at Toledo of Theological and the Ayalus. To put an end to the Contentions, by the Advice of the Bit 30de of Renjalida of the Ayalus. To put an end to the Contentions, by the Advice of the Bit 3nd Sexul. Shop F. Pierr de Silva, the Earl of Cifuentes Married Ellenor, Daughter to him of Fuenfalida, What was defigned to produce a Peace, proved the cause of greater Discord, not only the Earl of Cifuentes, but John de Ribera, his Uncle, being admitted into the City against the Kings will, one of them coming to be Married, and the other to honour that Solemnity. The Faction of the Silvas having got their Chief among them, armed against their Adversaries with such sury, that King Henry was forced to come thither in Person, and having appeafed the Tumult, deprived the Earl of Fuenfalida of the Government of the City, which peafed the Tumult, deprived the Earl of Fuenfalida of the Government of the City, which he had held many years, and put Garie Lopez into that Command, with the Title of Deputy.

At Sevil the Marquels of Cadiz, was expelled that City by the Duke of Medina Sidonia. Hence enflued a formal War, which was ended by D. Tinge Lopez de Mendoga, Earl of Temililla, fent hither to that purpole, he using more Art than Force or Severity. Medina Sidonia was restored to its Owner. It was a very great los for Cafile, that Pope Paul II. died on the 27th of Pope Paul July.

During his Papacy he did much for the good and advantage of Spain. On the 9th of II. dies, August was chosen in his place the Cardinal Francis de Ruvere of the Order of Frier Minors, Sixtua UV. he took the Name of Sixtus IV. a Man of no less Merit than his Predecessor, and as well affected towards Spain. At the same time a Body of Moores broke into the inward parts of Andaluzia, and made great havock in the Territory of Alcantar; The Booty, they took was fo great, they could observe no Order in marching. In Revenge for this Affront, and to Divert the Enemy, by the King's Order, the Marques of Cadiz, with his Forces, took the Town of Cardella in the Kingdom of Granada by force, but he leaving a weak Garison in the place. it was foon recovered by the Moores.

This Year was Fortunate to Poirugal. King Alonfo about the middle of August fet fail from Tongia Luibon with a Fleet, consisting of 300 Sail between great and small, resolving to renew the and Article War in Africk. With him went Prince John his Son, that he might learn his sinft Military is taken Rudiments in that Holy War, and all the Flower of the Nobility and Souldiery of the King-King of dom. The Army consisted of about 30000 Men. At his first landing he took from the Paringal. Moores the Town of Arzila, in which above 2000 Insidels were killed, and 5000 fold as Sases, which raised a great Sum of Money. This Success was not bought without Blood, for several Persons of Note among the Portugusses were killed, and among them D. Alongo decastro, Earl of Montesamo, and D. John Comino, Earl of Marialva, whose dead Body the King having seen, turning to his Son, he said, God grant you prove so great a Souldier. The Example of Arzila fo terrified the Moores of Tangier, that they abandoned it, the Command of which Place the King gave to Roderick Marlo. Henry de Mansset, Earl of Valencia, was lest Governour of Arzila and Aleagar. Having in so fhort a time concluded such Noble Expletis, the King returned with his Fleet in Salety to Portugal. D. Alonso Valconcilus was in this Expedition created Earl of Penella, as a Reward of his good Service.

Catalonia

TN Catalonia the Aragonians were now fuccessful, for after the Death of the Duke of Lorrain, Girona was furrendred to the King. What remained of the Enemy, whose Chief Commanders were Reiner, Bastard Son to the Duke, and James Galesto, were either besieged in a Town called S. Adrian, on the Banks of the River Befe, or overthrown by the General D. Alonso de Aragon, as they marched to relieve that Place. The King, tho' foold, ceased not to press the Enemy in Ampurias. As he lay encamped near Torella, he is said in a Dream to have seen a notable Soldier that died in that War, who advised him not to decamp from thence, because it would prove dangerous to him. The King took no notice of this Dream, but moved thence, and having taken Roses, and laid Siege to Peralada, was in great danger of his Life by a Camilade given at Night by the Earl of Campobaso, who commanded the Enemy. He was so surprized, that he fled half naked to Figueras. Nevertheless next day he returned to the Siege, and wasted the Country, which obliged the Town to surrender. All that Country being subdued, he marched with his Army and sate down before Barcelona, the Siege of which Place lasted long, he being resolved to carry that Town by Policy, rather than open Force. In Old Castile, King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth laboured to draw the People to their Party, some Towns surrendred to him, and among them Sepulveda. This done, they their Party, foline I dwins intended to finish and among used to provide a distribution of Toledo, refolving to reconcile him at any tate, and being come, went with him to Todelaguna, a Town of his, on purpose to oblige him. Charks, Duke of Guienne, not regarding that he was contracted to the Princess Joanna, as doubting whose Gitienne, not regarding that he was contracted to the Princels Journa, as doubting whole Daughter the was, was now making a Match with the Duke of Burgundy's Daughter. As foon as King Henry had notice of it, he went from Segovia to Badajoz to meet the King of non as King Henry had notice of it, he went from Segovia to Badajoz to meet the King of Portugal at the beginning of the Year 1472. The Earl of Feria, in whole Cuftody that City was, in Hatted to the Malter of Santiago, would not admit the King. Between that Place and Elvas the two Kings met, and treated about the King of Portugal's marrying the Prinmeet.

Make of Somma, but nothing was concluded. The Portugule placed no great Confidence in the King, or the Mafter of Santiago, befice that King Ferdinand and his Queen became daily more acceptable to the People. For the prefent the Infolence of the Earl of Feria was whiled at, but not long after King Henry went into Andaluzia, with a Refolution to punish all the Mutinous Lords. He came to Gordova, and would not go no to Sevil. because the Duke the Mutinous Lords. He came to Cordova, and would not go on to Sevil, because the Duke of Medina-Sidonia was possessed of that City, and had in it a good Body of Horse, for sear, as he faid, of the Maîter of Santiago, his Enemy. For this Reafon, as also because Toledo was again in an Uproar, the King returned without effecting any thing. In Toledo, the Earl of Cifuenies possessed himself of the Castle of S. Martin, then very strong, and secured the Deputy-Governor. Scarce were these Tumults in Toledo quelled by the King with the Affifrance of the Canons of that Church, when News came from Segovia, that that City was all in Confusion, which perplexed the King. and forced him to speed thither, his Treasure being there. Great was the Milery of those Times, as well in Ecclesiastical as Civil Affairs. The Money was either Counterfeit, or of base Allay. Many Petitions were presented to the King for Redress of these Grievances, but all in vain. Ferdinand del Pulgar, a Man samous in those days, wrote a Pastoral Dialogue, being a Satyr upon the King and Nobles, restering severely on the Miscarriages and Abuses in the Government. The same Year, on the 12th of May, died Charles Duke of Guienne at Bourdeaux, having then concluded a League with the Dukes of Burgund; and Britany against the King of France. Bloody Wars followed afterwards between the King of France and Duke of Burgund;, which we leave to the French Historian, Saston, Earl of Fence, has relation to the History of Spain, as pretending to the Crown of Navarre, in Right of his Weie Ellenor, but Death cut him off this Year at Roncesvalles, in his way from France to Navarre.

The Bilhop of Siguença afpired with the King's Favour to be made a Cardinal, and had good Pretentions to it for his Birth and Services, but was fo displeased his Promotion was delayed, that he would not attend the King in his late Journeys to Portugal, or Andaluxia. Means were used to pacify him, because he was a Man in grear Power, and had Kindred that were very great. The Master of Santiago being now a Widower, married the Daughter of the Earl of Haro, and the Lady Mary & Mendoja. This Match allied him to the Visiços and Mandejas, and made them of his Party: Particularly the Mandejas for fook the Duke of Medna Sidonia. By this means the Master secured himself against the Malice of his Enemies. The Bishop of Siguença had fresh Assurances given him of obtaining a Cardinal's Cap, as foon as the Cardinal D. Roderick de Borgia, who was daily expected, arrived, as he did then at the City Valencia, his own Country, on the 20th of June. He was there nobly entertained, and went thence by Land to Tarragons to meet King Ferdinand, who having been with his l'ather before Barcelona, was returning to his Wife. There the Cardinal Legate gave him the Difficu fation for his Marriage, referred by Pope Sixtus to the Archbishop of Toledo. Many Reafons were given for this Journey of King Ferdinand. The true one was, to acquaint his Mother with the Match defigned betwirt Henry Duke of Segevia and the Princels Journal which he endeavoured to break off. His Father gave little credit to it, befides that he loved his Nephew Henry, as being his Brother's Son. In fine, King Redunand halfed back to Valencia, and thence to Caffile, fearing some Revolution there. The Cardinal Legate cance to the King of Aragon before Barcelona, at fuch time as the Belieged suffered much, yet continued obstinate. They had been many times summoned, but to no purpose. Therefore the King wrote a Gracious Letter to them, advising not to put him upon a necessity of coming to Extermities, but rather to make use of his Mercy, and promising to use them as his Children. This Letter folined their Hearts, and there being no hopes of Relief, they appointed Com- Barelina This Letter latined their ricarts, and there being no nopes of Kener, they appointed Coin-Barreland millioners to Treat, and furrendred upon Conditions. All the French Garrifon, with their furrendred upon Commander, the Son to the Duke of Lorian, was fuffered to depart in fafety. All Perfons dred to that had been in Arms againft the King were pardoned, except only the Earl of Padlas, who the King from those Places he pelfet on the Pyrencan Hills, with the Affiliance of France gave fonet touble, and held out for a long time after. All the Acts, or Decreesmade by the Citizens for Ten years laft paft, and during the War were confirmed by the King. On these Terms the City was Surrended. Two Matches were agreed upon at Naples, one of Frederick Son to Ferdinand King of Naples, with Joanna Daughter to the King of Aragon, which afterwards took no effect. The other of the Princess Elenor with Hercules de Esse Duke of Ferrara, tho the was before Contracted to Galeago Maria Sforcia. This Action much offended the King of Aragón, who in Revenge thereof, and of the Succours fent against him during the War of Catalonia, refolved to Recover Russilion and Cardagne. With this Resolution, he set out of Barcelona on the 29th of December, preceding the beginning of the year 1473. Elna and Perpignan immediately opened their Gates to receive him, and generally the People were well affected towards him, wherefore it was not doubted the other Towns would follow their Example. The Cardinal Legate fet out towards Caftile: At Ma-

It was proposed in the Popes Name to Raise a Sum of Money upon the Revenues gave in the Cuftom of the Church, to be Employed in the War against the Turks. Many Objections were made capital. especially the Poverty of the Clergy, yet the Legate prevailed with the Assistance of the King. The Clergy of Spain were so ignorant that sew of them understood Latin, and besides, they The Clergy of span were to ignorant that sew of them understood Latin, and befides, they were wholly given up to their Ease and Luxury: Their Avarice was fuch, that they thought, all too little for them, and by reason of their Ambition, looked upon Simony as a lawfull Purchase. In the Synod called by the Legate it was proposed to Remedy these Evils, and to that effect they made application to the Pope, that in all Cathedrals the Bishop and Chapter should be chosed. The Pope's Legates Practices against King Henry of Castile; Massacre of the Jews; Signal Loyalty of Peter de Peralta; Traiterous Practices of Elizabeth Sister to King Henry of Castile; A Synod at Aranda.

A LL the Labour employed by the Legate to Appeale the Tumults in Spain, proved in Evil Praeffectual, the Inclinations of the People being Debauched, and he naturally favouring effices of King Ferdinand, and endeavouring to advance his Interest. To this purpose he went to Al. the LeToledo, Thence he moved to Gnadalajara, upon no other design than to gain the Famely of the Mendogas, and alienate them from King Henry, and the Master of Santiago. At the same time in several Cities Mutinies were raised to destroy those that were descended from Fruss.

This Storm broke our first at Cardinan, where the Rabble without any term of purishment come. This Storm broke out first at Cordena, where the Rabble without any sear of punishment, committed great Barbarities against those Miserable People, Robbing and Murdering great numbers of them. Some said this was a Judgment upon them, for that many had sallen from the Christian Religion after embracing of it. Other Towns in Andaluzia followed the Example of Cordona, but the greatest Violence was at Jaen. Irançu the Constable, endeavouring to protech those Wretches, the Rage of the Multitude was such, that they Murdered him in the Church as he heard Mass, and the Lady Tereja, his Wise, with her Children, had much different many that they may be the Lady Tereja. ficulty to escape into the Castle. His Honours were given to others, the Office of Chancellor to the Bishop of Siguença, that of Constable to Peter Fernandez, de Velasco, Earl of Havo, in whose Family it has continued to this day, whereas before it went from one Family to another. The Death of Iranga was a great Loss to the King, for his fingular Valour and Loyalty. This Lofs D. John Pacheco, Master of Santingo, laboured to make up some other way. To this effect he fent for Henry, Duke of Segorve, out of Aragen, upon Promise of giving him the Princess Joanna to Wife. With him came his Mother, the Lady Beatsix Pimenel. The Mafter himself went as far as Requena to meet him. Notwithstanding all this, the Match was Prince of broke off by the Contrivance of the same Master of Santingo, for that the Person of the Duke Scarres and did not answer the Expectation conceived of him, and particularly because he was Haughty, and comes in when the Nobility came to pay their Respects, stretched out his Hand to be kissed. Besides, the Master was jealous, that if he came to be King, he would recover the Towns that had been his Father's. These were the true Reasons of disappointing him, tho it was given our, there was need of a more powerful Prince to quell all the Tumults then in the Kingdom. The King was unwilling to break his Word, and impose upon that Prince, but the Master replied, There would be need of much Money to carry on the War. This was levelled against An. drew de Cabrera, who had the keeping of the Royal Treasure in the Castle of Segovia. In that City before this time, by the Contrivance of the Master, and after the Example of Andalucia, a Mutiny had been railed against those that descended from Jewn. Andrew de Cabrera quelled it, but not without much Trouble and Hazard to his Person. An Ambassador, sent purpossess by the Pope, brought the Bishop of Siguença the Cardinal's Cap, and gave it him at Madrid, the King coming thither to Honour him, and granting him the Title of Cardinal of Spain. Henry, Duke of Segorve was not permitted to come into Madrid, but ordered to stop at Xetafe, a League from that Town in the way to Toledo. There he spoke to the King in a Field, and it was agreed he should remove to Odon, another Village hard by. For delaying his Marriage, they pretended it was necessary to expect the Pope's Dispensation. Thus that Prince was imposed upon, who, by reason of this Missortune, was ever after called D. Henry Fortums. King Henry went away to Sagovia to get Money, because Andrew Cabrer a supplied him slenderly to cross the Master of Samiago, who he knew aimed at the Government of that Castle, having before taken from him that of Madrid. Besides, he savoured King Ferdinand, and was matried to Bestrix de Bobadilla, who had served the Princess Elizabeth. The new Cardinal's Revenue increased upon the Death of D. Alonso de Fonseca Archbishop of Sevil, being promoted to that See, and ftill retaining Siguença, a Thing then altogether new. An Army of 20000 French Foot and 1000 Men at Arms, under the Command of Philip, Duke of Savey, acooo Freno Foot and 1000 Men at Arms, under the Command of Philip, Duke of Savoy, fate down before the City Periginam, in the County of Raffolm, on the 5th of April. The King of Aragon threw himself into it, resolving to undergo any Danger, rather than quit that Place, which is very strong, and leated on the Borders of France. To encourage the People, he assembled them in the Church, and took an Oath never to leave them till the Stege was raised. A desperate Action at his Years, and not to be commended in him on whom depended the William of the Church of the County Raffold County of the County of raifed. A desperate Action at his Years, and not to be commended in him on whom depended the Welfare of all the Country. Peter de Peralta, Constable of Navarre, gave a signal Demonstration of his Loyalty, for being well skilled in the French Tongue, in the Habit of a ferre de Franciscan Friar, he passed through the Enemies Army, and got into the Town to bear his King company in that Danger. Of the King of Arragon's three Sons, D. Alons was with his Father, the Archbishop of Zaragopa with a good Body of Men threw himself into Elna, which is near Perpignan, to be ready upon all Occasions. King Ferdinand marched with 400 Horse he gathered in Cessilie, and 100 he gathered by the way: With this Force in June he sate down before Ampuriar, which so surprised the Enemy, that they soon raised their Siege, concluded a Truce till Ostober, and cleared that Country. Thus the War being ended, the King of Argon made his Entry into Barcelows in Triumph under a Canopor titing on a the King of Aragon made his Entry into Barcelona in Triumph under a Canopy, fitting on a Chariot covered with Cloth of Gold, and drawn by four white Horses. On both sides of him was the Nobility and Magistrates, and vast Multitudes of People covered the Fields and Ways. His Son was gone to Tortofa to hold the Cortes of Aragon, but was hindred by Sickness, and being called back hastily into Castile. About this time a certain Moor of the City of Fee stole away the Bones of Prince Ferdinand Master of Avia, and brought them to Portugal, where they were buried at Aljubarrota with great Solemnity.

All spain All other Parts of Spain at this time enjoyed Peace, except Castile, which was under conin Peace, timual Alarms, the Nobility being always at Variance, and the People, led by their Example, except Castilla Mutinous. Most Cities and Towns were divided into Factions. King Ferdinand and Queen Pills. Elizabeth's Forces still increased, and many came over to them daily; whereas on the contrary, King Henry's Authority was lessented, the People being dislatissed with him. In Commonwealths, as well as in the Body of Man, those Dislates are most dangerous that proceed from the Head. In Biseast the Disorder was great, because the new Constable used Force to reduce that fierce People who had more than others adhered to King Henry. On the other fide, the Earl of Trevino, who favoured the Aragonian with all his Strength, oppoing him, and the Biscainers were of old better affected towards his Family. Thus that Country of it felf, not very plentiful, was wasted and consumed; fresh Tumults broke out at Toledo. The Earl of Funialida confiding in the Affiftance of the Mafter of Saniago, attempted to surprize the City Toledo, and turn out the Mareschal Ferdinand de Ribadeneira, who stood surn to King Hen-The Citizens repulled him, and the King having notice of that Attempt, came himself and quieted the City. All things being reduced to good order, such as had a hand in that Uproar were pardoned, which made those Disaffected Persons the more bold. After this, D. John Pacheco, Mafter of Santiago, withdrew to Penafiel, where his Wife was, being defirous at last to live at ease, and searing he must be odious to many Men, having long continued great at Court, which he thought his Absence would remedy. In his Place he sent his Son fames, to whom, as has been faid, he had before refigned the Marquilate of Villena. The King received the Marquess with as great Demonstrations of Affection, as if his Father had And received the reading of the state of the where his Affection to him daily encreased to that degree, that he went daily to visit the Marquess, who was lodged in the Monastery of Friars of S. Hierom, called El Parral. A Proposal was made of reconciling Andrew de Cabrera and the Family of Pacheco, and that he should deliver up to the King the Castle of Segovia, and all the Tseasures in it. In lice of it, they offered him the Town of Moya, near the Borders of Valencia, and not sar from Cuenca, where the said Casterae was born. He was willing to harken to these Proposals, but the Townsimen understanding it, mutinied, and brought in an Aragonian Garrison. John Fernandez de Heredia brought those Forces from Valencia, and took Possession. Lady Elizabeth with the Name of the Princess Elizabeth, which much troubled King Henry. The Lady Elizabeth went stifler to from Tordelaguna, in the Kingdom of Toledo, to Aranda de Duevo, being invited thinker by the People in Hattred to Queen Joanna, whose that Town was, her Lewdness being very Offenher Traiser to the Whole Kingdom, and most particularly to the King, as who was chiefly concerned. On the 9th of December they published Four Decrees and no more, which were the E:

That Church men shall not take Service, or receive Wages from any Man whatsforce, except the King. That no manner of Benefice be given to any who does not at least well understand Grammar. Scarce was the Synod broke up, when King Ferdinand came to Almagan and Berlange, where the Earl of Medina Celi, and Peter de Mendega Lord of Almagan, entertained him splendidly. Thence he went on to Aranda, to give Lite to his Party by his Presence. This Year died in Cassila, D. Frederick the Admiral, and D. Gomez, de Cagtres y Salis Massila of Alcastrae, to whom Grocarded D. Schu de Zwinge, as heapen soid before Inlu Malter of Alcantara, to whom succeeded D. John de Zunigo, as has been said before. This Duke was famous for a Victory he obtained over the Flemmings near to Nanci, a City in his Dominions. In this Fight, Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, was defeated and faith. John, Earl of Armagnac, after his flight into Spain, was never looked upon by his King, Being therefore difguited, he made War in Guienne with Forces of the Duke of Burgundy, and there took Peter de Bandon, Governor of that Province, Prifoner, he being berrayed by his own Men. This Prefumption much more offended the King, especially for that he would not release him till his Town of Lettour, which had been taken from him, was restored. The Cardinal Assignment, with some Forces he gathered, took Lettour and destroyed it, and put the Earl to Death notwithstanding he surrendred upon Conditions. Tho' the Action in it felf were not juftfiable, being a Breach of Faith; yet most Men said, He had well deserved that Fate for his many horrid Crimes, and particularly for Counterleiting the Pope's Bull to dispense with him to marry his own Sister; which he did, and lay with her.

CHAP. I.

The Princess Elizabeth pretends to be Reconciled to her Brother, and openly aspires to the Crown upon his Indisposition; D. John Pacheco, Master of Santiago, dies; Differences betwixt the French and Aragonians; King Ferdinand goes to Barcelona; Jews Massacred in Sicily; Ferdinand and Elizabeth proclaimed King and Queen of Castile; The King of Portugal undertakes the Protection of the Princel's Joanna his Niece.

Here was no end of the Discontents of the Nobility of Castile. The Aragonian Faction increased daily in strength. The Master of Santiago ceased notto heap up Riches, and only dreaded the Aragonians should prevail, which would endanger his Estate, great part whereof had belonged to the Princes of that House. This made him endeavour to obstruct the Mariage of Prince Ferdinand with the Princess Elizabeth, and that of D. Henry of Aragon with the Princess Joanna. His great Aim was to possess in felf of the Castle of Segovia, as well as that of Madrid, looking upon them as his greatest security. Only Andrew de Cabrera, who had great Interest with the King, and was a Man of much forecast, opposed him. This caused Animosities betwixt them, and each strove to undermine the other. The Master was more Powerful, but Cabrera more Fortunate and Poli-Counter- tick. He used all his Endeavours to Reconcile King Henry to his Sister, the Princes Elizabeth, which the absence of the Master of Santiago much forwarded; and finding the King one day alone, he pressed him hard upon that Point, representing to him the danger of opposing the affected towards him. The King being naturally irrefolure and inconfiant, was easily moved. to the At feveral other times Cabrera urged the same thing to the King, till he perioded him to find her fend for his Sister. This done, he sent the Beatrix de Bobadilla, his Wile, in a Difguise like a Country Woman, no drands, where the advised the Disabella, his Wile, in a Difguise like a Country to the source of the sistence of t try Woman, to Aranda, where she advised the Princess to go away with speed to Segovia, as surjung the furing her of her Brothers Kindness, and that at worst she could be sale in the Castle. Ha ving agreed upon it, the Lady Beatrix returned to her Husband, and the Princess foon followed, and came into the Castle of Segovia on the 28th of December preceding the beginning of the year 1474. Her coming surprized the Town and Court, and the Marquis of Villena fuffecting fome Defign against him, withdrew to Aylon, a Town not far from thence. King Honry received the News in the Forest of Ballain, where he was Hunting. He infinitediately returned to Segovia, and visited his Sister. Both testified much Joy at their Meeting, and spent a long time in private. At parting the Princess recommended her Affairs to the King, from a long time in private. At parting the Princels recommended her Affairs to the King, who answered, he would consider of it. Next night they supped together in the Castle, and the 3d day the Princels appeared a Horseback in the Streets; the King slimites in blolding her Bridle. This was a Joyful day to Spain, none doubting but it would put an end to so many Troubles. To add to the Publick Satisfaction, King Ferdianat, by the Advice of his Wise, came to Segovia. On the day of the Epiphany the Two Kings and Queen appeared together in publick, and asterwards Dined together in the Bishops House, where Andrew de Cabrus Treated them Magnificently. James Enriquez del Cafillo writes, that D. Roderick de Villandro, Earl of Ribadeo, Dined with them, by virtue of a Privilege granted to his Father (as was said in its place) of Dining with the King upon New Tears Day. After the Dinner them was faid in its place) of Dining with the King upon New Tears Day. After the Dinner there was a Ball, and then a Collation. But all this Joy was allayed by the King's Indisposition, King Hen. who being taken with a violent Pain in his Side, was carried away to his Palace. It was ful-prof capeted by the People he was Poiloned, and their Opinion gained Credit, becaute he never after had his Health, and died within a year. But these were only Surmises, publick Prayers were made for his Health, and he was somewhat eased.

As foun as the King recovered, Articles were proposed between him, and his Sister. The ed.

Elizabeth Princess demanded to be Sworn Heiress of the Crown, and promised if that were done, to be the King's always Obedient to him, as also to deliver up her Daughter as a Hostage, to be kept by Andrew Sister o de Cabrera. On the other side, the Earl of Benavente required the Princes Journal thould be Married to D. Henry of Aragon, and threatned if it were not Granted, to break off any Agreement defigned betwist the King and his Sifter. All the other Nobles and Courtiers were divided, as their Interest led them. The Family of Mendoza, both Numerous and Powerful, began to incline to the Princes Elizabeth. For that very Reason, the Archbishop of Toledowas for fiding with the Princess Joanna. King Henry was irresolute. D. John Pacheco the Master of Santiago, advised him by Night to secure the City, and apprehend his Sister and her Husband, promifing to Affift him in it. This defign was discovered, and King Ferdinand immediately withdrew to Turuegano. The Princes Elizabeth refolved to keep Possession of the Castle of Segovia, where all the Royal Treasure lay. After their parting the two Kings, Henry and Ferdinand met again accidentally. The Earl of Benaveure had some time before the Town of Carting and the Law Which he Earlied The Manage of the Earlied The Manage of the Earlied The Manage of the Earlied Carting Castle of the Earlied Cast rion given him by King Henry, which he Fortified. The Marques de Santillana was offended at it, and perfwaded the Earl of Trevino to Suprize it. He did fo, and the Marquels Marched from Guadalajara with Forces to Support him. The Earl of Benavente moved from Segovia, to take Revenge of them both, and many of the Nobility flocked with Forces to favour the Party they inclined to. King Ferdinand Marched with some Troops to Affift the Marquels de Samtla. na, and King Henry planted himself between the two Armies, to perswade them to an Accommodation, which he effected. The Earl of Benavente wholly referred himself to the King, and consented to Raze the Castle of Carrion, and refign the Town to the Crown, the Archbishop of Toledo giving him the Town of Magan in lieu of it. After this, the Marquess saw the Princess Elizabeth at Segovia, whence he returned to Guadalajara, with a resolution to change Parties.

King Hemy having been at Valladolid and Segovia, went to Madrid at the perswasion of D. John Pacheco. He perfuaded the King to go to the Borders of Portugal, to make a Match for the Princes Joanna, with the King of Portugal; but his main defign was to take Possession of Trustile, which was given him by the King. Gracian de Session of the Castle, rehised to deliver it up, till what he had laid our upon it was Relunded, and his Accounts passed King Henry finding his indisposition increase upon him, returned to Mathid. The Master of Samiago being also taken ill, was carried on Mens Shoulders to Truxullo. He designed to per The Mawade the Governor to Surrender the Callle, but died fuddenly, of a fwelling in his Cheek, fler of whence fo much Blood guilhed, that it Choaked him. It is faid the last Words he fpoke, were samings that the control of the control o only to ask whether the Caftle were Surrendred. His death was kept private, till the Caftle was delivered up. In lieu of it the Governor had the Town of S. Felix in Galicia, given to him and his Heirs; an unfortunate Gift to him, for in a Mutiny the People of that Town floned him to death.

The Aragonians and French were at variance about Rufillon, and Cerdagne, the former en- French and deavouring to Recover those Counties, and the latter pleading their Rights to them by way of Aragoni-Mortgage. Thus both Parties prepared to renew the War, after the expiration of the Truce, am at va-Nevertheless, John Folch Earl of Cardona, and Hugo de Rocaberti Castellan of Amposta, were sent riance. Ambassadors to France, with a splendid Retinue, to endeavour the composing this Assair amicably. They pretended the Money was not lent intime, and that contrary to the Agreement John, Duke of Lorrain had been fupported out of France. As the Amballadors returned without concluding any thing, they were detained at Lyon, contrary to all Law and Equity. Those Lords being detained in France, the Aragonians durft not attempt any thing. Yet the beginning of the Summer, 500 French Horse Commanded by John Almolo, Lord of Aluda, entred Rafallon, and joyning with the French Garrison, sat down before Ensa, the lower part thereof as being weak, the Citizens abandoned. The King of Aragon then held the Cortes of Catalonia at Barcelona, and prepared for War, tho' Aged, and fick of a Quartan Ague. He had no great Force, and therefore fought to get Supplies from abroad. King Ferdinand of Naples, tent him 500 Horse by Sea. Ferdinand his Son in June possessed himself of Tordelllar, and the Torman of Old Cathlib. being invited thin the by the Toruns force to propose Ferd Market. John Duke of Lorrain had been supported out of France. As the Ambassadors returned a good Town in Old Caffile, being invited thither by the Townsmen to oppose Peter Mendavia Governor of Costro Namo, who with a Company of Robbers did great harmthereabouts. From Segevia whither he returned, he refolved to go Vifit his Father, who was fick. By the way at Aleala, he Vifited the Archbifhop of Toledo, thinking by that Civility to gain him to his Party. At Guadalajara he allo Vifited the Marques de Santillana, and so went on to Barcelona, where his Father lay. In the Kingdom of Valencia, the Towns of Segevee and Exercia Mutinied at the same time, and took up Arms. The People of Exerica, to free themselves from the Tyranny of Franca Sarfuela, who they pretended opprefied them. Those of Segorge, to follow D. Hemy de Aragon contrary to the King's Will and Pleasure. These Continging slated long, but nothing remarkable happed in them, only, that at length Segorge was conflicate, and Exerica restored to its Owner. King Ferdinand was at Barcelone confulting with his Father about the War in Ruffillon, when News was brought him from Costile, that that D. John Pacheco, Malter of Santiago, departed this Life on the 4th of Ottober, upon whose Death the Nobles were worse divided than before. Many aimed at that Maltership. The Duke of Medina Sidonia, the Marquels of Samillana, and the Earls of Albaqueque and Benavente, confided in their Riches, and hoped that way to carry it. D. Alonjo de Cardenas, chief Commendary of Leon, was chosen in that City; and D. Roderick Manrique, Earl of Paredes, at Veles. The Marquess de Villena pleaded, the Pope during his Father's Life-time, had given him that Dignity; but because he produced no Bull, it was supposed he only did it to delay time, till he could make an Interest with his Holines. As he went towards Villarejo de Salvanes, to meet the Earl of Offerno, he was apprehended. and fent Prifoner to Fuentidueña. King Henry Refenting this Affront, and believing the Earl of Offerno would not obey his Orders, sate down with some Forces before Enemiduena, tho he was then much indisposed. Many Lords, as well Spiritual as Temporal, repaired thither to serve him. Delays were dangerous, the King's Sickness increasing, and the Weather being bad, therefore they resolved to oppose one Fraud against another. Lope Vasquez de Acuru, Brother to the Archbishop of Toledo, pretending to Treat with the Earl of Oforno's Wife, fecured her, and a Son of hers, and carried them away to Huete. This obliged her Husband to release the Marquess. Thus the Designs of the Earl of Oforno were disappointed. King Ferdinand being informed what had hapned, left the Care of the War in Ampurias to his Father, and returned to Zarageça. There he thought, if the Affairs of Castile would permit, to affemble the Cortes of Aragon in order to raise Money, whereof he stood in great want. The more because the French Forces daily increased, and they had besieged Elna with 900 Horse and 1000 Foot. That place being reduced to great extremity, surrendred on the 5th of December, upon Condition the Garrison should march away in safety. It was much tared left Perpignan Couldness about it. This year was particularly Remarkable for the Hands of the French, as were all the Garrifons about it. This year was particularly Remarkable for the Havock made among the French in all parts of Sicily. The Rabble without respect to D. Lope de Urrea, their Viceroy, who punished some of them, killed many of those Wretches, and plundered their Houses. The Peace with the Moores of Granada was duely observed on both sides. In Navarre there were Tumults between the Biamontefes, who took part with the Princess Ellenor, and the Agramonteles, who favoured the King of Aragon.

Ing Hemy's Indisposition, which had held him long, daily encreased, and, being heightned with Troubles and the Toil of his late Expedition, became mortal. The Physicians ordered him to be carried to Madvid, hoping the Air might contribute to his Recovery; but neither that nor any Medicines proved effectual. On the 11th of December, having prepared himself as became a good Christian, he gave up the Ghost, at the end of the 45th Year of his Age, and having Reigned 20 Years, 4 Months, and 22 Days. His Will was not made in form, but written in halte by Jobn de Oviede his Secretary, in whom he reposed great Confidence. He appointed the Cardinal of Spain and Marquels de Villena his Executors. Being

His Body was deposited, without much Ceremony, in the Monastery of S. Hierom at Madrid, and thence, as he had or-dained, translated to the Church of Guadalupe. This Prince was for nothing fo remarkable as for his loofe Life. He left no lifue Male, and was himfelf the last of the Male Line of King Henry's death caused a mighty alteration in Castile: The greatest number took part with vided be- the Princess Elizabeth; yet many adhered to the Princess Joanna; particularly the Marquess de Villena and the Duke of Arevalo, with all their Kindred and Followers, supported that Lady. They expected she should have the Title of Queen, and they all the Power, chusing a Husband for her where they thought sit. All the Country, from Toledo to Murcia, and Eliza- fided with these Two Noblemen, as did all the Men of Note in Galicia, with such Resolution, that they took Arms against D. Alonso de Azevedo y Fonseca, Archbishop of Santiago, because Usurper. the declared for the other fide. At Segovia, such as were there presents publickly took the Oath of Allegiance to Queen Elizabeth, upon a Scaffold raised for that purpose. Then King Ferdi. nand and Queen Elizabeth were proclaimed by a Herauld, amidit the loud Acclamations of the People. All kiffed her Hand, and conducted her a Horseback to Church. Few Lords were then in Segovia, and none of them Grandees. The first that came to express their Loyalty were the Cardinal of Spain, and Earl of Benavente; foon after, the Archbishop of Toledo, the Marquis de Santillana, the Dukes of Alva and Albuquerque, the Constable and the Admiral. Others did their Homage, and took the Oath of Allegiance by Proxy. No Oath was taken to King Ferdinand, till he came and fwore to preferve the Privileges of the Kingwas taken to King Ferdinand, till ne came and twore to preleave the Privileges of the Kingdom. He was then holding the Cortes of Aragon and Zaragosa, and endeavouring to raife Money; but as foon as he heard of the death of King Henry, he fer out for Califile. He left his Sifter Joanna, Contracted to Ferdinand King of Naples, then a Widower, to prefide in the Cortes. It was ufual with the Nobility of Califile to fell their Loyalty as dear as they could. The King being at Almazan, the Earl of Medina Celi fent to acquaint him, That the Kingdom of Navarre appertained to the Lady Anne his Wife, as Lawful Daughter to Charles

Private of Virge, He Griff King English and Lang (10). Prince of Viana: He faid if King Ferdinand would not affift him in recovering his Right, he should not want Aid elsewhere, meaning from France. Having sent away the Messenger without any Answer, the King went on to Turnegano, where he stayed till the City Segovia was provided for his Reception. He made his Entry into that City on the 2d of January, Perdinand 1477. and was received with great Pomp. All the Three Ethates did Homage to him, and received killed his Hand. Some Debate arole about the manner of Government: The Queen's Setting and the Company of Control of the Contro vants contended King Ferdinand ought not to intermeddle in the Government, nor so much as call himself King of Castile; to which purpose they brought Examples of Queens of Naples; On the other side the Arganians pleaded, That King Hump having less no Heirs Male, the On the other lide the Aragoman pleaded, that King Hemy having lett no Heirs Male, the Crown was devolved upon King John of Aragon, as Head of the Family. But this was easily answered by Examples of many Women that had inherited the Crown of Calile. At length the King and Queen agreed the Matter between themselves upon these Conditions; That in all Charters, Patents, and upon the Coin, King Ferdinand should be named before Queen Elizabeth; That the Arms of Cafile should be on the right of those of Aragon; That all Garrisons should be held in the Queen's Name, and all Officers of the Revenue take their Oattle to her: That Grants of Benefices should be in the Name of both, but only in the Disposal of to the Y that Grand of the test ment of the Admin of both, but only in the Diponal of the Queen; That when they were together, both should have equal Authority in the Administration of Justice; and when in different places, each in that part; That the Affairs of other Provinces should be determined by him or her who was nearest to the Council, which should be observed in the Choice of Civil Governours. King Ferdinand was concerned, that his Subjects should prescribe Laws to him, but thought fit to wink at it for the present. And the Queen is faid to have mollified him, promiting, that the whole difposal of all things should be in him. This done, King Ferdinand applied himself to the Care of Settling the Kingdom, which was much distracted by the late Broils.

The History of SPAIN.

Which was much interest on the fame time held Correspondence with King Ferdinand, and Marques King Alonso of Portugal. He was no less Politick than his Father, and it was not doubted, but de Pilena hing Annyo of configure. The was no less politica than its Patter, and it was not conducted, but at Vilina he would incline to that fide where he expected the greatest advantage. Of King Ferdamad he his Towlood demanded, that his Two Competitors to the Mastership should be declared illegally chosen, Dashing, and he secured in that Dignity. This Request seemed to the King somewhat harsh, not thinking it safe to add so great a Revenue to one so Powerful, and in whom he could repose but little Confidence: 'however he gave him a favourable Answer for the present, which was to normic, he would favour him in obtaining his Defires, provided he would deliver up the Princes Johnson to a Third Person. He replied he would not do it, nor should ever be prevailed upon to break his Word to King Henry, having ingaged to him to take care of his Daughter. At the same time he sent Persons in whom he consided, to perswade the King of Portugal to take upon him the Protection of his Neece; fince it appertained to him as the next of Kin, and as fuch he ought to take upon him the Government of Caftile. He blamed his fearfulnes, and conjured him since he was so powerful a King, not to forsake that Innocent teartunes, and conjuted time index lie was to powerful a king, not to totake that innocent Lady, affuring he would find many in Caffie that would appear for him as foon as they had a Head to whom they might have recourfe. The King of Portugal was at Eftremoz, on the borders of his Kingdom, when King Henry died. He immediately called a Council, and laid before them what was proposed by the Marquets de Villena. Opinions, as is usual in fluch cases, varied. Most were for declaring War, and invading Caffie without delay, pleading they had varied. Who were to declaring wat, and invating cap is wind ut easy, pleasing they had great flore of Treafure heaped up having long enjoyed Peace, great numbers of Horle and Foot, and a powerful Fleet at Sea. John Prince of Portugal was the chief Promoter of this unfortunate War. Only Ferdinand, Duke of Broganfa, whom Age made more Cautious and Circumspech, was againft ingaging in that Assair, which some attributed to Fear, and others Circumpect, was against ingging in that Atlant, which followed to rear, and others to Affection to Queen Elizabeth, who was his Brothers Grandaughter. He urged, the Marquess de Villens and his Party were the same who not long since proclaimed Prince Alonso King, and declared the Princess Joanna a Baltard; That they offered no strong Holds for security of performing what they promised; and, That it was hard to persuade a Prejudiced People, that the Princess Joanna was Legitimate. These Precautions were approved of by People, that the Princets framma was Legitimate. Thete Precautions were approved of by the Wifer fort, yet the plurality of Voices prevailed, the common Misfortune of Councils, where Number takes place of Weight. However before they positively declared, Lope de. Al. Nobles of buquerque was sent into Cafille, to Examine into the Posture of Affairs, and at his return cafile of Portugal would Marry the Princets Janna, they would when it was time appear for him, in the full tiell out very opportunely to advance this Design, that the Archbishop of Totade being did of the guilted, withdrew from Segovia the 20th of February, pretending to retire for his Eale, having Rightful lived long at Court. This was the pretence, but for reality he was displaceful. He complained Hairest. lived long at Court. This was the pretence, but in reality he was displeased. He complained, Heiress. he was kept in Hand with Specious Promiles, without receiving any Reward for his great Services; or in Recompence of spending his Paternal Estate, to bestion the Crown upon those ungrateful Princes. Above all it grieved him to see the Cardinal so much in savour, that no thing was done without him. Means were used to appeale him, but all in vain. He threatned to make it appear how dangerous a thing it was to provoke the Archbishop of Toledo. Neither were the Prayers, mixed with Threats, of his Brother the Earl of Buendia, of any retines were the Frayers, inkeed with Thereas, or in Blottler the Earl of Buttala, of any force. For he being Proud, and lavish of his Tongue, grew worse when good Advice was given him. Besides, one Ferdinand de Alarcon, who being of the same Temper, was his great Favourice, still was buzzing in his Ears, and inflamed his Passion.

CHAP. III.

The King of Portugal calls himself King of Castille, and is assisted by many of the Nobi-lity, being Contracted to Joanna the Rightful Heiress; He takes several Places in Castile; The French make Peace with England, and ingage to assist Portugal against Redinand THE Difguit of the Archbishop of Toledo did not a little perplex the King and Queen; labours to The fearing he might cause great Revolutions, being Rich and Powerful. This made them eain the sain the Aller and the second of the second Joanna, the being gone from Escalona to Truxillo, in order to be Married to the King of Por. Juanua, the being gone from a fragment of the state of th the Townsmen have Liberty either to stay there, or depart whither they pleased. A Truce for 6 months was concluded between France and Aragon. King Ferdinand fent an Embaffy into France to propose a Peace, and Treat about Reftoring Russilian. The King of France received the Ambassaders Honourably, and sent one to Castile to propose a Match betwirt the Dauphin and the Princess of Castile, which is concluded, he promised Supplies of Men and Money to Reduce the Nobility of that Kingdom, and to fland to the Judgment of Arbitrators as to the Affair of Russillon. King Ferdinand was not averse from this Proposal, but the King of Aragon Refented it, and Complained that fuch Important Affairs should be Managed without his privity. Above all, he feared left the Archbishop of Toledo should endeavour to fet up another King in Cafile. The King of Portugal was ready on the Frontiers with an Army of 5000 Horfe and 14000 Foot. Thus all hopes of Accommodation being taken away, the King and Queen prepared for War.

Andrew de Cabrera to make himself the more acceptable, delivered up the Royal Treasures, for which he was created Marquess of Moya, Earl of Chin-Invered up the Royal Treatures, for winch ne was created Marquess of Mays, Earl of Chin-chen, and Hereditary Governor of the Caltle of Segovin. Medina del Campo, a great Town of Trade, was fecured to the Kings Intereft, the Caltle being delivered up to him by the Duke of Alva. The Rendezvous was at Valuabila, whither the King and Queen went, and foon ga-thered an indifferent Army. King Ferdinand flayed in Old Calfile, where the People were well affected towards him, and Queen Elizabeth palled the Mountains to endeavour to appeale the Archbishop of Toledo; but he to avoid seeing her, went away from Alcald to Bribuega, a strong little Town, pretending there was a design to kill him. Peter Fernandez de Velasco, the frong little Town, pretending there was a design to kin inth. Ferr Perhandee de Velajo, the Constable, fent by the Queen upon the same Errand, could not prevail with him. However the Queen's Labour was not lost, for the secured Toledo, putting a Garison into that City, and expelling the Earl of Cifuentes and John de Ribera, who savoured the Archbishop. She went not to Madrid because the Marquesi de Villena held the Castle. This done, she returned to Segovia to Coin all the Silver and Gold that was there. King Ferdinand secured Salamanca, but the Houses of such as were of the other Party were plundered. Zamora opened the Gates to him, but Alonfo de Valencia, the Governour, would not deliver up the Castle, of which Gates to film, but Alongo as various, inc office and the carried aprile carried on Value he was Governour. He thought not fit to attempt reducing it by force, nor to go to Toro, fearing John de Ulloa, a Powerful Citizen, who was inclinable to favour the Portuguese, having deserved Death for several Crimes.

The King and Queen being come to Valladolid, the City of Alearaz submitted to them, and the Citizens laid siege to the Castle. The Earl of Paredes, the Lord of Coca, and the Bishop of Avila, assisted the Townsinen, and the Marques de Villena came to raise the Siege, but finding himself too weak, desisted. This loss moved him by Letter to hasten the King of Portugal; That King was on the Frontiers near Badajoz in May, upon the 18th day of which month he had a Grandson born at Lisbon, which was looked upon as a good Omen; he was called Alonfo, was Sworn Heir to the Crown, but lived not long. The Earl of Feria, who flood firm to King Ferdinand, was in Badajoz, and had lately taken a Town called X-rez. The Portugueses ought to have taken the Right Hand way, and broke into Andaluzia, where Carmona, Ezija and Cordona were for them, fo that having secured Sevil they had lest no Enemy behind them. Yet they turned to the Lest, and marched through Estremadura to Plasencia: In this City the King of Portugal was Contracted to the Princess Foanna, and the they Consummated not the Marriage, expecting a Dispensation because of the near Kindred that was betwixt them, yet they were Crowned and Proclaimed King and Queen of Coftile. Here the King created Lope de Albuquerque Earl of Penamacor, to Reward his Labour in gaining the Nobility of Caffile. A Manifelto was also published, claimed. and fent to all parts, declaring the Right of the Princess Joanna, and reflecting on King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth.

The War broke out in feveral parts at the fame time. Villena, with its Dependencies, was ed to the infested with Forces out of the Kingdom of Valencia. Hereupon the Inhabitants of that City, at the perswasion of the Earl of Paredes, took up Arms, and declared for King Ferdinand, having first Capitulated, That they should for ever be incorporated in the Crown of Castile.

Cuidad Reall was recovered from the Master of Calatrava, who had possessed himself thereof without any other Right than that of Arms. Great havock was made by both Parties in Andaluzia and Galicia. Peter Alvarado faved the City Tay for the King of Portugal. The Citizens of Burgos belieged the Castle of that City, which Inigo de Zuniga, the Governor, and tizens of Burgon benegen the Came of that City, which imgo as Lainga, the Governor, and D. Lins de Acona, the Bishop, held for the Portuguese. That King being called upon on every fide, knew not whither to go first. The Nobility sailed in their Supplies of Men, Money, and Provisions. The People hated the Portugueses, and they themselves began to grow weary of the War, perceiving King Ferdinand, who at the time they broke into Castile, had scarce 500 Horse, now headed an Army of 10000 Horse and 30000 Foot. The King of Portugal marched first to Arevalo, a Town that was for him, and thence went to take possession of Toro and Samora. King Ferdinand marched after him, and encamped near Toro, where the Enemy was, deligning to Relieve that Castle, which still held out for him. No Action hapned betwixt them. King Ferdinand fent a Challenge by a Herald. The Portugues answered ned Detwixt them. Any remanana ient a Chanlenge by a rierato. The Foringues aniwered his Forces were dispersed, yet offered to accept of single Combat. Therefore King Fedinand not being able to relieve the Caille, which was at last furrendered, Provision and Money growing scarce, returned to Medina del Campo. The Cortes assembled in that City, granted him, towards carrying on the War, half the Silver and Gold of the Churches, provided he engaged to restore it as soon as the Kingdom was free from War. Then he sent out to besiege the Castle of Burgos. Many said King Ferdinand retired from Toro through Fear, and Deliege the Caute of larges. We have a superference of the first control of the Archbishop of Toledo, without regarding the Prayers of all his Relations and Friends, to go away and join the King of Portugal with 500 Horse. He and the Duke of Arevalo advised that King to march in Person with 1500 Horse, and a good Body of Foot, to relieve the Castle of Bargos; which he did, and by the way took the Castle of Baltanas, seated on the Mountains between Pisurga and Duero, sending the Earl of Benavente, whom he found there, Prisoner to Penastel. Jurga and Duero, lending the Lart of sensyume, whom he found there, Priloner to Penapet. The Portugues, satisfied with this Action, for that he had made a rich Booty, and believing himself too weak to encounter King Ferdinand, turned back, without attempting the Relief of Burgas. The Princes Joanna was at Zamora, and Queen Elizabeth at Valladdid, whence she moved with what Force she could gather to assist her Schwilling to the Dana and were she was the Schwilling to the Dana and were she July the Ambassadors of Castile and Aragon made their Submission to the Pope, and were fa-July the Ambahadors of Capite and Aragon made their subminion to the Pope, and were lavourably received and entertained by him, which offended the Portugues Ambaffadors, who faid the Pope ought not to receive them; till the Right both Parties pretended was cleared: Therefore the Pope faid he received those Ambaffadors from Caftile, laving fittil to any others their Titles and Claims. This Year was very remarkable throughout all Christendom, for the great Jubilee granted by Pope Sixtus, to be continued afterwards every 25th Year, whereas hefore it was every 50th. Many reforted to Rome to gain this Indulgence, and among them King Ferdinand of Naples, now by reason of his Age grown more Devout and Religious than he was

At the end of this Year, the King of Aragen held the Cortes of that Kingdom at Zarageça, being in care about carrying on the War against Portugal and France: And the French and more, for that one Roderick Trabiguers not regarding the Truce then in being, had with French Portuguess Forces entered Catalonia, taken the Town of St. Laurence, and struck such a Terror into all Forces and the Country that all such as were of Arageness to Held Country that all such as were of Arageness to Held Country that all such as were of Arageness to Held Country that all such as were as fairly the Country that all such as were of Arageness to Held Country that all such as were as fairly than the such as the su the Country, that all such as were of Age were by Edist commanded to appear in Arms, a gainst Cathing never done but in time of extream Danger. In Castile, the Portugues Forces prevailed, and were encouraged by the Hopes of Succours out of France; which were reckoned the more fecure, because a Peace was concluded betwire the English and French, in which the Dukes of Britany and Burgundy were included. The Kingdom of Aragon was not able to withfand two fuch powerful Enemies; therefore in November the King concluded a Peace for Seven Months with the French on the fide of Aragon. To weaken the Portugues, he wrote to the Archbishop with the renes on the fue of aragen. 10 weaken the rorugue, he wrote to the Alchomorp of Toledo in very courteous Terms, defiring an Interview: But the Archbishop was a Man too positive to be brought to condescend. His Passion was so great, he was often heard to say, I made the Lady Elizabeth a Queen, and I will bring her down to the Spinning wheel. King Ferdinand valued not his Threats, believing if he were reconciled, the Cardinal might be digusted. The Marquis de Villena, and Master of Calatrava, at this time went out of Old Cassis to Alcaning for Races the Cassis of Which City was bestead by their Adessitive to Alcaning for Races the Cassis of Which City was bestead by their Adessitive to the Marguis de Villena, and Master of Cassis of Which City was bestead by their Adessitive to Alcaning for Races the Cassis of Which City was bestead by their Adessitive to Alcaning the Races the Cassis of Which City was bestead by their Adessitive to Alcaning the Races the Cassis of Which City was bestead by their Adessitive to Alcaning the Cassis of Which City was bestead by their Adessitive to Alcaning the Cassis of Which City was bestead to the Cassis of W magro, designing for Bacça, the Castle of which City was besieged by their Adversaries. Hereupon Ocaña, a Town belonging to the Marques, mutinied. The Earl of ciftuents and John de Ribern, with the Forces they carried out of Toledo, turned out the Marquel's Gar-ison, and left the Place to the Earl of Paredes, who called himself Mafter of Samiogo. King Ferdinand hafted from Burgot to Zamora, and secured that City, with the Affishance of the Governour Francis de Valdes. The Castle was befreged, with a Resolution not to desift till it were taken. A Meeting was proposed betwixt the King of Aragon and his Son, as also the Princefs Eleanor of Navarre, to find some Method of setting the Disorders in Navarre, as also to prevent any Succours coming to the Portuguese out of France through that Country. King Terdinand was busie at Zamora, when the Castle of Burgos, there being no hopes of Relief, furrendered to Queen Elizabeth, at the beginning of the Year 1476. James de Ribtra was ap- 1476: pointed Governour of it, the Queen having an Affection for him, because he was Tutor to Prince Alonfo. On the 17th of January died at Madrid Queen Joanna, Wise to the last King Henry, and Mother to the present unfortunate Queen Jeanna, Her Body was buried in the Church of St. Francis, in a Tomb of White Marble, near the High Altar. For that end were removed the Pones of Roderick Gongalez, de Clavijo, who went Ambaslador to Tamerlan, and after his return, buik the great Chapel of that Church for himfelf to be buried in. Thus even after death the weakest are wronged. Many Reports were spread abroad about the Occasion of this Queen's Death, most Historians say she was Poiloned by her Brother the King of

NObn Prince of Portugal was left at home to govern the Kingdom: He being a forward Youth, and understanding his Father advanced little in Castile, raised 2000 Horse and 8000 Foot, but ill Armed, and Undisciplined. With this Recruit he set out to join his Father. Having passed the Bridge of Ledesma, he attacked the Town of S. Felices, but was repulsed. On the 9th of February he came to Toro, where he found his Father had 3500 Hofe, and 20000 Foot, in Winter Quarters. King Ferdinand lay before the Cattle of Zamora, with only 2500 Horfe, and double that number of Foot; Thence he fent Orders to all his Forces to join him, being affired the Portuguese would oblige him to said the Stege, or come to a Battle. The King of Aragon advised him not to hazard a Battle, as of dangerous Consequence if loft, and coffly the gained. With King Ferdinand were the Cardinal of Spain, the Duke of Abod, the Admiral, and his Uncle the Earl of Aboa Life, the Marques of Aforga, and the Earl of Lemos. At Alahejjos lay with a Body of Men, D. Hemy of Aragon the King's Coulin, D. Alonjo his Brother, and the Earl of Trevino, ready to march to Zamora, which is not far diffant, Queen Elizabeth from Burgos returned to Tordefillas, to be the nearer upon Occasion. The King of Portugal reinforced by his Son, resolved to relieve the Castle, or at leaft to make a flew of fo doing, and accordingly marched out of 7000 as if he intended to move freight towards the Enemy. Yet on a fudden, as if he had changed his Refolution, paffed the Bridge, and marched on the other fide of the River, encamping overagaintt Zamora, near the Monaflery of St. Fraycis. He planted his Cannon at the Foot of the Bridge which led from the City to his Camp, fo that he could not obfured the Battering of the Caffle, nor was there any access to give him Battle. Thirteen days were there fpeur in fruitlets Disputes. On the first of March, at break of day, he marched back, breaking the Bridge that the Enemy might not pursue. King Ferdinand having spent some time in repairing the Bridge, resolved to tollow, and sent before D. Alvaro de Mendega, with 300 light Horse, to engage the Enemies Rear. Thus the King of Portugal marching but flowly by reason of his Baggage, King Ferdinand had time to overtake him, after passing a Desile, and entring alarge Plain about a League and a half from Tore. This was about Sunferting convertibated against Zamora, near the Monastery of St. Francis. He planted his Cannon at the Foot of large Plain about a League and a half from Tore. This was about Sun-fetting, nevertheless the Enemy could not avoid fighting; King Ferdinard being fo near, and there being no way to Fight be. escape, but over the Bridge. Hereupon the Army halted, and the King drew it up in order of twist the Battle. King Ferdinand was dubious, but the Nobility and Officers being all for fighting, the fignal was given, D. Alvaro de Mendopa, with his 300 Horfe, gave the first on-fer. John and Caffir Prince of Portugal, who led the Van, in which were 800 Men at Arms, mixed with liam Arms. Musqueteers, received them to hotly, they were put to flight. Both Kings were in the Body miss. of their Armics, which charged furioully, and the Battle flood a long time dubious, both Pattles being difordered, and fighting confuedly. A hot Difpute was about the King of Portugal's Standard. Peter Vaca de Sotomajor took it from the Bearer called Duarte de Almeida, but o-Defeat of thers coming on both fides it was torn to pieces. Almeida was taken, or as others will have it, the Ports- killed. His Arms inflead of the Standard hang at this day in the Cathedral of Toledo. In fine, the Portugueses fled, and the King with a sew made his way to the Mountains, without ever stopping till he came to Castronumo. Night stopped the pursuit, but Henry Earl of Alva Liste, who had gone as far as the Bridge of Toro, was taken by a Party of the Enemy, under the Command of John Prince of Portugal, who made good his Ground upon a Hill. King Ferdinand thought not fit to attack them, because his Men were dispersed plundering. Both Parties stood looking upon one another several hours, but the Portuguess steed last, which Action their Hillorians magnifie, and affirm the Prince had the Victory. King Ferdinand returned to Zamora, and the Portuguess to Toro. In this Fight the Archbishop of Toledo never flirted from the Prince of Portugal's fide. Few were killed, and fewer taken, but the Booty was considerable, most of the Portugues Baggage being lost. From Zamora King Ferdinand notwithflanding they and many others only waited to fee which Party would prevail. This caused great Ditorders throughout the whole Kingdom. Particularly at Fuentervejuna, Difforders one night in April, the People took Arms to kill Fernan Perez de Guzman, chief Commendary of Calatraca, which he had well deferved for the Infolencies committed in that Town.

removed to Medina del Campo, where at the Suit of the Conflable, whose Daughter was Contracted to the Earl of Urena, he Pardoned him and his Brother the Master of Calatrava,

Such was the resolution of those People, that thô many young Men and Women were put upon the Rack to discover the Authors of that Design, nothing more could ever be got from them, but that Fuenteovejuna did it. All manner of Crimes were committed, the Law being of no Force, which moved the Towns, as we said had been done before, to associate themselves and raise Forces to punish Criminals. Alonso de Quintanilla the King's Treasurer, promoted this Design. Laws were established for the Associators to be governed by, which continued in force 20 Years, till all the troubles being ended, the Kingdom was reflored to Peace. The Streis of the War was now removed to the utmost part of Bifcay, called Gnipufcas, where stands the impregnable Fortres of Fuenterabia, encompassed with the Sea, and strongly fortified to Curb the French, who often commit walte in that Country. This Place the French Befiged by way of a divertion to the Forces that then lay before the Castle of Zamora. They battered down a great part of the Walls and filled the Ditch, which laid the Place open, the Garrison being weak and harraffed with continual labour. fames Sarmiento Earl of Salinas who had the charge of the Castle encouraging his Men, made a desperate Sally and ruined all the Enemies Works. This good success and the accession of some Recruits that came to them, gave them courage to Fight the Enemy in open Field, where they parted upon equal Terms, but fittil the Siege was not raifed. Thus much of Bifeap. Peter Arias, and Peter de Teledo raifed the People of Madrid, and having received some supplies from the Queen and Marquels de Santilla, besiged the Castle of that Town, which was held by a Garrison of the Marquels de Villena. At the fame time Truxillo in Elfrendura, and Baeça in Andaluzia were befieged by the Forces of King Ferdinand. Chinchilla and Almanja, Towns in the Marquifate of Villena, called Forces out of Valencia to their Aid, and revolted from the Marques, but he soon reduced them. In all other things the Aragonians were fincesslul, and the Portuguels unfortunate. The Castle of Zamera surrendred to King Ferdinand on the 19th of March. This loss to discouraged the Paringuells, that their Prince carried away the Princels Journal, on whose account the War was made, to Portugal under a Guard of 400 Horse. With a like number the Archbishop returned to his Province upon pretence of reducing some Persons who savoured King Ferdireturned to his Frovince upon presence or reducing some restons who layoured Aing Ferdinand, but in reality to retire, being weary of the War, and despairing of Success. King Ferdinand laid Siege to the strong Castle of Calatapieda, but soon desifted, and concluded a Truce for half a Year, upon condition the Towns of Fillativa, Mayorge, and Fortillo should be restored to the Earl of Benavente, they having been lately delivered up by him to purchase his liberty. D. Roderick Manrique Earl of Pareder called himself Matter of Santiago, was possessed of Votes, the chief Town of that Order, and laid Siege to the Castle which held for the Matter of Santiago, was possessed as the Ashbellong of Theorems to estimaths befored by que's of Villena. He and the Archiflipp of Totale came to relieve the befigged, but were repulled by D. Roderick and his Son D. George Manrique, a brave Youth, the short lived, of pulled by D. Roderica and his Son D. George unintique, a diave Loudi, tho more lived, of whose parts we shall speak in another place. Neither was the Sea free from this War. Andrew Sunger with some Gallies of Aragon did harm along the Coaft of Portugal. So many losses perplexed the King of Portugal, and moved many of the Nobility of Castille who sided with him to think of making their Peace at home. Among these, the first was the Duke of the Coaft of Portugal. Arevalo who gave the Town of Pimo to Roderick de Mendoza for affitting him in his reconcillation. He submitted and did Homage to Queen Elizabeth, whereby instead of punishment he obtained fingular favours. In particular D. John de Zunniga his Son was made Mafter of the Order of Alcantara, which before was in dilpute betwirt him and D. Alonja de Monroy. Soon after the Lady Beatine Packer Counter of Medellin fibring and the 4th of May a March was concluded betwire Ferdinand, Grandson to the King of Naples, and the Lady Training of Naples was to feeling of Cafrile. The King of Naples was to feet her 200000 Crowns, and her Father 150000, in cafe she had siliue Male. King Feedmand was won to make this Match by a great Sum of Money offered him, whereof he stood in great need. make this Match by a great Sumot Money ottered him, whereof he Hood in great need. The King of Portugal finding all things combined againft him, refolved to leave Caftile; but with a defign to procure Forces out of France to March into Spain, fince of himself he was too weak, and the Nobles that followed his Party either could not, or would not support him. Before his departure, he proposed a Peace, offering to refer himself wholly to the Arbitration of the King of Aragon and Archbishop of Toledo. But the War being near ended, it was too late to harken to such proposals. He lest the Earl of Marialva to Command at Toro, and returned to Portugal on the 13th of June. Some Gentlemen of Caftle bore him. Company, being refolved to flick by him, rather because they despaired of Pardon, than out of any affection.

The Tumults of Navarre; The King of Portugal his Voyage into France; Toro recovered by the Castilians, from the Portugueles; Several other Places retaken; Charles the Bold Duke of Burgundy, and Galcazzo Duke of Milan, Murdered.

N Russillon and Cerdagne, the French, notwithstanding the Truce, had taken Salfas, a strong Castle opposite to Narbonne, the Bulwark of Spain, and laid Siege to Lebia, a strong Town in Ampurias. Besides this, the Soldiers under Luis Mudarra who had served well at the Siege of Perpignan Mutinied for their Pay. They took feveral Towns, and made War as if they had been Enemies, and it was feared they would join with the French. There was no fulficient Force to suppress them, therefore the King's Party in Lerida gave them Security that they should receive their Pay, and by that means they were pacified. Still they were not they motified receive their Fay, and by that means they were pacheta. Still they were not frong enough to oppose the Firech, the King of Aragon being then in Navarre, where the Factions ran as high as ever. The Biamontelis had the better, being posseled of Pamplona, and having laid Siege to Efela. King Feedinand also favoured them, which much offended his Father, and it was requisite to provide, that the French might not get Footing there. Those Patter, and it was require to provide, that the Frence inight not get a country field. I note People were perswaded the King of Aragon and Princess Elevor contrived to deliver up the Kingdom of Navarre to King Ferdinand, and exclude Francis Phebus the Son of Gaston Earl of Paux, Grandson to the Princess Ellenor. King Ferdinand went to Biscay to appeale the Tumults, and Relieve Funnterabia. For the Relief of that Place, he ordered a Fleet to be provided, which he gave in charge to D. Ladron de Guevera a Noble Person. To settle the Affairs of Navarre, he desired his Father to give him a meeting at Vitoria. Queen Ellzabeth resided at Tordefillas on the River Duero, to Curb the Portugues Garison of Toro. D. Alonso de Aragon her Brother in Law was also there with 300 Horse, and despating now of being Restored to the Mastership of Galatrava, he Martie Elliner de Soto, one of the Queens Lady's, the Pope having dispensed with his Vow of Chastity. This so incensed his Father the King of Aragon, that he took from him the Towns of Ribagorga and Villabermosa, and gave them to D. John his Bastlard Son. D. Jaime de Aragon, pretended these Places belonged to him by Inheritance, and took up Arms to desend his Right, but it cost him his Life. The Citizens of Segovia Mutinied and Besieged the Castle, where was the Princess Elizabeth, and it was given out they had taken it. Alonso Malalonado raised this Tumult in hatred to D. Andrew de Caberra, who put him out from being Lieutenant. D. John Mrivas Bishop of the City, and Luis de Mosa affisted him. Queen Elizabeth repaired thither with Speed, and pacified that Insurrection; some of the Mutiniers sted, others were Executed. In Angust the King of Aragon came to Vivoria, being detained till then by a sore Foot. There with great Joy to see his Son King of Casile, whence he had been himself formerly Expelled, he embraced and kissed him. He would not suffer him to kis his Hand, but gave him the Right. The Princess Ellenor was present at this meeting. Tordesillas on the River Duero, to Curb the Portugues Garison of Toro. D. Alonso de Aragon her thin to kis his Hand, but gave him the Right. The Princes Ellews was present at this meeting.

They consulted about their Affairs, and some write that the King of Argonhad resolved to resign up that Crown to his Son, but desisted, because Castile was not then entirely Reduced. and Colora the French Admiral was gone with a Fleet to Portugal, to carry that King into France. He was then preparing for that Voyage, and being in a readines, Sailed first over into Africk, to secure his Conquests there. With him went the Duke of Braganza, the Earlos Pinastel his Favourie, the Prior of Ocrato, and D. John Pinnentel, Brother to the Earl of Bunation of the Carried of the Carried of the Carried of Suna. Africk and venie. He carried 250 Men to reinforce the Garrisons of Tangier and and Arzila. thence in From Centa he fet Sail, and Landed at Colvire in September, whence he went to Perpignan and thence in Monthsone, and was received Magnificently. His coming revived the War in Radillon. The Aragonians took the Town of St. Laurence, the French wasted the Territory of Amparias. But the worst was, that the Natives were in an Uproar, and therefore could not oppose the Enemy. At the same time the King of Aragon returned from Vitoria to Tudala, being very desirous to put an end to the Troubles of Navarre. The Princes Janua was left to Go. vern Catalonia, during her Fathers absence. Knowing her own weakness, she endeavoured to come to an Accommodation, and Ambassadors were sent on both sides, but all they could Conclude was a Prolongation of the Truce. The King of Pertugal made the belf of his way to Tears, where the King of France was at that time. He was fumptuoully Received and Entertained. After the Ceremony of the Reception was over, he laid his Case before the King of Frame, declaring the juffice of his Caufe, and imploring his Aid. That King promifed his labour in coming to him should not be lost, but his Actions were not answerable to his Words, that the English and Burgundian had again declared War against him Bestides he pleaded the King of Portugal's Marriage with the Princess was not Lawful, by reason they were too near of Kin. The King of Portugal thus disappointed, went to meet the Duke of Burgundy his Kinfman and Ally, hoping to be a Mediator betwixt him and France, but without any Success The War that broke out in France, was advantageous to Caftile; for the French who Besieged Fucuterabia concluded a Truce with the Biscayners for a short time at first, and only by Land, but foon after by the Solicitation of the Cardinal of Spain, it was prolonged, and without that

After their parting at Vitoria the two Kings, Father and Son met again in October at Tudelá to endeavour to guell the Tumultsof Navarre. The Earl of Lerin and the Conflable Peter Peralta who were Heads of the Factions came thither and promifed to fland by what the two Peralia who were Heads of the Factions came finither and promise to mand by what the two Kings should determine. Both Parties ingaged to stand to Judgment, and within 16 Months to appoint Arbitrators, who were to decide all Controversies. This much offended the Lady Endeadada, Wise that was to the late Gason Earl of Fanse, searing it was a contrivance to ear voing to clude her Children their Fathers Inheritance. Berengarius de Su Deanos Barcelona was sent perile Ambaffador to appeale that Lady, and advise her not to mittrut the Kings of Castile and Argon, nor join with France. She was then at Pau a Town in Bearne, and aniwered the thank ragon, nor join with France. She was then at Pau a Town in Bearne, and aniwered the thanked them, and would always endeavour rather to promote Peace than War. On the 5th of Oxfober, the Articles of Marriage betwitk Ferdinand King of Naples and Joanna Daughter to the King of Aragon, were Sign'd at Tudela. The Lady was Contracted at Cervers, a Town in Catalonia, and from thence forward the was called Queen of Naples. Beatrix Daughter to the King of Naples, was at the fame time Married to Mathia King of Hungary. She was a virtuous Lady, but Barren, and confequently had no Issue Province August In Succession, whom the afterwards Married. Mean while the City Tero in Castile was supprized to the Night by D. Manie de Evalue. in the Night by D. dionfo de Vonfeca, Bilhop of Avila, and D. Frederic Son to D. Roderick Maurique Earl of Parades. A Shepherd, called Bartholomew shewed them how it might be two sur-Tailling the Land of Landson A Supplier, Canada Bartostown increase increase increase in might be two fifting fealed on that fide which was leaft regarded, by reason of a Moras that lay before it. Have pixed by ing entred the Town, they Besieged the Castle, and Queen Elizabeth hearing the news, re-the Castling paired thither with speed from Segovia, where she had been appealing the late Tumult. Manner, by Wise to John de Ulba surrendred that Portress on the 19th of October. Her Son in Law the Earl of Marialva who Commanded in those parts, quitted another Fort called Villalfonfo, near Toro, and retired into Portugal. There remained Caffronano, from which Place Peter de Mendoza an able Soldier did great harm to the neighbouring Country. For this reason the kings Forces after the taking of Toro laid Siege to that Place, and planted their Artillery, which was carried thither with much labour. Great application was made at the same time to reduce the Marquels de Villena and Archbishop of Toledo. The Marquels seemed most inclinable to Submit; but demanded the restitution of Villena, and above 20 Towns taken from him in that Neighbourhood. The Archbishop was more obstinate, the the King of Aragon ceased not to advise to compound with him at any rate. But that Bufiness was not yet ripe. They began' by the Marquess de Villena, and promised to restore to him his whole Estate, provided begain of the Caffles of Madrid and Trusillo which fill held for him. The fame offer was made to the Archbilhop of Toledo. D. Lope de Aciña his Nephew delivered up the City Huier, which had been given him with the Title of a Duke in the time of his troubles by King Henry. At the same time were killed two powerful Princes, Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, and Galeazzo Duke of Milan, Murdered in the Church whilst he was at Mass.

King Ferdinand possessing the Mastership of Santiago in Trust, which has event fince continued in the King's of Spain; War with the Moores of Andaluzia; The King of Portugal, after having Abdicated his Crown, returns home and is restored by his Son.

Quen Elizabeth wisely put an end to a Debate that arose about the Mastership of Samia.

ga. D. Raderick Manrique Earl of Paredes, who called himself Master of Samiago, and was samous for taking the Town of Hussan from the Moores, died in November at Velex. His Son George Manrique wrote a learned Elegy upon his death. D. Alonso de Cardena his Competitor being dead, resolved to go to Veles with armed Men, and force the Electors to clussehim.

Many other great Men aimed at that Dignity. The King and Queen consulted at Toro what was best to be done in that Case, and resolved rather to make use of Cunning than Force.

The King staice at Toro, but the Queen made such haste to Veles, that as Ferdinand del Pussar writes, she came to that Place in three Days from Valladolid. She persuvaded the Knights to go with her to Ocaña, which being a bigger Town and strong, they might with more Security proceed upon their Election. There by the means of D. Alonso de Fonsea Bishop of Avila, and her Secretary Ferdinand Alvarez, de Toldo she prevailed upon them, that to avoid Contention, they should for some time Create King Ferdinand her Husband Administrator of sting serthat Dignity. This was it that first weakened the power of that Order, and soonafter those stocked and Alcanara followed their example. Yet it was not long before the King and Reser. Thence they removed to Madrid, and there received Advice that the Portuguese insested the Country about Budajor and Cuidad Rodrigo. D. Gomer de Figueroa Earl of Feria was sent before to oppose them, and the Queen followed soon after towards the Frontiers of Portugal. King Ferdinand staied at Madrid in hopes to reduce the Archbishop of Toledo, but he was so boltinate he would not fee the King. Therefore on the 24th of March the King fee out to Old Cafflie to endeavour to pacific Navarre, which again laboured under the former Factions, the Agramoutefe having taken Eftela, and the Princes Elevar labouring to recover it with her own, and the Forces of Caftile. At the same time the King and Queen were surprized with the News that Albobacen King of Granada, notwithstanding the Truce which had lasted several Years, had broke into the Kingdom of Murcia with 4000 Horse, and 30000 Foot. This attempt terrified the Christians who were wholly unprovided, and the more for that on the 6th of April he took a little Town called Ciesa by Storm, which he burnt and put all the Inhabitants to the Sword. Belides he took a great booty of Cattle, and returned home without any loss, the Peter Faxardo Lieuteannt of Murcia endeavoured to oppose him. The harmdone was not fo great, but that Cafile not being yet pacified, there was no hopes of taking revenge.

Cantalopiedra and Caftronnino two Caftles that held for the Portugueses were again besiged and forced to surrender. The People were so incensed against Castronnino for the harm had been done them from thence, that they levelled it with the ground. The Garrifons of both Place according to Articles were conducted to Portugal. Mendavia Governor of Caftronizio received 7000 Florins, and deferves great praife for having follong defended that Place against fo great a power. The Queen was no less intent upon reducing Truxillo, the Castle of whice Place was held for the Marquess de Villena. Peter de Baeza the Governor being summoned, anfwered at first, that he would not surrender unless the Marquisate of Villena were restored to his Lord, as had been agreed. The Queen offered to put those Towns into the power of a Third Person to be named by the Governor, who should deliver them to the Marquessat the end of 6 Months. But he fearing some Fraud would not submit; at last the Marquess to please the Queen, went into the Castle, and could hardly perswade him to surrender. The Governor was so higly offended that he discharged himsels from ever more serving the Marquels, who had not Capitulated for him, and his Men. King Ferdinand on the one fide defired to go to Andaluzia, whither the Queen his Wife called him, and on the other had a great mind to fee his Sifter Joanna before the Embarked for Italy. Navarre kept him employed, and he could not well depart thence. That Princels Salied from Barcelona in Aggolf, aboard a Fleet brought thither to carry her, by D. Alonfo her Son in Law, D. Peter de Guevara Marquels del Gafto, and many other Persons of Quality. She touched at Genoa, was there Nobly entertained, and lastly arrived at Naples. There her Marriage was Celebrated, with all expressions of Joy imaginable. Fohn Lopex de Medinaschi, Archdeacon of Almaran Built a Colledge at Sicher College and Aggolf and the Aggolf and the Colledge at Sicher College and College at Sicher College and College at Sicher College at gunça, for 13 Collegians, and a Monaftery of the Order of St. Hierome, called St. Anton.

There was no end of the Troubles either in Cafile, or Andaluzia, every Nobleman possed ed himself of what Towns he could. The Duke of Medina Sidonia held Sevil, the Marquisi cure to of Cadix, Xeres, D. Along de Aguilar, Cordova, Their pretence was to fecure themselves as felves all gainft their Enemies, especially the Portuguese, but the real design, to enlarge their Estates, the strong Those very Cities were divided into Factions. In Sevil some favoured the Duke of Medina Sido. nia, others the Marquels of Cadiz. In Cordova were the factions of Alonfo de Aguilar and the Tail of Cabra. Queen Elizabeth, tho advised to the contrary, as having no sufficient Force, went first to Sevil. There she possessed the felf of the Castle of Triana, and the other works well fill to see a first one pursuant less than the Catalog Arizons, and the other works belonging to the Duke of Medina Sidonia. King Ferdinaval leaving Newtree, and having in fome manner fettled Old Cafilie, conflictued Peter de Villadhando Eatl of Ribadeo, Governor of Galicia, and his own Brother D. Alonfo de Aragon with the Confable Lieutenants of Cafilie.

This done he fet out towards Andalaxia, by the way visited the Church of Gadalape and ordered the Duke of Alva and Earl of Benavente to bear him Company, being suspicious of them, because it was given out they were associating with others of the Nobility. On the 3d of September he came to Sevil, There he found the Marquels of Cadiz was suspected, and it was faid of him, that he was inclinable to affift the Portugueses, and to that purpose and it was layed of fifth, that he was includance to anit the tringers, and to had purpose kept a Garriffon at Alcala de Guadaira, under the King's Nofe. It was proposed to gain and appeale him, to this purpose he had a meeting with the King, by bimself at Night. It was moved that he should deliver up the Forts he had taken. He answered he could not do it, unless the Duke of Medina Sidonia at the same time surrendred the Fortresses of Nebrixa and Utrera, and other Castles, otherwise it would be only weakening of him, to strengthen his Adverfary. This Demand was thought reafonable, and therefore both of them delivered up their Forts to the King. The reft of the Lords and Nobles were induced to follow their example, especially because at the same time a Truce was concluded by D. James de Cordeva, Earl of Cordeva, with the King of Granada, in whom they reposed their greatest Confidence. The affairs of Navarre were in a worse posture, and no hopes of any composition, because the old animotities went on. The Princes Eleuro fought form remedy, and put them in mind that the term of 16 Months wherein they had promiled to accommodate all affairs, was near expiring. At the same time she protested that since there was no help in her Father, or Brother, she would have recourse to some other, the blame whereof must lie at their door who were the cause of it; for if some care were not taken, that Kingdom must inevitably run to ruin: Great misfortunes make the afflicted speak boldly. Nevertheless all were deaf to these complaints, both Kings being far off, and they embroil'd with affairs of their own. Besides the affairs of Rufilon thole of Sicily and Sardinia perplexed the King of Aragon, Raimund Folch in Sicily.

Earl of Cardona was Viceroy of Sicily. He went over to Naples with Queen Joanna, and read and Sardinia perplexed the King of Aragon, Raimund Folch in Sicily turned thence to his Command, at fuch time as D. John de Cabrera dying young, his Earldom nia. of Modica fell to his Sifter Anne. Many aimed at that Estate, some would exclude her, others afpir'd to Marry her. The King of Aragan because it was convenient to find a Husband to that great Fortune, resolv'd to Marry her to D. Alanso de Aragan, Bastard Son to his Son King Ferdinand. This did not succeed, but afterwards Frederick Son and Heir to the Admiral of Caffile, carried her from all his Rivals, and by this means join'd that Earldom to his own Patrimony. In Sardinia, Leonard de Alagon Marquifs of Oriftan mutinied, he had never been thoroughly pacified, and now complain'd of new wrongs done him by Nicholas Carrox de Arborea. Neither Age nor Sicknels hindred the King of Aragon from attending publick Affairs.

The Marquess of Orishan was Impeached, and Judgment given against him at Barcelona on the 15th of October, by which he was declared to have forfeited his Estate. One only Ship was fent with Recruits, which being a fmall fuccour the War lafted long. King Ferdinand after reducing Andaluzia, was still in Care about Portugal. He rejoiced that the the King of Portugal had brought home a dispensation from the Pope to Marry the Princes Journa, yet he had obtained no succours in France. On the other side, he was concern'd because it was reported the Archbishop of Toledo did Court that King to return to Castilo. That Prelate being very old and paffionate, scarce knew what he did, and therefore never reflected how weak that King was. It is reported that the King of Portugal having loft all hopes of Affidance, in The King despair set out from Paris, resolving to go in Pilgrimage to Rome and Hierusalem, and then of Perus become a Fryar, rather out of disgust to the World, than affection to that Life. He went some gal redays Journey, and then fent back one of Three Servants that were with him to open a Scrutore folves to he left at Paris, where were found two Letters, one for the King of France, giving him an grimage account of his design. In the other he advised his Son immediately to cause himself to be to Hieraken. Crowned King. His Son having read this Letter, was Crowned on the 11th of November, lim. an only Five days before the arrival of his Father at Cafeass. For the King of France had imme religns his diately fent fome Perfons after him, who forced him to come back. He advisd him to return from to to his Country, which he accordingly did. The King came to Portugal very fad and lean his Son. His Son went out with joy to receive him, and reftored him his Crown and Dignity. This Prince of was the event of the King of Persugals Voyage and Attempts, which at first were hot, but Persugal in the Conclusion fell to the Ground. The following Year 1478, was unfortunate, and restores remarkable, because on the 23th of January was Born in Flanders of the Lady Mary, Heires the Cown The second of the Lady Mary, Heirest medicions to Charles the Bold Duke of Bargundy, and Maximilian Duke of Maryina. Philip was to his Frafterwads happy in the great Dominions he acquired, and the Successor he lest, the his professive was not lasting, Death stratching him away in the prime of his youth. In the Month of April, in the City of Florence, certain Citizens conspiring against the Brothers of the House of Medicia, who they suspended design'd to Usure the Sovereignty of that City, till then free. Murderly Talling he he Chemol See Sovereign to the April. Free, Murder'd Julian in the Church of St. Librada, the other called Lawrence de Medicis faved himself in the Sacrifty of the faid Church. Hereupon the other Citizens ran to Arms, and apprehended Salviato Archbishop of Pifa, one of the Conspirators in the Pallace of the Seigneury whither he went to exhort the People to defend their Liberty. Without farther Process he hanged him out of the Window. The Cardinalof St. George, who was said to said to favour the Conspirators, was in great danger. Florence was Excommunicated for the Murder of the Archbilliop, but the King of France interpoling, the City was ablow'd, rather through fear than for any good-will. The Pope and King of Naples had also made Warupon the Florentines, but now also a Peace was Concluded, and they were left at Liberty as they were before.

Sardinia entirely reduced; The Birth of John Prince of Castile; The Inquisition first settled in Spain; Peace Concluded betwixt France and Castile; the death of King John of Aragon.

N Sardinia the War continu'd hot, and both parties looked for supplies from abroad. The Genoeses who ought to have affisted the Marquess de Oristan, as their ancient Allie, sorbore sardinia because they had lately concluded a Truce at Naples, with the House of Aragon. Fresh suc. reduced. cours came daily to the Royallists from Aragon and Sicily, and at last the Earl of Cardona Viceroy of Sicily went over in Person. After several skirmishes, the two Armies met near a Castle called Machomera. There the Battle was given, in which the Marquels was killed, and his Army routed. Artal his Son endeavouring to make his escape in a Boat, was taken by Two Aragonian Gallies, and carried Prisoner into Spain by Villamarin the Admiral. He was Confined to the Caltle of Xativa, and all his Estate which was considerable, as well in Sardinia, as the Continent Confiscate. Particularly the Marquisates of Oristan and Gociano, were for ever annexed to the Crown, and added to the other regal Titles. This Battle was fought on the 19th of May. Thus that Island which had been fo long contended for, was at lalt wholly subdued by the Aragonians. King Ferdinand of Castile, tho the Affairs of Andaluzia last wholly subdued by the Aragonians. A ling Levanand of Capite, the the Attaus of Andaluzzia, were not altogether settled, and his Queen was with Child, returned to the Kingdom of Aragon for two reasons. The first, to reduce the Archbishop of Toledo, and persuade him not to call in the Kingof Portugal again. The other to revive the Association of the Townsagainst Robbers and Outlaws, which decayed much by reason of the great charge of keeping Soldidiers in Pay. To this effect the Cortes were held at Madrid, where the Association was contitude for Three Years longer. Nothing could be concluded with the Archbifhop, the en-deavours were used to satisfie him, there had been no design of killing him. After the Cortes broke up, King Ferdinand returned to Sevil, the Queen earnefily defiring it, because sha was near her time. Thither came Ambassadors from the King of Granda to defire the Truce was heat ner time.

Indice came antinators from the King of organization from the King of the King fent Ambaffadors to Granada, to treat of it, and the Moore used formerly.

The King fent Ambaffadors to Granada, to treat of it, and the Moore answered. That the Kings who used to pay that Tribute were dead many Years before, and that at present in the Mint of Granada no Gold or Silver was Coined, but instead of it they that at present in the Mint of Gramada no Gold or Silver. was Coined, but instead of it they made Spears, Darts and Cimiters. King Ferdinand, tho? offended at this Andwer, necessity obliging him to it, renewed the Truce. On the 28th of June the Queen sell in labour, and was delivered of a Son called Prince John, who was unfortunately cut off in the Flower of his Age, as we shall relate in its Place. The King of Aragon the tired with Age, demanded this Child should be sent to him, to be bred up after the manner of Aragon. At this time the King of Aragon contended for the Archbishoprick of Zaragoga. His aim was to confer it upon D. Alonso Bastard Son to King Ferdinand. The Pope was willing to dispence with his Illegitimacy, but not with his Age, for he was but Six Years old, and therefore desired to bestow that See upon the Cardinal Ansan Después. Believing the King would allow it by reason of the great services done by his Brother, the Master of the Order of Montes. It proved otherwise, for the King in a passion seized the Cardinals Estate, and affronced his kindred. The King of Naples interposing, who was great with the Pope, the King of Aragon observed. The King of Naples interposing, who was great with the Pope, the King of Aragon obtained his delire, and that Dignity was given to D. Alonso as perpetual Administrator. This was the soundation of a Cultom prejudicial to the Church, ever since in use, and mearly extorted from the Pope at that time. It was then the Custom in Spain that all Bishops had their nomination from the King, whence enflued another dispute about the See of Tarappea, for the Cardinal Andrew Perrer, dying, the Pope bestowed it upon Andrew Martimes. King Ferdinand opposed it, designing that Church for the Cardinal of Spain, who at last carried it. Such another debate hapned about the See of Cuenca, in which the King also prevailed. A Bull was also granted, by which the whole power of nominating their Billipps was granted to the Kings of Castile for ever. Four years before another Bull had been obtained, which excluded for the future all Strangers from reversions of Bishopricks. James Saldana Ambassador from King Henry at Rome procured it. He went to Portugal with the Princess James, and from him is descended a noble Family there of his Name. F. Alonso de Burgos Bishop of Palencia Built at Valladolid the famous Monastery of St. Paul, of his own Order, that is, the Dominicans. It had been began in the time of King Alono the Wife. The Church was doubt-lefs built lately by the Cardinal John de Torquemada, who had his Education in that House.

At this time the holy Tribunal of the Inquisition was first erected in Castile. There were Inquifition first

now introduced. The missing property of the nature, but they had not the power, nor the method that was now introduced. The principal promoter and founder of this Court was the Cardinal of Spain, moved to it by the great corruption caused by the mixture of Christians, Jews and Moores. Many Jews who had been Converted, relapsed to their former Error, and particularly the number was great at Sevil, where the Inquifition first executed its Authority. If their Crimes were hainous, they were burnt, if of a leffer hue their Goods were Confifcate, their Crinics were namous, they were guint, it of a rener into that Goods was what the their Perfors condenned to perpetual Imprisonment, or obliged to wear what they call a Sanhenito, that is piece of yellow Baile hanging on the Breaff and Back with a red Crost uponit, which was a mighty Infamy. It was thought too much feverity that the Children should suffer for the Crimes of their Parents, that the accuser should not be known nor confront the party accused, as had ever been used in all Courts, and lastly, that Sins of this nature should be punished with death. Some wholly condemned this severity, yet others approved of and defended it. The event has made it appear this Court has been very necessary and advanta-geous to the Kingdom. Many wholesome Laws were at first Enacted, and have since been enlarged to reffrain the power of the Judges, and keep them within the bounds of modera-tion, that they may not be debauched by Avarice. But the greatest fecurity confiss in that these Imployments are always bestowed on Persons of great learning, and known integrity and piety. The first Inquisitor General was F. Thomas de Torquemada, of the Order of St. Do. minick, Consessor to the King and Queen, and Prior of the Monastery at Segovia. His Authority at sirst extended only to the Kingdom of Castile, Four years after it comprehended all Aragon. At first the Inquisitor General used to fend his Commissioners to all parts as occasion required, without having any fixed Tribunals. Since it is established that the Inquisitor General with Five of the supream Councill determines all the most weighty Affairs of Religion at the Court where the other Tribunals are. All finaller Affairs are committed to 2 or 3 Inquisitors, who keep their Courts in feveral Cities. The places where now the Inquifitors relide, are Toledo, Cuenca, Murcia, Valladolid, Santiago, Lograno, Sevil, Cordova, Granada, Elerena, and in the Kingdom of Aragon, Valencia, Zaragoça, and Barcelona. An Edick was published by the Inquisitor General, offering a free pardon to all guilty Persons who should come in and submit themselves. 17000 as well Men as Women of all forts are said to have presented themselves. 2000 were burnt, and a greater number fled. From this beginning it has role to be the most dreaded Tribunal in the World. A proper remedy against the Calamities that foon after enfued, and confounded many other Kingdoms.

at 1001 after cinicus, and Confounded many ones Englosses.

Before the King and Queen of Caffile went from Sevil, they ordered that neither the Duke Actions of Medina Sidonia, nor the Marquels of Cadre should be admitted into that City, so the hears on the of the Factions being taken away, all was in Peace. On the Frontiers of Portugal Lope Voice Frontiers a Portugues, Governor of the Castle of Mora, secured that place for King Ferdinand, and sen of Cossis, and advice of it that he might be relieved. King Ferdinand was very desirous to make set. him advice of it that ne might be reneved. Any rerainant was very delirous to make all war upon Portugal in Person, thinking it would redound to his Honour not only to desend his own, but to invade another. Neither his Father, nor any of the wifer fort approved of his defign, as dangerous and unprofitable. Therefore he fent D. Alonfo de Cardenas Mafter of Santiago with 1500 Horfe, and 15000 Foot. Nothing of Moment was done, for John Prince of Porting Tecovered the Caffle of Mora, which disappointed all their designs. It was more requisite to secure Traxillo, thither the King and Queen went, taking Cordova in their way. Mean while at Land, a Town in the Territory of Cabors in France, a Match was agreed be Savey. The King of France promifed the Bride who was his Sifters Daughter, a great Effate Savoy. The King of France promifed the Bride who was his Sifters Daughter, a great Effate in France, and offered to deliver up Rafillon and Certaligne, till fuch time as he performed, or the King of Argon paid the Money about which they were at avaiance. This highly of fended the Two Kings of Spain, Father and Son, who refented that the King of Naples without regard to their kindred, fhould prefer the friendship of France before that of Spain, and accept of thole Places for which they were Engaged in War. The Truce was near expiring, and there was danger the War would again break out at a very improper time for both fettled, for the King of France was busse in the Conquest of Flanders. In Castile all was not fettled, for the King of Portugal prepared to renew the War, and the Counces of Medellin a Masculine Woman, with Alonfo de Monroy Deputy to the Master of Calatravos were revolted. For these reasons John de Gamboa Governor of Eswerrabia, and the Archdeacon of Alonacon by Order of King Ferdinand began to treat of an acommodation with the French Ambal. For these reasons your ac common Governor of American, and the Archive Ambala by Order of King Ferdinand began to treat of an acommodation with the French Ambala fadors, who were at Bayonne. They managed this Affair fo well, that the Truce was chang. Peace beed into a Peace upon the old Conditions that had been betwirk those Two Crowns, and twirk Caed into a Peace upon the old Conditions that had been betwirt more two crowns, and twire Cathe King of Aragen was included, which was only imposing upon him, fince the Lands in difficient pute were not reflored to him. However it was agreed, Judges should be appointed to de-branes, cide that Difference. The joy conceived in Cafile on account of this Peace, was increased by some concurring Causes. One was, that the Earl of Alva Life, the Right of the Kings Unckle, came to the Carlon Carlo Truxillo, having been a Prisoner ever since the Battle of Toro. Another, that the Archbishop of Toledo, droveby necessity, all his Revenues being Seized, submitted to King Ferdinando, and delivered up his strong Holds to be held by the King It was given out, he held Correspondence with the King of Portugal still, nevertheless he was pardoned. Moreover, Pope reported the dispensation he had given the King of Portugal, for Marrying his Neece, Sixting revoked the dispensation he had given the king of roringat, for Marrying his Neece, the Princels Joanna, which many thought was too great a Compliance with the King of Naplet, at whole Suit it was done, and misbecoming the Papal Authority. In order to fettle all their Affairs, and particularly the Peace with France, the Two Kings, Father and Son defigned to meet at Molina and Dancea. When on a fudden the King of Arragin fell fick at the state of the Affairs and the Barcelona, and died on the 19th of January 1479. His Body was buried at Poblete, and he Barcelona, and died on the 19th of January 1479. Factions

DY the Death of the King of Aragon, his Dominions were divided: Aragon fell to King B Ferdinand, and Navarre to the Princes Elenor in the Right of her Mother. She had been Years a Widow, and consequently exposed to great Missortunes. That Kingdom was fill divided betwirt the old Factions. The Biamontefes, Enemies to the new Queen were most prevalent. These troubles seemed to be a Judgment for the Muiders committed upon Charles Pince of Viana, the Princes Blanch his Sister, and the Bilhop of Pamplona. Queen Ellenor Reigned not a whole Month. She was more Fortunate in her Issue than in her Life, for file had 4 Sons, Gaston, John, Peter, and James, and 5 Daughters, Mary, Joan, Marguette, Catberine and Ellenor, we shall briefly speak of them all, great Families being descended from them.

Gaston died, as was faid before, and left two Children, Francis Phebus and Catherine, who both Reigned in Navarre successively. John was Lord of Narbonne, which he bought of his Father, and had lillue, Gofton and Germana. Gofton was killed at the Battle of Ravenna, where he was General for Luit the 12th of France. Germana Married Dattie of Accessing, which he was sometimed to the street of the street Mary the Eldest Daughter was Married to William Marquess of Monferrat. Joanna to John Earl of Armagnac. Margaret to Francis Duke of Britany, and had Islue Ann and Elizabeth. Ann the Heirels being Married, first to Charles the 8th, and after his death to Luis the 12th of France, joined that Dukedom and Kingdom. Catherine 4th, Daughter to Queen Ellenor, Married Gaston de France Earl of Candale, and brought forth 2 Sons and a Daughter called Anne, Married to Ladiflaus King of Hungary. Ellenor the Youngest Daughter died a Maid. Queen Ellenor died on the 12th of February at Tudela, where she began her Reign. In her Will she Ordained out of her own Money a Monastery of Franciscans should be Built at Tafalla, and that her Body should be Buried there, and the Bones of her Mother Queen Blanch be also Translated thither, from the Monastery of Nuestra Senora de Nievain Old Castile, where they were deposited. The Revenue was so exhausted, that she was forced to Sell her Jewels to Live. Francis Phebus, so called for his extraordinary Beauty, being but 11 Years of Age succeeded her. His Mother the Lady Magdalen, and his Uncle Peter the Cardinal, had the Administration of the Government till he came to Years, and discharged their Trust Prudently in those difficult Times. The late Queen during her Troubles, had no help from her Brother the King of Castile, therefore she made no mention of him in her Will, but directed the Governors to Adhere to France, as they did, which was the Caule they foon lost that Kingdom. Thus much of Navarre. In Calile tome new Oppinions in matters of Religion were broached. One Peter Oxomensis a Professor of Divinity at Salamanea, was the Author. By Order of Pope Sixtus, the Archbishop of Toledo assembled several Persons of great Learning at Alcala, where he Refided, who all Condemned those new Opinions, and the Au-Interestical thor was Excommunicated, unless he recanted. Sentence was given on the 24th of May, oppinions and foon after Pope Sixtm confirmed it by his Bull. John Prexamus a famous Divine in that Age. afterwards Bishop of Cuidad Rodrigo, wrote a Book against the said Peter. The Marquilla for Villena was now the Seat of War, for the Marquels, because Covenants were and reliaved the Town of Chimbrill, but the said that Town of Chimbrill. not performed with him, had recourfe to Arms, and relieved the Town of Chinbilla, be-fieged by the King's Forces. Peter Ruiz de Alarcon, who Commanded a Patty of the King's was descated near Alberca by Peter de Baeça, and D. George Manrique, who in another Skirmish with Peter de Baeça was Wounded, of which hurt he asterwards died. A great pitty, that to tipe a Wit should be so soon cut off. Hereupon the Marques was liable as having been in Arms against the King's Forces. He excused himself, laying the blame upon the Infolency of those Officers who forced him to do so, and pleaded he had no dealings either with the King of Portugal, or Archbishop of Toledo. These excuses, whether True or Counwith the ixing of vortigen, or Archaming of votes. I nece excutes, whether I rue or Conference, prevented any farther proceedings againft him. In this War there happined an extraordinary accident worth Relating. The King's Party had hanged 6 of the Prifoners they took. In revenge, John Barrio an Officer of the Marques, ordered as many of those had taken, to be put to death in the fame manner. The Prifoners cast Lots, and among the rely in the last of the prifoner of a Breaker that we had been also been all the second of the prifoners. the rest, it sell to the share of one of 2 Brothers, that were Prisoners, who had a Wife and Chi'dien, to die. The other Brother who was a Batchellor, begged to be put to death in his place, and to it was done, after they had both long, and with many Tears contend / ed about it.

than before; yet both Parties being exhaulted, a Treaty was proposed. This was the more Welcome to the Portugueses, because on the 24th of February they had received a great Overthrow near Albufera, two Leagues from Merida, by the Forces under the Command of the Master of Santiago. The Slaughter was so great that sew escaped to Merida, which, as was Overfaid, held for the Countess of Medellin, In this Battle the Master and other Officers figna- throw of lized themselves, and among them James de Vera, who killed the Portugues Standard-bearer, the Porand took the Royal Standard. As a Reward the Master had the Pension of 3 Millions he was to pay out of the Mastership, remitted; and other Favours were bestowed upon James de Vera, and the reft. The Lady Beatrix Dutchels of Vifeo, Aunt to Queen Elizabeth, and Mother-in-Law to John Prince of Portugal, took upon her to Compose Differences betwixt Castile and Portugal. King Ferdinand was in haste to take possession of his new Kingdom, and the more, for that the Aragonians to curb the Navarrois, who had taken some Strong Holds on their Frontiers, had affembled the Cortes without acquainting him; which Action was contrary to the known Laws of that Kingdom. Therefore the King left Queen Elizabeth to conclude the Peace with her Aunt. Alcantara was the place agreed upon betwixt them King Fir-Two for their Meeting. This done the King went to pay his Devotions at Guadalupe, and dinand thence by the way of Santollalla, Heriza, and Calataynd, to Aragon. He made his Publick goes into Entry into Zaragora on the 28th of June with great State, and the general Appliant of the Aagen. People, who went out to meet him. Next him went Luis Naya the chief Magiltrate of the City. The King was richly Cloathed, and under a Canopy, and the People with loud Ac-clamations wilhed him a Long and Happy Reign. There he spent some time in hearing the Complaints of all that thought themselves aggreeved. Soon after he went to Barcelona, where he made Proposals about Recovering Russilan and Cerdagne, but it took not effect then. Yet Four Judges were appointed to determine all Differences betwixt France and Aragon, as had Four Judges were appointed to determine an Interferices between the range and Iraques, as natured been agreed at Bayonne. From Barcelona the King went on to Valencia, there he was fleehaldly received as in other Places, and applied himself to pacific certain Tumults occasioned by D. Ximeno de Urrea, Viscount de Viora, who had by force of Arms feized D. Jayone de Pallar, Viscount Chelva, and his Wife, on presence that Chelva and Manganera possessible the faid D. Jayme, belonged to him. By the King's Command both Parties laid down their Arms. Afterwards when the Suit had depended three years, the Judges offended at the Infolency of D. Ximeno, in prefuming to the Force, gave Sentence against him, and adjudged those Towns to his Adversary D. Jayme de Pallas.

Peace concluded betwixt Castile and Portugal; The Turks get footing in Italy, and are again expelled; King Alonso of Portugal dies; Henry the late King of Castile his Grants vacated by the Cortes; Prince John, Son to King Ferdinand, from Heir of

Usen Elizabeth, and her Aunt the Dutchess of Viseo, met, as had been agreed, at Alcan. Peace tara, and after some days spent in Debating, fixed upon these Articles. That the King concluded between the Articles in the King the Concluded between the King the Cashile and King Ferdinand should do the same in respect to Portugal. That Prince John, Son to King and Protrained, as soon as he was of Age, should Marry the Princes Johns, when at Age, should dislike that Marriage, then his Father and Mother should be obliged to pay 100000 Ducats to the Princes Johns. That is the thought the time too long to stay, the might have liberty to become a Nun. That the Princes Elizabeth of Cashile should be Married to Alons, Grandson to the King of Portugal. That the Disasted Nobles of Cashile should not be protected in Portugal. That the Disasted Alons, Grandson to the King of Portugal. That the Disasted holds of Cashile should not be protected in Portugal. That the Conquest and Discoveries on the Coast of Africk, and in the Ocean, should entirely appertain to Portugal. Lastiy, That for Security of the Performance of these Articles, the Princesses Johnson and Elizabeth, and Prince Alons, should be delivered as Hostages to the Dutchess of Viseo, to be by her kept in the Castle of Mora, and the King of Portugal on his part to deliver up to her four other Castles Castile of Mora, and the King of Portugal on his part to deliver up to her four other Castles on the borders of the Kingdom. This was the end of that tedious and expensive War. Great Rejoycing and Thanksgiving was throughout all Spain for the Peace. King Ferdinand from Valencia, where he received this Joyful News, returned to Toledo about the end of the year. There Queen Elizabeth, his Wife, expected him, and their Joy was redoubled by the Birth of the Princels foanna, whom Heaven had decreed to inherit the Kingdoms of her

Ancestors. Soon after the other Princess Joanna, Daughter to King Henry, perceiving how she was imposed upon, became a Nun in the Monastery of S. Clare at Coimbra, where she led a Virtuous Life, and persevered till her Death. Nevertheless the Princess Elizabeth and Prince Alonfo were delivered up to the Dutches of Viseo according to Articles. The Countess of Medellin, and D. Alonso de Monroy submitted, as did other Nobles of Castile, who had ters of pataeaun, and D. Arongo ac maning infinited, a did clinic Archeology of the been the chief support of Portugal. The Marquels of Villena, his former Articles being somewhat altered, was reflored to the King and Queen's Favour about the beginning of the year 1480. By this new Contract the Marqueß was left poffelfed of Escaland, Behanner, Vilena, and Almania, the other Towns of his fell to the King. Necestity obliged him to fubmit to these hard Terms. In January died Renee, Duke of Anjon, in France, a Prince no less famous for his ill Fortune than long Life. Till the last he Stiled himself King of Aragon, Sicily, and Hierusalem, all empty Titles. In his Will he appointed his Nephew Charles his Heir. To Renee Duke of Lorrain, his Grandson by the Mother side, he left the Dutchy of Bar, which he possessed in France.

At Toledo the Cortes of Castile were assembled: Great numbers of People resorted thither, and many Grievances were laid before them. The Country complained that the Nobility oppressed the Poor, and devoured the Revenues of the Crown, which was the cause that opprenent the Poor, and devotred the Revenues of the Colomi, which was the caute that heavy Taxes were daily imposed upon the People. Commissioners were appointed to inspect made by into this Affair; and they having considered of it, declared, that all Grants made by King Man. Henry, or extorted by force, ought to be void. Yet all the Power of the Laws and Maging declaring the Affair is an analysis of the Robinsty. In May all the Three Estates will be a fine Point of the Laws and the Colomic first by dark this Power New Colombia. red void flower Prince Tobb Heir of the Crown after the death of his Parents. Now Calite being thus by the Cor-fettled, the King and Queen went first to Medina del Campa, and then to Valladolid, where fome Noblemen received exemplary Punishment for Crimes committed, which terrified others. Galicia was not perfectly reduced, that being a fierce fort of People. The Cities Lugo, Orenfe, Mondenedo, Bivero, and Coruña, would not submit : Ferdinand de Acuña, and a Civilian called Mondayada, Bivero, and Cornia, would not humber tertamana at aleuma, and a contain cancer of actia Chinchilla, were fent to pacific them. These Two assembling the People at Santiage, and putting to death the Mareschal Peter Pardo, and some other Gentlemen, brought the Country under subjection. King Ferdinand was then gone to Catalonia upon this account: Mahomet the Great Turk having in vain belieged Rhodes the space of three Months, was forced to quit that Enterprize. Part of his Fleet failed to Vallona in Albania, opposite to Apulia, ae Province of the Kingdom of Naples. Thence Achmet Bassa who Commanded, passed over The Tarks into Italy, and took the City Otranso on the 13th of Jugust, where he made a great Slaughter, sparing neither Sex nor Age. From this Place the Turks made Incursions into the Country, destroying all they came at, to the great Terror of all Italy. This moved the Christian Princes to think of joining their Forces to stifle that Flame. Particularly King Ferdinand fent Gonzalo Beteta Ambassador to Pope Sixtus, who was then much displeased with the King, as constate Beleta Ambahador to Pope Sixins, who was then much displeated with the Ring, as appeared upon feveral occasions, and now more especially, for he conflictuted the Archbishop of Toledo his Legate in Spain, without acquainting the King with his Defign. The publick Danger made private Animolities be forgot. The King allo fent D. John Melguerite, Bilhop of Girona, in the Month of February, 1481. to make a League with all the Princes of Italy. At the fame time the King gathered a Fleet of 35 Sail of all forts at Barcelona. The King of Portugal fitted 20 Ships for this purpose; but these Succours went on flowly. There fore D. Alonfo, Duke of Calabria, with what Forces he could gather in Italy, at last laid Siege to Otranto. It sell out happily that Mahomet the Great Turk died at Nicomedia in Bithynia, on the 3d of May. News hereof being brought to the Turks in Otranto, they furrendered that City the 5th Month after it had been belieged, upon condition to depart freely. The Duke of Calabria retained in his Service about 1500 Turks, designing to make use of them against the Florentimes. It was the vulgar Opinion they well deserved it, because they had called in the Turks; yet many believed this was a Policy of the Duke, to cast the Scandal of retaining those People upon his Enemy. The Succours of Aragon and Portugal were of no use, for they arrived in Italy after Otranto was furrendred. Besides the distance, weighty Affairs kept those Kings employed, and diverted them from sending those Succours sooner. King Ferdinand held the Cortes of Aragon at Calatajud, whither Queen Elizabeth by her Husband's Order brought Prince John, D. Alonso Emriquez the Admiral, and Peter Fernandez de Velasco the Consilable, were appointed Commissioners to Govern Castile. The King's aim was to have his Son fworn Heir to that Kingdom, as had been before done in Caftile, and was also perfor-Fridinand's Son med there on the 29th of May. Soon after, the same was done at Barcelona* for the Principa-from lity of Catalonia. Besides these Cares, another was added from Navarre. Peter the Cardinal,

Heir of and James his Brother, Unkles to the young King, came to Zaragoça: There being admitted Cafille, 4; to Audience, in a long Harangue they laid before King Ferdinand the Misfortunes Navarre laragen, and boured under, the Rebels being possessed of the most considerable Towns and Cities. The Biamontefer had Pamplona, the others Estela, Sanguess, and Olite. They represented, That their King had nothing lest him but the Title: That the Earl of Lerin ceased not to commit all manner of Crimes. Therefore they begged King Ferdinand to pity that young King, and deliver him from the Slavery of his Subjects. King Ferdinand having heard the two Biothers, promifed he would stand by King Francis; and to shew his readiness, sent certain Persons promifed he would fland by King Francis; and to mew ms reaument, sent consuming with the Two Princes, who from him should advise the Rebels to submit to their King. The Cores Cortes of that Kingdom met at T. falla; there King Ferdinand's Ambassadors gave an account of what they had in Commission. The Navarreis answered, That if the King had not been received as he ought in the Kingdom, it was not the fault of them all, but of some few, who disturbed the Peace of the Country; yet if he would come to them, no Town would be wanting in expressing its Loyalty. This Answer was satisfactory; and therefore it was proposed to King Fedinand that King Francis should go to Pampiona. It was thought it he should poled to King ferdinand that King Francis thould go to Pampiana. It was thought lit he should go with a good Guard, left in that time of Confusion any Affront should be offered him. At this time the King of Portragal died at Sintra, in the very Chamber where he was born, and Adviss on the 28th of August. His Body was carried to Alphartach. His Son John II. for his high Paringal Point and great Exploits Sirnamed the Great, succeeded him. This Prince, as well as his Fadies. There, was always an utter Enemy to Castile. The Father carried it more openly, but the Son John II. of the Son John II. fibrilly and underhand; and therefore more furioufly vented his Paffion upon fome Noblemen Portugal. of his Kingdom, whom he suffected of favouring Castile, as we shall soon see. For Pie'r, Goodness, Severity towards Crimina, Sharpness of Wit, and a Tenacious Memory, he equalled all the Kings his Contemporaries, and excelled many. He used to say, That a Kingdom cittler found Princes wife, or made them so, by their continual conversing with Men of great Parts, who constantly are about the Courts of Kings, and use all Arts in Speech and Behaviour to obtain their Defires, and discover their Ability.

CHAP. X.

Francis King of Navarre comes out of France, is Crown'd, and foon after Dies; A Confpiracy against the King of Portugal discover'd, and the Conspirators punish'd; Peace betwint Castile and Portugal Ratified; Luis the Eleventh King of France dies.

Three Princes died fuccessively one year after another About the end of this year departed this Three Life Charles Duke of Anjon. He appointed the King of France his Heir, by which means great Men Anjou and Provence were annexed to the Crown of France, besides other Pretentions, which die ferred only to intail a War upon that Kingdom. On the first of July, in the following year 1482, died D. Alonfo Carillo y Acina, Archbishop of Toledo, a Man even when of great Age, 1482. lively and active. He retired in his latter days rather through necessity, than of his own inclination. He was buried in the Monastery of S. Francus, built by linicelf at Aledal de Henares; he also made the Church of S. Stephen, till then a Parish, Collegiate. He was addicted to Chimistry and died Poor, yet is said to have lest some Money to repair the School at Alcala. On the left hand of the Archbishop's Tomb was buried his Son Troplus, which the Cardinal D. Francisco Ximenez caused to be removed, looking upon it as a Monument of that Prelate's incontinency. From this Troylus are descended the Marquesses of Falces in Navarre, their Sirname is Peralta. The Cardinal of Spain succeeded D. Alonso Carrillo in the Archbishoptick of name is resulta. The Catchina of opain incecessed D. Atlanta, and Brother to James Hurtado de Mendoça first Duke del Infantado. This Prelate was a Person of great Virtue and Ability, and had this Dignity conferred on him as a Reward for his good Services. D. Thigo Manrique, Bishop of Jaen, was translated in his stead to the Archbishoprick of Sevil. In Navarre a great Joy was allayed by a greater Sorrow. King Fancis, who during the Troubles of Navarre had refided in France, at last, as had been agreed, came to Pamplona with his Mother, Uncles, and a great Retinue of Nobility of France, and Navarre. He was received Francis with great Pomp and a general Applause, Crowned in the Cathedral, and Proclaimed King Cower of King of King of on the 3d of Ottober. He was then in the flower of his Youth, being 15 years of Age, wonderful Beautiful, and well inclined. The first thing he did was to forbid upon Pain of Death any Perfons whatfoever calling themselves Biamonteses or Agramonteses, the hateful Names of those Factions which had so long distracted that Kingdom. He made Luis Earl of Lerin Constable, and gave him Larraga and other Towns to oblige him, because he was powerful. This done he took a Progress through the Kingdom, punished Malesactors, and secured the Inis done ne took a Progress through the Amgoon, punning malefactors, and recured the Authority of Magistrates. It was proposed to Marry him to secure the Succession. King Ferdinand offered his Daughter the Princes Joanna. The King of France advised him to take to Wife the other Princes Joanna, Daughter to King Henry, then a professed Nun in Portugal, thinking by this means to have an opportunity of subduing Castile. Magdalen the young King's Mother, an Ambitious Woman, was more inclinable to this Match, and therefore left any Violence should be offered her Son, persuaded him to repass the Mountains, where he had large Dominions. He was no fooner come to the City Pau, or S. Paul in Bearne, where he had large Dominions. He was no tooner come to the City ran, or o. rant in Dearne, but he fell fick and died on the 30th of January 1483. His Body was buried in Lefear, a 1483. City in Bearn. His Sifter Catherine fucceeded him in the Throne, as was her due. from, the King's Alguaziles, or Officers, by his special Command, apprehended and punished Malefactors upon their Estates. They consulted together, and expecting no Redress by fair Means, resolved to use Force. The Heads of this Conspiracy were the Dukes Ferdinand of Bragança, and James of Viseo, the most Powerful Men in the Kingdom, and of the Blood Royal. Many others joined with them, as the Martquess de Montemor, the Earl of Haro, the Duko of Braganca's Brothers, D. Garcia de Menejes Bilhop of Ebora, his Brother Ferdmand, and D. Lope du Albuquerque Earl of Penamacor. This Conspiracy was discovered after this manner. The Cortes fate at Ebora. Some good Laws were Effablished, and among other things it was provided, that the Nobility should not have the Power of Oppressing the People. This the Duke of Bragança complained was a Breach of the ancient Priviledges of the Nobility, and offered to produce the Grants of Kings to his Predecessors. Lope de Figueredo, his bility, and offered to produce the Grants of Kings to his Predeceffors. Lope de Figueredo, his Comptroller, fearching for the Papers, found among them others which made out, that the Duke held Correspondence with the King of Castile, to the prejudice of the Crown of Portugal. He carried them privately to the King, who having viewed them, ordered him to Copy them, and return the Originals to the place where he found them. It hapned the Queen in the Spring of the year 1483, was fick at Almarin after Lying in. Her Brother the Duke of Viso, and her Brother in Law the Duke of Bragampa, came to visit her. The King Entertained them kindly, destring to put a stop to that Mischief without hazarding a War. At length one morning after hearing Mass, he took the Duke of Bragampa asside, there he told him how he was informed of all his Designs and Treasonable Correspondence with Castile, that he was with much difficulty induced to believe it, and yet being cenvinced of the truth, was willing to Pardon, and bury it in oblivious, advising him to consider none could be more his willing to Pardon, and bury it in oblivion, advising him to consider none could be more his Friend than he that was so near a Kinsman, and that if any thing had been amiss he ought to have advised him better, or winked at any Error in the Government. This Discourse of the King's surprized the Duke. He begged the King would not give Credit to Informers, who strive to rife upon the Ruins of others, affuring him he would not lay the stain of Disloyalty upon his Family, and affirming with great Imprecations upon hintelf; that all he faid was true.

The King went away to Santarem, the Dukes to their Eftates, no way departing from their Defigns. Mean while F. Ferdinand de Talawera, Prior of Frado, a Monaflery of the Order of tons of S. Flerome near Valladolid, and the King's Confessor, was sent to Portugal to Ratisse the late S. Hierome near Valladolid, and the King's Confellor, was tent to Portugal to Ratifie the late tions of Peace, and Propole, that the Prince and Princes given as Holtages, might be reflored to betwike their Parents, which was accordingly done. Only this Alteration was made in the former Arcafiltand ticles, that Prince Alonfo should Marry the Princes Frankand, because they were both of an Age. In May the Princes Elizabethe returned to Castile, and Prince Alonfo to his Father, the Duke of Braganse accompanying him to Ebora, where the Court was. There he was apprehended, upon Intelligence given by Gassar Justice, that he fill held Correspondence with King Ferdinand, by the means of Peter Justice. Both Brothers were Rewarded for the Discovery. The Duke was impeached of High Treaton, Treed and Condemned to Death. His Execution was on the 21th of Even. Tried, and Condemned to Death. His Execution was on the 22th of June. With him fuffered 6 other Fidulgos or Noblemen, found guilty of the same Crime. The Contlable of Portugal, the Dukes Brothers, and others fled. The Dutchels, as soon as she received the News. Fortigal, the Dukes Blottines, and others need. The Dukeness, as foon as the received the News of her Husband's Death, fent her 3 Sons, Philip, James, and Denis, to Caffile. Philip died there a Batchelor, James was Pardoned, and returned to Postugal, Denis Married the Heires of the Earl of Lemos in Caffile. His youth faved the Duke of Vife, the Ruing only giving him a Reprimand the day after the Execution of the other. Neither the Punilment of the one, nor the Mercy extended to the other Duke, had influence enough to prevail of the one, nor the Netcy extended to the other Duke, had inhuence enough to prevait with the other Confipirators to defift. They complained that no Man was fafe, and that the Duke of $Bragane_{4}$ had been wrongfully put to death. Therefore it was refolved the King fhould be murdered, and the Duke of Vifeo fet up in his place. They only waited an opportunity to muracrea, and the Duke of the let up in his place.

Incy only wanted an opportunity to give the Stroke, but before it could be performed all the Confpiracy was detected after this manner. James Timeo had a Sifter who was Miftres to the Archbishop of Ebora: She having found out what was contrived, discovered it to her Brother, and he to the King, putting on the Habit of a Franciscan Frier to speak to him at Setwood, that it might be the more private. Vasco Contino, whose Brother Gutterre Contino was one of the Conspirators, gave the King the same Account: He was afterwards Rewarded with the Earldom of Barba and Effremoz. The King went out to Visit a Church near Setuval, and with him the Conspirators, being refolved to execute their Defign as he came out of the Church. By good fortune one of his Bed-chamber, whose Name was Faria, warned him of the Danger he was in. He spoke courteously to the Conspirators, which abated somewhat of their Rage; however he got into another Church in the Suburb of that City, called Nuestra Senora la Antigua. This he did to gain time till more of his Followers could come up, and therefore continued long talking with Valor Couring. This perplexed the Confpirators, fearing if that Opportunity were lost, fome of the Number might obtain a Reward with the Ruin of the reft. The King having escaped that Danger, fent, upon some other Pretence, for the Duke of Visco, who was with his Mother at Palmela, waiting the liste of the Contrived Treason. Not imaging any Discovery, he adventured to obey the King's Call. No fooner did he enter the Chamber where the King was, but the King himself, in the presence of a few that were there, Stab'd him, faying these Words, Go tell the Duke of Bragança what all his Contrivances are come to. The Duke of Vifeo was about

30 years of age when he came to this end. Aftrologers had Prognificated he should be a King. All his Estate was given to his Brother Emanuel, with the Title of Duke of Bija. He afterwards came to be King of Portugal, and created his Tutor James of Silva Earl of Portalegre. Some of the other Confipirators were taken, as the Archbifhop of Ebva, his Brother Ferdinand, and Gutierre Contrin. The refl lived poor, and died miferably in Caftile. On the 30th of August died Luis XI. King of France, near Tours. He ordained in his Will that Ref. Lui XI. fillon and Cerdagne should be restored to the former Owner. His Son Charles VIII. The History of SPAIN.

BOOK XXV.

CHAP. I.

The beginning of the War with Granada; King Albohacen surprizes Zahara; Alhama taken from the Infidels, and in vain befreged by them again.

mous War Granada.

E will begin this Book with the famous War of Granada, which was begun and carried on by King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth, for the space of ten Years, and in which happened many things very remarkable, and bloudy Battels were fought. The end of it was fortunate to Spain, and delightful all Christendom, fince it put a period to the Monarchy of the Moors, which had continued in this Nation above 700 Years, to our great Shame and Reproach

The Kingdom of Granada lies between Murcia and Andaluxia, is about 700 Miles in compass, and extends farther in length than breadth. From Ronda to Huesca it is counted 60 Leagues in length, and from Cambil to Alminecar only 25 in breadth. It is bounded on the East with the Kingdom of Murcia, on the South with the Mediterranean Sea, on the West and North with Andaluzia.

The Country is pleasant, and as fruitful as any in Spain, the very Mountains being full of Springs, and confequently always green. This occasions the Weather to be temperate both in Summer and Winter, especially in the City of Granada, the Metropolis of the Kingdom, one of the noblest and largest of all Spain, from which all that Province takes Name, and the the Natives formerly fludied Art Magick. Gar in Arabick fignifies a Cave, and certain Soldiers who came over with Tarif to the Conquest in Spain, Spain, after that unhappy War was ended, fixed their abode in that Place. Of Gar and Nata was framed the Name Granada, as some Learned Men will have it. Other Etymologies of this Name are to be found, but it is needless to spend time in discussing that point. It is certain, that when this War began, there were in that Kingdom 14 Cities and 97 Towns, The principal Cities next to the Capital were Almeria, Malaga, and Guadas, called by Pliny Acci. They are all three Bifhopricks, and well Peopled. The Division of Spain under to many feveral Monarchs, and the continual Supplies fent our of Africk, maintained this Kingdom of the Moors fo many Ages. As foon as the Holy Inquisition was established, and the Authority of the Magistrates restored to its Vigour, Spain gathered Strength to extirpate the Dominion of the Moors: Besides the former Animostics betwitt the Two Nations of Moors and Christians on account of Religion, and Wrongs sustained in an Oppression of so many Years, the Infidels now added a new Motive for declaring War. Which was, That on the 27th of December, 1481. King Albahacen having Intelligence the Town of Zahara was unprovided, he surprized it, that Place having been in the hands of the Christians ever since Prince surprized Ferdinand, Grandsather to King Ferdinand, took it from the Moore. It was taken in a dark stormy Night, all the Townsinen that made resistance being put to the Sword, and the rest carried away Slaves to Granada. This Town the Moors sortified K. Ferdinand and Q. Elizabeth, who were at Medina del Campo, derstanding what had hapned, sent Orders to the Commanders on the Frontiers, and the Cities, to prepare for War, and be upon their Guard. The Moors excused themselves, pleading it was cultomary during a Truce to make Incursions on both sides, and even to take Towns, provided above 3 Days were not figent in the Attack, and they did not formally encamp before them. Under this fame Pretence, the Infidels, at the beginning of the following Year, 1482. attacked Cafellar and Olbera, but could not carry them. These Wrongs moved the Christians to seek Revenge. A good Body gathered at Sevil with all Necessaries. Whilft they confulted on which fide to make an Incurion, advice was given them that the Town of Albama was ill Garifoned, and might eafily be surprized. James Merlo, Deputy of Sevil, and the Marquess of Cadiz, with 2500 Horse, and 4000 Foot, marched 3 Days, and came to a Valley encompassed with high Hills. There they informed the Soldiers, who were much fatigued, that Albama was but half a League from them, and encouraged them to undergo the finall Labour that remained chearfully, putting them in mind of the rich Booty that Place would afford. 300 chosen Men advanced, and came late at night to the Walls. Perceiving no noise in the Castle, they applied their Scaling-Ladders, and mounted the Wall. The first that got up was John de Ortega, then another John born at Toledo, and the third Martin Galindo, all three resolute Soldiers. They killed the Sentinels, who were alleep, and some others; then opening the Gate, all the others rushed in. The Townsmen speedily cast up Works to fecure themselves against the Castle, and were attacked at break of day by our Men;

but without fuccess. Sancho de Avila, Governor of Cormona, and Martin de Rojas of Arcos, being too forward, were both killed in the Castle Gate. Any delay was dangerous, because Ding too forward, west could make in the Cante Care. This delay was unargerous, occurring Granada was but 8 Leagues off. Some were for demolifhing the Calife, and retiring: The Bolder fort were against quitting the Enterprize upon any account. This Advice prevailed. and the Town was affaulted on all fides. Some from without scaled the Walls; thicher the Moors bent their whole Force, which gave those in the Cattle an opportunity of entring the Town on that fide. A refolute Fight was maintained in the Streets. The Christians were the better Soldiers, but the Infidels more numerous; yet both Parties flood their ground till night, when fuch as remained of the Enemy retired to a Mosque, where many were killed, and the reft made Slaves. Thus the lofs of Zabara was doubly repaid. This was the beginning of that tedious and bloody War. Albama was taken on the laft Day of February. The taking of this Place struck a Terror into the Moors, and caused the Christians to stand upon their Guard. The Moor finding the Christians gained feeting is near Grandad, seared the approaching Downfal of that Kingdom: Besides, they were affilided at some Apparitions seen in the Air, and because an old Fortune-teller, as soon as the Institute of Look Zabara, is said to have Air, and became an old Fortune-tener, as 100n as the inflacis took Zabara, is laid to have cried out, The Raime of that Town (God grant what I far prove falle) will fall upon our Heads! My Mind gives me the End of our Dominion in Spain draws near. This caused the King to raise Men, Albama in throughout his Kingdom, and to march towards Albama with 3000 Hosse, and about 5000 fixed by Foot. So great an Army was terrible to our Men, who could not quit the Place without the March 1997 of the County of the March 1997 of the March 199 much Dishonour. They sent Messengers to all Parts to hasten Relief, and mean while ceased not. Day or Night to repair the Walls and add new Works. The Safety of the Town confilted in that the Enemy for halfe brought no Cannon, or other Engines for Battery. Therefore all their Affaults proved unfuccessful, for our Men bravely made good the Walls. The sharpest Dispute was at the River which runs near the Town, in which there being no Fountains nor Cifterns, the Besieged were obliged to go out for Water: The Moors laboured to turn tains nor Citterins, the Denegged were congect to go out for mater. The Proper Japonical to turn the River another way, which (the with much lofs) they performed, cutting a new Channel. D. Alonfo de Aguilar marched from Cordova with 1000 Horse and 3000 Foot to the Relief of the Besieged; but all Passes being secured by the Enemy, was sorced to return without effecting any thing. All the Hopes that remained wasin the Duke of Medina Sidonia, and that not much, because of his ancient Enmity with the Marquess of Cadiz; to which was added, that he refented that Expedition had been undertaken without confulting him. The Love of his Country prevailed with his Generous Spirit above private Animofities, and the Publick Danger Country prevailed with nis venerous Spirit above private Anunonies, and the Publick Danger reconciled those Opposites. Having resolved to relieve the Besieged, he took the Royal Standard out of Sevii, and joined with other Noblemen, particularly D. Rodevick Grom, Master of Calatrava, and D. James Pacheco, Marquels of Villena. They gathered about 5000 Horse and 40000 Foot. King Ferdinand the very Day he received the News of the taking of Alhama, and the Danger our Men were in, fet forward with speed from Medina del Campo, leaving Orders for the Queen to follow him. He fent Orders to the Noblemen not to enter the Moorish Territories besore he came, because it was requisite to carry a greater force. The great want of Water the Belieged endured made all delay dangerous; therefore the Lords notwithstanding that Order marched. The Morra expected not their coming, but railed the Siege, and departed. Then the Belieged marched out to meet those that came to their Relief, and joyfully embraced one another. The Marquess of Cadiz embraced the Duke of let, and joylully embraced one another. The Marqueis of Cadiz embraced the Duke of Medina Sidona; they faluted one another courteoufly, and io egided the Hatted which had been betwixt those two Families for many Years. This Joy was very near being converted into Sorrow, by a Dispute arising among the Soldiers. Those that came to relieve the Beneged, pretended to have share in the Plunder of the Town, and from Words they had come to Blows, but that the Duke pacified his Men with fair Speeches, and promifes of leading them to greater Plunder. A fresh Garrison was put into the Town, and the Army marched back. Immediately the Moors returned to the Siege, and several Parties went out to plunder Thinternating the mount of the original to the original rathes went out to plunder the neighbouring Country. The Infidels observing the highest part of Albama being difficult of access, was senderly guarded, scaled it before break of day on the 20th of April. Our great account, it was refolved to beliege Loxa, a very strong City not far from Albama, Ezija was the Place appointed for the Army to Rendezvous; about 5000 Horse and 8000 Poot gathered there: A finall Number for fo great an Undertaking. After the Moors were gone, the King marched with part of thefe Forces to Alhama, on the 29th of April. He put a new Garrison into the Place, and left D. Luis Portocarrero, Lord of Palma, a great Soldier. to Command there: Then having wasted the Plain of Granada without sustaining any loss, he returned to Cordova to make the necessary Preparations for War. Bessets, the Queen was near her time, and he was willing to be present at her lying in. On the 29th of July she was delivered of two Children; the one that lived was called Mary, the other was dead. Hence the People took occasion to frame Omens of the Success of the War according to every Man's Fancy. But what most troubled them was to see those who carried the Standards to Church to be Bleffed look extraordinarily melancholy. Others laughed at all these Observations as at to be Bleffed look extraordinarily melancholy. Others laughed at all these Observations as at vain and accidental things. The day following the King went away to Ezija, all Persons of any Note spring to have part in that Undertaking. According as had been resolved they marched to Loza, where they encamped and entrenched themselves near the Suburbs among Olive Gardens, on that side where the River Xenil is so straightned by high Banks, that it is on to fordable. The Ground was freight, and not proper for the Horfe, and the Citizens being Malters of the Bridge, it was hard to pass the River. Near this place is a Hill called Al. bobacen, which being commodious to hinder the Enemy from fallying, and to command the bebacen, which being commodious to minder the Enemy from lanying, and to command the City, the Malter of Calatrava, and Marquelles of Pulma and Cadica, were ordered to pofficis fieged by the Christians without the City were about 3000 Horfe, Commanded by Alatar a Brave the Christians without Captain. Those that encamped next them, came to their Relief, but without any Order, or leaving a Guard in the Camp. The other Body of Moory laying hold of this Opportunity, eafily made themselves Mafters of our Works, which greatly discouraged those that were engaged. However, they ran to defend their Camp, and behaved themselves with great Bravery. The Enemy pressed them in Front and Rear, which was the cause our Men were de-The Master of Calatrava was killed, with many others; the rest saved themselves by flight. King Ferdinand discouraged by this Misfortune, and perceiving that what his Brother the Duke de Villabermofa had faid was true, to wit, That the Army was encamped in a disadventageous Post; as also understanding the Enemy's Army marched towards him, the adventageous Poit; as also understanding the Enemy's Army marcinet owners and, the next day marched away as far as the Lovers Rock, called Peira de los Enrowads; which was feven Leagues diffant from Loxa. He retired in good Order, the Marques of Cadiz sacing the Enemy, who continually charged the Rear, but were so bravely received they fied to the City. This was the end of that ill laid Design. The Moore encouraged by this Success, returned to the Siege of Albama. King Ferdinand, on the 14th of August, in Person relieved the Besseged, laid in Provision for 9 Months, and gave the Lieutenancy of that Place to D. Liu Oforio, who the Elect Bishop of Jaen, was a brave and experienced Soldier. Beddes, the King plundered and burnt all the Plain of Granda. 600 Moors came out of the City to skirmilh, but the Earl of Cabra, and Chief Commendary of Calatrava, killed many of them, and forced the rest back into the Town. These were great Losses to the Moore; but the greatest Mischief was Discord among themselves; for a great number of the Citizens of Granda taking Arms, drove their King Albabagen out of the City: They accused him of Tyranny, and of beginning that bloody War. In his Place they set up his own Son Mabomes Pyranny, and of Deginning that didded war. In this prace trey let up in sown son Dealerman Boabili, commonly called the Little King; others call him Haley Muley Alcadambil. Malaga, Baça, and fome other Cities, continued Loyal to King Allebaseen. Thus that Nation was divided betwire Two Factions, which did them no lefs harm than the Enemies abroad. It is remarkable, that amidft these Confusions neither Party asked Aid of the Christians; but in the heat of the Civil War, made Incursions into their Territories, and took the Town of Canete on the Frontiers of that Kingdom.

The War Other Affairs for some time diverted the King and Queen from the War with the Moores, with the and they returned to the Kingdom of Toledo. The Command of the Frontiers about Exist. uns given to D. Peter Manrique, Earl of Trev. 300, and lately created Duke of Najara. D. Aput off for loufe de Cardena, Master of Santiago was to Command about Jaen. The Government of sometime. Sevil was given to D. Johnde Silva Earl of Cifuents. All things thus settled, the King and Queen came to Madrid about the beginning of Winter. There the Cortex assembled to regu. late the Aflociation fet on Foot fome Years before as has been faid, that they might not abuse the Power they had. Supplies were also demanded for the Expences of the War, and they offered to furnish 16000 Beasts for Carriage. Pope Sixtus commanded the Clergy to contribute 100000 Ducats for once. He also granted the Croisade to such as served at their own Coft, or at leaft contributed a certain fmall Sum of Money. This was again granted a Years after, and has continued ever fince, being Yearly Collected, which brings a great Sum of Money into the Kings Coffers.

Befices all this, much Money was borrowed of Bankers and other private Persons. The Aragonians would not receive D. Raimund Folch Earl of Cardona for their Viceroy, and pleaded it was a breach of their Priviledges to put a Stranger over them. After some debate the King condescended, and constituted his Son

Alonjo de Aragon, Archbishop of Zaragoça Viceroy. The designs of the Portuguese and Navarrois did not a little perplex King Ferdinand. The King of Portugal proposed to Marry his Neece the Princes Joanna Daughter to King Henry, to Prince Pebens King of Navarre, who was not yet dead. Navarre savoured France. To prevent danger Ambassadors were fent to both. Those who went to Navarre, which was after the death of that King, had orders to propose a Match betwixt Queen Catherine who had inherited that Crown, and orders to propose a reactin between Casterine with had inherited that Crown, and Prince John King Ferdinand's Son. They had also instructions to endeavour to gain all the Men in Power, particularly the Faction of the Biamonreses, that was possessed of Pamplona, and most of the Kingdom, the Queen having little less her but the Name, tho' she had apand more of the Angeons, the Queen's Monfienr de Abene, a Frenchman, well verfed in Affairs of that nature. Mogdalen the Queen's Mother feemed pleafed at the Match, and faid there could be nothing on her fide to obstruct so advantageous a proposal. In Galicia the Conftable and Earl of Benavente with their followers were in Arms. Each of them strove to faire and Earl of Benneard with their followers well in Allins. Lacil of their Brove to feize the Castles of the Bishops, to be in a better Condition to oppose his Adversary. King Ferdinand to prevent mischief, Ordered Ferdinand de Acaña Governor of that Country to seize Ferdinand to prevent mischief, Ordered Ferdinand to Ferdi came with Forces to the Allitance of his Brother who was Bishop of that City. This Transproduced a new War, which obliged King Ferdinand to fet out from Madrid on the 11th Galicia of February 1413, and haften into Galicia. By the way he received advice that the Earl of 1483. Lemot was dead. He appointed his Grandson Rodovick, his Heir, tho' a Bastlard of his Son Alonso. The Grandsaher obtained a dispensation of the Pope to make him Legislimate; and put him into possession best that the Earl of the Pope to make him Legislimate; and put him into possession that the Earl decaded and Wiles and Put the Earl of Put the Earl of Put the Parkson Put the P for Joanna Daughter to the Earl deceased, and Wife to D. King Ferdinand Commanded them to fland to the determination of the Law, threatning to fall upon him that should refuse, yet he favoured the Grandson of the deceased, who was in possession. Whilst he was busse in Galicia, the Moores near Malaga made a great flaughter of our Men, which was the greatest los we sustained during that War. Peter Enriquez Lieutenant of Andaluzia having with the Affiltance of the Earl of Cadiz recovered his Town of Cante and Fortified it, was with the Attitudance of the Last of County in Secretary in Lower of County and Fortinge it, was definous to be revenged upon the Morrist. D. Alonfo de Aguilar and the Master of Santingo had also resolved to make an incursion into the Moorist Territories. The Earl of Cifuentes had attempted to recover Zabara, but failed. All these Commanders agreed to make an Inroad into the Territory of Malaga in three Bodies. That Country is rich by reason of the Silken into the Lerritory of watarga in three momes. I hat Country is rich by realon of the Silker manufactures, and therefore they hoped to make a confiderable Booty. Near Malaga there are certain uncouth Mountains called Advarquia, over those Mountains they Marched, plunder. This provoked the Causers, and the reopie of the recommends and incurred an the Paffes. Our Men fought to retire, but could not. There were two Ways, the longest by the Sea, which was plainest, but dangerous, because of the Casile of Malaga, and several Creeks that cross it. The other through which they came was shorter, but very difficult by reason of the Woods and Mountains. Two Mountains particularly close up a deep Vally, through the middle of which runs a River that parts' them. Our Men entred this Valley in a Conflernation, encumbred with the Booty, when on the one fide the Moores attacked them, and on the other they faw the Pass secured by another Party, which added much to their Fear. They were Tyred with Marching two days, Faint for want of Food, and could neither They were Tyred with Marching two days, Faint for want of Food, and could neither go backwards nor forwards. Many were killed with Arrows and Musket Shot, the Moores being very good Marksmen. Night coming on, the Terror increased with the darkness and the continual shouts of the Enemy. Then the Master of Santiago cryed out, How long shall we suffer our selves Fellow-Soldiers to be Slaughtered like sheep? Our Swords and our Valour must open the Way, or at least let us endeavour to Sell our Lives dear, and not distinctly reached to the Top. Near twice as many were taken, and of them 400 of the best Gentry in Spain. Some sew with the Master of Santiago escaped over the desert part of the Mountain, and got to Antequate. Others as chance led them, made their way to other Places. This Misfortune hapned upon the 2rthof March, being the Feath of St. Benediët, usually a day of Joy in Spain, but now converted into Sorrow. Abshardid Brother to King Albohacen, and Governor of Maloga, who Commanded the Moores, gained great Reputation by this extraordinary Success.

THE Sorrow conceived by The Christians for their loss, was soon allayed, by a greater Defeat they gave the Moores. Albohazen and Boabdil the Two Mooris Kings did one another all the harm they could, yet at the fame time both endeavoured to gain the Affection of their People, destroying the Christians. To this purpose Boabdil having gathered a good Body entred the Territory of Ecija, deligning to surprize Lucena a Town more large and rich, than strong. Alatar his Father in Law, who from a mean Condition, role by his Valour to that Honour, gave this Advice. James Fernandtz de Cordova who was Lord of that Town, and some others thereabouts, understanding the design of the Moores, gave advice of the danger he was in to his Unckle, the Earl of Cabra. But few Horse remained in those parts, by reason of the late slaughter, and the Inhabitants of Lucena were in a Consternation parts, by reason of the face fragmen, and the financians of Lateria were first a Commission because their Walls were not Strong to make refiftance. The Moser came before the Town on the 21th of April. The Governour coveyed the Townsmen into the upper Town, and gave the guard of the lower, to 200 Horse and 800 Foot he had got together. They defended it to bravely that the Enemy dispairing of Success, and in a rage for some Men they lost in the Attack, vented their Fury upon the Olive Gardens. Besides, Hamet Abencerrage wasted the Lands of Minilla with 300 Horse. He was familiarly acquainted with James de Gordova, the Family of the Abencerrages having resided at Cordova, when they were Banished out of Granada. Upon account of this acquaintance, he had an interview with James de Cordova defigning to circumvent him. His fraud was disappointed by another policy. The Governor feemed inclinable to furrender the Town, and by that means gained time till the Count de Cabra could come to his Relief. Upon the news of his approach, the Enemy railed the Siege, and began to March off with the Booty which was very great. In the pursuit which lasted till Night, above 1000 Horse were killed, and among them Alatar being 90 Years of Age, about 4000 Foot were either flain or taken. All the Booty was recovered. Having received the news of this Victory, Queen Elizabeth went away to the Borders of Navarre, to haften the Marriage betwixt her Son and that Queen. And King Ferdinand hasted to Andaluzia to profecute the War. Being come to Cordova, it was refolved to raife greater Forces, because after the taking of Boabdil, the Moores were again united under Albohacen, and he had recovered Granada, notwithstanding many of the Citizens hated him for his Cruelty and Avarice. King Ferdinand at the head of 6000 Horse, and 40000 Foot destroyed the Suburbs of Yiora, and having taken Tajara by Assault, utterly destroyed it. Thence he Marched, and Encamping on the plain of Granada, fent out Parties, who burnt and destroyed all about them. King Albabacee having no confidence in the Citizens, durst not venture out of the City, and onely some small Parties came out to endeavour to pick up Staglers. That King Jent to offer the Earl of Cifuentes and Nine more of the principal Prisoners he had taken for his Son Boabdil. He also proposed Conditions of Peace but fuch as were haughty and violent. King Ferdinand answered, he was not come to receive, but to give Laws, and would not hear of any Peace till they laid down their Arms. The Marquels of Cadiz and others, ceafed not to perfuade the King to releafe Boabdil, because it was a mean to keep the Enemy divided, which would redound to our advantage. King Ferdinand having walted the Country and left a good Garrison in Albama under the Command of Trigo Lopez de Mendoça Earl of Tendilla, returned to Cordova. Thither the Moorish King was brought Prisoner from the Castle of Porcuna. Being come before the King he offered to kifs his Hand, but King Ferdinand Embraced and Entertained him courteoufly. After some time they concluded a League upon these Conditions. That Boabdil should give his Eldest Son and 12 other Sons of the principal Moores as Hostages, that he would always continue faithful to King Ferdinand. That he should pay the yearly Tribute of 12000 Ducats and come to the Cortes when Summoned. That in Five years time he should Release 400 Christian Slaves. Upon these terms he was dismissed. King Ferdinand King set having Garrisoned all Towns thereabouts, and given the Government of Evija, and general

Command of those Frontiers to D. Luis Fernandez Portocarrero, set out towards the Quech. Command of those Frontiers to D. Luis vernanaes, correcarrero, set out towards the queen. At the same time 1500 Morish Horse and 4000 Foot under the Command of Besis Governor of Malaga broke into the Territory of Utrera, but were overthrown by Portocarrero and the Marques of Cadiz, near Guadalete. In memory of this good Service, it was granted to the Marquesses of Cadiz for ever, that they should have the Suit of Cloaths the King of Spain wore upon every Feaft of the Nativity of our Bleffed Lady, which is in September. Within the fame Month the Marques recovered Zabara by surprize, King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth went to Vitoria, the with finall hopes that the Marriage defigned would take effect. The Lady went to Fibra, the with man nopes that the Marriage defighed would take effect. The Lady Magdalen pleaded the Queen her Daughter-was Marriageable, and the Prince but a Child. At Fibra and James Fernandez, de Cordova were received with extraordinary Honour, the Cardinal of Toledo with all the Nobility by the King's Order, going out of Town to meet them. A Penfin of 100000 Maravedies was given to the Earl of Cabra for his Life, and to his paternal Coat of Arms was added a Kings Head Crowned, within an Orle Colours, betokening that number taken from the Enemy in their Retreat from Lucena. The Winter Floods carryed away a great part of the Wall of Albama, and the Garrison was for abandoning the Place, but the Earl of Tendilla caufed a Cloth painted in fuch manner that the defect could not be perceived, to be foread along that part. By this project they gained time to repair the Damage before the Enemy understood the Cheat. For want of Money to pay the Garrison, he gave them Pastboard Tickets with his name on the one of Money to pay the Garrison, he gave them Patiboard Lickets with his name on the one side, and the value they were to go for on the other, promiting to make them good as foon as the danger was over. On the 15th of November, the Pope gave a Cardinal's Cap to D. John de Melguerite Bilhop of Girona. He wrote a brief Hiltory of the Kings of Spain, Called Paralisopenea, but enjoyed that Dignity only a few Months. His Body lies at Rome in

The troubles in Navarre did not cease, and the old Factions grew strong through the general Contempt of the Government. To add to all former Misfortunes, a new War broke Rebellion out. John Viscount Narbonne Unckle to Queen Carberine, pretended to have Right to that the contempt of the Kingdom before his Nephews, and alledged that a Woman could not Inherit the Crown. The truth is, he had no Right, and therefore by force of Arms brought all the Earldom of Faux into Subjection. To put an end to these troubles, it was thought convenient to hasten The Lady Magdalen her Mother was for Marrying of her in France.

The People pleaded the ought not to Marry without advice of the Cortes, and thereupon the Inhabitants of Tudela protested, if she were disposed of otherwise, they would deliver up the Town to King Ferdinand. He at the beginning of the Year 1484 held the Cortes of 1484. dragon at Taragona, where nothing remarkable was done, only at first the Catalonians pleaded they ought not to be summoned out of their own Province, yet at last they submitted. Mean while, Catherine Queen of Ngvarre was married to Johnd Albret, Lordof Perigure, Limbes, Dream and many other Places. This Match produced new troubles in Navarre, King Ferdinand deligning to make his advantage of those Confusions, flayed there himself, and sen his Queen to provide for the War in Andaluzia. Albebasen kept up his Authority, and his Son Boabdil had much ado to maintain the Title of King in the City Almeria, that People hating him as a Friend to the Christians, their Preachers employed by his Father never ceasing to rail at him. About 10000 Men from Sevil and Cordova in April wasted all the Lands of Malaga. No relief came to the Moores out of Africk, either because that People was ingaged in other Wars, or because our Fleet Commanding the Sea, gave them no opwas injugged in other trains to because out these commanding the sea, gave them no op-portunity to flir. All our Force being on that fide, the Genegles under the Command of fordieto Doria ravaged all the coasts of Catalonia, and Valencia. A Fleet was therefore rigory upon that Coast, to Curb the Insolency of those Pyrates, Some troubles in Ecclesiastical As apon that Coalt, to Callo the innocency of those xyraces, some troubles in Eccentation Interest fairs required the presence of King Ferdinand to settle them. CHÁP. IV.

The History of SPAIN.

Alora and other Places taken from the Moores; Albohardil usurps the Crown of Granada, and defeats the Earl of Cabra; The Rebellion in Naples; Birth of the Princels Catherine of Castile, afterwards Wife to Henry VIII. King of England.

TN Andaluzia our Forces never ceas'd to harafs the Enemies Country. At Cordona a Council was held to agree about undertaking some Enterprize, and tho the Master of Santiago was of another Opinion, the Marquels of Cadiz his Advice prevailed, which was to attack Alora, a Town almost in the mid-way between Antequera and Malaga. It is fronger by Nature than any addition of Art. The Army was ready to match when King Ferdinand came and approved of the Enterprize. The better to anuze the Enemy, he gave out he was going to put new Forces into Albama, but being come to Antequera turned short, and set down before Alora unexpected. Our Cannon soon beat down part of the Walls, which so terrified the Moores, that they furrendred on the 21th of June, upon Condition to carry their Goods with them. We lost not one Man in this Siege. Several other Places were attacked, and at one called Cagarabonela, where there was a Skirmish with a Body of the Enemy, D. Gutierre de Sotomayor, Earl of Benalcaçar, being too eager, was killed in the prime of his D. Gutterre de Journalyn, Lati of Bennesyll, being too bagos, was since in in Billied in Age. Alter this 300 Knights of Calatrava were put into Albama, under the Command of Garzi Lopez de adalla, cholen Mafter of that Order, in the place of Roderick Tellez Giran, decased. The King tharched on, and incamped in fight of foranda. His Army conflict of 6000 Horfe, and scarce 10000 Foot. In the City there were reported to be 70000 Combatants, a number scarce to be believed. However King Ferdinand ravaged all that place, and having fpent 50 days in this Expedition, returned with his Army entire, and loaded with Plunder to the Christian Territories. The Command of Alora he gave to Luis Fernandez. Portocarrero. D. Alwaro de Mendoça, Farl of Castro, was made Admiral, that he being a Man of fingular Conduct, might hinder any Succours from passing out of Africa. After the heat of the Summer was over the Christians again took the Field. They battered a Castle near Malaga called Septenil, which the Besieged, terrified with the Cannon, surrendred, being payed for the Provisions they lest behind them. Thence our Army marched towards Ronda, a strong and almost inacceffible City, being feated betwixt craggy Mountains, the greatefl part of it encompassed by a River, the rest covered with Rocks. The Inhabitants of this place were Resolute and Warlike, and well provided with all Necessaries for their Defence. Our Forces being come in fight of the Walls, destroyed all the Orchards and Olive Trees thereabouts, but Money growing short to pay the Soldiers, they made but a short stay there. The aboute, but Money growing and the King and Queen went away to Sevil, and came to that City upon the 2d of Ottober. In the month of January, 14855, the King took the Field, thinking to furprize the City Loxa, but dessited by reason of the Rains and bad Weather, as also because a Soldier of Note, called John de Ortega, said, that design was impractither, as allo became a Soliter of Note, called John 20 Nigg, lath, that tength was impractable. The Nobility came in daily with their Troops, so that in a little time the Army amounted to 9000 Horfe, and 20000 Foot. With this Force it was decreed to profecute the War. At the fame time the Citizens of Almeria, as if their King Bookbil were the Cause of all their Misfortunes, affaulted his Palace, killed his Brother, and fecured his Mother, who had been the chief Incendiary betwixt the Father and Son. King Bookbil himself being then out of the the Mosrift Town, as foon as he received the News of that Mistortune, Red with a few Followers to Cor-King flies dona. The Inhabitants of Ronda, whose numbers were much decreased, were in a great Confternation. A Moore called Joseph Xerife, gave notice of it to the Marquess of Cadix, and it was decreed to undertake that Enterprize. First they attacked a Town called Cohine near Alora, which they took by Affault, and razed because it was too large to be defended. Another Town called Cartama, of which all the Valley takes Name, was also taken. The Master of Santiago was made Governor of it at his own Request. This done they marched to Ma. laga, where Albehardil, the Moorish King's Brother, resided, in whose Valour the Mores chiefly confided, for the Reputation he gained in the Slaughter of the Christians on the Mountains of Malaga. Little was done there, and the Army returned the way it came to Ronda. The Forces were divided into 5 parts, that they might encompals the Town on all fides. The King with the greatest Body encamped before the Castle. All the Avenues were secured that no Succours might get into the Town, which was then much weakned, a great number of the Inhabitants being abroad upon Parties to plunder in Andalufia. For these Reasons, and because the Christians advanced their Works with great Industry, the Besieged surrendred upon Articles the 23d of May. Among the other Conditions it was agreed, that some of the Principal Inhabitants should have Revenues affigned them at Sevil, out of the Estates of Gangalo Picon, and others condemned by the Inquisition. A good Garrison was put into that City. Several other Towns along the Mountain furrendred, the chief whereof were Cagarabonela, and Marbella, which lies near the Sea. The Moores were in a great Confternation, and had little help in their Kings, the one being fled, the other ancient, fickly, and almost blind. This moved them to choose for their King Muley Albebardil, who resided at Malaga, and was a Man of great Courage and Conduct. He immediately accepted of the Crown they offered him, went away to Granada; and entred that City in Triumphant manner, being proud that he had killed 90 Christians by the way, who lay very secure upon Sierra Nevada. The Citizens with great Acclamations proclaimed him King. Albahazen at the beginning of this Mutiny went away to Abinificear, where his Treasure lay. There his cruel Brother caused him to be Murdered, only to secure himself in the Throne he had usurped.

King Ferdinand, tho many were of Opinion the Soldiers who were haraffed with the late Expeditions ought to reft, commanded the Army to Rendezvous at Alcala Real, because that Town was upon the Frontiers, and went himself thither from Cordena upon the first of September, notwithstanding the Heat was excessive, that part of the Country being naturally hotter than the rest of Spain. The Earl of Cabra desiring to signalize himself, begged he might first enter the Moorish Territories, as he did with 700 Horse and 2000 Foot. He was ordered to take with him Martin Alonso de Montemayor, and to sit down before Moclin, a strong Town near Granada, the King promifing to back them with the whole Army. The Earl marched day and night to furprize the new King Albahardil, who he understood was quartered near that place with 1500 Horse, and a greater number of Foot. This Design being dis Christian's covered to the Moore, he removed to a Hill, and at break of day fell upon the Christians in defeated. certain Defiles with fuch fury, that the best Soldiers were killed, and most of the Foot. The Earl lost his Brother Gonzalo, and he with a few Horse fled towards the way where he expected to meet Garti Lopez de Padilla, Master of Calatrava, who followed those that had advanced before. This Loss so troubled King Ferdinand, that he retired for some time. On the Frontier near Jaen, are two Towns and Castles called Cambil, and Albabar. The River Frio runs betwixt them, and tho small, is difficult to be waded, because of its high Banks. Both these Places were belieged, Albahar is beyond the River, and near it is a Hill that commands it, on which the King, tho with much labour, caufed the Cannon to be planted. This fo terrified the Moores, that they furrendred both Towns and Castles on the 23d of September. being the very day on which they were lost 120 years before. After this the King put the Army into Winter Quarters, and went himself with the Queen to Aleala de Henares. During this Expedition died D. Alonso de Aragon, Duko de Villabermosa, the King's Brother, a brave Commander. His Body was deposited at Baeça, and thence translated to Poplete, the burial-place of his Ancestors. Of him are descended the Dukes of Villabermosa, and Earls of Ribagorça. In Toledo the Inquisition severely punished those who renouncing the Christian Faith became Jews. A great number of those People who were reconciled, and implored Mercy, was pardoned. They are now called De la Gracia, that is, the People of Grace. The Nobility of Naples had now raifed a Bloody War against their King Ferdinand, upon the Rebellion usual Pretences. Pope Innocent savoured them, but it was rather in Words than Effect, for he in Naples. was ancient, and otherwife employed. The chief of the Conspirators were the Princes of Sathe King's Son, under-hand supported the Rebels, but this could never be proved. The Wicked Life of Alonjo, Duke of Calabria, the King's Eldest Son, was one great Motive of this Revolt. The King resolved to reduce the Rebels rather by Policy than Force, and therefore gave his General Pardon to all the Mutiniers. King Ferdinand of Spain also sent the Earl of Tendilla his Ambassador, to ingage to those Noblemen for their safety, provided they laid down their Arms. But the King of Naples, as foon as the Storm was over, made no account of those Promises, and at several times, as occasion served, seized the Heads of the Rebellion, and put them all to death. King Ferdinand of Castile ceased not to protest against those Proceedings, but he of Naples ceased not to proceed in cutting off his Enemies, which proved stall to him at last, as we shall see in its place. Let us turn back. On the 16th of December Queen Elizabeth at Aloala de Henares, was delivered of a Daughter, called Catherine, well known in the World as Wife to two Brothers, Sons to the King of England, and for her great Sufferings caused by the inordinate Lust and infidelity of her Husband, which also drew great Calamities upon the whole English Nation. Their Sins and Rebellion drew Judgments upon them. Richard III. having murdered his Two Nephews, Edward and Richard, the rightful Heirs of the Crown, usurped the Kingdom. He Govern'd like a Tyrant, and ended accordingly. Henry Earl of Richmond, who had been a Prisoner in Britany, having obtained his Liberty, overthrew the Tyrant in Battle, and killed him. By that means he fecured the Crown to himself. This Henry had a Son called Henry like himself, who was the Eighth of that Name King of England, and famous for his Incontinency, for putting away Catherine his Wife, and for dislowning the Supremacy of the Pope, besides many other Crimes which have lest an indelible frain upon his Name.

The Tumults in Aragon, and Caralonia; Several Towns taken from the Moores: A Sedition in Galicia; King Albohardil attacks the Castle call'd Albaizin in Granada. and is repulsed; Azamor on the Coast of Africk delivered to the Portugueses.

Tumules Some small Tumules hapned in Aragon, but those in Catalania were more dangerous, yet in Aragon the Prudence of King Ferdinand overcame them all. The City Zaragoga is seated in a and Cata. Plain on the Banks of the River Etre, and is in Beauty, Riches, and number of Inhabitants, almost equal to the best in Spain. This Place has often Mutinicid in defence of its Priviledges, as it hapned at this time. John de Burgos, the King's Alguazis, gave some ill Language to Peter Gerdan, the Chief of the Aldermen, and Head of their Counsel. Others coming in apprehended the Alguazil, Tried, Condemned, and Hanged him, which was a great Affront apprenended the aigmazii, 11ecq, Condemned, and Hanged him, which was a great Affront to the King. He was then upon the point of entring upon the Kingdom of Grandas with his Army, and therefore fent Orders to John Hirnandez de Heredia, supream Governor of that Kingdom, to punish all that had a Hand in that Affair with the utmost rigor, and at the same time told the Deputies sent by the City, that no harm should be done; for he was expert in Dissembling. The Head of the Aldermen could not be apprehended, because the Chief Hoster of Advance received with the Maria Person who was the new to the same and the same considerable. Chief Juffice of Aragon protected him, but Martin Persusa, who was the next, and had been very active in the Business of the Alguazis, was suddenly Executed, the King's Letters being carried before him upon a Spear to awe the People, who were ready to Rescue him. This furck/a Terror into the others, and fo the Sedition was appealed. Soon after another Tumult hapned upon account of a more Hainous Crime than the latt. Peter Arbue was Inquistror in that City, and punished Offenders according to their Crimes. Certain wicked Murderers, under colour of flanding up for their Liberties, attempted to Murder him in his Bed, but not being able to force the Iron Bars of his Window, they Stabbed him in the Church before the High Altar, as he was a Mattin, on the 14th of September. He died not till the night following, which time he spent in Singing Prailes to Almighty God. His Body was buried in the same place where they Murdered him, and son after a Lamp was hung over his Grave, an Honour never allowed to any but Canonized Saints Charles V. the Emperor, obtained of Pope Paul III. that his Feast might be Celebrated on the 15th of September, as is duely now observed. All his Murderers died unfortunately within a year. After this, for the fafety of the Inquisitors, they were lodged in the Castle called Del Aljaferia. This in Aragon. lately of the inquintors, they were longed in the Lante Cancer Distribution. In Sin Energy, In Catalonia, and particularly the Territory of Ampurios, those Vallals who are vulgarly called Pagefes, were opprefied by their Landlords, and Treated like Slaves. Those Lords obliged them to pay the heavy impositions laid on them by the Moores, pleading Prescription to justific this Proceeding. The Histories of Catalonia do not mention what Impositions these were, they only fay they were very heavy, and that none was exempt from them but fine as Ran-formed themselves like Slaves. This moved the People often to take up Arms to deliver them-felves from that Tyranny, but the Efforts of the Multitude for the most part are weak. They had recourse to their Kings for Redress, and several of them ordered those Impositions to be moderated, yet the Nobility would not part with any thing of what had been left them by their Anceltors. King Ferdinand at laft, with his usual Success, and good Conduct, put an end to all those Debates. From Aleala de Henarea the King and Queen went to Segovia, and thence to Medina del Campo. By the way they visited D. Garria de Toledo, created by the King Duke of Alva, who now lived retired by realon of his great Age, having left his Son Frederick to serve in his place. This the King did not only to Honour him, but to Reconcile him to the Constable Peter Fernandez de Velasco, to whom with D. Alans de Fonsca, Archbishop of Sevil, he intended to leave the Government of Castile, whilst he prosecuted the War in 1482. Granada. In order to it he went to Guadalape, where on the 28th of April he decided the Affair of the Pagefes, ordaining, that in lieu of the old Imposition every one of those Vaffals flouid pay to his Lord 70 Sueddos, or Shillings of Buredona yearly, which the a heavy Burden, was joyfully accepted by those People, and the more for that they were allowed to buy it off at 20 years purchase. Thus after long Disputes that part of Spain was pacified. In Portugal all was quiet fince the death of those Nobles we have fooken of, and the King laboured in to make his Kingdom renowned. Azamor, a City in Mauritania Tingitana on the Ocean, having formerly been Tributary to the King of Portugal, now took an Oath of Fidelity to him, and in acknowledgment of fubjection obliged it felf to give yearly 10000 Alofas, which is a fort of Fish that abounds there. It was a greater Honour to that Nation and its Princes, that they had not only formerly maintained their Liberty, and Erected a Kingdom to which they had no good Title, but did now fubdue remote Cities and Provinces to their great glory and advantage.

The Kingdom of the Moores decayed apace: Civil Discord confumed them no less than the Enemy abroad. In the City of Granada, Boabdil being called in by his Party, possessible of a Castle called Albayem, and the Citizens sought and killed one another in the Streets. Divisions Yet they joined to oppose the Christians, and the danger being over to War among themfelves again. An Alfaqui, which is in the Nature of a Priest, esteemed a Holy Man, went about the Streets proclaiming their Madness, and threatning speedy ruin unless they grew wifer in time. His Words moved the People, and therefore through his Mediation, and of others of his Prolession, the Two Kings came to an Agreement upon these Terms. That the Uncle flould fill keep Granada, Almeria, and Malaga; all the rest should belong to his Nephew Boabdil, who, I guess, resided in the Albayein before mentioned, tho our Historians do not mention it. Their chief design was, that Boabdil should have all those Places which they imagined the Christians would first attack, because he was in League with King Ferdinand, The Christians were not ignorant of their Policy, therefore having altembled their Forces they refolved to attempt Loxa. Boabdil advanced with 500 Horfe to flop the passage of our Men, who were to march through uncouth and difficult ways. Nevertheless they came to the Suburbs of the City, where they had a Skirmish with the Moores whom they forced back into Lorg and Suburbs of the City, where they had a samining with the Walls. The Army was divided into 3 parts, the better to compals the Town, and the other Bridge that led to it broken down. But the Christians built two others, to fecure the Communication nication for themselves. A breach being made by the Cannon, and all things in readines to nication for intentions. A relation being made by the Cambon, and an timing in readines to affault it, the City furrendred the 9th day of the Siege, capitulating for liberty to depart with as much of their Goods as they could carry. Boabdit coming to the Camp, fell down on his Knees, protelling it was againft his Will he had broke his Faith, and that he was forced to it. His Excufes were allowed, and he pardoned, because it was convenient to wink at his Faults, to keep up the Division that was among the Moores. King Ferdinand fortified the City, and gave the Command of it to Alvaro de Luna, Lord of Fuentidueña, and Grandson to the Constable D. Alvaro de Luna. This done he marched to reduce other Places. Some few Contable D. Astrono are Limb.

Institute in indicated to reduce other Flaces. Some rew made refifiance, but in vain, the most furrendered. Among others Ilbravas taken on the 28th of June, and after it Baron, Zagra, and Macin. Some of these Places were very frong, and might have held out long, being near Granada, whence they could be relieved. The Command of Illora was given to Gonçalo Fernandez de Cordova, afterwards the famous General in Italy. The Citizens of Granada used to call Illera the Right Eye, and Maclin the Bucklet of that City, for which reason they began to despair of maintaining themselves, besides that the Chuistians destroyed all the Country about them. Nevertheless Albohardul sent part of his Horse to the Bridge called De los Pinos, a Place well known for the Slaughter of our Men made there formerly. These were to hinder the Christians passing the River Xenil. He himself stayed in the City to prevent Disorders. The Naores could not hinder the Christians pass. fing the River, but charged the Left Squadron that passed, which was commanded by D. Third de Mendoça Duke del Infamado. Our Men were hard put to it, being beset by 1000 Horse and 10000 The language Duke are suparanan. Our intentwee narrupur to income peace by 1000 frorte and 10000 Foot, but the other Forces coming to their Refeue the Moores retired. Still our Men purfued close upon their Rear, and the Fight was renewed in the Olive Gardens of the City. D. John de Aragon, Earl of Ribagorga, fignalized himfelf in this Ingagement, and had his Horse killed under him. King Ferdianad, the Summer being near spent, Garrisoned the Towns he had taken and last. Frederick, Son to the Duke of Alva, to Command on the Frontiers, by that means ending the Competition betwixt the Nobility of Andaluzia about that Post. At this time Galicia was in an uproar, because the Earl of Lemos had possessed thinself of Pop-ferrada, a very strong Town, and turned out the King's Garrison. The Earl upon his sub-mission was pardoned, only that Town with some others were taken from him, and annexed to the Crown. The King and Queen having performed their Devotions at Santiago, returned to Salamanca, at the beginning of the year 1487. Here they refolved to creek a new fupream Court in Galicia, to curb that Mutinous People. Frederick, Son to the Duke of Alva, was ambitious of fignalizing himfelf. A great number of Christian Caprives that were kept in the Dungeons of Malaga gave intelligence, that if the Christians attempted the Town, they would break Prison, and let them into the Town. Six hundred Horse sent by him to this purpose were disappointed, because the Rivers were swelled and impassable. In the City Grabial the Animolnites ran as high as ever betwirt the Two Aborish kings, insomuch that Alberts hands because the Animolnites range. bardil having brought Forces from Guadix and Baça, attacked the Caltle of Albaicin and entred it. Boabdil coming on with his Guard, foon repulfed his Enemy. They fought desperately in the place before the great Mosque, and many were killed on both sides. King Ferdinamed came from Salamanea to Cordova on the 2d of March. Thence, understanding the danger that King his Confederate was in, he fent him Succours under the Command of Ferdinand Alvarez de Gadea, Commander of Colomera, With this Supply he gained much upon his Adversary, to the great destruction of the Citizens, who like Mad men ran to their Ruin, siding with the Two Kings.

King Fert T was debated at Cordova how to carry on the War. Some were for belieging Baça, o. The King resolved to attempt Malaga, because it lay opportunely for the Moores to receive Succours out of Africk, the passage there being but short. He set out of Cordeva on the 7th of April, without communicating his Design to any Body. His Army confifted of 12000 Horse and 4000 Foot. Being come upon the Moorish Territories he dis consider that the state of the Inflorence of the known, all the Soldiers readily promifed to undergo any labour or danger, flewing their readines to follow wherefoever he would lead. In their March the Army attacked Velez, a Town near Malaga. The Garrifon fallying, fell upon the Troops of Galicia, which, the couragious enough, not being well Difciplined, were worsted, till other Forces coming up, the Enemy were drove within the Walls. The Suburbs being taken, the Artillery was planted to batter the Town. All the Country about rose to succoun the Besieged, but to no purpose. Albohardil understanding the Design of the Christians, resolved to relieve that City, on which his whole Kingdom depended. To this purpose he sent before Reduan Venegas, Governor of Ins whose Kingdom depended. 10 this purpose he is to those Remain's energial, Governor of Granada, a brave Soldier, with fome Foot, and 300 Horfe, promiting to follow them very feeddly. Reduan designed to surprize our Guards, and nail the Caumon. His Design failed. The Moorish King came, and incamped on a Ground difficult of access near the Town. In his Army were 20000 Horse, and a like number of Foot. Tho weaker than the Christians the About the Mooria of County lights forms him is regulable lights. he thought the advantage of Ground might fecure him; it availed him not, for the Christians charged him, forced his Works, and plundered his Baggage. Their Confernation was fuch that all fled, and what was worst, the poor King being overthrown and forsaken, the People of Granda at his return shut the Gates against him. This done, they all unanimously proclaimed his Competitor Boabdil. No hopes of Relief being left, Velex was furrendred on the 27th of April, upon Condition the Inhabitants might depart whither they pleafed, carrying their Goods with them. Immediately upon the furrender of Velez, another Town near it called Bentome opened its Gates, and received a Garrison. The Government of this Town was given to Peter Navarro, who being by Birth a Mean Person, and but a Private Sailer, became a most famous Captain. The People of Malaga despairing that they should be able to hold out long, Abencomina their Governor, with the affishance of John de Robles, who had been long a Slave in Malaga, came to the Army to Treat of a Surrender. Certain Soldiers of Barbary who were in Garrison there, having notice of this Design, searing left they should be delivered up to the Enemy, and in a rage because they had not been consulted in that Affair, possessed themselves of the Castle that commands the City, called Aleagava, turned out the Garrison that was in it, and killed a Brother of Abencomixa. Then placing Guards on the Walls, and shutting the Gates, they put any of the Townsmen to death that were fuspected of holding Correspondence with the Christians. The thoughts of a Surrender failing, the King caused heavy Cannon to be brought from Antequera, and incamped on the right the King Caused neary Cannon to be brought from Amyran, and are more 15th of May before Malaga. The City is feated on a Plain, but on a rifing Ground are two Caffles, the lowest called Alcagava, the highest Gebalfaro. It is small in compass, but beautiful, and well Peopled. It is also a Seaport Town, and towards the Land is encompassed with Mountains, on which are many Orchards and Country-Houses. Between the two Castles tuns a Line of Communication. The Country is pleafant and fruitful, and was then rich by reason of the Trade of Africk, and the East. In the King's Army was most of the Nobility of Andaluxia and Callile, and many Aragonians. It was refolved to draw a Trench round the City, to terminate at the Sea on both fides, and to keep a Force on the Hill on which the lesser Fort stands. The Marques of Cadiz commanded on the Hill. The Queen came to the Siege, and with her the Cardinal of Spain, and Billop of Avilla. Many Skimilhes hapned before the Trenches were finished, in one of which John de Ortega, who had done great Service this War, was killed. On the 29th of May 3000 Moores fallied, and attacked the Marquels of Cadix his Quarters, killing the Out-guards, and entring his Works. The Marquess nothing daunted, having drawn up his Men, charged the Enemy. Many were killed on both fides, and the Marquess wounded, but at last the Infidels were obliged to retire. Some in the Town believing themselves lost, resolved to kill the King. Among these, one who was accounted a Holy Man, to compass his Design; suffered himself to be taken He defired to be carried before the King, who at that time, as God ordered it, was taking his rest, therefore the Queen commanded him to be carried before the Marquels of Meja. The Moor, by the Riches he faw in the Tent, guek'd it to be the King's, and drawing a Cimiter, which through overfight had not been taken from him, made at D. Alvaro de Portugell, who was accidentally talking with the Lady Marchionefs. He bowing his Body, escaped the Blow, and the More was killed by those that came in to rescue D. Alvare. Thus through God's Mercy that danger was diverted. The Army was increased by the arrival of the Duke of Medina Sidonia. Maximilian Duke of Austria, who was afterwards Emperor, sent two Ships from Flanders laden with all manner of Warlike Stores, under the Command of D. Ladren de Guevara. The number of the Besieged also increased, for that some got into the City through Guevara. The hannes of the beneged and interact, or that tonic got into the City through the Works next the Sea. Hunger pinched, and yet the Barbary Soldiers would hear of no capitulation. The Citizens were for furrendring. One of them called Dardux, a Man of great Note, went out to Capitulate. The King faid, there were no Conditions to be allowed, but they mult furrender upon Differetion. This was in publick, but under-hand he lowed, but they must interiest upon Direction. This was in publics, our under-nano ne promifed Dordax, that if he managed that Busines well, he and all his Kindred should not only be fer free, but well Rewarded. The Moore undertook to do it, and accordingly admitted the Christians into the Castle, and fet up their Colours on the highest Tower. This terrified both the Citizens and Barbary Soldiers, yet at the same time they hoped the Capitulation made by Dordux would extend to them all. For this reason they packed up their Goods to depart; but they were deceived, for their Goods and Liberty were taken from them. The fame happed they were declared, by the Cooks and Enberty were taken from them. The fame napped to the Soldiers who drew out near the Sea to march away. All the Africans, with their Commander Zegri, were made Prisoners. Many Christians who had fled to the Moore were put to death. The Jenn who after being Baptized, had relapsed, were burnt. All the other Tews and Moores, who were Natives of the City, were allowed to Ranfom themselves at an Rejoycing and Thankfgiving throughout all Spain. It appeared, that in the time of the Galbi The general Joy for this Success was fomewhat abated by the News that Bajazzet, the Great Turk, provided a mighty Fleet to invade Sicily, by that means to divert the Spaniards from the Conquest of Granada.

Whilst the Moores were running to ruin, the Portugueses sending out Fleets every year, o Discover while the moore were mining to run, the twinging enturing our rices every year, o become period themselves a way to the Eastern Countreys. A mighty Undertaking, first commenced, rices of as has been said, by Prince Henry, who first caused the Coast of Africk, along the Ocean, the Associated This Work was continued several years after without intermission. But wastern to be discovered. This Work was continued several years after without intermission. But the Profit in those Discoveries not answering the Trouble and Cost, they designed to pass onward to the rich Provinces of India, to bring home to their Country the Riches of those Parts, which Heaven had so largely bestowed upon those People, as all forts of Spice, Precious Stones, Pearls, Gold, Silver, Ivory, and many other Things which the infatiable Pride of Man rather than Necessity has caused to be highly valued. Things strange and at that great diffance are never truly reprefented, but highly magnified. It was reported there were Woods of great tall Trees, of Cinnamon, Caffiafithula, and Cloves, great flore of Pepper and Ginr, Beafts of extraordinary Shapes, and Men of strange Customs and Countenances. The ger, Beatts of extraordinary onapes, and recent of manage cancellar and continuous wifer for thought is a great Madneß for a Kingdom fo finall, and of little ftrength as Portugal, to feek out those Nations, seated in respect to them, in the utmost bounds of the Earth, and parted from them by sich a vast Ocean. But all Difficulties yielded to Avarice and Ambition. To this purpose the King of Portugal some years since fent Bartholomew Diaz, an able Pilot, to the Cape of Good Hope, which is the utmost point of Africk to the South, and beyond the Equinostial. He passed that Cape, and came to a River which he called Del Infante. With Bartholomew Diaz went F. Antony of the Order of S. Francis, who was an Active and Bold Man. He having viewed a great part of Africk and Affia, travelous from that place came at last to Hierafalem. Lastly, he returning by Land, and Bartholomening Diazo by Sea, gave an Account to the King of what they had discovered. This encouraged the Portuguest to proceed in 6 great an Undertaking. For the better carrying on of their Defignt, they chole two Men of Courage and Experience, and that were great Mafters of the Arebie Language, to proceed in this Discovery, one of them was Peter Covillam, and the other Alons de Payva. To save the vast Charge of a Fleet they were sent by Land to discover the inferior Parts of Africk and Afa, each of them taking one of those Parts of the World for his Province. With these Instructions they set out of Lubon on the 15th of May, took Naples and Rome in their way, thence passed to Hurusalem, then to Alexandria, and so to Grand Caire, the principal City of Egypt. Here they parted, Peter Cavillam for Ormaz, an Illand at the mouth of the Persian Gulph, and thence to Calicut. Alons de Payva undertook to examine the Inland of Ethiopia, where he died. For this Reason, and because he received Letters from the King, ordering him not to return till he had furveyed all those Provinces, Peter Cowillam went into Ethiopia, Alexander, Nan, and David, fucceffively Emperors of Ethiopia, and vulgarly called Prefer John, took an Affection to Covillam, and therefore would not fuffer him to return home, but gave hima Wife and Land to live upon. Since he could not return, he thence fent an Account to the King in Writing of all he had feen. He faid Calicut was the Richest and most famous Place of Trade in all the East, the Inhabitants of a Sallow Complexion, not Warlike, and Extravagant in their manner of living: That they went Naked from the Waste upwards, wore much Gold and Silk, their Arms loaded with Pearls, a Cimiter hanging from their Shoulders. That one Woman Married several Husbands, for which reason no body Knowing the Father, the Nephews, being Sons of Sisters, Inherited. That in Ethiopia were many large Provinces of Blacks, that they all profess Christianity, but much corrupted with Jewish and Heretical Customs. That they were all subject to one power-Mmm 2

ful King who maintained mighty Armies of Horse and Foot, and always lived in the Field. To conclude, that he believed those People might be easily reconciled to the Church, if Ambaffadors were fent, and Peace and Commerce fettled with them. But most of these things hapned some Years later. It is time to return to Castile. .

Troubles in Arazon ftop the progress of the

A Fter the taking of Malaga, when King Ferdinand thought to have gone on in his Conqueft, the troubles in Aragon obliged him to go thither, to put a top to the Murders and Robberies committed there. At Valencia D. Philip de Aragon Master of the Order of Montesa killed John de Valterra, a noble Youth and his Rival, for both Courted the Lady Ellenor Marchiones of Corron, and Daughter of Ambony Centellas, which occasioned great Tumults in that City. To obviate their harms, King Ferdinand fet out from Condeva, and arrived at Zaragoga on the 19th of November. The manner of choosing Magistrates in that City was altered. The Council and Commons used before to have the Election of them, and now because that produced Disputes and Mutinies, they defired for the Future the Nomination of them should be in the King. Besides the Towns associated after the manner of Cashie, each engaging to contribute to the Maintenance of 150 Horse, who were to Travel about, and punish all Malesactors. It was Ordained that the King should have the choosing of the Captain of this Affociation, or Brotherhood, out of 3 Citizens of Zaragoça, named by the Council of that City. Laws were also Enacted to prevent their abuling the Power given them. This was concluded at the beginning of the Year 1488. At the same time came Leonard, Tocos a Grecian, and of the Family of the Grecian Emperors (whom the Turks had drove out of his Dominions, and obliged to fly into Italy) Ambassador from the King of Naples, to conclude the Match before proposed betwirt the Grandson of that King, and the Princes Elizabeth, Daughter to King Ferdinand. This Affair took not Effect, because the King defigned to Marry his Daughter to the King of France, or elfe to the Prince of Portugal, hoping that would be a fecure Band of friendship with either of those Nations. Instead of her, he offered his other Daughter the Princes Mary. From Zaragega the Kingand Queen went to Valencia, thither came to them Alan Father to John d'Albret, King of Navarre, He came to ask Succour against the King of France who had Conquered part of that Kingdom, and the Navarrois themselves who were in Rebellion, particularly the Biamonteses were posses fed of great part of Navarre, and kept the King out; notwithflanding, but three Years before all things had been agreed, and the Earl of Lerin with his whole Family and followers had been reflored to their Possessions, and others given them that they might rest contented. It was also proposed that the King should Protect Francis Duke of Britany, whose Daughter Ann, many Princes fought to have to Wife, because he had no Heir Male. Charies the 8th, King of France made War on him on this account. Monsieur d'Albret and the Duke of Orleans favoured that Duke. Maximilian then King of the Romans was affaulted by the People of Bruges in Flanders, and kept Prifoner. All these things troubled the King because Maximilian was a friend to Spain, and A Albert who gave the Intelligence, his Confederate. In fine a League was concluded betwirt the King and Alan, against all Princes, except the King of France, whom it was not convenient for Alan or his Son to disoblige, because their Dominions were either in his Power, or at least lay exposed to him, yet all this was Counterfeit, for the real delign was to make use of the Forces of Spain against France. It was agreed among other things, that a Fleet should be fittedout on the Coast of Biscay, and Men raised to be fent to Britany, under the Command of Michael John de Gralla a Catalonian. All this Affair was Concluded and Signed on the 2 th of March.

The Cortes of Valencia were opened in that City, and broke up at Originala, to fettle that Placesta. Country, which done, King Ferdinand made hast through the Kingdom of Murcia, that borthe Mooret, and fubduing that Country where Albohardil with much difficulty supported the Title of a King, the till stronger than his Nephew, as being possessed Guadin Almeria, and Baça, with all the Mountain Country of Granada, which was as far as the Sea, whence he gathered a greater Revenue because the Mountain was untouched, besides the great advantage made of the filken Manufacture which is the best of all Spain. The Natives hated Boabalil, looking upon him as a Coward and Friend to the Christians, and Albohardil had gained Reputation by taking a great Booty about Alealà Real. John de Benavides who Commanded there, toon revenged this Lois, burning all the Territory of Almeria. The Warlike preparations were not carried on with that Vigour the King could have wished, because Andalozsia had suffered this Year and the laft by the Plague. The King Ordered the Rendezvouz to be at Murcia, where he was resolving to Attack Vera, a Town upon the Sea-coast. No resistance was made, but it surrendred on the 10th of June. Mussacra, Velez el Blanco and Velez el Rubis with feveral other Towns and Castles that were not well Fortified did the same: The King was defirous to lav Siege to Almeria, a City in that Neighbourhood. An impregnable Castle was definition to lay olege to zameria, a city in that renginoun noon. An impregnante Called Taberna flood in the way, and the old Moorijh King came in Person with 1000 Horley and 20000 Foot to put a Garrison into it, resolving to lie in the Woods and cut off our Parties, and avoid coming to a Battle, because his Men were raw and undisciplined. The Enemy refuling to Fight, our Forces had the more liberty to walt the Country Most harm was done about Almeria and Baga, which is a finitful Country because watered. The Channels that convey the Water were the occasion that many of our Men were cut off, and a mong them D. Philip de Aragon Master of the Order of Montesa, a forward and brave Youth, The Moores mong them D. Fruit are avagent matter or the Order of money, a norward and drave Youth. 10 except King Ferdinand, his Forces being weak, and he called away upon other Affairs, having Gar, recover rifoned the Frontiers, went away towards Caftile. No fooner was he gone, but the Moeriff, the left King recovered all the Towns had been taken from him. Mean while the Inhabitants of Guafin a very strong Town near Ronda conspiring, put all the Garrifon to the Sword. It was not long before they received the reward of that Action, for the neighbouring Moores to shew they had no hand in that Slaughter, and fearing leaft they should suffer for it, assembled and laid Siege to Guafin. The Marques of Cadix and Earl of Cifuenter came with Forces from Sevil to their Assistance, and having taken the Town, in Revenge either put all the Inhabitants to the Sword, or fold them as Slaves. King Ferdinand came to Valladolid upon the 6th of September. There an opportunity was offered him of recovering the City Placencia, which the late Kings had Alienated, and given to the Family of Zaniga. D. Aloaro de Zaniga dying, a Grandson of his, whose Father was dead before, Inherited his Ettate. Janus de Zul. niga Unckle to the Heir pretended he had a better Right, as being Son to the deceased. The Kindred was divided between both. Thus the Family of the Caravajate feized the City, but could not make themselves Malters of the Cathe which was well defended by the Garrison. King Ferdinand coming to appeale that Sedition, seized all, D. Alvaro the new Duke surrendring, and contenting himself with the Town of Bejar and its Dependancies in lieu of that City. This struck a Terror into all the Nobility, fearing they should be forced to reflore to the King now grown strong, all they had extorted from his Predecessors in times of Consulsion. New Tumults broke out in Aragon, upon account that the Nobility were for breaking off the Association not long since formed betwirt the Cities, as a thing that Curbobtained the Aflociation should be disloved for Ten Years. John de Englea and Alavor Arranio were sent Ambassassis to Flanders, to procure the Eiberty of Maximilian King of the were left Ambanadors to Finance's to produce the Liberty of Maximum Ming of the Romans, imprifioned by the People of Bruger. They managed their business fo well that he was Released and Reconciled to his Subjects. His first. Wile the Lady Mary, to whom belonged the Dominion of Flanders being dead, he aspired to Marry the Princes Elizabeth of Cafile. Her Father and Mother did not confent, because she was promised in Portugal, yet they offered one of that Princes's Sisters for Philip his Son and Heir. Prederick the Emperor, his Grandfather upon this defign of Marrying him in Spain gave him the Title of Archduke of Austria, whereas before they were only called Dukes. The Fleet the Lord d' Albrie was fitting out on the Coalt of Bifeay, contributed much towards the obtaining the Liberty of Maximilian, the People of Brugs being jealous it was deligned against them. The Fleet Sailed to Britany, where the Duke of Orleans and his Consederates were overthrown by the King, the Duke and John Gralla who Commanded the Spaniards were made Prifoners, as shall be faid hereafter.

CHAP. VIII.

The Masterships of all the Military Orders in Spain, annexed to the Crown for ever; Three Cities and other Places taken from the Moores; Elizabeth Princess of Castile Married to Alonso Prince of Portugal & His and his Fathers death.

A T the end of this Year died Gazri Lopez de Padilla, Mafter of Calatreva. Many affired Mafter to that Dignity, but King Ferdinand by virtue of a Bull obtained of Pope Innocent to this of that purpose, annexed it to the Crown. The same was afterwards done with the other Ma-Military fterships, whence it followed that rewards due to Soldiers were afterwards bestowed on orders and Courtiers. The usual Consustons at the Election of those Masters, and the Lowness of the the Kings Revenue were the cause of this Alteration. In the East Bajanet the Turk gathered a mighty Army and Fleet, which Allarmed all the Christian Princes, but his design was against the Soldan of Egypt. Only 11 Galliots of Pyrats invaded the Island of Malta, and plundered it all up to the very Walls of the City. This Island having Two Ports, can contain any Fleet. The Ports are divided by a point of Land called of Santelmo. This Point it was judged necessary to Fortifie, that the Enemy might not possess themselves of the Island, and from thence Infest the Coasts of the Christians. A Fleet Sailed from Sicily in search of their Pyrats, but came too late, for they were gone with their Booty. Another Fleet Sailed from Spain, with Ferdinand de Acaña who went Viceroy into Sicily. It was defigned not only to defend their own Coalts, but to Invade those of Africk. King Ferdinand joined in a League with the King of England, and Hoose of Austria, against the King of France.

All this tended towards fubduing of the Kingdom of Naples, which some of the Banished Nobility offered to King Ferdinand, and others to the King of France, as the more Powerful and an Enemy to the House of Aragon. At the beginning of the Year 1489, 1000 Horse and 2000 Foot were fent into Britany to fuccour the Lady Ann, who fucceeded her Father in that Dukedom. D. Peter Sarmiento Earl of Salinas Commanded that Body. The War against the Moores of Granada was of more Moment, and greater advantages were expected from it, therefore the King and Queen set out from Medina del Campo towards Andaluzia upon trom it, therefore the sing and Queen let out from Madina ast Campo towards Andalusia upon the 2-th of Mach. The Rendezvous was at Jaen, where upon a Muster the King found 1 2000 ties and or hofe, and 5000 Foot, all the choice Men in the Kingdom. A good Body came from the sinall Bifcay. Baça was resolved upon to begin the Campaigne with. By the Way, that no E-towards mention might be left behind, they took Cajor a sinall, but strong Town. This some Baça was resolved. This Cine is caused on the Side of a Little down this is the strong that the strong the strong that the strong the Mores, was Invested. This City is Seated on the Side of a Hill, down which, and along the plain below it, runs a fmall River, on all other fides it is encompaffed with other rifing Grounds. It was well Garrifoned and furnished with all Necessaties for 15 Months. The Scituation did not allowany Engines to be brought up to the Walls. About 1000 Horse, and 2000 Foot fallied out of the City and did us some harm, our Men being intangled betwixt the Channels of Water, but others coming to their Relief, the Enemy was repulfed with confiderable lofs. Several other Skirmilhes happened, our Men destroying all the Orchards' about the City. Our Men could not deal with the Enemy upon equal Terms, but they overpowred them in number. Thus the Siege was prolonged, and King Ferdinand was dubious whether he had not belt raife the Siege, especially because the lost many of his Men by Sickneß and other accidents. The Marquels of Cadiz then made a Duke, advited to raife the Siege However the King resolved to continue it, and the more to Curb the Besieged caused a Trench to be drawn quite round the Walls, with Nine Forts at convenient diffrances, all ftrongly Guarded, to prevent being furprized by the Enemy, Sallying. All the Army was conveniently Pofted about the Place, and the Duke of Cadiz with 4000 Horfe had charge of the Artillery. Thus no relief could enter the City, but they had plenty of Provisions. In the Camp there was great fearcity of Bread and Money, and yet fresh Troops came in daily. About October came the Dukes of Najara and Alva, in Mourning for their Father lately deceased. The Admiral also came, and the Marquis de Astronga. Soon after arrived the Queen, with the Princess Elizabeth, the Cardinal of Toledo and other Prelates. The Queens coming, as I believe altered the refolution of the Besieged, believing now the Siege was fixed. Hazen the Governor having consulted his King, who was at Guadix, tho' he might have held out much longer, furrendred the City, when least the Christians expected it. On the 4th of December the Capitulation was Signed, and the day following the King and Queen entred the City in triumphant manner. James de Mendoza, Lieutenant of Cacorda, and Brother to the Cardinal of Spain was made Governor. This flruck fuch a Terror into the Mooret that many Towns furrendred, gave Hoftages, and furnished Corn and all other necessaries. Among these the chefeth were Taverna and Seven. What is more wonderful, the Cities Guadhs and Almeria, either of which might have endured a long Siege, submitted of their own accord. King Albohardil himself consented to it, and came out of Almeria to meet King Ferdinand in the Camp, by whom he was splendidly entertained. Besides, Two strong Castles upon the Sea Coast were taken, the one called Almañecar, in which the Treasures of the Moorish Kings used to be kept. The other was Solobrena, where the Brothers and Sons of the Kings used to be kept in the nature of Prisoners. Francis Ramirez General of the Artillery, who had behaved himself bravely upon feveral occasions, was appointed Governor of that Castle. After performing such great Actions, a Review of the Army was taken on the last day of December preceding the Year 1490, and it appeared by the Muster Rolls 20000 Men were lost, 3000 of them killed by the Moores, the rest confumed by Sickness. Many of the meaner fort were frozen to

The Mors. King Ferdinand let slip no Opportunity of pulling down the tottering Kingdom of the 1/1 king Moors. Guitere de Cardenas, Chief Commendary of Leon, who did great Service during this War, concluded the Treaty with the unfortunate Moorish King. By Virtue of this Capitulation, he had the Town of Fandaraa on the Mountains of Granada, with all its Dependencies, amounting to the Yearly Value of 10000 Ducats, allowed him for his Maintenance. A fmall Recompence for a Kingdom, but good enough for him who began his Reign with the Murder of his Brother. The new conquered Moors were allowed to keep their Lands and Possessions, but not to live within Cities, left they should have the Power of Fortifying themselves, and Rebelling, for which cause they were all disarmed. These Conditions were proclaimed at Guadix. This done, the King and Queen went away to Ecija, and thence to Sevil. All Places by the way received them, as if they had dropped from Heaven. Foreign Princes, moved by the Fame of these great Actions, sent to Congratulate with them, and seek their Elizabeth, moved by the rame of thele great Actions, lent to Congratulate with them, and feek their Princess, friendfilip. The King of Portugal, in Profecution of what had been before Teated, defined of capile, to Marry his Son_Alonjo to the Princess Elizabeth, as a fure Bond of Friendfilip between the married two Crowns. He fent Ambassadors to this purpose, and the Match was agreed upon at Seto Alonfo, wil on the 18th of April. There was great Rejoicing on this account in both Kingdoms, but Prince of less in Portugal, because the following Month the Princes Joanna, Silter to that King, died at Aveiro unmarried. Neither was the Joy of Caftile lafting, the the Princess from Conftantina fet out for Peringal upon the 11th of November. A great number of Nobility bore her Company, and she was delivered upon the Banks of the River Caya, which runs between Badajoz. and Elvas. The Chief of the Portugueses that came to receive her, was Duke Emanuel, who afterwards married that Princes, and inherited the Crown. The King of Portugal and his Son came to Efremz, and, the more to honour the Bride, feated her between them, the King being on the left hand. There they were married on the 24th of Nevember by the Archbilhop of Brega, Primate of all Portugal. The Rejoicing continued for half a year at Ebora and Santarem, whither the Prince and Princess went. All this Joy was turned into Sortine row by an unthought-of Accident. The King going out to take the Air on the Banks of the Death of River Tagus, Prince Alonfo, who was with him, had a mind to run a Race with John de Mone. Frince A-River right, Fine change, who was waiting, had a mind to run a race with febr de Mon. times he. In the Course, the Horse sumbled, and falling, so bruised the Prince, that he soon died this, and It is needless to represent the greatness of his Parents and Wile's Grief. His Body was buried his fetwish the usual Pomp among his Ancestors. The Princes Elizabeth, no sooner a Wise than a ther. Widow, returned to Castile in a Mourning Litter. Grief cast the King of Portugal into a lin. gring Disease, of which he died 4 years alter. He founded the Royal Hospital at Lubon, and laid the first Stone of it. He left no Issue Male lawfully begotten; only D. George, whom he had by the Lady Ann de Menders, and whom, tho but a Child, he left Maffer Ann and Santiago in Portugal. After his Death, a new Line of Kings began. Emanuel, Confin German to the deceased King, and Son to Ferdinand Duke of Visco, inherited the Crown. John III. to the deceated rang, and one to recommand place of rape, interact the crown. John III.

was son to this king, and Prince, John his Grandson, who dying young, inherited not the Crown: Therefore King Schaffin, Son to the Prince, succeeded. He being killed by the Moors in Africk, left the Kingdom of Perugal, first to Cardinal Hamy his Great Uncle, and after him to Philip II. King of Castile, who was also Nephew to the Cardinal, and Grandson to King Emanuel, by his Mother Elizabeth the Empress. Let us leave this, and return to the War of Granada

King Ferdinand earnestly desired to put an end to the War with the Moors, which was so well advanced. Belides the Strength of the City Granada, and that it was abundantly furnished The Moorwith all Necessaries, another greater Difficulty perplexed the King, which was, That his Word ib King was engaged to King Boabdil, that neither he nor his should be prejudiced by him. An Op belieged portunity offered it felf of fubduing that City without breach of Faith. The Citizens, without by his regarding the Danger that threatned them from abroad, befieged their King in the Caftle of old Albayein, and pressed him so hard, that scarce any hope was lest of saving himself. The surious Multitude threatned, never to desist till they had his Life. It was not reasonable to forfake that unhappy Prince, when he begged Relief. At the same time the Soldan of Egypt threatned, That if King Ferdinand did not give over perfecuting the Moors, he would put to threatned, That in King Ferramana und not give over perfecting the moors, he would part to Death all the Christians in Egypt and Spria. F. Ambony Millan, Guardian of the Franciscan Convent at Jerusalem, sent by the Soldan with this Mellage, by the way visited the King of Naples, and coming thence into Spain, delivered his Embally, bringing also a Letter from the King of Naples, who was supposed to be a greater Friend to the More, than became a Chriflian Prince. He advised King Ferdinand, fince the Moors had done him no Wrong, not to oppress them only upon account of Religion, which might occasion greater Harms. King Ferdinand was no way discouraged at the Threats of the Soldan, nor approved of the King of Naples his Advice. Yet after the War was ended, he fent Peter Martyr, his Ambassador, to the Soldan to appeale him. He alfo, before he enter'd upon the War again, fent his Reasons for so doing to the King of Maples. The Guardian, both in regard of his Character as Ambassador, and the Opinion of his Sanctity, was nobly Treated, and dismissed with rich Presents. King Ferdinand offered the Citizens of Granada, if they would submit, they should be treated in the fame manner as the others that had done so before. This moved both the Factions in that City to join, in order to oppose the Common Enemy; for the Moorish King was convinced, that King Ferdmand, the he pretended to be his Friend, would never defift till he was Master of that City. The Alfaquies and others, held in the Opinion of Sanctity, ceased not to advise, that either for obtaining Peace, or supporting the War, it was requisite they should be united. Thus the Moors were brought to agree among themselves. King Ferdinand, The Plain teaving the Queen at Moelin, wasted all the Plain of Granada, destroying all the Corn, to the Granagreat Grief of the Insidels, who feared lest they should be reduced by Famine. Prince John da wasted. to Cordova with the Boory. The Command of the Frontiers was given to the Marques de Villena, in Requital for a Brother he lost in the War, and that his own right Arm was lame of a Wound he received rescuing one of his Men. Scarce were the Christians departed, when King Boabdil took the Castle Albendin, where we had a Garrison, and razed it. The King revenged this in September, when he spent 15 days in destroying all the latter Corn on which the Moors hoped to seed the following year. The Moors at Guadix mutinied, and thought to have destroyed the Garrison in the Castle, but failed, and the Maiquis de Villena coming with a good Body of Horse and Foot, turned them out of the City, which prevented any Disorders for the future. K. Ferdinand at the end of the year again ravaged all the Territory of Granda.

Roshbill befieged Salsberia, which Francis Ramirez defended with much Bravery. The More believing King Ferdinand would relieve the Place, raifed the Siege, and returned to Granuds.

Because the Subjects of Abobardil mutinied, and would not obey him, King Ferdinand, according to what had been Capitulated, permitted him to go over into Africk, with great Riches he gave him in lieu of what he lest behind.

CHAP. IX.

The War with the Moors now effectually renewed; The Description of the City Granada; King Ferdinand lays Siege to it, and builds a Town for his Army to Quarter in during the Siege, to shew his Resolution not to depart without being Master of that City.

War with T HE King and Queen spent the Winter at Sevil, and in the Spring renewed the War. The Queen stayed behind at Aleala Reall with her Children, to surnish all things necessary, renewed. And soon after to sollow and take part of the Honour and Danger of that Enterprize. All the Nobility came in Person, and the Cities sent Troops upon their own cost, with which and the other Forces King Ferdinand in three days appeared in sight of Granada, upon Saturday the 1491. 23d of April, 1491. He encamped at Guetar, a Village a League and a half from Granada: Thence he sent the Marques de Villena with 3000 Horse to sour the neighbouring Mountains, promising to sollow him with the whole Army to relieve him, in case the Mountain-Moort, who are bold and daring, should sall upon him, or those of the City offer to cut off his Retreat. Accordingly he advanced to Padul, and repussed was left at liberty to execute his Orders, burnt 9 Villages of the Insidels, and returned to the King loaded with Plunder. This beginning was looked upon as a good Omen of stutre success. They advanced together to ravage the remoter Parts of the Mountain, which they did successfully, plundering and burning 15 other Villages. Besides, they deseated a Body of Moorish Horse and Foot, who had secured the Passes against our Army. The Booty was very considerable, that Country being very rich, because untouched till that time, being naturally firong and well guarded, as was requisite, the City being supplied there with Provisions. All this being performed without any loss or bloodshed, the Army returned to its first Quarters; there they fortissed themselves for the present. They mustered 10000 Horse and 40000 Foot, the very Flower of the Spanish Soldiery, being all Men of tried Valour, and expert Soldiers. In the City was also as great number of Horse and Foot, and all of them good Soldiers, being the Remains of all the late Wars. City was also a great number of Horse and Foot, and all of them good Soldiers, being the Remains of all the late Wars. The multitude of Citizens was not of any moment, they being a fort of People always lavish of their Tongues, but Cowards when they came to Defaipti. Action. The City of Gramada, by reason of its Situation, Largness, Forts, Walls, and Bulon of the warks, seemed impregnable. On the West-side of it is a large Plain, about 15 Leagues in masta.

Compass, pleasant and fruitful as well of its own Nature, as by reason of the Blood that had been there shed for many Years, which made it sat: Besides, that 36 Springs running down from the Mountains do render it more beautiful and rich than can eafily be imagined. On the East of it is the Mountain Elvira, where formerly stood the City Ilibers, as appears by the Name Elvira. The snowy Mountain called Sierra Nevada lies on the South side of it, and runs down as far as the Mediterranean Sea: The fides of it are not steep or craggy, and are therefore cultivated and well peopled. The City it felf is feated partly upon the Plain, and partly upon two Hills; betwixt them runs the River Darro, which as foon as out of the City, mixes with, and loses its Name in the River Xenil, that runs quite a cross the Plain in length. The Walls are very firong, there being upon them 1030 Towers at distances, very beautiful for their Number and good Structure. Formerly it had 7 Gates, now 12. It cannot well be enclosed all round, because of its great extent, and the unevenness of the Ground. Towards the Plain where the access is easiest, it is fortified with Towers and Bulwarks: In that part stands the Cathedral, then a Moorish Mosque nothing curious, now beautiful. It is held in great Veneration by all the neighbouring People, and famous not fo much for its fisches as the Number and Piety of Clergy belonging to it. Near this Church is the great Market-place called Bavarambla, 200 Foot in breadth, and three times as long. The Buildings about it stand in a streight Line; the Shops and Streets about it beautiful. Of two Castles that belong to the City, the chiefest lies betwist the East and West, encompassed with a Wall of its own, and flanding above the other Buildings. It is called Albumbra, that is Red, of the colour of the Earth about it, and is fo big it looks like a City. In it is the Royal Palace and Monaftery of S Francu, the burial place of the Marquels de Trigo de Mendoça, the first Governour of it. King Mahomet Mir laid the Foundation of this Caltle; other Kings continued the Work, and it was finished by King Joseph Bulbagiy, as appears by the Arabick Infeription over the Gate on a Marble Stone, fignifying the Work was finished by that King, in the Year of the Moorish Account 74.7, which according to us is 1346. This tame King built the Castle of Albaixin, opposite to this Castle. The expence of this Work was so great, that because 'twas thought his Revenue could not bear it, the People gave out he had found the Philosopher's Stone. Betwixt these two Castles, that is, Albal bra and Albaixin, lies the City.

The Suburb called Churra, and the Street De los Gomeles, is on the fide of Albambra. On the other fide the Street Elvira, and the Ascent of Zenete most ill contrived, the Streets narrow and crooked, because the Moore were nothing curious in their Houses. Without the City is the Royal Hospital and Monastery of S. Hierome, the sumptuous Burlal place of Gonçalo Fernandez, called the Great Captain. It is reported the City contained 60000 Houles, a number fearce called the Great Capania. At a separate to the second of the Ambafadors of King Jame II. of Aragon affured Pope Clement V. at the Council of Vienna, viz. that of 200000 Souls then living in Granada, scarce 500 were Children and Grandchildren of Moors. In particular they ving in Giandian, care 50000 Renegado's, and 30000 Christian Slaves. At present it is certain there are in that City 23 Parishes and Chapels of Ease. It is hard to tell the number of Inhabitants, and generally People fretch in those cases. It is also certain, that in the time of the Moorish Kings, the Revenue of that Kingdom was 700000 Ducats, a great Sum for those times, but Kings, the Revenue of that Kingdom was 1000000 Lineats, a great 5um for those times, but credible because of the heavy Taxes. All Men paid the 7th part of what they were worth. If any Moor died without Children, the King was his Heir: If he less theirs, the King had as good a share as any of them. This was the Posture of Granada at this time. It was believed good a flare as any of them. It ms was the Fortine of Gramana at this time. It was beneved the Slege would be redious, therefore the Queen came to the Camp with her Children, because King Ferdinand resolved not to design till he was Master of the City. To this purpose he cause King Ferainana resolved not to do that an ine was related to the City. To this purpose ne caused the Country continually to be wasted, and in the place where he encamped, caused a K. Ferdistrong Town to be built, which to this day is called Santa Fe. This Work was finished in a nond very short time. The Quarters, Streets, and Places within the Walls were distributed with builds a very flore time. In equation, stress, stress, and the wans were distributed with bounds great Order. Mean while the Parties that went out to Plunder, skirmlined often with the Town to Moore that came out of the Town. In one of these Rencounters our Men pressed so far, that is in due they took some Cannon from the Infidels, and made many Priloners, and forced the rest sings to into the City. Another time they ventured near to the Walls, and possessing the steep of Granada. into the City. Another time they ventured near to the walls, and polletied themselves of two Towers where the Enemy kept Garrisons. On the roth of June at night a Fire broke out in the King's Tent, which caused a great Consternation. Most of the Men lay in Barracks or Huts, and the Boughs being dry, there was danger they should all take fire. A Candle accidentally left by the Queen set fire to the King's Quarters, and that to the next. The King fearing it might be a Contrivance of the Enemy, came out naked with his Sword and Buckler. The Marques of Cadiz with a Party of Horse stood all night upon their and Buckler. The Manques of Course with a Fairy of Floric flood all night upon their Guard, in the way the Moors mult of necessity come, if they designed to attack the Army The Fright was greater than the Danger or Loss; so the next day they concluded to ravage The Fright was greater than the Danger or Lois; fo the next day they conquired to ravage the Country, and fome Troops were fent to the Mountain. Nothing was left to the Besteged they they, animated by Despar, desended themselves resolutely. These Missortunes obliged them to offer a Treaty. Bulcazin Muley, Governour of the City, came to the Camp to catin, and his Secretary Ferdinand & Zestra, to treat with him. After some days debating; at length they concluded on the sollowing Articles, to which they swore on the 25th of November: That the Moors within 60 Days deliver up to the King the two Cassles, the Towers, and Gates of the City: That they do Homage to King Ferdinand, and take the Oath of Allegians of the City: That they de Homage to King Ferdinand, and take the Oath of Allegians of the City: That they de Ferdinand and take the Oath of Allegians of the City: That they de Ferdinand and take the Oath of Allegians of the City of the Country of the City: The Country of the City of the City: The Country of the City of the City: The City of the Cit ance to him: That they fet at liberty all Christian Slaves without Ransom: That till these Articles be performed, they deliver up 500 Sons of the Principal Inhabitants, as Hoftages:

That they be left possessed their Lands, Arms, and Horses, only delivering up the Artillery: That they keep their Mosques, and have the free Exercise of their Religion: That they be Governed according to their own Laws, and to this purpole Persons of their own they be Governed according to their own Laws, and to this purpose Persons of their own Nation shall be appointed, by whose Advice the King's Officers shall administer Justice to them: That part of the usual Taxes be abated during the term of three Years, and shall never after be greater than they used to pay to their own Kings: That such as will go over into Africk may sell their Goods, and shall be surnished with Ships for their Passage in any Port they shall chuse: That Boabdil's Son, and the other Hostages delivered by him, be reflored, fince the City being surrendered, there is no more occasion for Hostages. Accordingly they were brought from the Castle of Moelin to be delivered up.

CHAP. X.

A mighty Mutiny raifed in Granada by a Phanatick Moot; The City surrendered to King Ferdinand; The Character of King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth; Their Triumphal Entry into Granada, and universal Joy for their Success.

THE Surrender of Granada being agreed upon in this manner, all had like to have been A phand-broke off again upon the following occasion. In all places the Multitude, but especially tick Marramong the Moors, is Faithless, Dilloyal, Changeable, inclinable to Mutiny, hates Peace and Quietness, and upon any small Motives runs into Sedition. A certain Moor, whose Name is not yet known, as if he were possessed with some Fury, or quite distracted, with violent Words cased not to persuade the People to take Arms. He preached and harangued the Multitude at the Corners of Streets and in the Markets with a loud Voice and horrid Countenance. In this manner he stirred up 20000 Men to take Arms, and run about sike Men our

of their Senies. The cause of their Discontent, or what they aimed at, was unknown, and therefore the Remedy harder to be found. Brabdil, called the Little King, fearing they would therefore the Kemedy harder to be found. Bonden, cannot the blitte king, realing they would offer Violence to him, kept close within the Albandra. The Multitude are furious at first, but foon cool, chiefly they who had no Head, and were confequently weak, and knew not their own Minds

Therefore the next day the King went to the Albaixin, where the Beople were own with a flected towards him: There he affembled fuch as he thought fit, with whom he expowent antected towards mint. There he alternoted men as he thought his with whom he expo-finlated the Madnels of the Mutiniers, liewing how abfolute Necessity and not Affection had obliged him to Capitulate with the Enemy, when no other way was left to save the City from perifshing by Sword and Famine. His Words made them calm, and the People were pacified. Many times Seditions are as eafily suppressed as raised. What became of the Moor who caused the Mutiny is not known; it may be imagined he fled. King Boabdil warned by the Danger paft; and learing that before the expiration of the Days agreed upon for delivering up the City, new Troubles and Tunnuls might arife, he immediately fent a Letter to King Ferdinand, with a Prefent of two choice Hories, a Cymiter, and fome Furniture. Headver-tifed him of what had hapned in the City, and how the People had Mutinied, therefore inviting him to come and take possession speedily, left Delay might produce some Alteration. In short, he told him since God had so ordained it, he would the next day deliver up the Al-

bambra and Kingdom to him as Conqueror.

Granda

This Letter was brought to the Camp upon New-Year's Day: It is easile to imagen how furrender-great Satisfaction it gave to King Ferdinand. He ordered all things to be in a readiness the furender-great Satisfaction it gave to King Ferdinand. He ordered all things to be in a readiness the fet to K. Day following for his Entrance, and that Day is fill kept a Festival at Granda, in Memory Fedinand. of the Taking of that City. Having laid aide the Mourning he wore for is Son-in-Law Prince Along of Fortugal, and put on his Royal Robes, he fet out towards the Castle with his Army, in the same Order as if going to engage the Enemy. After him followed the Oueen and her Children, then the Nobility clad in Cloth of Gold and rich Silks. When the Visit was the representation of the Silks of the Castle with the Cas Queen and ner Children, then the Nobility clad in Cloth of Gold and then sinks, when the King came in this pompous manner near to the Albambra, Boabdil the Little King came out to meet him with 50 Horfe. He offered to alight and kils the Victor's Hand, but King Ferdmand meet him with 50 Horse. He ollered to alight and kits the Victor's Hand, but King Ferdmand would not permit it. Then fixing his Eyes upon the Ground with a forrowful Countenance, he said, We are your Slaves, Invincible King; we deliver up this City and Kingdom to you, we delibiting you will use with Clemens, and Moderation. This done, he put into his hands the Keys of the Calle; King Ferdmand gave them to the Queen, she to the Prince her Son, and he to D. Irigo de Motstoga, Earl of Tendilla, whom the King appointed Governor of that City, and Captain General of that Kingdom. D. Peter de Granda was made head Alguazil of the City, and D. Alonso his Son Admiral of that Sea. The King entred the City with a good Party of Hotse. A great Number of Noblemen and Prelates followed: among them the Chief of Horse. A great Number of Noblemen and Prelates followed; among them the Chief of Horfe. A great Number of Noblemen and Prelates followed; among them the Chief were the Prelates of Toledo and Sevil, the Mafter of Santiago, the Marquels of Cadiz, and F. Ferdinand de Talavera, who of Bilhop of Avilla, was now Elech Archibilhop of Granda: He having offered up his Prayers as is uftial, fet up the Banner, carried before the Cardinal of Toledo upon the highest Tower, and on the fides of it the King's and the Standard of Santiago. This Action was followed by the Acclamations of the whole Army. Then the King kinge, Tris Action was followed by the Acclamations of the whole Army. Then the King kneeling, returned Thanks to Almighty God, for that the Empire of the Infidels was extipated in Spain, and the Holy Banner of the Crofs fet up in that City, where the Madomagan Superfittion had so long prevailed, and prayed that his Mercies might be continued unto him. After the Prayer, all the great Men came to congratulate his Success, and kneeling, killed his Hand. The same they all did to the Oucen and Prince. This Ceremony being ended. his Hand. The fame they all did to the Queen and Prince. This Ceremony being ended, they returned in the fame Order after Dinner to the Camp. To the Little King was given the Valley of Purchena, not long before taken from the Moors in the Kingdom of Marcia, with a fufficient Revenue; but he foon after went over into Africk: For they who have once been Kings, cannot ever patiently submit to lead a private Life. 500 Christian Captives were, ac-Kings, cannot ever patiently fubmit to lead a private Life. 500 Chriftian Captives were, according as had been capitulated, fer free without Ranfom. They the nextday, after hearing Mafs, came in Proceffion to profitrate themfelves before the King. They thanked the Soldiers, by whole means they obtained Liberty, and commending their Bravery, called them Fathers of their Country. Before the King entred the City, the Army took possession of the Gates, Towers, and Castles. That done, upon the 4th day they entred in the same manner as they had done before. All the Army sang Hymns of Praise and Thanksgiving to Almighty God for their great Success. King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth being richly clothed, in the prime of their Age. and having conquered that Kingdom, fermed to appear more Maistlick for their great Succets. King Ferdinand and Queen Lilizabeth being richly clothed, in the prime of their Age, and having conquered that Kingdom, feemed to appear mere Majeftick and here. They fhind above all others, and were equal as to themfelves. Every one that before. They find above all others, and were equal as to themfelves. Every one that they have a more than Human, and fent from Heaven for the Glory of Spain of K. Fir. was they that reflored Julice, which before them was corrupted, enacting excellent Laws for dimensional they be publick Benefit. They fettled Religion, reflored Peaces, and enlarged their Territories, on only in Spain, but at the fame time in the unnoft Bounds of the World. What is molt have become maded they befored Honous and Perferments not according to Birth, or for

to be commended, they beltowed Honours and Preferments, not according to Birth, or for Favour, but proportionably to the Merits of every one, which flirred up their Subjects to Virtue and Learning. Both the King and Queen were of a middle Stature, their Limbs well proportioned, their Countenances graceful, pleafing and yet grave; their Mien majeflick, but their Complexion fomewhat fwarthy; efpecially the King's was tanned with being always in the Field, his Hair Chefnut-colour and long, his Beard tripmed after the manner of that

Age, his Eye brows large, his Head bald, his Mouth finall, his Lips red, his Teeth little and Age, his Live from stage, his freat only, his Voice flarp, quick of Speech, of a flarp Wit, of a found Judgment, of a courteous Disposition, and case of Access. In Martial Affairs he was expert, in Matters of Government not to be parallel'd; fo great a Lover of Business, that it feemed to be his Delight and Diversion. His Body was not pampered with Pleasures, but it feemed to be his Delight and Divertion. His Body was not pampered with Pleafures, but inured to Labour. His Diet was temperate, and his Garb modelt. He was an excellent Horfeman. When young, he was addicted to Cards and Diee, grown more flayed, his chief Sport was Hawking. The Queen had a good Face, fair Hair, dark Eyes, she used no Paints or Walfles, and had a fingular Modelty and Gravity in her Looks. She was very Devour, and a Lover of Learning, bore her Husband Affection, but mixed with Jealouse. She had fome knowledge of the Latin Tongue, which her Husband wanted, having no Learning given the Latin Looks. him in his Youth; yet he loved to read History, and converse with Learned Men. The same him in his Youth; yet he toved to read thutory, and converte with Learned Men. The fame Day that King Ferdianah was born, as fome relate, a certain Carmelite Friat of Naples, elemend a Holy Man, faid to King Alonfo, Unkle to King Ferdianah, Tois Day in the Kingdom of Aragon is born a Prince of your Family; Heaven promifes him a large Empire, great Riches and Profestry; be blad be very Devous, of a virtuous Inclination, and a great Defender of Christianity. Amidst for many Virtues, considering human Frailty, there could not be wanting fome Allay of Vice. Avarice, which is laid-to his Charge, may be well excelled with the lowness of the Revenue. The Wickedness of those Times was the cause of the Severity and Rigour he is blamed for. Foreign Writers accuse him of a wicked Crast, and that he valued not his Word where rolling writers accuse that of a window chair, and that he valued not his word where it was for his Advantage to break it. I will not dispute how true this is. He contracted Affinity with the Greatest Princes in all Christendom, as the Kings of England and Portugal, and the Dukes of Austria. Several other Princes were near of Kin to him, for he was Unkle to Anne Durchess of Britany, as Brother to her Grandmother by the Mother's side. He was Cousin German to Ferdinand King of Naples, and great Unkle to Catherine Queen of Navarre, as bother to her Grandmonter. This particularly is laid to his Charge, That without any regard of Kindred, only thro? Ambition of enlarging his Dominions, he thruit this Lady and her Husband out of their Kingdom, and obliged them to retire to France Others excuse him upon pretence off Religion, and the Pope's Command; but that is a weak Defence. Great Troubles enfued hereupon. Henry d'Albret, Son to that Queen, endeavoured to recover his Kingdom with more nereupon. Henry a Zhoret, son to that Queen, enceavouren to recover its Aingdom with more Valour than good Fortune. He had by the Lady Margaret, Sifter to Francis King of France, one Daughter and Heirofs, called Joanna, who married Ambony of Bourbon Duke of Vendofine, and was Mother to that Henry who married Margaret the Sifter of Three Kings of France, viz. was Mother to that renry who married nangare the outer of three Kings of France, viz. Francis II. Charles and Henry; who all dying without Islue, he inherited that Crown as next of the Male Line. Notwithstanding, the People of France pretended he could not inherit, because he had embraced the then new broached Hereses that spread abroad in France. But beta lie and the state of the Affair of Granada. King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth having taken posselficion of that City by the special Providence of God, the Morrs remainof having taken ponential day of the first brought under the Dominion and Government of the Christians. This folem Entry was upon Friday the 6th of Jamary, 1492, and according to the Arabian Account the Year 897 of the Hegina, on the 8th of the Month which they call Rabib Haraba: Which Day, as it is a Fealt of great Solemnity throughout the Christian World as being the Figuraphy of our Lord for was in particular the Propheny of our Lord for was in particular than 1811 and 1812. World, as being the Epiphany of our Lord, fo was it particularly Joylil and Fortunate to all Spain, and no lefs unhappy to the Moors: For by their Extirpation, the Honour of Spain was reflored, and a great Province added to the Christian Dominions. All other Provinces of Christendom were made Partakers of this Joy, and particularly Pope Innocent had a large account given him of the Reduction of all Spain to its former Obedience to the Church. In all Parts there were Bonfires and Sports celebrated in token of Joy, and Men, Women, and all Parts there were Bonnies and Spots Generated in token of Joy, and Men, Women, and Children went in Procession to the Churches, to give Thanks to Almighty God for so signal a Mercy. Rome was rejoycing for the Peace concluded betwirk the Pope and King of Naples, when John de Estrada, King Fedinand's Ambassador, brought this happy News. In token of their great Satisfaction, the Pope, Cardinals, and People of Rome went in Procession and People of Rome went in Procession token of their great satisfaction; the rope, Satisfaction and reopie of Rome went in Procession to the Spanish Church of Santiago; there the Divine Office was performed with great Solemnity, and a Sermon fuitable to the Occasion preached; in which the Preacher highly extolled the King and Queen, and magnified the Valour of, and Victories obtained by the Spanish Na-

CHAP. I.

The Affairs in Britany; The Jews expelled Spain; Pope Innocent VIII. dies, Alexander VI. fucceeds him; Navarre pacified.

Fter putting fo Honourable an end to the War of Granada, and totally subverting the Kingdom of the Moores in Spain, King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth bent their thoughts upon greater and more glorious Undertakings. Left the great number they had of brave and expert Soldiers should be debauched with Luxury and Eafe, fince nothing remained to Conquer at home, they fent them to fubdue Kingdoms abroad. Thus the Dominion and Name of the Spaniards; till then confined within the bounds of their own Country, was not only fpread abroad through France, Italy, and Barbary, but extended to the utmost bounds of the Earth. I am fensible the Work that lies before me is too great to the utmost bounds of the Larth. I am teninde new work that he better he is too great for my weak Capacity, and might flartle the greatest Wits. For this Reason in the Presace to my Latin History, I said I would conclude with the War of Granada, but several Learned People have perswaded me, this Work would be imperfect ending there, that the Actions since performed are so glorious they will be an Ornament to all the rest, and that every one is more delighted with Modern History, than with that which its Antiquity makes dubious. I have therefore resolved to continue this History some years longer, in which the Spaniard is the transfer of the continue that the state of the performed the most glorious Actions that were ever done, not only by them, but by any People in the whole World. Before we enter upon those mighty Exploits, it will not be amis to put the Reader in mind of some things we have hinted before. Frances Duke of Britany Married Margaret Daughter to Elener Queen of Navarre, and Niece to King Fordinand. They Affairs of had no stille Male, but only two Daughters, Ann and Elizabeth. Many Princes were ambitions to Marry those Ladies, and especially the Eldest. Among the rest Charles VIII. King of France was he that stood sairest, notwithstanding he was before Contracted to Margaret Daughter to Maximilian King of the Romans, who being now a Widdower Treated of Marrying the same Lady Ann. The King of France sought to gain by soice what he seared not to compass by fair means, and therefore upon pretence that the Duke of Orleans was protected against him in Britany, he made War upon that Country. The Duke applied himself for Succour to performed the most glorious Actions that were ever done, not only by them, but by any him in Britany, he made War upon that Country. The Duke applied himlelf for Succourt of the English Germans, and Spaniards. To this purpose, as has been said, Alan Albret, Father to the King of Navarre, hoping to Marry the Lady Amy, came to King Ferdinand, then at Valencia, and prevailed with him to send a Fleet and Land Forces under the Command of John Gralla into Britany. These Forces and the Dukes were deseated by the French in the Month of August 1488. After this the King of France and Duke of Britany were reconciled, the Duke promiting not to Marry his Daughters without that King's Confent, which he performed, for he died the following year, leaving them both Maids. He appointed the Marchal of Britary Tuor to his Daughter, and Governour of the Province, who favoured the Pretentions of Monsieur d'Albert, but the Earl of Danoa and the Chancellor opposed, and the Prince of Orange, who was her near Kinfinan, feized upon the Durchefs and her Silter. The Marefelal obtained Succours out of England. The Prince of Orange had recourfe to the Kings of the Romans and of Spain. King Ferdianal fent 10-00 choice Horfe under the Command of D. Peter Gomez Sarmiento Earl of Salinas, who landed in Britany at the beginning of the year 1490. This Succour did nothing there, and d'Albret despairing of success, upon promile of being made Conflable of France, refolved to change Parties, and accordingly delivered up Nantes, the chief City of that Dukedom, to the French. King Ferdinand feeing his Forces up Vanies, the chief City of mat Discooling to the Periodic. King Periodical seeing in Forces were of no use in Britany, and upon hopes given him of being reflored to Resilicon and Codaigne, called them home. Luir XI. King of France, had ordered that Resilication to be made in his Will, being perswaded so to doby F. France de Paula, Founder of the Minim, whom he sent for out of Italy before his death. The Spaniards being gone, the King of France son possessible himself of the greatest part of Britany, and presently after Marcical sum the Durchels. This Marriage 60 increased the Power, and confirmed the Affairs of France, that all Divisions being at an end, the French had leasure to invade staly. In Spath King Fordinand and Queen Elizabeth having ended the War with the Moors, resolved to banish the Francoux of all their Dominions. To this purpole they ordered a Proplamation to be fet forth at Granada, where they then were in the Month of March 1492, commanding all that Nation to depart the Kingdom within four months, leave being given them either to fell their Goods, or carry them with them. In the month of April, F. Thomas de Torquemada, the first Inquistor General, published an Order, forbidding all Christians after that time to Entertain or Conceal them under fevere Penalties. This caused an infinite number of those People to transport themselves to fewere Penatties. This cauted an infinite number of those People to transport themselves to feweral places. Some worn over to Africk, others to Italy, and many to the Eastern Countreys, where their Descendents still use the Spanish Tongue. A great number of them stayed in Portugal upon Leave granted by King John II. yet so that each of them should pay Eight Crowns in Gold for their Reception, and depart the Kingdom within a certain time limited. After the exphation whereof all such as stayed should be made Slaves. Many of them were After the expiration whereon an item as haryon mound be made shares. Many of them were accordingly brought into Servitude, and afterwards fet free by King Emanuel at the beginning of his Reign. What number of Jews went out of Spain cannot be positively affirmed. Most Authors say there were 170000 Families, and some say they made up 800000 Souls. A vaft Multitude, which caused many to condemn this Action of the King's as a great loss to his Kingdoms, these being a Rich and Industrious People. No doubt but it was a great advantage to those Countreys whither they went, because they carried with them great part of the Riches of Spain. True it is, many of them rather than leave their Country, and lustain such Riches of Spain. I true it is, many of them rather than leave their Country, and fultain fuch great lofs, were Baptized, fome fincerely, others only for Protection.

At this time died at Rome Pope Innocent VIII. The next day after his Death the Cardinals Pope Innet to choose another, and at last, after much struggling, whether by fair or foul means, is mean VIII not mine to decide, Cardinal Roderick Borgia was Elected, and took the Name of Alexan least of the VII. Many ill things have been laid of this Pope, tome it is likely were true, but mag. VI. für nified through Malice because he was a Stranger, as being born at Valencia. When his Unckle ceeds. Calixun was chosen Pope he made haste to Rome, and being created Cardinal, had by a Roman Woman called Zamecia, or Vanzia, sour Sons, Peter Luis the Eldest, Cefar, John, and Godfry, and one Daughter called Lucretia. He was so rich, that he bought the Dukedoth of Gandia, and gave it to his Son Peter Luis, and after his decease to his 3d Son John, whose Son and Heir was John Father to D. France Borgia, a Holy Man, for quitting that Estate he became a Jesuit. Alexander was Elected on the 11th of Laguss, and Crowned on the 27th. The same day he confirmed the Decree before puffed for Eversion the Sec of Valencia into an The same day he confirmed the Decree before passed for Ereding the See of Valencia into an Archbishoprick, and gave it to his Second Son Cesar, then Bishop of Pamplona. The year solowing he made him a Cardinal, several Witnesses being produced to Swear he was not Son towing he made him a Cardinal, feveral Witnestes being produced to Swear he was not Son to the Pope, but to Dominick Arinano Husband to Zanocia, such was the Corruption of that Age. The youngest Son of all was Golfrey, who by Contract with the King of Naples, was created Prince of Esguilaebe. Lucretia was first Married to John Sirzia, then to Lua Alonso de Navarre Aragon, Baltard Son to Alonso King of Naples, and lastly to Alonso de Este, Eldest Son to Her. pacified, cules Duke of Ferrara. During the Papacy of Alexander McCardinal Caps were given to Spaniards. Navarre was now in an uproar for two Reasons: One was, that John Viscount Narbonne, Unckle to the Queen of Navarre, pretended he had a better Right to the Crown than she, because his Eldest Brother Gaston died before his Mother Queen Esteur, and therefore he fold he was to take place of the Grandshilden. On the other side the Farl of Lexin than file, becaule his Eldelt Brother Galron died before his Mother Queen Edenor, and therefore he faild he was to take place of the Grandchildren. On the other fide the Earl of Lerin diffurbed the Country, being possessed of Pamplona, Olite, and several other Places. Each Party had recount to King Ferdmand to juttlife their Proceedings, as to one who was fo nearly concerned, and might be to great a support to them. As to the Viscount, King Ferdmand an inversed, he would fland by the King and Queen of Navarre, their Right being undisputable. He therefore took feveral Places in the County of Faux by force of Arms, and at the fame time pleaded his Title in the Parliament of Paris, yet at length he compounded, and gave over his Pretentions for a while. For the Earl of Lerin, it was ordained, that he should deliver up thole Places he was unjultly possessed of, and be banished Nevere during his Life, together with his two Sons Luis and Ferdinand. To mollific these hard Conditions, the Town of Huefcar in the Kingdom of Granada was given him with the Title of a Marquels. This Discoveries and Conquests of the Spaniards in the West-Indics; Controversies arise betwixt the Crowns of Spain and Portugal concerning their Discoveries; Roussillon and Cerdagne reflored to King Ferdinand.

THE most Honourable and Advantageous Enterprize that Spain ever undertook was the Discovery of the West-Indies, properly called The New World, which happed in this manner. A Ship being drove by a violent Storm from the Coast of Africk, was cast upon an un. Gonquest the Coast of the Storm has been been as the Storm had to see the Storm had been the Storm had been the Storm had been the Storm had been seen that the seen th known Land. Alier the Storm had ceafed, the Mafter, with only 3 or 4 Mariners, the reft w. \(\theta \). the being confuned by Famine, returned to the Island Madera. Christopher Columbus, a Genes \(\theta \). the Married in Portugal, was then in that \(\text{flith}\) flitted, and was an able Seaman, and duting Man. He entertained the Mafter of that Ship in his House, who died foon after, and less Columbus his Journal of that Voyage. Others fay, he was informed by one Marcin Polin a Florentine, and others, that he found out by his Skill in Aftrology, that there were vaft Countreys towards the West undiscovered. These his thoughts he communicated first to the King of Zer-tugal, then to Henry VII. of England, and being slighted by them both, came to the Court tugal, then to Henry VII. of England, and being inghted by them both, came to the Court of King Ferdinand: There he waited 7 years, and at latt after the fubduing of the Kingdom of Granada, obtained of the King 3 Ships to attempt tifts Difcovery. It is wonderful that for great an Undertaking was begun only with 17000 Duccats, which the King was forced to borrow, his Revenue was fo far exhausted. Columbus fer fail on the 3d of August from Palas de Moguer, and having touched at the Canaries, after feveral days sait, and many difficulties, he discovered certain Islands which he called The Princes Islands. He spent some days there, and leaving some of his Company in a Fort he built, under the Command of James de Arana, returned to Spain with the News of what he had discovered, and some Proofs of the Riches of the Country. The following year he continued to discover many other Islands, the chiefest whereof were Hispaniela and Cuba. Besides he Coasted a great part of the Continent, as well towards the Southern as Northern Pole. Columbus died in the year of Grace 1500, a Man worthy of Immortal Praise. He was made Admiral of the Indies and Duke of Veraguas, Rewards due to his great Merit. Several others continued these Discoveries, as well during his Life as after his Death. Among these American Vespussus, a Florentine, by order of Emanuel King of Portugal, in the year 1500 difcovered all Brafil, which is a great part of that Continent. After much of the Northern Coalt had been difcovered by feveral Persons, Vasco Namez de Balboa, born at Badajoz, was the first that adventured to pass that narrow Neck of Land that lies between Nambre de Dios and Panama, and so came to the South Sea in the year 1513. These Discoveries of Columbus and Americus Vespusius raised a Controversie betwixt the Crowns of Castile and Portugal, the latter pretending all the Discovery of the New World appertained to him by Grants of feveral Popes, and particularly of Enginim IV. On the other fide the King of Caffie pleaded a Bull of Pope Alexandar VI. in the year 1493, which affigned to him all the Lands to the Westward of an imaginary Line drawn 100 Leagues beyond the Islands of Cabo Verde. This Grant was afterwards altered by another, which ordained the faid Line to be drawn 370 Leagues farther towards the West, to Portugal the end that Brofil might fall within the Portugues Limits. Heromo Ozorio, Bilhop of Silver, the bil in the Life of King Engand, affirms the faid Line was appointed to be drawn 36 Degrees coveries. West of the Meridian of Lisbon. Upon this Determination was grounded another Dispute, Wett of the Meridian of Liston. Upon this Determination was grounded another Dilpute, the Cafillium pretending that the Molluco Illands, whence the Spice is brought, fell within their Limits, as being within that half of the World affigned them. All this the Portuguese deny, and each Party bring Arguments to make good their Assertion. Certain it is, that Ferdinand Magallanes, a Portugues, being disgusted because his king did not Reward his Services done in India, perswaded, the Emperor Charles V. Grandson to King Ferdinand, that a new way might be sound to the Moluco Islands by the South West. He had 5 ships given him new way migut to tout to the season mains by the south with the pear 1519. Having touched at the Constitute, the Coafted all along Brofd, and found a Streight in 53 Degrees of South Latitude, which of him is called the Streight of Magulan. At the extrance of that Streight one of the Ships fruck upon a Rock and was loft; another weary of that long Voyage ftole away by night, and returned to Sevil. With the rest he passed the Streight, and was himself with some of his turned to orevit. With the reit ne paned the streight, and was nimited with tome of his Companions killed in an Island called Zubu. Those that were left being too few to Man all the Ships, burnt one, and with the other two came to the Moluco Islands. They loaded in the Island of Tidore, but one of them being very leaky was lost. The other coming round by the Cape of Good Hope, at last arrived at Sevil, 3 years after his departure. The Ship was called the Vittory, the Master John Schalliam Camo, a Biscainer, whose Name ought never to be forgotten, as being the first that failed round the World. Many afterwards attempted that same Voyage, but the Profit not answering the Trouble it was laid aside, as also because King John of Portugal lent the Emperor Charles V. 350000 Duccats, upon Condition he and his Heirs should desift from that Undertaking, till the Money were repayed. On the Right Hand of that Neck of Land, which we have faid lies between the North and South Seas, is the Kingdom of New Spain, and the City Mexico, its Metropolis, seated in the midst of a Lake. Over this and many other large Provinces and Kingdoms Reigned the mighty Emperor Montexima, whom Ferdinand Cortes in the year 1520, with wonderful Refolution, apprehended, and made Prisoner in his own Palace. He being killed accidentally by a Stone cast at a window where he was looking out to appeale his People, Cortes brought those vail Provinces under the subjection of Charles the Emperor, gained himself Eternal Honour, and left to his Successfors the Marquesses del Valle, a great Estate in the Kingdom of Maxico. On the Left Hand of that Neck of Land Francis Picarro, in the year 1325, discovered the Kingdom of Control of the Contr Peru, and 6 years after Conquered it, taking and putting to death Atabalipa Lord of that Country. This is the richest Country for Mines of Gold and Silver hitherto discovered, infomuch that all the Utenfils of those People, even to their Pots and Kettles, were of these precious Mettals. Pizarro shared not the vast Booty he got there fairly with James de Almagro, his principal Companion in that Conquest, and the rest of his Men, and yet the meanest Soldier's part came to 9000 Duccats, which was the richest Plunder ever taken till that time. His Force was about 300 Men, who in Battle overthrew above 100000 Indians. Riches and Plenty produced Pride and Infolence, for Ferdinand, Brother to Prancis Pizzoro, understanding that Almagro openly complained of the Wrong done him and medicated Revenge, he ing that dissipated openly contained and the state of the revenge of his Father. This was a bold Attempt, and to punish it the Governour Christopher Vaca de Cafro, joined with Gonçalo Pizarro, another Brother of the faid Francis, and with their Forces overthrew and killed the faid James. This Victory and his great Riches fo puffed up Gençalo Pizarro, that he attempted to make himself absolute Lord of that Country. Blasco Namez Vela was fent by the Emperor from Spain to be Viceroy of Peru, him the Rebellious Spaniards took Prisoner, and put to Death. Afterwards the Licentiate Peter de Gasca, tho a Prieft, and one of the General Council of the Inquificion, put an end to all those Tumults rather by Policy than Force. He put to death Gonçalo Pizarro, and the other Heads of the Rebellion. This done he returned into Spain, where he was first Bishop of Palencia, then of Siguença till the end of his Life, which was very long. Ferdinand Pizarro, the only Surviver of the Three Brothers, was long a Prisoner in Spain, for before the Rebellion of his Brother God punished the Murder of Almagra, which was the cause of all those Broils; Thus God punished the Murder of the Emperor Atabalian, not suffering one of his Enemies to escape scottee, and the ill acquired Riches perished with their Owners. The Cultoms of all these People were strange, and all other things extraordinary. Their Fish, Beasts, Trees and Herbs all different from ours. They had no use of Letters, no Money, no Weights, nor did they build any Ships, only Boats of one Tree hollowed like Trays, which they call Canoes. For Cloathing they had neither Linnen, Woollen, nor Silk, but only Cotton, whereof there is abundance. There was no Iron, and confequently none of the Weapons and other Neceslaries made thereof. Corn like ours they have none, but a Grain they call Maiz, nor Oil, nor Wine made of Grapes, but they wanted not other Liquors to make them Drunk, to which they are much addicted. They know not how to make Candles of Wax or Tallow. There were no Beafts of Burden, nor to Ride, nor Carts, or Litters. Prisoners taken in War, and Slaves, were facrificed in fuch vaft numbers, that it is held for a certain truth above 20000 perished in this manner every year in only the City Mexico, whose Flesh they ear without any loathing. It was Customary to have many Wives, and Sodomy was permitted, so brutish was their Government. Their Garb was strange, and many went quite naked. Afterwards Chile upon the South Sea was discovered, where were found Warlike Indians, and difficult to be Subdued, and on our fide beyond Brasil and the River de la Plata lies Paraguay and Tucuman, extending to the Streights of Magellan. The Philippine Illands were found at another time. and took their Name from Philip II. King of Spain. The Lieutenant Michael Lopez de Legaspi, conquered the chief of them called Luzon, and its City Manila, on the 18th of Mar galph, conquered the chief of them cance and an an only prainting, on the form of many 1572. Laftly, in the year 1598, a good Body of Men under the Command of D. Jobrale of Onate, fer out from Mexico, to the Conquest of New Mexico. This Country lies in about 30 deg. of N. Lat. The Soil is stuitful, the People more polished than the other Indians, their Houses 3 or 4, and some 7 Stories high. It was known by hearfay ever since the time of Charles VIII. King of France, being inflamed with the defire of conquering the Kingdom of Rougillon

The History of SPAIN.

Maples, to which he pretended he had a good Title, thought it necessary to secure King Fer. and Gendinand, by entring into a League with him, lest he should in his absence invade Brance, the dagar re-kingdom of Naples belonging to the House of Argeon. To this purpose a Treaty was carried King Fer on for restoring Russilan and Cerdaigne. King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth leaving the Go-dinand. vernment of their new Kingdom of Granula to the Earl of Tendilla, in June set out towards Aragon, to be nearer to their Commissioners who managed that Treaty. At Zaragoga they fettled the Government of that City, and went thence to Barcelona in October. There, as the King came out from giving Audience, according to Custom, one John Canamares, a Catalenian, came up with his naked Sword to kill him, and gave him a Wound under his Ear. This Fellow being apprehended, it appeared he was Mad, and had undertaken that Action, because he Dreamed that if he killed the King he should succeed him. However, he was torn with Pinchers and then burnt. The League betwixt Spain and France, after much altercation, was laftly concluded at Narbonne on the 18th of January 1493, all Princes, except the Pope, being excluded. It was agreed that the King of Spain should not Marry his Daughters without the confent of the King of France, and that on this account Russillon and Cerdaigne should be restored. However some months passed before the execution. Next, to pacific Maximilian King of the Romans, the King of France restored to him his Daughter, and the Earldom of Artois her Dower, and gave him Security for the Restitution of the Earldom of Burgunds, and the rest of the Dutchy wrongsully detained from him. At the same time died the Emperor Frederick, and his Son Maximilian succeeded him, King Ferdinand continued fill in Aragon and Catalonia, till such time, as according to Contract, Russillon and Cerdaigne were delivered to him in September, the French Garrison marching out. All Historians, and especially the French, blame that King for parting with those Dominions he had in possession, upon an uncertain hope. Many lay the blame on the Bishop of Albi, who was the French afterwards caused new disputes.

Ambassador at the Treaty, and say he was corrupted with Spanish Gold.

Palma, one of the Canary Islands Conquered; The Masterships of the Three Military Ori ders annexed to the Crown of Castile; The Original of the Neopolitan War; The death of Ferdinand King of Naples.

T the fame time that King Ferdinand recovered Russilon, he was in the farthest part of Spain restored to the Island of Cadiz and its Port, which is one of the most famous in the whole World. King Henry the IV. had with his wonted Prodigality given it to D. John Ponce de Leen Earl of Arcos, who dying fome Months after the taking of Granada, that Island was taken from Roderick Ponce his Grandson and Heir, and restored to the Crown. Yet in lieu of it the Town of Calares in Africk, was given to Roderick Ponce, and his Title of Earl, changed into that of Duke of Arcos. The Island Palma, one of the Canaties, was now Conquered by Alonfo de Lugo, fent by the King and Queen upon that Expedition. was now Conquerted by Zump as Dago, Each by the King and Queen upon that Expendent.

It is the most considerable thing which happed this Year, was that the King possible thing the Conquerted of the Masterships of the Three Military Orders in Castilla. The Masters were exempt from conquerted the Read Lucidships and queen fewer of the results by reading of their well by the read of the Regal Jurisdiction, and were so excellive powerful by reason of their vast Riches and mano Vegal Jurisdiction, and were descence powering by reason of their vair kiches and many Dependants, that they were grown terrible to the Kings themselves. For this reason Pope immeent the VIII. granted the Catholick King Ferdinand should hold those Masterships as Administrator. This Bull was obtained about the same time that D. Garcia de Padilla Master of Calatrava departed this Life, which was in the Year 1487, and D. Alonso thip of the 3 Mil. Cardenas, Mafter of Saniago dying at this time, the King took possession of that Master of Saniago dying at this time, the King took possession of that Master of Island or the saniago dying at this time, the King took possession of that Master of Island or the Archbishoprick of Sevil. Thus the King became Master of those Three Orders for his Life, and Pope Alexander joined the King became Matter of those fiftee Orders for the Life, and Pope Alexander joined with him Queen Elizabeth, appointing her to Inherit those Dignities after his death. Liftly Pope Adrian some Years after, to oblige his Schollar Charles the Emperor, granted to him and his Heirs the Presentation of all the Bishops in Spain, which before, the Kings had only liberty to recommend by way of suit. He also assigned him the Administration of the Three Military Orders for ever. To this last Master of Aleanara, who was afterwards a Cardinal, The Master Antony de Nebriga dedicated his Dictionary. This was a Man worthy of Immortal Fame, and to have his Name Recorded in the History of Spain, as well because he laid the Foundation of all the Learning of the Latin Tongue there, as for the many Books he writ, fraught with good Doctrine, and Learning. Among his other Works, he composed the Histories of the Wars of Granada, and that of Navarre, which happed fome Years after; true it is, in those Works there appears more of his diligence and fincerity, than elegancy. At the same time that the Marques of Cadiz and Master of Santiago died, Henry de Guzman Duke of Medina Sidonia, and D. Peter Euriquez Lieutenant of Andaluzia de-

Lady Journa de Aragon, King Ferdinand's Bastard Daughter.

Nothing hapned about this time more remarkable, or that put Italy and the most part of the of Europe into a greater confusion, than the famous War in Naples, undertaken by Charles Naples the VIII. King of France, as has been before hinted. To speak of this War, let us recollect what has been in other places faid of the Original Causes of it. Pope Urban the VI. caused Charles Prince of Durazzo to come out of Hungary to oppose him, against Joanna Queen of Naples, who had savoured the Election of Clemen the VII. his Competitor, whereby the Peace of the Church was much disturbed. She called to her affiltance Luis Duke of Anjou, younger Son to the King of France, and adopted him her Son, and Heir to that Kingdom. This Luis had a Son of his own Name, who made War upon Ladiflaus, Son to Charles, and King of Naples, but his fuccess was no better than his Father's, for both were unfortunate in that War. Luis the Grandson was called by Pope Martin the V. against Joanna has to younger, Queen of Naples, and Sister to Ladislaus. This Luie expelled Along's King of Aragon, whom the said Joanna had adopted, and asterwards cast off. Renee his Brother succeeded Lus; with him King Alonso was long at War, and at last forced him to return into France. John Duke of Lorrain was Son to this Revee, and in the Barons War much distressed King Frederick of Naples, and afterwards headed the Catalonians in Rebellion against King John. He dying at Barcelona, as has been faid, Charles Nephew to Renès, his Brother's Son Inherited his Possessions. This Charles in his Will constituted Luis the XI. King of France his Heir, believing Renée Duke of Lorrain his own Nephew could not be able to withstand the power of the Aragonians. This was the original Cause of the War in Naples. Another secondaty Cause was added in this manner, Galleazzo Duke of Milan being Murdered by his Subjects, Lais Sforcia his Brother took upon him the Government of that Dukedom, under colour of the Minority of John Galleazzo, Son to the deceased. Luis Sforcia had to Wise Beatrix Sifter to to Hercules Duke of Ferrara. Also Alonso Duke of Calabria, Son to the King of

Naples was Married to Hippolita, Sifter to Luss Sforcia, by whom he had Ferdinand, and Elizabeth. Ferdinand was King of Naples after his Grandfather and Father, Elizabeth was Mar-parted this Life. D. John his Son succeeded the Duke. Not long before, Peter Hernandez. de Velasco the Constable dying, Bernardin de Velasco, his Son succeeded him, and Married the

ried to John Galenzzo the true Duke of Milan. This Lady feeing her Husband excluded. the had Two Children by her, perswaded her Father to restore her Husband to the Into the control of t fild of right appertained to him. Many Men of Note of his own Subjects encouraged the King to undertake this Enterprize, as also some Barons of Naples Banished by King Ferdinand Philip de Comines fays those Noblemen were well received at first, yet such was their enter. tainment, that necessity drove them to have recourse to King Ferdinand, who had a better-Title to that Crown, than the Possessor, who were of the Bastard Line. Yet the King perceiving those Lords only fought their own ends; and would confequently follow him that came first, thought not fit to engage in that War, and only endeavoured to disswade the French from it. By this time they were fo far ingagaged, there was no going back Both Parties fought to ftrengthen themselves with Alliances. The French and Miliangles joyned in League with all the States of Italy, except the Florenines, who at first favoured the Aragonians, and the Venetians who chose rather to stand neuter, than favour either side. Pope Alexander, tho' at first he appeared averse from the Kings of Naples, at last upon promise that his Sons should have possessions given them in that Kingdom, and that a yearly Penlion should be paid to him, he resolved to stand by those who had obliged him. The King of Naples ceased not to provide for the War, and make all the Friends he could. Particularly, he sent an Ambassador into Spain, to press the King to make War upon Fance. He urged their near Kindred, as being Coulin-germans, and Brothers in-Law, and put King Ferdinand in mind of the danger of Sicily, in Case the French became Masters of Naples. All this moved not King Ferdinand to break with France, only he fent Garcilaffo dela Veg. to the Pope, to confirm him in his resolution of protecting the King of Naples; and D. Alonfo de Silva, brother to the Earl of Cifuentes, was fent to France to diffinade that King from the Enterprize he had in hand, and in case he would not defift, declare to him king for dinand could not forsake his kinfman and Ally. This hapned at the beginning of the Year 1494, when King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth having till then staid in dragen, the lear 1494, when King ceramana and Queen Eursbetchaving fill then Itad in dragon, went away from Zaragoga to Tordefillas, thence to Valladolid, and fo to Medinadel Campon, 1494. There they received advice that Ferdinand King of Naples was departed this Life. He died Ferdinand on the 25th of January, of a great Age, and in care for the War then in Hand. Un King of fortunate on the one lide, for leaving his Affairs in foill a Pollure, the chief cause where. Nashquies of was his auftere Temper: Happy on the other fide that he lived not to fee the Ruin of of was his afficer Temper. This you also have that his flourishing Kingdom. His Son Also has fine that his flourishing Kingdom. His Son Also has fine that he was no way more acceptable to the People than his Father had been. Cardinal J. In de Borgiu fent on purpole by the Pope his Unckle, as Legate to Naples, Crowned him. This Year also the Pope his Bull granted to the Kings of Cafelle for ever the 3d part of the Tithes of Cafelle, Leon and Grands, conditionally that the profit thereof should be span in the War with the Moort. At Tordfillus on the 7th of June, was agreed the Discreence betwite Cossile and Portugal, touching their Discoveries in the India. The Conquests of Cassile were to begin 35 Degrees West from the Meridian of Liston, all thence Eastward as far as half the Circumserence of the Globe to appertain to the Portugueses. The matter also of the Conquests in Africk was adjusted, so that all within the Kingdom of Fig should belong to Portugal, the Kingdom of Tremecen to Castile; but no Line was fixed to distinguish their Limits, which

THE King of France being refolved to Invade Italy in Person, gathered all his Forces; F. ench line the Randezvouz of his Army was at Lyons. Thither came from Oftia, whither he fled vade Nate for fear of the Pope, the Cardinal of St. Peter to forward that undertaking. On the other pl.s. fide D. Alonfo de Silvo according to his Infruedions in his King's bhalit, protefled against those proceedings. Nevertheless, the King of France committing the Government of his Kingdom to Peter Duke of Bourbon his Brother in Law, fer out from that City upon Tuesday the 22th of July, with him went most of the Nobility of France. His Army consisted of about 20000 Foot, and 5000 Horse. To pay these Forces, he borrowed Money of the Nobility, besides 150000 Florins taken up of a Genoese Banker, a small Sum for so great an undertaking. King Alonfo fent a great Fleet under the Command of his Brother Frederick, to Infelt the State of Genoa. By Land he fent his Son the Duke of Calabriato invade the Territories of Milan. All things fell out unfortunately, for Frederick did nothing worth naming, and the Duke of Calabria was stopped by the Forces of France and Addan, from passing out of Romania. The King of France passed the Alpes, and on the 9th of September came to Afte, the Bounds of the Dukedom of Milan, and then possessed by the Duke of Orleans, who was in that Expedition, and pretended a Right to the whole Dukedom. D. Alonfo the Spanish Ambassador, was very little looked upon at Court, insomuch that he was ordered to be difmitted, but he winked at all, being a Person of great Prudence and Sagacity, At the City Afte they flighted him to far, as to assign him no Quarters, whereupon he was forced to go away to Genoa. There he began to treat with Luis Sforcia, who repented of what he had done, about joining in League with the Catholick King, giving him a hint that one of the Princelles should be Married to his Eldest Son, for they could not Marry with any other Prince by reason of the agreement made with France. This took so much with any other Prince by reaton of the agreement made with France. This took to much with Link Sprain, that he refolved to change Parties, tho at the fane time he repaired to sife, to receive the French King, and gave him a Sum of Money to pay his Army. The King leaving the Duke of Otleans who defigned to lay hold of that oportunity to polleshimfell of the State of Milan, at Afte Marched with his Army to Favia, where he vilitted the Duke John Galeazzo, who was then at the point of death, and was his Coulin-german, both their form distance, with was then at the point of death, and was in Scoulingerhain, both their Mothers being Silfers, and Daughters to the Duke of Savoy. The Duke died on the 21th of Oilober, and it appeared plainly he had been poisoned, which increased the Hatred conceived towards his Unckle. The same day the King of France entred Plasmeia, and with him Lewis Sforeia, who understanding the death of his Nephew, immediatly returned to Milan, and there publickly took upon him the Title of Duke, notwithstanding his Nephew left a Son five Years of Age, as also two Daughters and his Wife big with Child. So far did his Ambition blind him, that the fame day he wrote to King Alonfo, giving an account of his Nephews death, and telling him the Nobility and People of Milan had obliged him, to take the Title of Duke, and that he believed this would be no way displeating to him, knowing how well affected he was towards him and his Kingdom. From Plafencia the King entred into Tufcany. Ambassadors came to him from all parts, and particulally from the Venetians, offering their Friendship. The Pope fent the Cardinal of Siena his Legate, who came as far as Pifa, but the King would not fee' him. The Florentines fent Peter de Medicis on the same account. He contrary to his Commission and Instructions was agreeing to deliver up to the French Saraçana, Saraçanella, and Piedrafanta, firm Hollows was agree-ing to deliver up to the French Saraçana, Saraçanella, and Piedrafanta, firm Hollows, and fome other things to this purpole. Hereat the People were fo inraged, that they Banished him and his Brothers, the Cardinal de Medicia and Julian, plundered their Houses, and conficated all their Estates, which were very great. Being come to Pisa, the King restored that City to its Liberty, delivering it from the subjection it was under to the Florentines. He entred Florence the same day that Picus Mirandula died there at the Age of 34 Years, a Man of fuch an excellent Wit, that he was called the Phanix. He agreed with the Florentines to Destore their Forts after the War was ended, that they for his sake should pardon Peter de Medicis and his Brothers, and pay 120000 Florins towards the Charge of the War. Rome was in an uproar because the Cardinals could not agree, and the Nobility was divided, for Prosper and Fabricius Colonna favoured the French, and Virginius Urstinus the Neapolitans. The Colonneses with Cardinal Ascanius Sforcia had seized the City Osia, by which means Rome fuffered great want, no Provisions coming to it by Sea. It was genarally believed the Pope would agree with the King of France, or elle depart Rome. Hereupon the People began to mutiny, and the Pope was obliged to fatisfie the Cardinals and Roman Gentry, affuring them he would fland by the juster Cause, and if the King of France attempted to enter Rome with his Army, he would make head against him, and hazard his own Life in the Quarrel. with his Army, he would make head against him, and hazard his own Lite in the Quarrel. All he could fay, was of little force to encourage the People, who were terrified with the News daily brought of the approach of the French, and their fecuring the Towns belonging to the Church. The Pope himself perceiving that neither his own, nor the Forces of Naples, with a good part whereof the Duke of Calabria then lay at Burges were fufficient to withstand the Power of the Enemy, retired himself to the Castle of Samagelo, and fent Word to the Duke to retire, left some misfortune should happen to him. In fine, the King with his whole Army entred Rome upon the last day of December, preceding the Year 1495, all the People, and some of the Cardinals making great expressions of Joy. 1495. He Lodged himself in the Pallace of S. Mark. At this time died the Cardinal of Spain, at Guadalajara, upon the 11th day of January, aged 67 Years and 3 Months. He was a noble Person, excellently qualified, and had a great hand in the Government all his Lifetime. He Founded a College at Valladslid, and ordered in his Will an Hospital to be Built at Toledo, to which he lest all he was Worth. The See of Toledo vacant by his death, the King would have given to his Son Alonso Archbishop of Zaragogo, but the Queen would not consent. She offered it to D. Peter de Oropesa one of her Council, but he would not accept of it, therefore it was given to F. Francis Ximenes de Cisseros a Friar Minor, of known Piety and Virtue, but of mean extraction. When promoted to the Archbishoprick, he was the Queen's Confessor, some Years after he was made Cardinal. At Rome, the Pope and King of France agreed that the Cardinal of Valencia should go with the King as Legate, that the Great Turk's Brother should be delivered to him, and that the Castles of Civita Veschia, Terraçina, and Spoleto should be in his Power during the War. Hereupon the King obliged himself to cause the City Ostia to be restored to the Pope after the War, and to do Homage himself to the Pope, as he did a few days after in the Palace of S. Peter. This done, the King set out from Rome on the 28th of January, taking his way towards Naple; whence advice was brought, that the City Aquila and many other Places had voluntarily submitted to him. King Ferdinand of Spain understanding what was done, and of the Affront offered to the Pope, refolved to declare. To this purpole he fent Antony de Fonseca, and John d'Albien to require the King of France to forbear making War on the Lands of the Church, fince he well knew the Pope and all that belonged to him, ought to be exempted by the late Treaty. At the fame time he fent the Earl of Trivento to Command the Fleet that was fitting at Alicant, and Gonçalo Fernandez de Cordova, with 500 Horse by Land. The Ambalfadors came to Rome the fame Day the King fet out from thence, and imme-The Annual and the Condentials in the Field, as he was on Horfeback, requiring him not to proceed further, without making Satisfaction to the Church. The King was fur-prized, and faid he would answer at Velitre: There they delivered their Embaffic more at prized, and faid he would answer at Velitre: There they delivered their Embassise more at large, complaining of the Wrongs and Affronts offered to the Pope, and requiring him not to testing, the King said he was come too sar to go back, and therefore would stand to Judgient. After much content when he had conquered the Kingdom. Then Anony de Fonsea replied, Since your Major will have it so, and is resolved to be tried by the Sword, God the Desence of the Innevent shall be the Judge in this Causs. The King my Massier has some his Duty, and is now left free to employ his Povecs as be shall think fit. This said, in the presence of the King and his Council he tore the Articles of the lare Agreement herwise the Two Kings. A hold Astion which had slands Articles of the late Agreement betwixt the Two Kings. A bold Action, which had almost provoked him to lay hold of him; but he returned to Rome. This Embaffic encouraged the Pope not to stand by the late Capitulation; and the next Night the Cardinal of Valeneia in a Disguise stole away from Velitre: He took not the Road to Rome, lest it should be thought he fied by Order of the Pope, but went to Spoleto, a strong City belonging to the

I will complain of no body; my Sim are the sails of this sed Disselve, and it infit be who is the occasion of it should suffer. My Life is in the hands of God; what I have to offer up is the Grown, which I take from my own Head as unworthy of it, and transfer it to my Son, whose Worth you all know. It is a good Change, since in lieu of a Sickly Man, I give you a Toung and Valiant King. I wish things were in that Condition that I might show to the World how little I value its Grandeur; but it is also Prudence to submit to Necessity. In fine, I am resolved, since I cannot be useful in this time of need, to quit my dear Country, rather than be a to the World now little I value its Grandeur; but it is also Prudence to submit to Necessity. In fine, I am resolved, since I cannot be useful in this time of need, to quit my dear Country, rather than be a Wiinsi of its Missoniums. Perhaps this wolumary Sacrifice I make of my self, may appease God's Wrath, and incline the Hearts of Men to defend you. It is needless to put you in mind of your Duty oyour King, nor him of the Care be is to have of his Subjects. This Act of Resignation was personneed on the 23d of January, in the Castle del Ovo. Dominion of Spain,

CHAP. V.

The League against the French carried on with wonderful Secrescy; The French King re turns home; The Venetians overthrown by the French; King Ferdinand of Naples successful against them, and recovers that Noble City.

League a. O fooner had the French possession of the Kingdom of Naples, but all the sainst the Princes of Italy began to consider how heavy the Dominion of that Nation would lie upon them, if suffered to settle and root it self in Italy. King Ferdinand of Spain was in the greatest danger for the sland of Scily, whither he was informed the French designed to pas, as soon as they concluded the Affair of Naples, being chiefly animated to that Enterprize by the Prince of Salerio, one of the Outlaws, and principal Enemy to the House of Aragon. The better to oppose them, he fought to draw the other Princes to a League against France: To Detter to oppose them, he lought to draw the other Princes to a League against Prance: To this purpose he had forme Months fince fent Laurence Suarez, de Figuera to Venice, and now fent a Gentleman called John Deza to the Duke of Milan, with Orders to make an Overture to him, not only of giving him one of the Princesses his Daughters, but of making him King of Lombardy; both which Proposals he willingly gave ear to. He also practifed to draw the Emperor and the English into the League, and in order to it proposed cross Matches to threngthen the Alliance between Prince John and the Princes Joanna his Children, and Maximiliance in the International Control of the Princes Joanna his Children, and Maximiliance between Prince John and the Princes Joanna his Children, and Maximiliance between Prince John and the Princes Joanna his Children, and Maximiliance here. milian and his Sifter Margaret on the other fide; which Defign was fo well profecuted, that it was fully concluded by Francis de Rojas, fent on purpose to Flanders. Care was taken to raise Money in Castile and Aragon, to desiray the Charge of the War. In Aragon the Cortes mer, which the King would have had the Princes Catherine hold; but it would not be allowed. and he was forced to come himself. Such induffry was used, that at last the League was concluded at Venice. It was agreed this, called the Most Holy League, should last for the space of 25 Years, and that between them all should be raised an Army of 34000 Horse, and 28000 Foot, proportionable to the Power and Ability of each of the Consederates. It was given out the Defign was to protect the Church, and defend their own Dominions; but, in reality it was to drive the French out of Italy. This Business was carried on with such wonderful Secrecy, that the French manufacture philips de Cominent, Lord of Argenton, a Man of great Wisdom and Experience, then at Venice, had not the least Intelligence of it, and was so surprised when Augustin Barbadice, Duke of Venice, gave him an account of it, that he asked whether the King his Master might return with safety into France. The sace of Assairs was soon changed; for the Neapolitans repented of what they had done, because the Insolencies committed by the French were intolerable. The Duke of Milan was perplexed, for that the Duke of Orleans had secured the City Novara; besides, he understood that the Freech endeavoured to draw the Genoese from his Subjection, infomuch that he was forced with great Submission to have recourse to the Venetians for their Affistance. The King of France understanding what to have recounter to the veneram for their Aintance. The King of France understanding what had hapned, resolved to return with all speed before the way was stopped. Before his departure, he appointed Gilbers Duke of Monpenser, a Prince of the Blood, Viceroy of Naples; with him he lest part of his Army, and some able Commanders. He also sent to the Pope to ask of him the Investiture of the Kingdom of Naples, and to let him know he desired to pass through Rome to conser with his Holiness about important Assaurant Associations, as to the Investiture, the Pope answered he was ready to do Justice according as he should find; and as for his going of the Rome to conservation without four great Dissolved because the Boople were averaged. Rome, it could not be without fone great Disorder; because the People were enraged against the French. This unpleasing Answer made the King hasten his Journey. He set out from Naples on the 20th of May: Being come to Rome, he found the Pope was retired to Perofa. From Rome he went into Tuscany, spent some Days at Siena, and without entring Florence, went King re. From Rome he went into Tuftanny, spent some Days at Siena, and without entring Florence, went on to Pifa. The Florentines demanded the restitution of that City, as had been promised them; home. but the People of Pifa prevailed upon him. Thence he went into Lombardy, where Francis in Marques of Manua, General of the Venetians, came to cut off his Retreat. The French being sewer in number, would have avoided sighting, and endeavoured to join the Duke of Orleans; but it could not be. The Enemies met on the Banks of the River Tarre, which runs within a League of the City Parma. The Venetians lay near Fornevo, a Village at the Foot of over-the Mountains, the French at the entrance into the Valley: There the Batte was sought, the Woman with since the Mountains, the French had leissing to rally, and returned upon the Enemy with sinch Furv. that they broke them with a mighty Slaughter. and returned upon the Enemy with fuch Fury, that they broke them with a mighty Slaughter. It was m small help to him in his retreat, that the River being swollen with the Rain, the Italians could not to foon pass it to pursue him. Yet he sustained nuch loß by the Light Horfe that kept in his Rear, and the Country-people who took Arms to fecure the Paffes. Above 4000 Italians were killed in the Fight. The Duke of Manua immediately fate down before Novara, where he much diffressed the Duke of Orleans.

Scarce was the King gone from Naples, when the Affairs of that Kingdom began to change. Ferdinand Scarce was the King gone from Naples, when the Muaits of that Kingdom began to change. Ferdinand The Fleet of Spain, commanded by the Earl of Trivento, lay at Meçina. Thither came the King of Two differences of the Ring of Two differences was flooped from Days with his Men at Majorea and Sardinia, but arrived ceisful at Meçina on the 24th of Maj. King Ferdinand of Naples had already posselled himself of gainst the Rijoles, and other neighbouring Places in Calabria, in which Province Everyard Stuart Lord of Aubeni, a renowned Commander, was left Governour by the King of France. Rijoles, Cotron, Amantia, and fome other Places were delivered to Gongalo Fernandez, to hold them for the King Amantia, and Iome other Places were delivered to Gonçalo Fernandez, to hold them for the King his Mafter till he should be paid the Charges of that War, as also to secure Sieily Some difference arose betwix the new King and Gonçalo Fernandez, because the King was positive for marching with all his Forces directly to Naples, the Citizens inviting him, even before the King of France was gone thence. Gonçalo Fernandez, would not abandon Calabria, where he had those Strong holds, and doubted not but the rest of the Country would declare for the King of Spain, for whom they tellified a fingular Affection. It was agreed to relieve Semanera, which was diffressed by the French. The Lord Aubeni lay in the way, with whom the King came to a Battel, was deseated, and had been killed or taken, his Horse falling dead under him, had not a Gentleman, called John Andrew d'Altavila mounted him on his own Horfe; to the King efcaped, and the Gentleman was killed; which was an extraordinary Demonfiration of Loyalty in those corrupt Times. This Battel was fought on June 21. Our Forces retired to Semanera; thence the King went over to Sicily, refolving to return again to Naples, before the News of that Misfortune could come thither. Gonçalo Fernandez went away to the other part of Calabria, where he foon took feveral Places, and at laft fubdued the whole Province: The King, with 60 Sail lie found at Megina, without any Land-men paffed over to Maplet, where he was received with great Joy. The People rofe and plundered the Houses of the Princes of Salerno and Basignano. The Duke of Mappenser and Prince of Salerno retired to Castenov. Capua and all Apulia followed the example of Naples. Besides, upon the News of the Battel of Turro, the Colonels forsook the French, and agreed with the King of Naples. On the other side, the Ursini joined with the French, Still the Castles of Naples held for the French, but were close blocked up. A Moor who was in the Monastery of Santa Cruze, still held by the French, advertised the Marques de Pescara he would give him admittance into it. The Marques coming thither at night, that Fellow gave him a mortal Wound. This Nobleman was the King's General; he lest a Son called Ferdinand, who was asterwards a samous Commander. Proper Colona succeeded him in his Command. The Castles were at length furrendered, the Duke of Monpensier and Prince of Salerno being before gone to the other part of Calabria, where he foon took feveral Places, and at last subdued the whole Pro-

a lamous Commander. Profer Coloma succeeded him in his Command. The Castles were at length surrendered, the Duke of Monpenser and Prince of Salerno being before gone to the City Salerno by Sea. During this War of Naples, was first discovered a new Discase contagious only by way of carnal Copulation: The Italians called it the French Discase, and the Indian, and was carried to Naples by the Spaniards, Tenerif, one of the Camary Islands, was this Year brought under the Dominston of Spain, by Forces sent thicker by the King. The King of that Island being brought to Spain, was sent as a Present to the Republick of Palma was made Lieuvepan of the Camarie. The Death of John II. King of Portugal; The French quite expelled the Kingdom of Naples; Ferdinand King of Spain Honoured by the Pope with the Title of Catholick King; The Posture of Affairs in Portugal under Emanuel the New King.

THE Catholick King laboured to draw the Kings of England and Portugal into the League against France. He of Pertugal excused himself upon account of his ancient Friendship with France, and his Dislatisfaction against the Pope, who resulted to Legitimate his Son George, whom he had by a Lady of Quality, and defigned to make his Heir, having to that purpose follicited the Emperor to renounce any Claim he might lay to that Crown. To the King of follicited the Emperor to renounce any Claim he might lay to that Crown. 10 the King of Empland it was not only proposed he should enter into the Confederacy, but also marry his Heir to one of the Princesses of Castile. Both things succeeded, but it was after some time. The King of Partugal being troubled with a Dropsie, went to the Baths of Algarve, which are Islan II. The best in those Parts. From him are descended the Dukes of Aviero. This Prince had a mixture of Good and Evil: He encouraged Brave and Virtuous Men, was a Lover of Justice, had a piercing Judgment, and Noble Inclinations. The Blood he spilt made him hateful to his Subjects, and his Device was a Pelican that feeds its young with its own Blood. His Body was first buried in the Cathedral of Gonçalo Fernandez being possessed of almost all Calabria, had cooped the Lord Aubeni up in the extream part of that Province; yet the King called him away to strike at the Head. In his Place he lest Cardinal Luis & Aragon, the King's Coulin-German. The Country-people thought to fecure the Paffes, but the Spaniards being well versed in that way of Mountain fight, made a great Slaughter of them near a Town of Calabria called Maran. There they understood that some of the Barons of the French Faction lay not far off at a Town called Lacino, and defigned to relieve the the Princo Traction lay not lar oil at a lown cauca Lacino, and designed to releve the Caffle of Confenza. Gonçalo de Cordova marched all night, furprized the Town, killed many of thole Nobles, and fent the reft Prifoners to the King. The Franch befieged Xerula, 10 Miles from Benevento, and the King fate down before Frangiro. The French came to relieve this Place at fuch time as the King's Forces entred and burnt it, to lofe no time in Plunderium. Death Amile Good in faith of the acceptage on two Hills, pripher daying to safe the Val ing. Both Armies flood in fight of one another on two Hills, neither daring to past the Valicy that lay betwixe them. The the French were weak, the King refolved not to fight till Gracult de Cerdeva had joined him; which he did, notwithflanding the Duke of Manpenfer laboured to hinder it. On Midfummer day he came up with the King, who then lay before smalf, whither the French were then retired. He viewed the Place, and on the 1st of July attacked the Enemies Guard upon the Mills, and drove them away, destroying the Mills, which gained him such mighty Reputation, that the Italians began to call him the Great Captain, and looked upon him as Superiour to all other Officers. This Siege was carried on with fuch Vigour, that the Duke of Monpenser was forced to furrender upon Articles, which were, That if within 30 days he were not relieved from France, he would withdraw all the Forces out of the Kingdom, with their Goods, Arms, and Horfes, and deliver up all Places except Gacia, Venofa, and Taranto, and those Towns which the Lord of Aubeni and the Duke except Gacta, Venofa, and Teranto, and those Towns which the Lord of Aubeni and the Duke de Mante were possessed of, Upon this Condition the King was obliged to give the French free Passage by Sea and Land. This was agreed in July, and afterwards performed accordingly. It is worth observing, That in Original Capitulations signed on both Sides, they gave Gastalo Fernandez the Title of Great Captain. Nevertheles, sew of the French ever reached home. The Duke of Manprofise died at Puzzol. Virginin Ussus, contrary to the Capitulation was apprehended by the Pope's Order, with his Son John Jordan, and other Italian Lords. It troubled the King that his Word was broke, and that he could not relieve them, were hed dust por distance with Pope who commanded it, and whose Nenhew John Raraia the yet he durft not disobey the Pope, who commanded it, and whose Nephew John Borgia the Cardinal and Bishop of Melfi followed the Army as his Legate during this War, and the Duke of Gandia Commanded the Forces of the Pope. During the ablence of the Great Captain, the Affairs of Calabria grew into a worse Polture, which obliged him to return thither. He

coming into that Province, the greatest part whereof the Enemy was again possessed of, so distrated them, that the Lord Aubeni was forced to subscribe to the Conditions made with the Duke of Manpenser, and return to France, having gained the Reputation of a Brave but Unfortunate Commander, in that he had to do with 60 great a Man as Gonçalo Fernandez. At the same time that the Affairs of Naplet Began to have a more favourable Aspect, that is, of Spain: Her Body was deposited at Arevalo, where the lived the latter part of her Life somewhat distracted. Thence the was afterwards translated to the Church of the Carthossins at Foomma, on the 22d of the same Month, sailed from Laredo with a Fleet there provided to Company to the Sea. Frederick Emispace, the Admiral Carried her to Flanders, were she was Nobly entertained. This Year also the Dope gave to King Ferdinand of Spain the Title of France Most from Most Corbition. That is, whereas before they used to write on the Dope's Bulls, To the Illuminate Residued to Ended the Portugues, who shalled to write on the Pope's Bulls, To the Illuminate Residued to Residued to Portugues, who said the Spain this highly of King by a great part. John Manuel his Foster Legher, were in great Esteem with the King. D. James was created Earl of Partalegre, D. John made Lord Chamberlain, and afterwards became the Was cleared party of the Manager of and Ammunition into Africk, where the Portugueses had Ceuta taken by King John I. and Tangier and Arzila taken by King Alonso, Unkle to Emanuel. D. John de Meneses, Governour of Arxila. because some of the neighbouring Villages did not bring in their wonted Contributions, joined with the Commander of Tangier, and marched against them. They were unexpectedly fet upon by Barata and Almanderino, two Moorish Commanders; yet the the Enemy were much more numerous, they put them to the rout. All this hapned before the Cortes of Montemor broke up, which could not put an end to the Business in hand, because the Plague raging there, the King was forced at the beginning of this Year to remove to Setuval, to meet his two Widow Sifters, Queen Ellenor and the Dutchess of Bragança. There it was proposed, that D. Alvaro, Brother to the late Duke of Bragança, and that Duke's Children who were in Coffile, fince nothing could be proved against them, should be restored to their Effaces. King Ferdinand of Spain follicited for them, and the King's Sifters begged it with Tears, especially the Dutchess as most concerned, as also his Mother the Dutchess of Visco. The King was unwilling fo foon to alter his Predecessor's Decrees, and to disoblige those that were in Possession of those banished Persons Estates; but at last overcome with so many Intreaties, he made up their Losles other ways, so that none might have cause to complain, It was proposed to marry the King, who was 26 Years of Age when he inherited the Crown. No Match feemed fo advantageous as with Castile. King Ferdinand was willing, but would not give him his Eldelt Daughter; the Second was gone to Flanders, and the Lady Catherine Contracted in England; so he offered the Lady Mary. The Portugues took it ill that any Prince should be preferred before him; besides, he took a liking to the Lady Elizabeth when the was in Portugal. Upon account of this Treaty, the Catholick King demanded of him, That he should enter into the League against France and the Princes: That he should banish the Moors and Jews. As to the King's Request, he excused himself, pleading the ancient Friendflip betwixt France and Portugal; yet he was willing to join in a League for the Defence of Spain, but would not involve himfelf in Quarrels that concerned him not. He condescended to the Defires of the Princess, the many opposed it: And accordingly about the end of the Year fet out a Proclamation, commanding all the Moors and Joves to depart by a time limited, or elfe they should be made Slaves. All the Moors, without hesitation, went over to Africk. In the Business of the Jews there was more difficulty; for soon after, the King ordered all their Children, under 14 Years of Age, to be taken from them and Baptized: A Practice not at all juftifiable, because none ought to be forced to become Christians, nor Children to be taken from their Parents. The reft were so hardly used, that great Numbers were Baptized; but it was a constrained Conversion. Leave was also obtained of the Pope for the Commendaries of the Three Military Orders in that Kingdom to Marry is to that they were only obliged to Conjugal Chaflity. There were fufficient Caules to obtain this Liberty, and yet many condemned it. Certain it is, this made way for the spending the Revenues of those Orders otherwise than had been intended; for what used to be employed in the War, was now confumed in Pleasure and Luxury.

England The Emperor gave out he would go himself into italy to fettle the Alfairs of Lomentersiano bardy and Tajeany. This moved the Duke of Milan to think of forfaking the French Interest, the league and the more, for that about this time died the Dauphin of France a young Child, and the against King being fickly, it was to be feared that Crown would come to the Duke of Orleans, his Asing being uckly, it was to be reared that Crown would come to the Duke of Orleans, his greateff Enemy. These reasons inclined him to adhere to the Confederate Princes. In the Kingdom of Naples the Venetians possessed from part of Apulia. The great Captain held Rijdes, Amantia, and other Places of Calabria for the Catholick King. Notwithstanding the late Capitulation, the French were still possessed from Towns. To reduce all the Kingdom, King Ferdinand tent D. when having in a most time induced most of that Province, he went away to Rome with Prosper Celona. Gatta was a buffines of more concern, for the Earl of Trivento and the Venetian Gallies prefied it by Sea, they advanced not much. It was proposed to Besiege the Feedinand Place by Land, when King Ferdinand fell Sick of a flux at Soma, which so increased, that King of being carried to Nuples, he died on the 7th of Odober. Frederick his Uncle then at Cafel. Natherlates by model budgling his death incombination of the Nuples and the advanced in the Analysis of the Number of the Number of the National States of the Number of the

Naples dies lon understanding his death, immediately repaired to Maples, and was proclaimed King the very day his Nephew died. His first care was to spee with the Princes of Salerno and Bifignano, as also the Earls of Lauria and Melito, the great Enemies of the House of Aragon, Many Princes began to have an Eye towards that Crown, and particularly the Catholick King, whose Title began to be urged both at Rome and Naples, but to no effect at that time, for the Pope and other Princes had rather have a weak King for their Neighbour, than the Power of Spain. The Great Captain who might have done fomething in the Affair, was employed at the Siege of the Caffle of Cefenza, which he hoped fuddenly to be Mafter of, and thus to fecure all that Province. Soon after having subdued Calabria, and taken that Fort, he went to Nola, and leaving his Forces there, vifited the Queens, comforing them for the death of the King. The new King fat down before Gaeta with all his Forces. It hapned the Lord of Awlenie who was going by Land to Rome, came thither at fuch time as the belieged were much streightned, he entred the Town and caused it to be furrendred upon Articles. The French departed in a Galleon and Two Ships Loaden with the Booty, and Plate taken out of the Churches. One of the Ships perished in a Storm; the other ran aground near Terracina, which was looked upon as a Judgment. On the other fide the Emperor as he had agreed, passed the Alps, and entred Lowberdy with 1000 Horse and 5000 Foot. The Duke of Milan with his Forces joined him. From ife he Summoned the Duke of Savoy and Marquess of Monferrat, as Feudataries of the Empire, but they refused to obey, as did the Duke of Ferrara, because he had refused him the Investiture of Modena and Reggio, which are Feofes of the Empire. The Emperor's dethe inventure or property and regges, which are recores of the Empire. The Emperor's defign was to prevent the French policiling themselves of Genoa, which they had attempted. Besides, the King of France in his way from Naples had set free the City Pisa, before Subject to the Florenines. To maintain this liberty, the People of Pisa had recourse to the Princes of Italy, and particularly to the Venetiam. The Duke of Milan covered that City, and particularly to the Venetiam.

and therefore advised the Emperor to make War upon the Florentines in desence of it. To this purpose the Emperor in Person laid Siege to Leghorn, but was forced to raise it without doing any thing material. He had little Confidence in the Princes that fent forhim, peter Be and therefore thought of returning into Germany, and conflitted at Pavia with the Duke Legtorn in of Milm, and Cardinal Bernardin de Carvajul, the Popes Legate, about this his defign. This vain Cardinal perfivaded him to flay, and fluccour Genoa which was in danger. But now came News which broke all their Measures, which was that the Kings of France and Spain had concluded a Truce, supposed to be an introduction to a Peace. It happed in this manner, During the heat of the War in Naples, Spain was apprehensive no less a Stormwould full upon it, because several inroads had been made into France, and the Warlike preparations made by the French were great. This moved the Catholick King to stay some time at ons made by the French were great. This moved the Cattonick King to tay folie time at Girona, with a great Body of Men he had gathered from all parts. But Autumn being fipent, and he defirous to return to Burgu, whither he ordered the Queen to repair, to Celebrate the Marriage of the Prince, the Army broke up, and he went away. The King of France having Intelligence hereof, on a fudden gathered above 18000 Men. The King Allovin Commanded upon that Frontier for the Duke of Bourban, Governor of Languades, he with those Forces broke into Rosslow, and laid Siege to Salfas the Key of that Earldom, but ill Fortified, for the it had a good Garrison, the Works were old. For this reason, the next day after he came before it, which was the 8th of October, he took the Town by Affault, and the Castle upon Composition, many of the Defendants being killed. D. Henry Enriquez hasted thither with what Forces he could gather, and halted at Ribasaltas, a League from Salfas, at such time as the Place was lost. He pursued the Enemy who quirted the Town as not Tenable, and retired to the Wood above Saljas, refolving not to hazard a Battle. Both Armies lay fome days within a League of one another. A Treaty was fet on Foot, and at last a Truce was concluded on that side, to last till the 17th of Jamuary of the following Year 1497. This Truce raifed great Jealoufies betwite the Confederate Princes, fearing left the Catholick King should abandon them, and make a Peace by himself. Hereupon the Emperor left Italy, and soon returned into Germany, without having do ne any thing worth mentioning.

After that, by the Pope's Order Virginius Ursinus and his Son were contrary to Articles The Pope apprehended, the Pope sent the Dukes of Gandia and Urbin, and Fabricius Colona with his Invades Forces to Invade their Dominions, They took some Towns, and laid Siege to the Fort the Lands Brachano. Charles Urstimus and Viteleeius, having raised some Porces to divert them from the Urstim. Siege, fate down before Vafano, a Town of the Church The Enemy, tho' Inferior in Numbers, marched towards the Ursui, and they came to a Battle, wherein the Ursui were at first worsted, but rallying, put their Enemies to slight. The Duke of Gandia waswounded, and the Duke of Ursui taken. This Deseat obliged the Pope to be reconciled to the by Alfault. As the Great Captain took his leave of the Pope, to return took his leave of the Pope, to return took his leave of the Pope, to return to Naples, the Pope told him, his King was much obliged to him, and did not act answerably to his Obligations, but that no Man knew him so well as himself. Geneale Fernandee took the liberty to answer, That he doubted not, he knew him as being his Subject, but that it was Ingratitude to fay he owed him any Obligation, fince the Catholick King was the only support of him and his Family; therefore he begged him to behave himself better, and not fcandalize the Church, left the King should be obliged to abandon him. The truth is, he was fo wicked that feveral Princes fent their Ambaffadors to warn him to mo derate his Extravagancies, but all in vain. Soon after in an Affembly of the Cardinals conven'd to give the Investiture of the Kingdom of Naples to King Frederick, he also proposed the giving the City Benevento to the Duke of Gandia, and releasing the Kings of Naples of the Tribute they paid to the Church, for Lands to be given to the faid Duke. Nothing could have flopped his proceedings but the unhappy death of that Duke. On the 14th of June, the Duke and Cardinals of Valencia and Borgia having Supped in a Garden, as the Duke of returned home, he fent his Footman for his Arms, who returning found him not, nor could any Tidings be heard of him the next day. After much inquiry, a Waterman faid that about Midnight he faw three Men carrying one a crofs a Mule, whom they caft over the Bridge, and one asking whether he funk, the others faid he did, and so they were away. The Place being searched, the Body was sound with Nine wounds, and nothing taken from him. It could never be known who were the Murderers, some said the Ursin, but the common Report went, that it was his own Brother the Cardinal of Valencis. The Duke left a Son called John, who succeeded him in the Dukedom of Gandia.

The same Fleet which carried the Princes Joanna to Flanders, brought the Princes Margarat, Silter to the Archduke, and Contracted to Prince John. She arrived at Santander in March, and was received by the King and Prince with a great Retinuc. They met at Reinote, and was received by the King and Prince with a great Ketting. The Queen would not fulfer any Alteration to be made in the Princeffe's Family, but that file should keep her own Servants. A Peace was proposed betwixt France and Spain. Ferdinand Duke of Estrada was fent Ambaffador to France, and a Truce was agreed upon at Lions, to begin in Spain on the 5th of Murch, and with all the other Confederate Princes on the 25th of April, to last till the first of November. This made the great Captain hasten his return from Rome to Naples, hoping before the Truce began to recover some Towns of the Cardinal of St. Peser, but he was disposinted. The French had often urged, that fince King Frederick being of a Baltard Family, could have no Title to the Kingdom of Naples, the Right must either bein the King of France, or Spain, and therefore it were fit they should agree about it. The Catholick King was for flanding to the Determination of the Emperor. This proposal did Proposals ons please the French King; who offered, if the King of Spain would refign up his Pretenti concernons, he would make him amends in Money or otherwise, and offered the Kingdom of ing the N.voarre. This Affair was debated at Medina del Campo, whither the French Ambaffadors came Kingdom to King Ferdinand. They offered the whole Province of Calabria upon Condition; that if, of Naplus after the Conquest of the Kingdom, if their King had a mind to it himself, he should give the Catholick King the Kingdom of Navarre, and 30000 Ducats a Year. Yet King Ferdinand rather inclined to have Frederick left in possession, he paying to the French a Sum of Money towards the Expense of the War, and a certain Tribute yearly. It was also proposed that the Duke of Calabria should Marry the Daughter of the Duke of Baurbon, Niece to the French Sting. Thus the Ambalfadors were dismifled, and because it was believed the War would again break out after the Expiration of the Truce, the Cartholick King endeavoured to fecure himself on the side of Navarre. He demanded of that King some frong Holds for his Security, and appointed the Constable Bernardin de Velasco General upon that Frontier. The fame Precautions were used on the side of Russillon. There happed a Mutiny at Perpignan, betwixt the Townsmen and Soldiers, and D. Henry the General coming to part them, was wounded on the Head with a stone, whereof he died. The Duke of Alva succeeded in that Command, and the Fleet of Spain, of which D. Inigo Mannerique was Admiral, was ordered to repair to that Coast. These were the Preparations in Spain. In Italy King Frederick to gain the Duke of Milan, offered him to Wife his Daughter Charlette, and his Daughter Elizabeth to his Eldelf Son; but these Proposits were pre-vented from taking effect by the fall of those Two Houses. He also pressed the Pope for the Investiture of the Kingdom, which at length he obtained, and the Cardinal of Valencia was fent to Crown him. After the Coronation, Profiper Colona was Created Duke of Tra-geto, and Earl of Final, Fabricius Colona Duke of Tallacop, and the Great Gonçalo de Cordova Duke of Monte de Santangelo, and D. Tuigo Brother to the Marques de Pescara who was killed, Marquels del Gasto.

Progress of the Portugues Discoveries in the East; Peter Covillam and Alonso de Paiva sent to India by Land; Vasco de Gama sent to Discover India by Sea, with Four Ships; His Voyage till he came to Calicut.

A T the fame time that the other Parts of Europe, and especially Italy, were consumed with Wars, and laboured under the Apprehensions of still greater Calamities, Portugal the first and the first and the first thought and the first thought and the first first thought and the first first thought and the first thought and the first thought and first thought all first thought rash, but which proved Honourable and Advantage. ous to that Kingdom. Prince Henry Brother to King Edward was the first that attempted to discover the Coast of Africk towards the South. Death cut him off in the Year of Grace 1470, and of his Age 67. King Along his Nephew defifted from this Enterprize by rea-fon of the unhappy Wars in which he was involved. King John the II. his Son took this Work in hand again, and ceased not till having passed the Line, he discovered the Cape called by the Saliers Tormentofo, or Stormy, by realon of the great Tempests they met with there; but he called it the Cape of good Hope, which Name it still retains, because it gave him hopes that way to send his Fleets to the Coasts of Asia and India, and to partake of the Riches of those Countries. For his better Information he fent Peter Covillam and Alonso de Paiva (as has been already faid) by Land to get some knowledge of those Eastern Coastls.

Paiva died by the way, and Covillam having travelled all those Countries, sent his King an Account in Writing out of Ethiopia of what he had learnt, but was not suffered to return himself. Mean while King John died. His Successor King Emanuel was willing to carry on this Enterprize. He proposed it in Council, where some advised him to desist. others to proceed, others to Imploy himself in the Conquest of Africk, whereof enough was already discovered. Among this Variety of Opinion, the most Honourable took place, and accordingly the King Ordered Four Ships to be fitted. The Command of them he gave to Vefo de Gama, a Man of a great Spirit, and it was fit he should be such to begin the longest, and most dangerous Voyage that ever was attempted in the World. With tim went his Brother Paul de Gama, Nicholas Coello, and other Men of Note. All his Force exceeded not 160 Men, as well Soldiers as Seamen. They bleffed the Royal Standard in a Church of our Lady flanding on the Shore, Founded by Prince Henry, where afterwards King Emanuel Built the famous Monaftery of Belem. Thence they were Conducted by a great multitude of People who lamented them as dead Men, and so they set Sail on the 19th of 3'uls. They steered their Course first to the Canary Islands, and then to those of Caboverde, called by the Antients Hesperides. Having passed these Islands, and the chiefest of them called Santiago, they stood to the Eastward croffing a mighty. Gulph, where by reason of the great Storms and swelling Seas they spent three Months before they discovered Land. In 10 Degrees of South Latitude they discovered a pleasant River whose Banks were shaded with Trees, where they Anchored to take in fresh Water and refiresh themselves. The People here were Black, and had short curled Hair. Here they Traded by Signs and for some Baubles were supplied with fresh Provisions. The Gulph he called of St. Historia, and the River Santiago. They continued their Voyage to turn the Cape of good Hispe, but the Weather proved so bad they off gave themselves for lost. Here all the Commanders, resolution was requisite, his Men protesting he ought to turn back, and not tennet Heaven, but neither Threats nor Intreaties moved him. It was agreed to kill him; his Brother discovered the design, he secured the Masters and undertook to Steer his Ship great multitude of People who lamented them as dead Men, and so they fet Sail on the his Brother discovered the design, he secured the Masters and undertook to Steer his Ship himself. In this manner he reached the utmost part of the Cape, and began to turnit on the 20th of November, it being then Spring there. About 50 Leagues beyond it is a Gulph which they called of St. Blas, and in the midst of it an Island where they found a multitude of Sea Wolves, thither they went to Water. The Natives of it were like to those of the West Coast of Africk, went Naked and carried their Privities in Wooden Cases. The Country produces Elephants and Oxen, which they make use of as Beasts of Burthen. There are try produces Elephanis and Ozen, which they make the of as Deaths of Durthen Inere are certain Birds they call Satilicarios, as big as Geefe without Feathers, and with Wings like Bats, which ferve them not to fly, but help them to run the fafter. Going on, tho' flowly by reason of the ffrong Currents, they came to a Country called Zanguebar, and because they arrived there on Christman.day, called it Terra de Natal, as they also called a River de los Ryes, or of the Kings, because they watered there upon the Feast of the Epiphany. To shun the strong Currents and Tides, they stood out so far to Sea, that without touching at Zofala, the chiefest Place on those Coasts by reason of the Gold Mines; they dilcovered a Country where the People were not altogether fo Black as those they saw before, but were also better Habited and seemed more Civilized. On their Arms they had Copper Bracelets, and the Men wore Daggers with Tin hilts. Their Language Was not understood, but among them came one who in Arabick told them, that not far from thence, there were Ships like ours and White People that Traded in them. By this they guessed India was not far off, and therefore gave thanks to God, and called the Riwer that there falls into the Sea De Bons Sinais, or the River of good Signs. On the Shore they erected a Pillar calling it St. Raphael, whence the Coaft took its Name, and of 10 Condenned Persons they carried from Portugal for this purpose, they lest 2 there to learn the Language, Cultoms, and Riches of those People. Great was the Joy of our Men, beliving the end of their Voyage was at hand, but it was not a little allayed by a Discase which swelled their Gums, of which some died. Some attributed this to the unwholsomwhich twelter tiell Gains, or which none used. Some attributed this to the anyhonomines of the Air, others to the falt mear they fed on. They spent a Month upon that Coast with much trouble and danger. Thence they Sailed to Mozambique in 15 Degrees Mozambi of South Latitude, and 20 Degrees beyond the Cape of Good Hope. It is a Place of great House disput did.

Trade being a convenient Harbour. The Inhabitants were Moors of a tawny Complexi covered. on, richly Clad with Silks and Gold, on their Heads great Turbants of white Linnen, from their Shoulders hung Cymiters, and on their Arms were their Bucklers. In this Garb they came out in Boats to vific our Ships. They were well received and entertained, and of them our Men understood that that City was subject to the King of Quilon, whole Name was Abraham, and that he had there a Governour whom in Arabick they call Xeque, and his name was Zocoeya. To him they fent Prefents, and having eftablished Friendship, he gave them 2 Pilots to conduct them to India. At first the Natives thought our Men had been Moors of the West, which was the cause of their Civility, but afterwards understanding they were Christians, they studied to do them all the Mischief they could, and the Pilots Swam away from them. Our Men fired their Cannon upon the City killing fome People upon by the Shore, which struck a Terror into those People. The Governor submitted, and offered to make Satisfaction, nothing was demanded of him but a Pilot. This Man treacherously endeavoured to betray our Men to the King of Quiloa. To this intent he told them the Inhabitants of that City were Ethiopian Christians, and that there they might be surmished with all they had occasion for. God delivered them, for the Weather being rough they could not make Quiloa, elfe they had been in danger, that King being powerful, and offended for what was done at Moçambique. However, the Pilot adviled to go to Monbaça, a City feated on a Rock, almost encompassed with the Sea, that Forms a good Port. Some People came out of the City to meet them, to whom the Pilot imparted his Design. His treachery had fucceeded, but that Valco de Gama at the entrance of the Port fearing to strike upon the Rocks, gave order to cast Anchor there. His guilty Conscience accusing him, the Pilot thought he had been discovered, and therefore leaped over board to save himself, as did fome of those that came from Shore, who were still aboard the three Ships now remaining; for the Fourth which brought Provisions, they being confumed, and some Seamen dying, was before burnt. Our Men praised God for delivering them from so great Danger. Sailing thence they wanted a Pilot, but they had the Forume to take Two Mosrifb Vessels. and in them 13 Moors, for the reft leaped into the Sea. Of these they understood that Melinde was not sar off, the King of which Place was courteous to Strangers. Thither they Steered their Course, and sound what had been told them was true. The King was pleased at their coming, and because he could not by reason of his Age go aboard himself, sent his Son, who behaved himself friendly rowards the Portugueses, and was by them well entertained. He gave them a Pilot to conduct them to India, and they prefented him the 13 Moors, which he was much pleafed at. Being furnished with what they wanted, they took their leave, promifing to return that way to take up the Ambaffadors the King defigned to fend to Portugal. It was now Eafter, when they fet Sail for Calicut, which is almost one Leagues diffant from Melinde, and was failed by them in 21 days. On the 20th of May they discovered the wished for Shore, and soon after came to an Anchor, a League and a half from Calicut. That City has no Harbour, and the Season was not fit to lie out, because at that time the Winter begins there. The Province of Malabar where Calicut stands, is divided by a Ridge of Mountains, running down to Cape Comol. Both fides are in the fame North Latitude, and yet in May the Rains begin on this fide the Mountains, the other fide at the same time being scorched with Heat, which is very wonderful.

A Short, but particular Account of India; What hapned to Vasco de Gama at Calicut His bold Enterprizes there, and a Relation of his Return to Portugal.

Description B Efore we relate what happed to Vafeo de Gama, at Calicut, it will not be amils to give Description of the Greatness of those large Provinces of Asia. India towards on of he Welf. Borders upon the Provinces of Gedrolia, Arachofia, and the Paroponellidas. Towards the East it extends as far as the Confines of the mighty Empire of China. On the North it is that up by Mount Imaus, which is a part of Mount Caucafus. On the South its Limits are the Ocean. The most famous River Ganges divides it into Two parts. True it is our People only call that India, which lies betwire the two Rivers India and Ganges. This Country the Natives call Indofan. Along the mid space betwire these two Rivers runs a Ridge of Hills, down to Cape Comori. Many different Nations are spread along these Coasts. The chiefelf, Gambaya, which from the mouth of Indian extends to Malebar, and that to Cape Commi. Betwits these two Nations in a small Island of the Kingdom of Decan is seated the famous City Goa. The Front of it is washed by the Sea, the other parts by two Arms of a River. Among the Malabars there are Four Conditions of People, the Nobility, caland the Commonalty, fuch as Tradefinen and Country People. Generally the Merchants are Strangers. From the Waste upwards they go Naked, the lower parts are covered with Silks or Cotton, their Cymiters hanging down from their Shoulders. Their Customs and Worships are very strange. Let it suffice to say the Women Marry as many Husbands asthey please, and therefore the Sons do not Inherit the Fathers Estates, but the Sons of Sisters are the Heirs. Malabar is divided into feveral Kingdoms, the chief whereof, whom all the others look upon as their Superior, and is therefore called Zamori, that is Emperor, is the King of Calteat, a Rich and large City, Seated almost in the middle of the Coalt. The Honses in it do not stand close together, but at great Intervals, each having Gardens and Orchards belonging to it. Only the Kings Palaces and the Temples are of Stone, the rest of Timber, low and covered with leaves of Palm-trees. Neither the Nobles nor Commons are allowed to raise stately Buildings. This was the posture of Calicut, when Vasco de Gama arrived there. Many Boats came out immediately to see such strange People. Gama fent alhore one of the Banished Men he had with him, a vast multitude of People encompassed him. Among the rest were two Moors Born at Tunez, these finding by the Habit, the Man was a Spaniard, one of them called Mongayde asked him in Spanish of what part of Spain he was, he answered of Portugal. He carried the Man Home, and having discoursed him went aboard to see the Commander, whom he informed he had faithfully ferved King John of Portugal when he fent to Tunez for Arms, and having given him an account of the Country, offered to ferve him in what lay in his power. Next day Gamasent Two Ambassadors with Monçayde to the King, to acquaint him he would not land without his leave, but having once obtained it, would deliver the Letters he brought from his King, and treat with him about matters of great Moment. The King was then at Pandarang, a Town Two Miles from the City. There he received the Messegers friendly, an fwered, he would gladly hear what their Commander had to propole, and the mean while would have him bring his Ships under the Shelter of Pandarane because the Placewhere he lay was not fafe. This was accordingly done, and some days after he fent the Governor of the City whom he called Catual, to conduct Gama to his Pallace. He left his Brother to Command in his place, ordering him and Nicholas Coello that if any misfortune hapned to him ashore, they should immediatly hoist Sail and return to Portugal to give the King an account of their Voyage; but that they should still keep their Boats well Manned upon the Shore. He carried with him 12 of his Men in the best order he could. From the Shore he was carried on Mens Shoulders to the Kings Palace. There he was received by the Caymales and chief of the Brahmenes Cloathed all in White. This Man taking Gama by the Hand led him through feveral Rooms, the Door of each of them was guarded by Ten Men. They came to a large Room, the floor covered with filk Carpets, and the Walls hung with Silk and Gold. About it were certain fleps like a Theatre, which were the Seats of the Nobility. The King Sate on a raifed Throne, Cloathed in white Cotton, adorned with Roses of Gold, on his Head a Cap of Cloth of Gold in shape like a Mitre, his Arms and Legs naked, but with Brazelets and Plates of Gold. On his Fingers and Toes were Rings fet with Diamonds and Pearls of a great Value. His Complexion was Tawny, his Stature large, his Countenance Majeslick, Gama having saluted the King, and being Commanded to Sit, made an Harangue, telling the King, that he was fent to him by the mighty Emanuel King of Portugal, who moved by the Fame of his Grandeur which had reached the utmost bounds of the West, was ambitious to settle a friendly Correspondence and Commerce with him and his Country. That it would doubtless be very advantageous to both Nations to have a free Trade, and it would much redound to the honour of them both, to be the first, who at that distance had settled Amity and Friendship. This faid,

he presented the Letters he carried, written in Arabick and Portugues, as also the presents he carried. The Embally was pleafing to the King, who answered, that he willingly embraced the Friendship of King Emanuel, and was ready to allow of a free Trade. He asked many Oueftions concerning their Voyage and Country, and ordered the Commander and all his Men to be well lodged. The Moorifb Merchants fearing to lofe their Trade, and in hatred to the Christians, assembled together, and laboured all that lay in their power by falle Informations they devifed, to turn the Hearts of the King and his Courtiers against the Portugueses. They said they were Pirates and the common Enemies of Mankind, and that if they were admitted into Calicut, all the Moors would be obliged to remove and feek fome other place to Trade in. That it was worthy their Confideration, whether it were answerable to abandon their old tryed Friends, who brought fo great a Trade to the Country, for a few Robbers. The Malabars are a People inconstant and easily perswaded, therefore giving Credit to the Mors, and at their instigation, they began to contrive how to destroy all the Portugueses. Mongaide gave Gama an account of their design. He stole away the best he could, tho' not without danger to his Ships, and stood out to Sea. Thence he wrote a Letter to the King full of great Complaints, and particularly against Cattal who, he was affured contrived to do him all the harm he could, and defired he would cause certain Portugueles and some Merchandize lest ashore to be restored to him. The King gave good Words, but performed not what was demanded. Gama resolving to use Force, took the first Ship that came that way, and in it Six Men of Note with their Servants. The King to redeem them, sent the Portugueses and Merchandize, with his Letters in answer to those brought by Gama. Nevertheless he would not restore the Malabars, thinking it convenient to carry them to shew in Portugal, that they might give a more particular account

Before Vasco de Gama hossed Sail to return to Portugal, Monçaide got aboard, searing his Vasco re-Correspondence with the Portugueses would cost him his Life. He lest all his Goods at Catums to licut, for he had not time to carry any thing away. In Portugal he was Baptized, and Portugal lived like a good Christian. The King of Calicut could not take revenge of Gama because it being then Winter, his Fleet was laid up. However, he fitted out 70 Barques, and fent them well Manned to attack the Ships; but a Storm rifing, the Barques were all differfed, and our Ships which before for want of a Wind had made little way, got off and lofing the fight of Calicut, came to certain little Islands that lie about that Coast. They met 8 small Vessels belonging to a Pirate called Timoja, one of which they took and scattered the others. Thence they Sailed to another Island called Anchediva, to refit and repair their Ships the best they could. This Island is distant from Calicut about 70 Leagues, yet not above one from the Continent, which was the reason that many came over from the main Land to fee the Ships. Among the rest, came one who saluted Gama in Italian. This Man told them that not far off was the City Goa, and that the Lord of it, who was called Zabayo, and with whom he had great Interest, would be glad to be acquainted with them, and would give them good Entertainment. Gama asked what Country-Man he was, and he answered, he was an Italian, that failing towards Greece he was taken by Pirates, and fo from one to another, at last was brought to that Lord. Gama suspecting him by his Countenance, and because all he said was not Coherent, put him to the Rack. Then he contessed the truth, that he was a few, born in Poland, and that Zabayo his Lord had sent him as a Spie to view those Ships, designing to fall upon them with his Fleet. Gama having got this Intelligence, with all the speed he could failed thence and prosecuted his Voyage. He carried the Jew with him, who in Portugal was Baptized, took the name of Garcia, and ferved King Emanuel in Affairs of moment. The Ships for want of Wind made little way, yet at length turned that Cape of Africk called Guardafu, not far from the Mouth of the Red Sea. They came to the City Magadoxa, not far from the Cape, and understanding the Inhabitants were Moors would not make a flay there any longer than whilst with their Cannon they battered their Houses, and sunk some Vessels they saw in the Hatbour. Passing forwards, they met 8 Sail of Moors which they easily defeated. At Melinde they were recived by the King with great affection. They furnished themselves with such Necessaries as they stood in need of, and as had been before agreed, took aboard an Ambassadorthat King lent to Portugal, to settle Amity with King Emanuel. The Ship which Paul de Gama Commanded, being much shattered both in the Hulk and Rigging, and there being want of Seamen, it was relolved to Burn her, and Paul de Gama went aboard his Brother. Thus they continued their Voyage, and discovered the Island Zanzibar, which is very pleasant, full of continued their voyage, and encovered the mana Zainsalar, which is very pleasant, and of Trees bearing feveral forts of Spice, lying 6 Leagues from the Continent of Africk, betwirk Melinde and Onlos, and not far from Monbaça. At Moçambique they erected a Pillar of those they carried for this purpose. They anchored in the Bay of St. Blafe to take Wood and Water, and turned the Cape of good Hope upon the 20th of April. To conclude, they patied by the Illands of Gabo Verde, and thence taking a great compals, came to the Tercerus, where Paul de Gama died of fickness which had thuck by him a long time before. They arrived at Lisbon in September, having been out Two Years. The King was overjoyed at their Return, and all the City fignified their great Satisfaction. There was no end of hearing the strange Relations they gave, the Dangers and Storms they had been in, and of beholding those things they brought only as Tokens of the Riches of the East. Those Men also brought from India were no less admired for their Countenance, Language, and strange Habit. Gama and his Companions were looked upon as fomething more than Men. Of Four Ships that fet out only Two returned, and of the Men not above the third part This did not at all deter many from wishing that Voyage might be continued, and upon the Prospect of Honour and Profit, offering themselves to all those Difficulties which appeared to be in so troublesome and distant an Enterprize.

CHAP. X.

An Account of the Navigation of Vasco de Gama, and of all the Coasts of Africk, as they lay in his way; Of the Island Zocotora, and of all the Coast of Asia, as far as China, and of the Method observed by the Portugueles in failing thither.

Account Thus Vasco de Gama performed this Voyage, which was the most remarkable that had been till then in the World, as well for the Length of it, as for the many Difficulties vigation and Dangers he was to meet with: For then being ignorant what Course to steer, and also of the Nature of those valt Seas, they went as it were blindfold and groping. Time and Experience have made that Voyage cafe; fo that the Season for setting out, and the Course they see, is much other than it was at first, which I have thought fit to give some account of for the Satisfaction of the Curious. It will be convenient, in the first place, to describe all those valt Coatts. Beyond the Streights of Gibraltar, upon the left hand, lies the Coaff of Africk, which runs along for many Leagues both on this and the other fide of the Equinoctial. First, the most celebrated Mount Atlas cuts the greatest part of Africk from East to West, and butts out into the Ocean. Beyond it is the Cape formerly by the Portugueses called Nam, that is, No; because they imagined such a passed it could never return. Next is Cape Bejador, in 28 Degrees of North Latitude, opposite to the Island Palma, which is one of the Canaries. All these three Capes are Branches of Mount Atlas. Then follows on that Coast Cape Blanco, in 2 1 Degrees of Latitude, and next to it the little Island Arguin, which gives Name to all that Gulph. Beyond this is the Promontory Cabo Verde and its Ilands, being in number 10, the chief of them called Santiago, formerly known by the Name of Heferides, tho' some will have it that under this Name were comprehended all the Illands we have discovered to the Westward. Caboverde is in the Latitude of 16 Degrees. North of it the River Sanaga falls into the Sea, and to the Southward another, for the abundance of Water it carries named the Rio Grande. They are believed to be both Branches of one great River, that is, the Niger, much following the Ancients, as rifing from the same Springs with Nile. Beyond Riv Grande, which is in 11 Degrees of Latitude, is Sierra Leona, a Mountain in the Latitude of 8 Degrees: In this Mountain there is great Thunder and Lighning, and great Lights are generally feen upon it from Sea, the Natives going out at highto their Labour, which makes it appear at a distance as if it were all in a Flame. Some will have this to be the Mountain called by Ptolomy the Chariot of the Gods, which he places in only 5 Degrees of North Latitude. Under the Equinoctial lies the Island of S. Thomas, not far from the Continent, and from Portugal somewhat above 1000 Leagues. The Air of it is unhealthy, but it yields abundance of Sugar. Six Leagues beyond the Equinocital is the Country called Mina, by reason of the pure Gold Mines in it. Beyond it the River of San-Country called Mina, by reason of the pure Gold Mines in it. Beyond it the Kiver of Santiago and Gulph of S. Helena, where Vasico de Gama put in for Water. Many other Kivers and Promontories there are, as may well be imagined in fisch a vast extent; but these are the chiefest. The Cape of Good Hope, which is the farthest Point of Africk, distant from Portugal about 2000 Leagues, lies in 37 Degrees of South Latitude. Turning this Cape, those Shoars run a vast length, with many Promontories and Rivers of Note. The Rivers of S. Blan, and the promontories of the Cape run a vatt tengtn, with many rromonories and invers of rotte. The rivers of S. Blas, Natal, and Bons Sinais, are the most Principal till you come to Zofala, which is one of the most remarkable Towns on that Coast, by reason of the Gold Mines. Some are of Opinion that Zofala was Tharsis, whither, as the Scripture says, Solomon down the Red Sea sent his Fleets to bring Gold and other Riches, and the Natives affirm their Histories do prove as much. Others affirm it to be the Promontorium Frasium of Ptolomy, which he places in 15 Degrees of South Latitude; but Zofala lies above 20 Degrees beyond the Line. Beyond Zofala on the Double Laurence; out Logaus nes souve 20 Degrees beyond the Line. Beyond Zofala on the right hand lies the great Illand of S. Laurence, commonly called Madagafar, and on the left Mocambinge, a Place of great Trade, in 15 Degrees of South Latitude. Farther on, almost at equal distances, are Quilos and Monbaça, with the Illand of Zanzisbar, and Melinde near the Line. Magadoxa is 5 Degrees on this lide, and in 10 Degrees is the last Promontory of Melinde pour solled Care Constalled. Africk, now called Cape Guardish, by Ptolomy Aromata. Near to it is the Illand Zacotora, which was found Inhabited by Christians, but very barren and destitute of all things necessary. This is believed to be the Illand Prolomy calls Diofeorides. Not far from thence is the Mouth of the Red Sea, or Arabian Gulph. Within it, on the fide of Africk, is the Port of Arquico in the Kingdom of Barnagaffo, Subject to Prester John. On the Coast of Arabia stands the City Aden, a strong Place, and the Key of that Sea. Betwixt the Red Sea and the Gulph of Persia lies Arabia Felix, and in the middle of the Coast Cape Farrague. The farthest Point next the Gulph of Persa is Cape Resalgate. Inth the Mouth of the Persan Gulph is the Illand of Orman, small and naturally barren, but by reason of its great Trade very rich; its Latitude 26 Degrees. Almost in the fame Latitude to the Eastward, at the Mouth of the River India, is the Island and Fortress of Diu, well known for the Bravery with which the Pertugues have the hand and reduced of Lin, wen another of the Soldans of Egypt, and then against the Great Tark Beyond Din and Bagain which is near it, the Coast turns to the South, till it ends in Cape Comori; on the Welt-fide whereof stands the City Gos in 16 Degrees of Latitude, and Calicat in the Country of Malabar, and of great Trade for Spice. From the Cape of Good Hope to Goa, Seamen reckon 1240 Leagues. Opposite to the Coast of Malabar are the Muldiving Illands, which take their Name from the chiefest of them. They are in number above 1000, all fmall, and fometimes fo close together, it is difficult to fail betwirt them. The chiefest thing they produce is the Tree that bears Coco's, to profitable that they are cloathed and fed by it. Near to Cape Comori, on the East-fide is the Island Ceylon, whence we have most of by it. Near to Cape Comert, on the East-side is the Island Ceylon, whence we have most of our Cinnamon. Then sollow the Kingdoms of Narsinga and Pegu, and in the midst of them that of Bengdai, which gives its Name to that great Gulph ending at the City Malaca, near tra to be the Trapbana of Polemy, and Malaca his Aurea Chersengia, and there want not show the distribution of Polemy, and Malaca his Aurea Chersengia, and there want not People of the Kingdom of Pegu which is not far distant, value themselves upon being desended of the Frun, whom Solomon sent thinker to work in the Mines. The these Mettals Years in the Voyage to Tharsis because they always kept along the Coast, not having the use of the Compals. From Malaca Eastward are the Malaca sthands, the chiefest whereof are Five, whence we have our Cloves, in all other respects they are Barren. Bending Northward we come to the Vaff and Rich Empire of China, and the Island Macao the Market of the Portugues for the Trade of that Kingdom, they not being admitted to enter into ket of the corruption for the 1 rade of that kingdom, they not being admitted to enter into it. From Goa to China they reckon 1300 Leagues, 800 of them to Milaca, and the other 500 thence to China. From Macao to Japan, Northwards being the farthest extent of the Partingues Discoveries, are about 300 Leagues. The principal silands of Japan are Three, besides many other simal ones adjoining to them. The great siland it self extends about 100 Leagues in length and not above 80 in headth. It is common the second of the beines many other man ones aujoning to mein. The great mand it ten extends about 200 Leagues in length, and not above 80 in breadth. In it are many Kings and Kingdoms, and the People are Warlike, of sharp Wits. The Voyage from Portugal to India is performed in this manner. They fet out from Lisbon in March or the beginning of April, these they disable their Complete the Bland Market Complete the Bland Market. thence they direct their Course to the Island Madera 150 Leagues distant, and then to the Canaries which are 300 Leagues thence. They fleer next to Cape Blance and the Illands of Cabo Verde. Then they fland off from the Coaft of Africk, and by reafca of the continual Southerly Winds bear up close rowards the South-Weft, till they come sometimes near Brofit, where it the Wind will not permit them to Weather Cape St. Augustin, which is to Leagues beyond the Equinoctial, they cannot make their Voyage that Year. If they Weather the Point, then they Tack and stand for the Cape of good Hope, steering South East. To shun the Storms usual about that Promontory, they run to about 40 Degrees of South Latitude. the storms ulual about that Promontory, they run to about 40 Degrees of South Latitude. Thus having turned the Cape they touch at Zofala, or Mocambique, where if their Voyage has not been Short they Winter; if it has, they crofs the Gulph to Goa. It is a very good Voyage that is performed in 5 or 6 Months, for commonly it takes up a Year. From Goa to Malaca, and the other Eaftern parts they fail at fig times. To return to Spain they expect the ulual Breezes in December. They turn the Cape about March or April. Then they pass by the Island of St. Helena, which Nature has provided as it were an Inn by the way in that vall Ocean to refresh the Seamen with its Fruit. Fish and Flosh the Garce way in that valt Ocean, to refresh the Seamen with its Fruit, Fish and Flesh, the scarce this tied, being but Four Leagues in length, and so, far from any Land. Thence, by the way of the Islands Terceras, the Ships generally return to Lisbon in August or September.

CHAP. I.

The Death of the Prince of Castile; Of Charles VIII. King of France; Matches of Two Daughters of Spain; The Prince of Salerno expelled Naples; France and Spain agree. Hierome Savonarola burnt at Florence.

2 Daughters of K. matched.

HE Affairs of Spain at one and the same time prospered in Italy, and within Spain had a mixture of Felicity and Adversity. Two Matches for as many of King Ferdinand's Daughters were concluded; that is, of the Princess Catherine with Arthur Prince of Wales, and Heir to Henry VII. King of England, and of the Princels Elizabeth with Emanuel King of Portugal. Their Marriages were of great Importance, because, together with those of the House of Austria, they bound such Mighty Princes to the Interest of Spain. The March with England was fully concluded upon the 15 of August, 1497. To forward the Marriage with Portugal, D. John Manuel, that King's Foster-Brother, came to Caffile. It was agreed, that King Ferdinand and Queen Elizabeth should carry the Princess their Daughter to the Borders of Portugal, where King Emanuel should meet them to confummate the Marriage upon the last Day of September. Ceclamin was at first the Place appointed to meet; but that Town wanting Conveniencies, they spent three Days together at Yolav Valencia de Alcantara. Their Joy was much abated by the News of the Indisposition of Prince of John, who died the 13 day alter he was taken ill at Salamanca, on the 4th of October, to the Took, who died the Yaky and the Was and in a dominant, who have the variety of the whole Kingdom. He left the Princes's with Child; but that availed little; for in a fhort time after the miscarried. The Prince's Body was carried to Avila, to be buried in the famous Dominican Monastery of S. Thomas. This diffinal News came to Alcantara whilst yet the Rejoycing for the Wedding, lasted; but after King Ferdinand. was gone, King Emanuel begged of the Queen his Mother-in-Law, not to let the Queen his Wife know any thing of it, and so went away with her to Ebora. There she was at last acquainted with the Death of the Prince her Brother: She refented it as became a loving Sifter; but his Parents bore their Lofs with great Magnanimity. The Kingdom of Naples was not yet peaceable, because the Prince of Salerno and his Party miltrusting the King, for-

was not yet peaceane, became the Finite of Salerin and this Farly intributing the King, solitified their Towns and Callles. The first Demonstration that Prince gave of his Ill. will was. That tho' he appeared when King Frederick was Proclaimed at Naplet, yet he would not be present at his Coronation, under colour of Poverty. However, the Prince of Basiniano came to Court the day following to excuse himself, and intercede for him of Salerno. No means of Peace-prevailed, and the King was forced to march with his Army, and besiege him in his strong Town of Diano. Gonçalo Fernandez was now about returning to Spain, as reckoning the War of Naples at an end: To this purpose he had gone into Calabria, thence to Sicily, and now came to Naples to take his Leave of the King and Queen. They prelied him to aid them in that Siege, because the Desendants were numerous, and the King's Party savoured aid them in that Siege, becaule the Detendants were numerous, and the Xing's Party tavoured Prince of them. The Great Captain gathered 500 Spaniards, and the King furnishing him 500 Gersalems expelled No. for the Strain of the Belieged, tho with much danger of his Perfon, that the Prince was pelled No. forced to furrender. It was agreed, That the Prince, with all fuch as would follow him, might faiely depart the Kingdom with their Goods: That all the Towns and Forts belonging to the Prince, should be delivered up to the King, he paying for the Cannon and Provisions in them. Thus Diano was furrendered upon the 28th of Detember, and the Prince put himin them. Thus Diano was juriencered upon the 20th of December, and the Frince pit infinitely inclined in the Lands of the Duke of Melf, to be conducted to Sangalla, a City in Marca de Aucona, which fided with the King of France. The Earls of Conça and Lawria, his Confederates, bore him Company. He of Copacho being very old, put himfelf upon the King's Mercy. This fame Year in Autumn D. John de Gufman, Duke of Medina, Sidmia, fent a Fleet over to Affick to People Melilla, which is opposite to Almeria, and had been abandoned by the Moors. In recompence for the Charge he had been at, that Town was given to the Duke and his Heirs for ever. The Xeque, or Lord of Gelves, who was in Rebellion aginst the King of Tunez his Sovereign, to secure himself under the Christian Protection, delivered up that

Island and Port to the Catholick King, and in his Name to John de Lanuça, then Viceroy of Sicily. Captain Margarit was left with the Spanish Forces to secure that Island. A folemn Embaffie from France now met the King at Alcala de Henares: The Propofals

Accord betweet made were, That the Two Kings with their joint Forces should invade Italy: That as to the Kingdom of Naples, the Catholick King should possess Calabria till such time as the French King in exchange should give him the Kingdom of Navarre, and 20000 Ducats yearly for what it was worth above that Kingdome: That the States of Milan and Genoa should belong what it was worth above that Aniguous: I that the States of Azinan and Genoa mould belong to the French, and all the reft of Italy be equally divided betwirk them. The Catholick King was not averse from the Business of Naples; but as for the reft of Italy, would not be concerned without advertifing the Empire, who had fo great a Right to it. At last it was resolved King Ferdinand should send Ambassacros to France to prosecute this Treaty. At this time allthe Monasteries of Castile were reduced to the strict Observance of their Orders, which the Dominicans, Augustins, and Carmelites easily condescended to: The Franciscans at first made fome refiltance. According to Agreement the King fenc Ferdinand Duke of Estrada and Two others his Ambassadors to conclude a Peace with France. At the same time it was believed others his Amballadors to conclude a Peace with Fronce. At the lame time it was believed the French King refolved to invade Realfillen, but Death prevented his Defigns. He departed this Life at Ambale on the 17th of April, 1498. The Duke of Orleans, called Luis XII. finc. 1498. ceeded him. At Blais, where the New King was, and afterwards at Orleans, the Treaty of Chorles Peace was carried on, that King always giving good Words and fair Promiles only to gain time VII. He at last compassed his ends, and ceedshim, had by that Dutchels two Daughters only, the Eldest of which was married to France the Heir of that Crown. Before the death of King Charles, it was proposed that Cafer Brogia should resign his Cardinal's Capto which purpose that King promised him an Estate in Brogia and to marry him to the Lady Charlotte, Daughter to the King of Naples. Her Father would not confert, because they demanded the Principality of Taranso with her as Dower; and this was suspected to be in order to scize the whole Kingdom of Naples. The Duke of Milan was impected to be in order to leave the whole singular to left the Pope should bring the and Cardinal Ascanins his Brother, pressed the King to consent, left the Pope should bring the French upon him again, which would prove his utter Ruin, as it did. K. Ferdinand did not approve of this Contrivance, tho he was offered the disposal of the Churches of Employa and Valencia, then in the hands of Caefar Beggia. These Practices scandalized all Christendom, to see that a Cardinal in Holy Orders should have leave given him to marry.

The Wickedness of the a Cardinal in Holy Orders inolid have leave given him to marry. The Wickednels of the Court of Rome gave all the World enough to talk; therefore Hierome Savonavala a Domini-Hierome, who of late Years had a great hand in the Government of Florence, Preaching with ex savonavationary Freedom against the Extravagancies of the Pope, was by his Order publicly la, a family burne, with two of his Companions, in the Market place of that City, upon Pain Sunday mous was the Market place of the City, upon Pain Sunday nows Many in Florence to this day account him a Martyr; others condemned his Boldness. But Preacher Many in Florence to this day account him a Martyr; others condemned his Boldneß. But Preacher this hapned not only at Florence, for Garvileffor the Catholick King's Ambassador reproved the Pope to his face, and required him in his King's Name to redress those Disorders. The Pope was angry at this Liberty, but mended not his Faults. Soon after, Cafar Bogta publickly proressed the Cardinal's Cap. Many of the Cardinals were of Opinion he deserved for his wicked Lièro be degraded, and not suffered to resign, but none durst speak for fear of the Pope. In fine, he resigned, and the New King of France created him Duke of Valence. Being disappointed of the Daughter of Frederick King of Naples, he martied the Daughter of the Lot of Albret, also stifter to the King of Navarre. By her he had a Daughter, who her Father dying, was left to the Care of her Unkle the King of Navarre. This same Year the Great Captain having gathered a Fleet at Naples, sailed for Spain. He was the Honour of our Nation for the many gathered a Fleet at Naples, failed for Spain. He was the Honour of our Nation for the many Victories he obtained, and subduing that Kingdom after such great Disorders.

The King of Portugal sworn Heir to the Crown of Castile; Elizabeth his Queen delivered of a Son, dies; The Duke of Milan expelled his Dominions; University of Alcala founded; Rebellion of the Mountain-Moors.

A. S foon as Prince John died, the King and Queen began to be follicitous about the Suc-King of ceffion of the Crown, but waited to see what the Princess Margaret would bring forth. Peringal Their Grief was increased, when at Alcalà de Hanaret she miscarried of a Daughter. Here-Illeir of upon they advertised the King of Portugal of his Tide to the Crown, and advised him to come Cashie. upon they advertised the range of retrugat of ms 1 tue to the Crown, and advised him to come of Cafilie, and be Sworn according to Cuffom. The Archduke and his Dittchefs, who at that time took the Stile of Princes of Spain, were warned to forbear it. The King and Queen of Portugal entred Cafile by the way of Badajaz, where they were received by the Dukes of Madina Stillar and Awa, with many other Great Men. Thence they went to fpend the Link World of Cafallar and Awa, with many other Great Men. Holy Week at Guadulupe, and on the 26th of April came to Teledo, where the Catholick King and Queen expected them; and according to Cultom, on the Sanday following, Homage was done to them, and they were Sworn Heirs of Castile. The Business of Aregon was not so easie, because Henry Duke of Segorve was alive, and pretended no Woman could Inherit that Crown; and therefore it appertained to him and his Son ilongs, as descended of the Male Line of King Ferdinand of Arogon. To make all things the easier, the Kings of

Caffile and Portugal went to Zaragega, and there, on the 14th of July, proposed to the Nobility to Swear to the King and Queen of Portugal as Heirs of the Crown. There arose a great Debate, fome affirming no Woman could Inherit that Crown, and others maintaining the contrary. To end this Dispute, it pleased God that the Queen of Portugal, on the 22d Queen of of August, was delivered of a Son, whom they called Michiel. She died within an Hour after. Elbeing polited in the Church the young Prince was by general Consent Sworn Heir to the Crown of Aragon, and soon after the same was done in Costile. Before King Ferdinand went to Zaragoça, he had sent Do Alonfo de Sylvathis Ambalfador to France, to Compliment the New King upon his Accession to the Crown, and at the same time to press the Conclusion of the Peace. He, with the other Ambassadors there before, soon brought it to a Period. The same was done on his part by the Archduke, without consulting his Father or Father in Law. Lin d'Ambasse, Arch bishop of Roun, by his Interest with the King of France, much sorwarded this Agreement. In September the Pope made him a Cardidal at the suit of the Franch King, who was intent upon passing into Italy, upon account of the Right he pretended to have to the Dutchy of upon patting into may, upon account of the Nght in presented to have to the Dutchy of Milan and Kingdom of Naples. From Zaragopa King Ferdmand lent D. Thigo de Cordeva, Brother to the Earl of Cabra, and Dr. Philip Ponce, to require the Pope to relive the City Benevento to the Church, and to reform the Abufes of his Court and Leudness of his Family. The King of Portugal, by the Advice of his Father-in Law, fent D. Roderick de Castro, and The Amg of Foringes, by the Harte of the Faller Indian Parks, and made their Protestation, Gardieljo de la Vega performing the Office of Notary Apostolick, The Pope was highly offended, and threatned to punish them for their Prefumption; yet at last he answered, That Benevento was not nor should not be alienated. As to the Reforming his Houle, he answered harfuly. Within few days the Prince of Equilable, his Wife, his Sifter Lucrein and her Husband, whose Leudness, as well as Cassar Bergia's, incensed the People, all departed Rome. Such was the Hatred the Pope conceived on this account against Garcinal departed Rome. an departed Rome. Such was the Flatted the rope cureties of the account against Garet-hoffs de la Viga, that he was forced to leave that City, and the Portugues Ambalfadors foon fol-lowed, at the beginning of the Year 1499. Those of the Catholick King stayed fine time longer till the coming of Lorengo Suarez de Figuroa, who was appointed to fucceed his Bro-ther Garctiaffo, after he had been Ambalfador at Venice, where he gained great Repu-

Perplexi. Many heavy Cares at the fame time lay upon the Catholick King. Italy was in danger by tyof King, reason of the French King's Pretensions

The Pope egged him on, in hopes to be revenged terdinand on King Frederick, and to raise Duke Valentine. The Venetians also, offended with the Duke of Milan, joined in League with the French King, engaging to aid them with 1200 Men at Arms, and 6000 Swifers. For this Supply the King was to give them Cremona and Guiradada, two Towns of Note in that Dukedom. The Duke feeing little prospect of Help in the Chrifians, prevailed with the Turks to inless the Venetian Territories, which rendred him still more odicus At the same time died the Prince of Salerno, leaving the Pretentions to that Principality, and his Harred to the House of Aragam, to his Son Robert. The King of Navarre demanded of King Ferdinand the Restitution of the Towns of Arcos, Guardia, and S. Vincent, which the latter held inflead of the Gity Efelia, adjudged by the King of France to Hury IV. of Caffile, when he was Arbitrator betwire the Crowns of Caffile and Navarre. This Pretenfion gave occasion to fear fome Breach with France; but that King being wholly taken up with his Pretentions in Italy, had not leifure to engage in other Men's Quarrels: For about the same time time a mighty Army of French passed the Alps, and marched to the City Asse, which for some Years had belonged to the Dukes of Orleans, being given to Charles Duke of Orleans by Philip Duke of Milan, for affilting him in his Wars with the Venetians. In August, The Luke Pavia, Flefencia, and mall that belonged to the Dukedom of Milao on that fide. This gave excelled Giangulada, Ledt, and all that belonged to the Dukedom of Milao on that fide. This gave excelled of Milm Guiaradada, Ladt, and all that belonged to the Dukedom of Milm on that fide. This gave expelled his Duke the People of Milm occasion to mutiny. The Duke fied to the Callle, and having fear his buke. Treasure and Family before him to Germany, followed four after himlest. On the 6th of September Genon submitted to the French. The King of France, who till then had stayed at Lions, came to reap the Fruit of this Success. Duke Valentine came with him, whom he had promifed to affift with 300 Horse at his own Charge, and 4000 Swifs, to be payed by the Pope to make War upon Romania. He also promifed to aid the Florentines to recover Pila. The Conquest of Milan being so easily performed, the King of France, encouraged by the Pope, bent his Thoughts upon Naples, but first returned home to recruit his Army. The Catholick King laboured to prevent the War in Italy, and made advantageous Proposals to the French rang automated to prevent the war in harry, and made automaticous reoponis to the Frinch in behalf of King Frederick. Finding nothing would alter the Refolution of the King of France, he refolved to fet on foot again the Treaty of Dividing that Kingdom betwint that King and himfelf, fince king Frederick, as defeended of a Baltard, could have no Right. To this effect he fent one of his Domesticks to join with his Ambassador John Gralla then in France. It was believed these Proposals would have produced a firm Peace betwixt the Two

Kings, tho' at the same time King Frederick threatned if the French invaded him, he would bring

Kings, tho' at the same time King Frederick threatned if the French invaded him, he would bring the Turki upon Italy. At the same time he made large offers to be reconcited to the Pope, which Duke Palantin prevented taking any effect by writing, how displeasing those Overtures were at the French Court. At the end of this Year was Born in Flanders the Lady Ellenor eldest Daughter to the Archduke, who was first Queen of Portugal, and afterwards of France About this time the Archbishop of Toledo began to Found an University at Alcald, after University the manner of that at Paris. The King was at Granada, and thinking the Conversion of the type of All's it in Charge to the Archbishop of that City, with whom joined the Archbishop of Toledo, Founded. Titey consulted about punishing some who had been Christians and were again become Moors, and resolved to Bantize their Children. They also treated the Allanuies with much Conv. They continued about purming tome whomat been continuous and were again become recover, and refolved to Baptize their Children. They also treated the Assayler with much Courtesse, which was the cause that many Insidels were Baptized. These things moved the Moors of the quarter of Albaicin to mutiny and lortific themselves, but they were at late fuppressed by the Earl of Tendilla the Governor, and on the 18th of November 3000 of them were Baptized. Many that perfifted obstinate were punished, and their Mosques were them were Bapitzed. Many that permited optimate were punished, and their Molques were Confectated into Churches. About 50000 of another quarter in Granda followed their Example. The Moor living along the Mountains called Alpajarras hearing they were to be Bapitzed by force, rebelled, and first those of Huejar, who were son bubbued by the Earl of Tendila and the Great Captain. Soon after the Moors in the Mountains were in Rebellion, and of tenana and the steam capabilities of the Infidels Belieged Marxens, but D. That Town was taken by Storm the Mounand plundered. The Earl of Leria and other Noblemen took several strong Places, where tains Referred. and plundered. The Lari of Lerm and other Noblemen took leveral firing Places, where upon the Rebels submitted, and were received to Mercy upon promife they would within a days deliver up Caffilde Ferro, Adva and Basiol, as also all Arms offensive and defensive, and pay 50000 Ducats. This done the King dismitted his Army and returned to Granda, to forward the Conversion of the Insidels, and soon after those of Alpajarras, Almeria, Basa, Gaustin of their Parcon were Bart to all Parts With Guards for Canada, the conversion of their Parson. This, and the report that they floud the former than the conversion of their Parson. Guadix and other Places were Baptized. Preachers were fent to all Parts With Guards for fecurity of their Persons. This, and the report that they should be forced to quit their Sect, caused the Moint of Belssque and Nixar, which is the most inaccessible part of the Mountains of Alpusarra to Rebel the following Winter. The King appointed the Alcaide de lo Douzeles to Command against them. He having gathered his Forces besieged Belssque, mise of their Lives. Those of Nixar terrified by this example, submitted upon Condition they wisher resiston themselves for 2500d Ducas. Above 1000 Monte under Total Survival. mison themselves for 2500d Ducars. Above 10000 Moors were now Baptized. on the other side the Moors of the Mountains of Ronda and Villaluenga revolted. The On the other fide the moors of the Mountains of Konda and Villaturinga revolted. The King to fuppress them, published a Proclamation commanding them all to remove to Ca. file, but understand permitted all such as were converted to stay and enjoy their Pollessions. The Earl of Urona, D. Alonso de Aguilar, and the Earl of Cifment were sent to make War upon those People. The native Moors' had been easily reduced, but that some who war upon those recopic and from the fland it out. However many came from Ronda, and were Baptized for fear. All the reft retired to Sierra Bermija, which is very difficult of access. Our Forces encamped at the Foot of the Mountain, the Moor, at the tame time guarded the paffes. Some Christians carrying a Standard with them, their defign being guarded the paties. Some Canting only to plunder, paffed a Brook and began to afcend the Hill, the others fearing forme Misfortune might befall them, followed after. The Moors endeavoured to keep them down, fill fecuring every advantageous Poft, but were driven till our Men came to a plain down, this recurring every accurate goods, where the Enemy left their Goods, Wives and Children. This Place the Infidels ion quitted and the Christians sell to plunder, which an old valiant Moor perceiving, he enquitted and the Chindrans and to planted, which an old variant algor perceiving, the encouraged the refl, who foon rallied and gave a fresh Charge upon the Christians. Here D. Alonso de Aguilar, and above 200 of his Men were killed. His Son D. Peter de Cordova with much difficulty was brought off to the Earl of Urena who made good his Ground. The Earl of Cofuents, made a halt fomewhat lower, and there staying those that sted, stood The Earl of Ununes made a nat. ioniewnat lower, and there traying those that ned, itood the Enemy till towards Morning they drew back to the top of the Mountain. The King who was then at Ronda, fent the Duke of Najara against Daydon, and ordered the Earls of Urena and Cifuentes to make show as if they would mount the same way they attempted to the Company of the Many Company they were lost. *Fertinand A T the fame time that the Moors of the Mountains Alpajarras were in Rebellion King affifts the A Ferdinand had ordered a Fleet to be Rigged with all speed, to be Commanded by Pouttime the Great Captain, in favour of the Venetians, and against the Turks who treated Italy. It was given out that the Duke of Milan and King of Naples had brought them to their affistance against their Enemies. Duke Valentin with Forces brought out of France made War in Remains, as General of the Church, againft feveral who had policified themselves of Towns in that Territory. He took Impla, and Fort, the Counsels whereof he made Prifoner. His chief design was against the Lord of Pesaro who had Married his Sister, who understanding his own danger, having Garrisoned the City, absented himself. Luis Sforcia solicited the Emperor and Princes of Germany to affish him in recovering his Dominions. the raifed Men among the Swiffers and Grifoth, and lending his Brother the Cardinal Afra-nius before with them, all Places he came to fubmitted to him. The People of Milan drove their Governor into the Caftle, whence he was forced the 3d day to fly towards Pavia. That fame day the Cardinal entred Milan, and after him the Duke with great Joy of the People, tho' still the Castle was held by the French. Pavia, Lodi, Pertona, and Plasencia, did the same. The main of the French Army Rendezvouzed at Novaro, in order to oppose the Duke. Thither repaired the French Forces that had been with Duke Valentin, he therethe Duke. In their repaired the French Forces that had been with Duke Valentin, he thereupon returning to Rome, where nothing was done by the Pope without his advice. At Ghent in Flanders the Princels Joenna, Wife to the Archduke, was brought to Bed of her Birth of Son Chaptes on the day of St. Mathias. This is he to whom Heaven had Decreed fo the Empermighty an Empire, as afterwards was fubject to his Command. Eight days after his Birth sor Charlet the Princels Margaret came to Ghent, and was his Godmother, with the Dutches Margaret and Wife to Duke Charlet. The young Prince was Created Duke of Luxemburg, whereas before, the Eldelt Sons of the Dukes of Burgundy were called Earls of Charabis. The News of his Birth was received with great Joy in Spain, and the Catholick Queen faid, The Lot has fallen upon Mathias alluding to the day he was Rorn upon and confidence to Mathias, alluding to the day he was Born upon, and confidering the weakness of Prince Maichael, who died foon after at Grandel; after whose death the Archduke and his Wile, were Princes of Castile and Aragon. After the Return of Vasco de Gama from India, Peter Alvarez, Cabral was sent on the 8th of March, with a Fleet of 13 Sail to continue that Enterprize. By the way he Discovered Brafil, was at first well received at Calicut, but afterwards came to Blows with that People. The War continued in Lombardy, and the Duke by degrees recovered all he had lost. He made himself Master of Alexandria and Novaro, and being definous to put an end to the War, drew out of the City with all his Forces, which were about 16000 Swiffers and Germans. Both Armies being ready to Engage, his Swiffers refused to Fight against the French and their Countrymen who served on their side. whereupon he retired to the City in hopes to persuade them to Fight. But they had before fold, and now delivered him up to the French, who fent him to France, where he died in Prison. This sad News being brought to Cardinal Ascanius his Brother, who lay before the Castle of Milan, he went away with 500 Horfe towards Placencia. Charles Urstinus who Commanded some Troops of the Venetians met, deseated and took him Prisoner. After the Venetians had kept him them, fone time, they delivered him to the King of France, who fecured him in Prison at Bourges, and the Duke fone Years after fet him at liberty. Maximilian and France the Dukes Sonswere at the Empeand Duke-ror's Court, which faved them from being involved in the Ruin of their Family. The French without any Opposition possessed themselves of all the Dukedom. The Cardinal of Roan resided at Milan, to gain whom the Pope made him Legate of France, excepting Britany for the space of a Year and a half. The King of Castile was jealous of the King of Navarre, because he shewed much affection towards the French, wherefore not content with Trime being expired, the King of Navarre demanded the Reflution of them, and the Catho-lick King delayed it. To end all Controveries, the King of Navarre came himself in A pril to Sevil, where the Catholick King and Queen were. All things were there adjusted, and the Towns restored. The Count de Lerin, then a Banished Man in Castile, was restored to most of his Estate, and to the Office of Constable which he had before, to the great Offence of D. Alonso Peralta Earl of Santifegran, from whom that Honour was then taken, fion new Troubles. For Security of the Agreement betwist the Two Kings, the King of Navarre left his Daughter, the Princels Magdaten to be bred up in the Court of the Catholick King, as a Pledge of his real Friendlinp.

This was now the great Year of Jubilee, in which multitudes of People from all Parts of Christendom flocked to Rome to obtain the Indulgence and Remission of their Sins. No-without any Demerit of his, or any Recompence made him. This twas feared might occa-

thing could be more depraved than the People of that City, but especially the Clergy, for which God feemed in some measure to threaten his Judgments by an Accident that belef the Pope. On the day of S. Peter and Pagh, about Four in the afternoon hapned a violent florm of Rain and Hail, with fo furious a Hurricane that it, beat down the Stack of Chipmeys over the Room where the Pope was, under that where Duke Valentin Lodged. The fall of it beat down the Floors of the Dukes Room, killing Two, and wounding a Third Fluentine, who were waiting there to receive fome Money. Many Bricks and Planks fell before the Pope, who wasmuch faved by the Canopy under which he Sate. However he was found Senfeless with a Wound on his Head, another on his Hand. The Cardinal of Capua and Mofen Po, who were with him, faved themselves within the Arches of the Win-Capua and Mojen Pe, who were with him, tayed thenheives within the Arches of the Windows. The Pope was 70 Years of Age, and his wounds dangerous, which made People look upon him as a dead Man, and Duke Palentin was gathering Forces to have a Pope of his own chufing. It pleafed God he recovered, and fo all that Confusion Ceased. At this time the Great Captain fet Sail from Malaga with a Fleet of 27 Ships, 25 Caravels, some time the Great Captain let Sail Irom Malaga with a Fleet of. 27 Ships, 25 Caravels, some Gallies and other final Crast, in which were 4000 Foor and 300 Men at Arms. With him went many Men of Note. They touched at Majorea, and Sardinia, and a last arrived at Mecina in Sieily on the 18th of July. Thither repaired to him the Spanish Soldiers that were in Italy, all choice Men, and he gathered some other Vessels. The Turks laid Siege to Modon, a City of the Venetiam in the Morea, and these pressed the Great Captain to join them; yet he could not set forward till the 27th of September, when Modon was lost. The Xeque of Gelves defired the Great Captain to fend him some Succours, because the People of the Illand were incensed against the Soldiers of Margarit for their Infolencies, and all Barbary against the Xeque, for having called the Christians. No Relief was sent, but Orders given him to apprehend Margarit and all his Men, whom he afterwards releafed, and poffelled himfelf of the Caffle and Island of Gelves. On the 2d of Oliober the Spanish Fleet arrived at Gorfu, an Illand of the Venetians. Hereupon the Turks altered their Resolution of invading that Island, and marched to Napoli de Romania. Now the Peace betwirt France Peace be and Spain was concluded upon honourable Conditions. As to the Kingdongo Naples, it twist to was agreed it flould be taken from King Frederick, that Apulia and Calabria flould be given and Spain. to the Catholick King, Abraezzo and Campania to the Brench, and that all the Revenue of the Kingdom should be equally divided.

This Agreement was not like to be lastling. Befides, their pretentions of Right to that Crown, they had another colour, which was to make War upon the Turks, with whom King Frederick was in League. At first this contract was was upon the times, with whom some research was in League. As the time contract was kept very private, afterwards difcovered to the Pope, who was well pleafed, and gave each of the Kings an Inveftiture of his Part; to the King of France, with the Title of King of of the Kings an Inveltiture of his Paris to the King of France, with the Little of King of Naples and Heinejalens, and to the Catholick King, that of Duke of Apulia. From Corfu the Spanish Fleet failed to Zams, where it arrived the 4th of Odlober. There the Venetian Fleet joined it. Two French Carracks came thither with 800 Men, that King having promified to affilt the Venetian when they delivered up Cardinal Afenius to him. The Turks who had difficified Napoli de Romania raised their Siege, and their Fleet drew into the Channel of Negropon on the further fide of the Morea. At Zam there were various. Opinions about the state of the Adora. The Grant Carractions for streeting Made I have refolived. what was best to be done. The Great Captain was for attacking Modon. It was resolved to Conquer the Illand Cofalonia; which is large and has one of the helt Ports in the World on the Welf fide. It lies between Corfu and Zam opposite to the Gulph of Lepano. The on the Weit ince. It its between Cottu and Lorin Oppoints to the chipf not Lepanto. The Prench being gone upon pretence they were not paid, the reft laid Siege to the Chief Town of the Island called S. George. In it were 300 Turks, chosen Men who defended themselves Grahmia well; and the Christians were repulsed in an assaut they gave the first day. By reason of taken the Bad Weather the Siege lasted some Weeks, but upon Christians were work was care front the ried by storm. 170 Turks were killed, and 50 that retired to a strong Tower surrender Turks. upon discretion. Captain Marin Gomes was the first that entred the Town. That Island the desired to the Captain Marin Gomes was the first that entred the Town. That Island had belonged to Leonard Torus a Greek, from whose Brother the Venetians took, and gave it to the Turker Now it was again given to the Venetians. This done, the Great Captain to the Invit: Now it, was again given to the Venetiani. I his done, the Great Captain returned to Steily, and arrived at Straufia, where all his Fleet-met, having been disperfed in a Storm. For his good Service done to that State, the Venetiani sent the Great Captain the Title of Nobleman of Venice, and with it a prefent of Plate and rich Silks. All the present he fent to the King, contenting himself with the honour gained. At this time Duke Valentin after having murdered his Brother in Law D. Along de Airogon Duke of Vifdi, King ceramina of August was territors of the bird in South the Duke of Calabria, hoping by that means to fecure his Crown. The King of Portugal alfo follicited to have her, tho he had been married to her Silter. This was thought the better Match, but the Dispensation was hard to be obtained, because the Affinity was in the First Degree. The Pope, the in other things fice enough, was very backward in this, pretending that the King of France prefied him not to grant it. He faid he would not confent to it, unlefs the Cathoof France pressed him not to grant it. He laid he would not consent to it, unless the Catholick King would secure him against any harm that might threaten him upon that account. Much time was spent in debating this Point. King Ferdinand would have the Duke of Caka. Mria marry his Neice Queen Joanna, Widow of Ferdinand II. King of Naples, who was still in that Kingdom, her Father having less ther 400000 Ducats. King Frederick approved of the Match to save the Payment of that vall Sum, but would have the King of Spain stake him into Match to lave the Fayment of that van built, but not agree to, becaule of the Treaty he had his Protection. This the Catholick King would not agree to, becaule of the Treaty he had in hand with France; which being at last concluded, tho King Frederick was willing the Match should go on, the Catholick King would not consent. King Frederick, to secure himself against the French, and divert them from their Pretentions to his Kingdom, made large Offers to them. The King of France proposed, That to secure the Performance of what they should agree upon, he should deliver up to him the Castle of Gaeta; and that Frederick's they should agree upon, he mould denvel up to him the Caute of Osters, and that readeries, som should reside in his Court, and marry German Daughter to the Earl of Narbonne, or the Siller of Monsieur at Amountaine. Besides, he demanded a Million in ready Money, and 25000 Ducats of yearly Tribute. All heavy Conditions, which that King could not conde-Send to, the he was willing to give the Million demanded. In fine, none of these Matches was concluded. At length the Pope dispensed with the King of Portugal, and he was constant.

Tagted by Proxy at Granada in August, D. Alvaro de Portugal performing that Ceremony for him. There was no manner of Solemnity or Publick Rejoycing. In that City, you the 12th of Soptember, the King passed a Grant to the Marquesses of Moya, by virtue whereof the Cup. na september, sue sung panet a strain's bay every Year belongs to them. This was done in steam of the King drinks out of on S. Lais's Day every Year belongs to them. This was done in openmory, that upon that Day D. Andrew de Cabrara, first Marques of Moya, delivered up to King Ferdinand all the Treature of King Henry that was in his custody in the Castle of Segovia, using Ferdinand all the Treature of Ling termy that was in his cultony in the Cattle of Segovia, hich was a great means to effabilih him in the Kingdom. With the Princes, as far as the footders of Pertugal, went D. Janes Hurtado de Mendoga, Archbishop of Sevil, Partiarch of clevandria, and now made Cardinal of Spain, as his Unkle had been; he was also Brother to the Earl of Tendilla. Also the Marques of Vilena and many other Lords bore her Com-On the Borders of Portugal she was received by the Duke of Bragança, tho' at that time he was diffulled, because the King so highly savoured D. George de Portugal, whom he had created Duke of Cojimbra, and given him to Wise Beatrix de Melo, Daughter to D. Alvaro de Fortugal, and the Lady Philippa de Melo his Wise. With the Duke of Bragança were many other Nobles. She entred into that Kingdom upon the 20th of Ottober, and on the 30th of the same Worth was married with great Solemnity at Alcaçar do Sal, where the King waited the name would was marined with great columns at a comparation of the coming. This Marriage was very fruitful, for they had many Children, as final bed clared in its place. Soon after, the Princels Margaret was married to Philibert Duke of Sacauce in 18 pane. Soon area, the trimes prangue was married to tenuer Duke of Sa-ony, but the was informate in Husbands, for he allo died floon after. The Soldan of Ba-byl tignified fome Difcontent against the Cattlolick King, because he made. War against the Moors of Granada. It was feared he might molest the Christians that lived in his Dominions. and lander the Pilgrimages to the Holy City Hierusalem: For this reason the King resolved and lander the rightmages to the Hoty City menjamin. For this reason the King resolved to fend a solemn Embassic to give him Satisfaction. Peter Marry of Angleria, a Milanese, the King's Chaplain, was chose for this Employment. He did his Message discreetly, and obtained of the Soldan all he defired. He was out a Year, and at his return was made Dean of Granada, where he afterwards died, and ordered himself to be buried sitting on a Chair, with a Coldan National Soldan State Soldan with a Cafula or Veflment made of a rich Silk the Soldan gaye him. He wrote Decades of the War of Granada, of his Embaffic, and the Difcovery of the West-Indies, in which is to be feen more of Truth than Elegancy.

All Europe was in fulpence, waiting the Event of the War of Naples, undertaken by the joint Forces of France and Spain for the Ruin of King Frederick, and deprive him of that Rich and Noble Kingdom. The Catholick King fent advice of his Refolution from Granada to the Great Captain on the 1st of March, 1501. ordering him at the same time to leave the War against the Tink, and return immediately with his Fleet to the Port of Meina. Soon after, to fent him the Title of his Lieutenant in the Dukedoms of Apulia and Calabria. To oppose the Turk, he prevailed with the King of Portugal to fend a Fleet to thoke Parts, which he did, under the Command of D. John de Meneler, Earl of Taroça, who by the way attempted the Port of Maçalquivir near Oran, and being repulfed, failed on to the Illand of Corfu, whence he returned to Portugal without doing any thing. It was also proposed to the King of France to fend his Fleet against the Turks. That Kling made choice of Luis d'Armegnac, Duke of Nemours, Earl of Armagnac and Guife, to Command his Forces that were to invade Naples, He would not give this Command to Luis de Linxembourg Earl of Ligni, who fined for it, left he should cause some disorder by the Right he pretended to the Principality of Altamara. The Duke of Nemours made fome flay in France: therefore the Lord of Aubeni, who was made Lord High Constable of Naples, moved with the French Forces out of Lombardy towards Naples, and with him the Earl of Gayace, a Man of great Quality, who had fled from Naples. At this time Francis de Rojas, a very able Man, was fent to tucceed Laurence, Suarez, as Ambassador at Rome. At the Emperor's Court had resided for some Years with Suarez, as Ambailador at come. At the Emperoi's Court had reinded for iome Tears with that Chiarder, D. John Emanuel, a Man of great Note, but Turbulent. In the Court of France John Michael Gralla was ftill resident, and John Claver at Naples. The Great Captain, in pursuance of the Orders he had received; repaired to Meeina with his Fleet; thence he went to Palermo to order the Viceroy John de Langea, to gather what Money and Forces he could for the Enterprize in hand. Some Misunderstanding, there happed betwitt them, as is usual where each arrogates to himself a Superiority; but at last they agreed in what concerned the King's Service; and the Great Captain having gathered what Force he could returned to Mecina, where was the General Rendezvous. The Great Captain was pollefled in Calabria of the Dukedom of Monte de Santangelo, given him by King Frederick when the late War was concluded. Before he entred upon that Conquest, he sent Captain Gençalo de Foces to excule him to that King; to restore to him that Dukedom, and renounce the Oath of Allegiance he had taken to him for the fame. The King absolved him of his Oath, yet gave him the Dukedom again, wilhing it were better for his fake, upon condition he should not inself his Subjects from the Caltles belonging to it. This and the Intelligence his Ambalfadors sent from Spain, fully convinced King Frederick how near and certain his Ruin was. He turned him. felf about, and found no Loyalty in his Subjects, no Strength in his Kingdom, nor no Support from abroad. He fent his Son Ferdinand to Taranto, a strong City in the farthest pare of Apulia and of all Italy. It was reported he fent him to Vallona, to obtain Succours of the Turk. He gathered all the Forces he could, which amounted to 800 Men at Arms, and, 4000 Foot, fortified Capita, where he left Fabrician Colona and Hugh de Candona with 200 Men at Arms, and 1000 Foot. The Great-Captain being a Man of a vaft Reach, earlip perceived that Agreement betwist the Two Kings could not be falting, as well for the natural Haughtines of the French, as by reason of the Difficulties that mult of necessity arise in dividing of the Country, befides that Sovereignty admits of no Rival: Therefore he thought is requisite to anticipate the French, that they might not obstruct his Conquest. He fent the greatest pair of the Fleet, under the Command of James de Mendaça, to the Coast of Apulia, to hinder the Turks from coming over thither. The Fleet of Portugal came not in time. He to limited the time to the free to the Fleet to Noples, with Orders to transport Journal the Queen Dowager of Naples into Sicily. King, Frederick suffered her to depart, the' he had before detained her, in hopes through her means to move King Ferdinand her Unkle to affift him. The Great Captain passed the Streight of Mexima with his Forces, which consisted of 300 Men at Arms, the same Number of Light Horse, and 3000 Foot. The Spanish Ambassador at Rome sent him 600 Spaniards, who had served under Duke Valentine. Orders were lest in Sicily for fending after him 400 chosen Horsemen. With this Force in a few days he left in Study for fending after him 400 choich Horienten. With this Force in a few days he fiddled all Calabria, except the ftrong Towns of Girachi and S. Agatha, all other Places declaring for Spain. The Spaniards palled over to Calabria on the 5th of July, and on the 8th the French entred the Kingdom of Naple by the way of Rome. All Places fibmitted to them without refiffance till they came to Capua, to which they laid fige. All Jahrazo him mitted to the French in like manner. Capua could have held out long, but that the Earl of Palena berrayed it to them. They plundered the City, and took Fabricius Colona, Hugh de Cordona, and all the other Commanders that were in it. This News brought to the Great Captifin at Nicaltro on the 29th of July, made him hasten to take the Castle of Cosenza. He appointed Luis Mudarra Governor of that Town, and the Earl of Ayelo of all Calabria, marching himself speedily to Apulia, that he might have done with that Province before the French at Naples. All Places yielded to him; at last he sate down before Taranto, where the Duke of Calabria was, at fuch time as the French were possessed of Naples. Duke Valentine having taken Faença and Poimbin, came now to serve the French. King Frederick and the French General agreed in Italy, That he should deliver up Naples and Gaera with the Cassles, and pay 60000 Ducats for their Expence; and they were to fuffer him to depart with his Treasure and Servants to Ischia, where he had 6 Months allowed him to confider whither he would remove. The King with his Wife and Children, the Queen of Hungary, and Dutchess of Milan, went over to that Island. Thither repaired to them Presper and Fabricius Colona, being Ranfomed. So that the French were now postessed of all their Dividend of that Kingdom; but foon they began to call their eye upon the rest. In Castile at this time there arose a great Controversie betwirt the Lady Mary Pacheco, Countes of Beneveno; and her Son D. Alonso Pimentel, about the Guardianthip and Marrying of the Marchioness of Villafranca, the Countels's Grandchild. The Dukes del Infantado and Alva asked her for their Sons, and the Earl of Renevento her Unkle for himfelf. At length it was agreed, That the Lady Beatrin, Daughter to the Countefs, should be married to D. Garcia de Teledo, Eldest Son to the Duke of Abra, and the Marchioness to D. Peter, Brother to Garcia.

70 fooner were the French possessed of Naples, but there arose Debates betwirt them and the Spaniards, about some Parts of that Kingdom which were not mentioned in the Division agreed upon by them. These were Capitanata, Basilicata, and the Hither and Farther French and Principality. The French were so sorward, that they sent a Son of the Earl of Capacho to cause that part of Basilicata to declare for France. They also agreed with the Prince of Melsi about that Principality, which is in the fame Province, and the King of France had already given it to John James Trivulcia. Some Noblemen were released, who had been imprisoned by the King of Naples, and among them John Baptifta Morçano, after he had been almost 40 Years in cultody. He boldly attempted to possess himself of the Principality of Rosano, which had been his Father's, and is in Calabria. Also Luis d'Arsi being empowered by the Lord of Ligni, railed the Principality of Altamura in Apulia for the French. These were Heart burnings at present, and seemed to tend to a Breach. Methods of reconciling these Differences were first proposed to the Lord of Aubeni, and then to the Duke of Nemours, who came after the Surrender of Nuples. It was agreed, that neither Party should intrude into those Provinces which were out of Dispute; and that those that stood dubious which side they belonged to, should remain in common to both, till such time as the Controversie was decided. Matters of the Government and Revenue were also adjusted, but nothing observed. For the better Descripti understanding this Dispute, and the clearing which side had the most Right, it will be conof the venient to give a short Description of the Kingdom of Naples, and of all its Parts. The Kingdom Kingdom of Naples contains all that Country which extends from Taracina or Fundi on the of Naples. Mediterranean, and the River Truento, that falls into the Gulp of Vonice, to the utmost Point of italy. Mount Apenne which joins with the Alpes cuts this Kingdom and all the rest of Italy into two Parts. At the first entrance into the Kingdom, on the Right-hand of that Mountain upon the Mediterranean, lies the Principal part of it called Campania, or Terra de Labor, of the ancient Liborii who dwelt there. In this Province are Gaeta, Nola, Capua, and Naples the Metropolis of the whole Kingdom. Formerly all the Country from the River Tiber to Naples, was called Campania; now that which lies betwixt Rome and the Borders of that Kingdom, goes by the Name of Campagna di Roma. On the Left-hand lies Abrazzo, containing many of the ancient Provinces, namely, the Sabines, where is Afedi; the Marucini, where is Theate; the Peligni and Vestini, in which are the Cities of Aquila and Sulmena; the Mars, where is the Lake Ficina, and the Dutchy of Tagliacete; and part of the Sammia, samous in the Roman History, and reaching to Campania, The Moderns divide this Province into Abrazzo Citra, and Abrazzo Ultra, the River of Pescara being the Bounder of the Two Parts. Thee Provinces, in the Division of the Kingdom, were adjudged to the King of France. On the same fide with Abruzzo is Apulia, divided into Capitanata, Terra di Bari, and Terra di Otramo, which runs as far as Tarano and the Consines of Calabria. On the other side beyond Naplas begins the Principality, whose Capital City is Salarno. Bufilicata, formerly called Lucania, and then Calabria, where were the ancient Brutii, upon the Coast of the Mediterranean. In this Province is Cosenza the Capital City, and Regio upon the Streight of Megina. The Inland was called Magna Gracia, where are Rofano, Catangaro, and Corron. As to the Principality, it is dubious whether it ought to be comprehended in Calabria. Touching Bufilicata was the fame Dispute, and therefore the Kings agreed their Provinces flould be divided. Yet fome affirmed, that this Territory lying along the Mountains that part Apulia and Calabria, made no diffinct Province from them two, but that as much as lies towards the East belongs to Apulia, and towards the West to Calabria. In Bastlicata are Melfi, Atela, Barleta, and other Cities. Capitanata is that part which lies betwixt the Rivers Ansida and Tertoro; in it are Manfredonia, Monte Santangelo, and Troya. There is no doubt but that Territory was contained in the ancient Apulia, fince Ptolomy places Mount S. Garganus, which is there Famous for the Church of S. Michael in Apulia. And the Moderns always understood that Apulia. began, where Abruzzo ended, and was divided into those three Parts already mentioned. Nay, several Authors mention Capitanata as a Territory of Apulia; and always the Duty of the Cattel of Apulia was received in that Territory. Let every one judge as he shall think fit; it suffices to our Purpose, that hence the French and Spaniards took occasion to decide that by the Sword, which their Kings, tho often pressed to it, could never be brought to resolve. But this we shall speak of hereaster. Now King Fredt-Frederick rick, who continued at Ischia, as had been agreed, being out of conceit with the Catholick puts him-King, put himfelf into the hands of the King of France, and his Wite and Children, and the felf into Cardinal Luis d'Ar-gon his Nephew, upon promife of 30000 Francs to maintain his House the hand. His Sifter Bestrie, Queen of Hungary, stayed in that Island, and thence went over to Sielly.

zobeth his Niece, who had been married to John Galeazo the Great Duke of Milán, went to Bari in Apalia. Whilft this Treaty was betwixt the King of France and the Depoted Frederick, Bavi in Apalia. Within this I realy was perwise the Archduke in Flanders was courted to go over to Spain with his Wife, that they might, according to Cuftom, be fiworn Heirs to the Crown. This Year was born to the Archduke a Daughter called Elizabeth. The King his Father in Law was defirous to have him in Spain, that he might be acquainted with the Customs of the Country, and to break him of some youthful ill Habits he had learned of his Servants. But they being used to Govern him, were youthlin in riable ne had learned of his octation. But they being use to sovern him, were not willing he should stand in awe of D. John de Fonseca, Bilhop of Cordova, who was sent to persuade him to come into Spain, and the King of France invited him to take his way through that Kingdom, as he did. The Princess Catharine sailed from Cornina, in a Fleet provided for that Miligooni, as ne that the related summer and from sommer, in a river provided for that purpole, to be married in England, as had been agreed. She fet fail on the 25th of August With her went into England D. Alonfo de Fonfeca, Archbilhop of Santiago, the Count and Countes of Cabra, and other Persons of Note. After their departure, there arose such a Storm that the Fleet was feattered, and tho' fome Ships recovered Southampton, the most a stolin that the Princes was married with great Solemnity to Sea again, and arrived with the Princes in England. She was married with great Solemnity to Prince Arthur at London: But how much Mifery did this poor Lady undergo, through the Extravagancy of her Lemos, was contracted to Denn Brother to the Duke of Braganza, the King giving them the Towns of Sarria, Caltro, and Otera, which the Earl of Lemos pretended to have a Right to. In October a Peace was concluded at the City Trent betwixt the Emperor and King of France: The chief Article was, That Charles the Archduke's Son should marry Claudia that King's Daughter; a Match often agreed upon, but that never took effect.

Daughter; a Match often agreed upon, but that never took enect.

The Fleets fent from France and Portugal at the inflance of the Catholick King to aid the Frank perfect of the Catholick King the Frank perfect of the Catholick Kin filence, Stress of Weather, and the Enemy, that scarce 1000 Men of all the Fleet returned ther. home. They repaired to Apulia, and were courteoully entertained by the Great Captain's Order. The Venetian also returned home, who had but 25 Galleys ill provided. This Year the Turk put no Fleet to Sea, which if he had, there was no Force to oppose him. In Spain the Catholick King published a Proclamation, commanding all the Morsy who were dispersed throughout Cassile and Andalucia, called Mulejares, either to become Christians, or depart the Country. About the end of the Year there was a certain Commotion, which if not prevented in time, might have produced a War. D. Luis de la Cerda, Duke of Medina Celi, upon his Death-bed married his Miltrifs to Legitimate D. John, a Son he had by her. D. Digo de la Cerda, the Duke's Brother, whose Son Luis married the Duke del Infantado's Daughter, pretended he was Heir to that Estate. The Duke of Medina Celi being dead, the Duke del phetended ne was rich to that thate.

The Danc of the Conference o obey, and D. John was left possessed of his Father's Estate. News was brought that the Archduke with his Wife were coming through France. All the way they were nobly entertained. At Paris, on the 13th of December, both Parties swore to the Peace before conclu. The Arch ded at Trent, and the Archduke did Homage to the King of France, as Earl of Flanders. The duke Princess would allow that King no Superiority. Thence they fet forward, and through Guienne to Spain. came to Funetrabia on the 29th of February, 1902. There they were received by the Con-lable of Coffile, the Duke of Najara, the Earlof Trevito his Son, and the Chief Commendary D. Gatierre de Cardenas. The more to express the Publick Joy, leave was given that such as might wear Silk Doublets, might also have Silk Coats, and coloured, which shews the Modesty of those Times. At the beginning of this Year, Lucrecia de Borgia was married to the Heir of the Duke of Ferrara; her Portion was 100000 Ducats. The Archduke and his Wife by the way of Burges, Valladalit, Medina, and Segovia, came w Madrid. The Catholick King and Queen came from Andaluzia to Guadalupe. There to oblige Duke Valentine, and in him the Pope, they gave him the City Andria, and other Lands in Naples, with the Title of Prince. It was also proposed, that the Kings of Spain and France should settle an Estate upon

King Frederick and his Children. The King and Queen came to Toledo upon the 22d of April, as did the Princes on the 7th of May, having been flayed some days at Olina, by rea-fon of the Archduke's Indilposition. At Toledo on the 22d of May they were sworn Heirs of the Kingdoms of Capille and Leon, in a great Assembly of Prelates and Noblemen. They were tied, in case they Inherited those Kingdoms, to Govern them according to their ancient and known Laws." At the same time that Spain rejoiced at the coming of these Princes, England lamented the Death of Prince Arthur. The Princes his Wise was supposed to be lest a Maid, the they lived together as Man and Wife for 5 Months. But the Prince was only 14 Years of Age, and of so weak a Constitution, that it gave sufficient Grounds to believe this might be true. Ferdinand Duke d'Estrada was sent by the Catholick King to Condole with King Henry, and to propose that the Princess might be married to his Second Son. But he neither restored her Portion, nor could for some time be brought to conclude that Match, which afterwards proved fo unfortunate. Soon after the News was brought of that Prince's Death, Mary Queen of Portugal was delivered at Lisbon of a Son, whom they named John He afterwards Inherited his Father's Kingdom, and was a most Renowned Prince.

The Great

THE Great Captain, as has been faid, laid Siege to Taranto fome months before this time.

In that Town was the Duke of Calabria well provided to hold out. Nevertheless the first Creating day the Town was invested a Treaty was begun, and at length the Duke, by the means of Actions Octavian de Santis, concluded a Truce for Two months, that he might have time to confult at Naptri. his Father, both fides giving Holtages that nothing should be done to the prejudice of the other in the mean while. Afterwards, because the Messengers sent to King Frederick were not come back, the Truce was prolonged till the end of the year upon the same Articles as before. This Term also expiring without any Answer, the Truce was still continued for Two months longer, and the City put into the keeping of Bindo de Ptolomeis, a Subject of the Catholick King, in whom the Great Captain reposed great Trust, upon Condition, that after that time the City should be surrendred without any farther delay, but that the Duke with all his Treasure and Family should be free. At the same time the Castle of Gerachi, a Place of great importance, 3 Leagues from the Sea, was furrendred; and the Prince of Salerno came of Bifgrane might be reflored to their Essages. He also demanded the Earldom of Lauria, and 5000 Duccats Pension which his Predecessors used to be allowed by the Kings of Naples. All these were extravagant Demands, and denoted he had but a small Inclination to submit. Many of the Barons who had withdrawn with King Frederick to Ischia, came over now to the Service, and among them Profeer and Fabricine Colona, being informed the Ventians endeavoured to draw them into their Service. D. James de Mendoga and Inigo de Ayala took the City and Castle of Manfredonia, by Intelligence they held with the Governour that was to keep that place for King Frederick, notwithstanding the Lord of Alegre was marching at the same time to Relieve the Besieged. At last the City Taranto, according to Articles, was delivered, with its Caftles, to the great Captain. And because one of the Articles of Surrender was, That the Duke might have liberty to depart whither he pleafed, for the prefent he went to Bari, which ftill held out for his Father (tho the City was weak, and the Cattle but a plain House) refolving to flay there for his Orders, without which he would not do any thing. The Great Captain earnestly defired to reconcile him to the Catholick King, that he might not go to France, which might caule fome Troubles. Propofals were made, and he offered him 30000 Duccats a year for ever, part in the Kingdom of Naples, and part in Spain, which was all he asked, or could expect in that Condition. The Duke liked the Offer, but would conclude nothing without his Father's Confent. Soon after the Dutches Dowager of Milan, his Cousin, rather than to go to Sicily, whither she was invited with the Queen of Hungary her Aunt, retired to that City. This Lady prevailed with the Duke to write a Letter to the great Captain, praying him, that notwithftanding the Capitulation, by which he was at liberty to difpose of himself, he would fend him over to the Catholick King, because he found his Father's Designs were not for his Advantage, and yet he was not willing to act any thing publickly in opposition to him. It is to be believed the Duke did not continue long in this mind, for his Father by Letter preffed the Great Captain, according to what had been Capitulated, to give his Son his full Liberty, urging, that it was not like a Gentleman to break his Word, and that he ought to remember how much he had been his Friend in the time of this Prosperity. The Great Captain, who kept a Guard upon him that he might not escape, to the end to bring him to his Will, befides the Revenue he had offered before, now promifed in the Name of the Cathelick King to Marry him either to the Queen of Naples, his Neece, or with the Princes of Males, both very advantageous Proposlas. It was sufficient that the Eq. of Powers, $D_s = 1.5 \, \text{M}_{\odot}$ de Guevera, who always stack by the Duke, led him which way he pleased. The Duke, the he went about Apulia in appearance free, yet was fo guarded that he could not get away, nor fearce go a Hunting. In fine, this Business was so contrived, that the Duke was brought back to Torang and thence John de Conchillos had Orders to carry him in a Gally to Sicily, and fo to Spain, it being believed Matters would be the better adjusted betwixt the Parties themselves, and that the Duke would be easier reconciled to the King, who was his near Kiniman. It is plain this was a breach of Articles. In time of War Faith is not always observed, but neither in Peace or War is there any regard to it where State Policy and the Interest of Princes is con-

The French and Spanish Generals in the Kingdom of Naples confused together, and with Disagreetheir Kings, about agreeing the Differences that arole between them, to avoid coming to Blows, ment atheir Kings, about agreeing the Directors that about between them, to avoid coming to Blows, ment a-Not long before the Archduke was fewn Prince of Cafile, there came an Ambalfador to 76, bout the leds from the King of France to Treat of this Affair. He, pretended that the Revenue of the Division Provinces allotted the King of France was much left than that of Galabria and Applia, and Provinces allotted the King of aranee was intentien than that of Calabria and Apaira, and fince fome Recompence ought to be made he demanded the Country of Capitanata should be fince tome Recompence ought to be made the demanded the Country of Capitanata mould be yielded to him. The Catholick King andwered, That if the King of France thought the Division was not equal, he would change Provinces with him; yet if he infifted upon an Equivalent, it should be made up out of the Principality and Bafflicata, because Capitanata was the best part of Apulia, and there was no reason it should be rent from it. In short, he offered best part of Apulia, and there was no reason it should be rent from it. In short, he offered to remit the whole thing to the Decision of the Pope and Cardinals. The King of France liked none of these Proposals, being unwilling to quit the Title of King of Naples and Hierafaller in the Exchanged, and threatned to use Force. This Feud ran so high, that being one day told by the Spanish Ambassach, that their King punctually observed allthat had been agreed, He answered, He had done the same, and in Desence of his Affertion was ready to Combat with the King of Spain, or with the King of the Romans. Gralla replied, The King, his Master; was as just a Prince as any in the World, which, when required, he was ready to make good in the Field. The King of France said, The King of Spain shall not be greater than 1. And Gralla answered, Nor you greater than the King my Masser. True it is, the Catcholick King used all possible means to prevent coming to a War. The first Breach was when the Lord of Alegre, who called himself Lieutenan of Capitaniata, came to raise the Siege the Spaniards had said to Manfredonia, as was hinted before; and not content with that, whilst the Great Captain besieged Taranso, the French possible themselves of Tropa and other Places in Spaniards had laid to Manfredonia, as was hinted before; and not content with that, whilft the Great Capitain belieged Taranto, the French posselfield themselves of Troya and other Places in Capitantae, which they alterwards relined to reflore. Before things came to extremily the Generals agreed to have a Conserence. To this purpose the Great Capitain went to Atela, and Chappel of S. Antony, where they appointed to meets Both had with them Men Learned in rence of Duccast a year more than theirs, and therefore it was fit they should have some Recompence and spaniards to the Capitantae wrong, with Generally taken from them, and then they would be ready to perform all Articles. Nothing was concluded, the there passed great Givilities betwix the Generals. All hopes of Accommodation being taken away, they resolved to try the Event of War. Both Patties acquainted dation being taken away, they refolved to try the Event of War. Both Parties acquainted their Kings with it, and writ, to them for Supplies of Men and Money. The Great Captain being fearce of Provisions, quartered part of his Men in the Principality. Captain Captain being fearce of Provisions, quartered part of his Men in the Principality. Captain Ecolodada, with his Company, drove the French out of Tripalda, and polefiled himself of that Town, which is 30 miles from Naples. Other Spanish Commanders made themselves Matters of other Towns in that Neighbourhood. This was so highly resented by the King of France, that he caused all the Estects of Spanish, Merchants throughout his Kingdom to be seized. The Catholick Kingwars fills for Composition, even tho he were forced to resign to the French all they possessed in Capitamata, which was the greatest part. The Generals met again in the same place, and made the Division again, in appearance, to the satisfaction of the French for the Principality. Basilicata, and Capitamata, were to be divided, which was as much as they could with. Whilst this was in agitation, the French were teinsforced by 1000 Swiss, and control Horizon Swiss, and control the Commander, Peter Naviero, being so to commence the War a new. They took Vernsla, the Commander, Peter Naviero, being forced by his Men to surrender. Quantas also yielded to them, both Places being but 12 miles from Barleta, where the Great Captain lay with most of his Forces. Visit in the Principality of his Men to furrender. Quarata allo yielded to them, both Places being but 12 miles from Barleta, where the Great Captain lay with most of his Forces. Vifel in the Principality of Altamura revolted, and the Spaniards by Sea having entred it, were again expelled by the French, who came to the Relief of that place. Summer was now advanced, and the French Camp at Quarata suffered for want of Water and Provisions, our Horse cutting them off. They removed theseca, and incamped on the Banks of the River Ofanto. Then the Great Captain offered them, Battle. They relining, and drawing off towards Mulfs, some of our Horse fell in with them Rear, killing many, and taking part of the Baggage, among which was some of the Equipage of the Duke of Namours, and the Lord of Ambeni. The French would not hazard themselves till they were joined by 1000 more Swift, who were come to Naples, and 200 Horse that were then at Florence. The great Captain pressed his king for Supplies, and particularly for 400 Horse, and 2000 Foor of Gallicia and Assuria. He recom-Naples, and 400 Horfe that were then at Telorence. The great Captain pressed his King for supplies, and particularly for 400 Horse; and 2000 Foor of Gallicia and Assurias. He recommended to the Ambassador D. John Manuel, to send him 2000 German to mix with the Spaniar Ast. The Catholick King sitted out a Fleet under the Command of Bernard de Villamanin, show was to transport 400 Horse; and fome Supplies of Money. At the sange time he permitted the Emperor to invade stasy, and put one of the Sons of the Deposed Parks of Milan flouds be put into possession of stasted and the Pope, he consented that Duke Valentin Should be put into possession of Florence, to hold that Dominion of the Empire with the Title of King

The Archduke of Austria, and Princess his Wife, from Heirs of Atagon, he goes away for Flanders; The Spaniards offer Battle to the French, several small Actions between them; The Spaniards decline in Calabria, are defeated.

Archduke THE Catholick King spent some days at Toleda to Enterrain the Archduke and Princess, and Prince then leaving the Queen there see, our for Zaragera, to bring the Arageniams to his beck. Heirs of The Cortes of Aragon were to meet on the 19th of July, but he feat to Prorogue them. Being come to Zazaguça at the beginning of September, because the Great Captain pressed for the Fleet, he ordered one to be fitted out under the Command of Magnet de Benavides, who was to transport 400 Horse and 300 Forms. Soon after he ordered the rest of the Fleet to Sail with Luis Portocarrero, Lord of Palma, who had served well in the Wars of Granda, and was: now to be equal in Command to the Great Captain. With him went 300 Men at Arms. 400 light Horfe, and 3000 Foot, Laurence Suarez, de Figueroa was fent Ambassador to the Venetians, to conclude a League with them, and to promife them Assistance towards con-Venetians, to conclude a League with them, and to promite them Aintitance towards conquering of Milian or Aintexes, which Provinces they were coverous to be Maltens of. The Cortes were opened at Zaragesa on the day appointed, where the King proposed, fince Prince Michael was dead, that the Archduke, and the Princes his Wife, should be Sworn Heirs, the also demanded Supplies for the War in Naplet, as appertaining to that Crown. All he demanded was granted. On the 27th of Oslober the Archduke and Princes had Homage done He also demanded Supplies for the War in Naples, as appertaining to that Crown. All the demanded was granted. On the 27th of Ostober the Archduke and Princefs had Homage done to them, and were Sworn Helis to the Crown, with the Solennity and Ceremony usual among the Aragonians. Thus the Princefs Jamma was the first Woman till that time ever Sworn Heires to that Crown; for Queen, Petrogolia, who inherited before, iwas admitted Queen without being Sworn Princefs, which, was not then used. Soon after the Archduke fer out for Madrid, and the Princefs followed, die King bearing her, Company. He less his sider, the Queen of Naples, to preside in the Cortes of Aragon. She came from Granada, having given out she would go over into Italy, and was now during her thay in Aragon, appointed Governes of the Kingdom, which Place was before held by D. Admon, Act Aragon, Archbishop of Zagagega, the Catholick King's Baltard Son... The Archduke had little Inclination to stay in Spain, and his Servants much less, by whom he was entirely goorened. His Pricace to be gone was. That at his coming thence Flanders was unprovided of an Army, and might now inster on account of the Breach betwix France, and Spain... The King, and Queen laboured to stay him, chiefly the cause the Princes was far gone with Child, Whothing could persuade him to stay, or not, to go through France. He stall he would be the Instrument to state, a Peace, becaule that King had proposed the Kingdom should be, restored to King France Logical was and the swell be the Instrument to state, a Peace, because the Stay had been considered the Stage on the Stay of the Stay to them, and were Sworn Heirs to the Crown with the Solemnity and Ceremony usual a-to Fight a like number of them the day following. The place appointed was between Barleta and Vifeli. The Condition of the Challenge was, That those who were overcome should remain Prisoners to the Victors. The Commander, tho the time was short, accepted of the A notable Challenge. Eleven were chosen, and among them the samous famet Garcia de Paradas, who combat of dis singular good Service in this War, coming over about the beginning of it as Colonel of Eleven of the Men. Next day in the magning they made themselves ready, and the great Captain be. oop went leex day in the morning they made themselves carry, and the great Caprain of fore many Gentlemen encouraged them, affirming they could not return unless it were Victorious. They all promised to lose their Lives rather than forfeit the leaft Point of their Honoir. With them went four Trumpers and two Pages. They entred the Lists an hour before nouir. With them went four Trumpers and two Pages. They entred the Lifts an hour before their Advertaries. The Fight was oblitinate, the Event that one of the French was killed, at nother taken, and Nige wounded; the like number of Horfes killed. Of the Spaniard One was taken, Two wounded, and Tiffee Horfes killed. The Diffpute lafted till Night, and the Spaniard could not overcome the French till the earlier the the Horfes. Thus, the the French fulf ained most los, neither Party could be faid to be Victorious. This much offended the great Captain, who would not have had the Spaniard quit the Field till they had varquished the French. That he fame time the King of France to forward the War in Naples; recloved to go himself into Italy; but if fayed in Lombardy. This was also the Design of the Cartiolick King when he went to Zaragoça, considering what great, things had been done by this Ancestors in Steily, Sardinia and Naples, which had never been performed by their Generals. However, he resolved to take Advice of the Nobility, who all except one Bishop diswaded his exposing lamself. The Great Captain by Letter seconded them, and gave mighty Assurances of speedy Success, a thing not approved of by great Generals, who ought, rather always to be dubious, never undervaluing the Forces by Letter reconcer then, and gave mighty annualities of special success, a timing in approved by great Generals, who ought, rather always to be dubious, never undervaluing the Forces of the Enemy, or confiding to much in their own Strength. The Rumour of Warlike preparations at that time on the Frontiers of France, would not permit the King to absent himself.

parations at that time of the Frontiers of France, would not permit the Ancholuke was flowen Prince of Zaggrega, the Spaniards went down the wind apace in Calabria. The Viceroy hafted to Mellind, and gathered all the Foreigners he could to Succour his Party. From Rome D. Hugo and D. Jakof de Cardona Brother to the Count de Colifano, quitting the Poils they had under Duke Valentin, at the sperswasson of the Spanish Ambassador carried 240 chosen Men to that City. As soon as they came to Melling, gathering what other Forcesthey could, they passed the Streight at such time as the Earl of Melling had not been such as the processing the County of Comments and County had not been such as the County of Comments. ing what other processing county may pained the Studies at least the same and the Princes of Bifgingane, having taken the Town of Terranova, had much diffreds fed the Caffle. D. Hugo marched thither, and having defeated the Earl, raifed the Sigge, and the Princes of Salerno and Bifgingane who lay before Cofenza, were forced to quit that and the Princes of Salerm and Bligmann who lay before Cofenza, were lorced to quit that Enterprize, and came down to the Plain of Terranova, to endeavour to make up that lofs. This Fight hapned 4 days before Emanuel de Benavides arrived at Mellina with the Forces he brought in its Ships. Among the other Commanders, there came with him Antony de Leyva, a Man hereafter famous for Valour and Conduct. They paffed over with the greater tipecethey could to join D. Hugo and the reft. The Princes being retired to Melito, fent the Earl with 700 Swift and fome Horfe, and People of the Country to befrege Cofens. He marched to Mata de Culambra, 3 Miles from Rofanz, where lay most of the Spaniards, who were piped them by break of day and the Town being one, entred it killies. [sola.] He marched to Mata at Lutambra, 3 Miles from solars, where lay more of the Spaniards, who were upon them by break of day, and the Town being open, entred it, killing fome of the Enemy, others fled, and others with the Earl retired to the Caffle. News being brought that the Lord of Aubigni with all his Forces was marching to the relief of the Earl, the Spaniards drew Dack to Refinal, the Spaniards there Dack to Refinal, the Inner Fabrician de Gefualdo, Son to the Earl of Conga, and Son in Law to the Prince of Melfi, who Commanded on the Frontiers about Taramo, when our to Ravage the Territory of that City. Luis de Herrera, and Peter Navarro, Captains of the Garrifon of Tarains, lay in sagis for the Enenty in a Pafs, where they killed or took them all, only 3 escaping. Fabricitis himself was made Prisoner. In the other parts of Apulia, the War was, hothy prosecuted, both Parties friving to receive the Duties of Cattle, which is one of the best Branches of the Revenue. It would be too tedious to relate all particulars, but the poor Country People inflered extreamly, both French and Spaniagd driving their Caule. To put a ftop to this Michief, the Duke of Namours refolved to march with all his Forces, and break down a Bridge that was over the River Ofanto, 4 Miles distant from Barleta, thinking thus to prevent the Enemies Parties from passing over, especially when that River swells with the Rains. The Lord of Aubigni, as soon as he had entred Callabria, marched Towards the Enemy that was in Terranova. The Town was weak and ill provided, therefore they agreed to quit it, and pass over the Mountain to Retromarina. The French having taken the Passes, put to slight all the Spanish Instanty, and took about 50 Horse of the Troops of Antony de Leryau, who sought with much Bravery. Yet the greatest number fied to Girache and other strong Holds. Marques This Desart gained the Lord of Anighi such Reputation, that most of Caldria limitated del Cass to him. Four days after the Duke of Nemours came with his Army to the Bridge of Ofanto, comesonand with his Cannon beat down the middle Arch, and a Tower, which he had half ru-Spaniards. the River Ofanto, 4 Miles distant from Barleta, thinking thus to prevent the Enemics Parties ined when he was there before. The Great Captain hearing of his Approach, fent for the Forces that were at Andri, and then followed the Enemy, but they marched off the same way they came. The Great Gaptain fent a Trumpet to flay the Duke, who answered, that when Gonzalo Fernandez Would come as near Canoza, as he had been to Barleta, he engaged his Word to come out and Fight him. At this time the Duke of Calabra came to Madrid, and the a Prifoner, was entertained like the Son of a King. On the first day

1503. of January 1503, Duke Valentin took, Sanagalla. He also made Prisoners, Francis Ursino, Duke of Grabena, Paul Ursino, Vitellocia and Obsperoto, who came to him upon a sase Conduct. The Pope also apprehended Cardinal Ursino, their intent being totally to ruin the Family of the Ursini, as they had already the Computer, tho but a little before they had made a strict Alliance with them. Soon after that Duke took Perosa, and Civita Castelli, and aimed at the Republicks of Siena, Luca and Pifa, but durft not attempt them for fear Territories. For all this, the War betwixt Florence, and Pifa continued, and the Pifans had thoughts of putting themselves under the Protection of the Catholick King. The King would not then admit them, and when he would, it was too late. Two Cousins, Alonso and Francis de Albaquerque with each of them 3 Ships sailed from Portugal, for India.

THE Great Captain who lay with his Forces at Barleta, was much perplexed, being THE Great Captain who lay with its Germans, and Forces he Expected from Spain resolved not to take the Field till the Germans, and Forces he Expected from Spain Greatboo-Telowed not to take the field till the Germans, and Forces he Expected from Spain had joihed him, but at the fame time want of Provisions obliged him to march towards the Enemy, who lay at Monribino, Carolfa, and Cirinola. On the 15th of January he marched out of Barleta, fending before the Country and Mandeza with 300 light Horse to drive the Country as far as Labelo, which was 25 Miles diffant thence, and was plentiful of Cattle. He Halted Four Miles from Monoribino, to Face the French, if they should come out of the He Halted Four Miles from Monorano, to Face the Frence, it they flouid come out of the Town. Our advanced Party drove above 40000 Sheep. 200 Men at Arms and as many Arches came out of Cirinola, flighting to join a like number that lay attCanola, and then recover the Booty from our Men, who endeavouring to cut them off, did it to diforderly, that they got into Canoza, tho with fome loss. The Duke of Nemours flirred not, fo that the control of the Canoza, the Dear Canoda of Intelligence hair and the control of the Dear Canoda of Intelligence hair and the control of the Dear Canoda of Intelligence hair and the control of the Canoda of the Intelligence hair and the control of the Canoda of the Intelligence hair and the Canoda of the Intelligence hair and the Canoda of the Canoda of the Intelligence hair and the Canoda of the Canoda of the Intelligence hair and the Canoda of t our Men had leisure to carry off the Prey. Four days after, Intelligence being given, that our riven mad tenume to carry out the rivey. Four days anter, sintengence, using given, that the Sieur de la Paliffe was marching with 500 Horse to Ravage the Territory of Barleta; the Great Captain and D. James de Mendopa possessed themselves of Two Passes, through which the English must so necessity make their way. The Sieur de la Paliffe sell with his which the Enemy mult of necestity make their way. Inc. Stear as to stagille, stell with his Horse, at first fetting out, which was the case he went not himself, but sen one la Moste his Lieutenant, with 70 Men at Arms and Archers. They sell into the Ambush, and were all killed on the stage of the sell of Ten Frenchmen who should Fight the like number of Italians, which they acepted, and Ten Frenchmen who should right the like number of Italians, which they acepted, and having obtained leave of the Great Captain, it was agreed they should Combat, 3, of a fide, between Andria and Quarata. On the 13th of February they met, the Great Captain having drawn out his Forces near Andria, that no wrong should be offered his Men. The Wind was high, which the French would have had parted by the Judges, but could not agree about it. They met with their Lances, and the most of the French lost theirs by reason of the Wind, yet no Horlands killed, or Mang distributed. Falling to their Swords, the Combat Italian had to much the better, that they killed one of the French, and returned at Night to the Barleta, with the other 12 Priloners. Only one Italian was flightly wounded. The Great 13 Freeh Davieta, with the Other 12 indices of the Sup with him that Night. At the fame time Lub Herny Italian rera and Peter: Navairo marching out of Tarano, took Castellaneta, and several other Places in that Neighbourhood, but there was another Enterprize, much more confiderable to be attempted. The Sieur de la Palisse who called himself Viceroy of Abruzzo, and the Duke of Savoy's Lieutenant Quartered in a Town called Rubo, 18 Miles from Barleta, with them were about 90 Men at Arms and Arches. The Great Captain defigning to fall upon them, was informed that the Duke de Namours was gone to recover Caftellanesa, leaving the them, was informed that the Duke ate-Nemogri was gone to recover Captelantia, leaving the Strength of the Frinch Army with the Prince of Melfa Canafa, and that 150 Men more were gone to Rubo to fecure that Place. Upon this intelligence, the Great Captain fet out on the 22th of February at Night, with 1000 Morfe, 300 Foot, and fome pieces of Cannon, and appeared before the Town at break of day. The Soldiers without flaying till a Breach was made, affaulted the Town, but were repulfed. A good part of the Wall being beautiff down they attackt the Breach, and tho well defended, forced their way, killing the Employer and the Capter of the Property and the Capter of the ling 200 of the French, and wounding others. The Sieur de la Palisse endeavouring to escape was wounded in the Head and taken. The Duke of Savey's Lieutenat setired to the Ca file; thinking to hold out till Relieved, but feeing the Cannon Planted, furrendred upon di-feretion. Many other Perfons of Note were taken. Few of the Victors were killed. D. James de Mendoça was wounded in the Head with a Stone. Our Men immediately retired with the Booty, lest the French Army which lay not far off, should come upon them, for the Duke of Nemours understanding the design of the Great Captain, was come back without taking Castellaneta to join the Prince of Melfi, and relieve Ruso. He came too late, and out taking capetameter to join the Frince or varely, and reneve Anno. The came too late, and from this time forward the Affairs of the French began to decline. One Pere Jean a Promenal and Knight of Malea, who with 4 Gallies and 2 other Vessels, hindred the resort of Provisions, and took several of our Ships, was now atterly destroyed. Lexano who of Provincins, and took reversit of our onlys, was now afterly defined a Commanded 4 of our Gallies, having taken 500 Soldiers aboard, went in fearch of Pere Feat towards Brindez, he, the Strongen in Veffels would not venture to Fight, but put into O. trante, hoping to be Protected by the Ventians. Lescano nevertheless took a Ship and caravel stanto, hoping to be Protected by the Venetians. Lescano nevertheless took a Ship and caravel that lay without the Port, which so terrified Perform that without offering to make any defence, by Night he landed his Men with what elle he could, and sunk the Gallies with the Cannon, that our Men might make no advantage them. Villamarin the Admiral, lay with some Gallies at Messina to guard that Coast, and expected the costing of Percurrence, in Calabria, as Emanuel de Benavoiles had done contrary to his Orders. He, and Luis de Her. rera, Peter Navarro, and Lescano (who having disarmed the Enemy, landed his 500 Soldi. ers) as allo the Bilinop of Mizara, who was at Galipali, were all ordered to march with their Forces to Barleta, that being thus re-inforced, they might give the Enemy Battle, and at once put an end to the War.

Afterwards these Two, with Lefense, betwist Converse, mo and Cafamaxima deseated and made Prisoner, the Marques of Bitonto, who was march. mo and Colamazima deteated and made Priloner, the Marquets of Birono, who wasmarching to join the Duke of Normans with 500 Hofe and foot. Captain Oliva routed another Company of French, and killed 300 of them. D. Fames de Mandor fell upon 50 Hofe, and 70 Foot, who came from Vicli to cut off the Spanish foraging Party. The Hore field to Vicli, the Foot to a Tower, where they were all put to the Sword Thele and the like lolles, moved the Duke of Nemars to Order the Lord of Aubigai, and the Princes of Salerno and Bilignamo to leave Calabria in the best Order they could, and join him in order to give the Enemy Battle. They obeyed not prefently, and gave their reasons for fo doto give the Enemy pattie. They obeyed not presently, and gave their reasons for io doing. Both Parties were streightned for Provisions, but neither durst quit their Quarters for fear the Country should Revolt. A Venetian Ship laden with Corn, coming to Trana, was feized by the Spaniards, and 5 others came from Sicily, which with the Cattle they took, letzed by the Spannaras, and youngs came from camp, which will be caused by con-maintained them for fome time. The Great Captain held intelligence with the Cities of Abruzzo, and particularly with Aquila. On the other fide, Capua, Caftelantir, Aversa, and Salerno, offered to submit to him. It was agreed that as soon as he took the Field they should declare for Spain. He came to Agreement with the Earl of Mare, the he was the first that declared for the French in Ballicata. The Prince of Salerno offered to come first that declared for the verses in satureata. The line color saurne offered to come over to him, and Marry his Daughter, but there was no Trust to be reposed in him, or the Prince of Melf, who was allo for compounding. D. Thigo Davalus declared for the Carbolick King, and brought under slis subjection the Illand II chia, where he then was. This Gendeman was of Spanish Extraction, as descended from D. Ray Lopez Davalus the Constable, of whom much was faid in its Place. He was Marques del Casto, and had agreed with Marques of whom much was faid in its Place. the Great Captain that all his Effate should be reflored to him, and over and above, the dd Gafs Island Prochita was of new added to it, and the Command of 100 Lances, and 200 light ver to the Horfe, given him. To his Nephew was granted the Marquigge of Pelcara, and Office of Spaniards. High Chamberlain. Besides, in case the Spaniards should be bestern out of Naples, they are promised Estates in Spain. Much time was spent in agreeing upon these Articles, which was the reason the Marques did not declare sooner, he being naturally well affected to Spain, and an Enemy to the French. D. Alonso the samous Marquels of Pescara, was Son to Spain, and an Enemy to the French. D. Atonjo the lamous Marquels of refeara, was son to this Marquels, and Inherited that Title of his Coulin Ferdinand, who died without Issue. The Marquels declared for Spain in Isloia upon Easter day. About the same time the Commendary Aguilpra landed at Carron 200 Men, sent by the Spanish Ambassador at Rome. The Commendary Gomez, de Sola relieved the Castle of Cosenza, and entired the City by sorce, driving out the Earl of Melito, who was in it with Four times his Number. A dispute a rose betwixt the French and Spaniards about the Prisoners taken at Rubo. It was agreed that Horsemen taken Prisoners, should lose their Horse and Arms, and be Ransomed for a Quarters pay. The French had taken Theodorus Bolala Captain of the dlhameler, James de Vers, who had the Command of the Artillery, and Escalada a Spanish Captain of Foot with a bout 30 others. They released all, as had been agreed, except those Three, pleading that being Officers, they were not within the behefit of the Cartel. Yet now they would have all the Prisoners taken at Rubo Ransomed like private Men, without considering that many of them were Gentlemen and Commanders. The Great Captain was informed that according to the Custom of Naples, in relation to the Cartel for Horsemen to be Ransomed for their Quarters pay, it did not extend to fuch as were taken in pitched Battle, or a Town taken by Storm. All the old Soldiers being of this Opinion, he answered the French accordingly, and the Priloners were referred to Ranfom themselves according to their ability, or as they could agree with those that took them. But the main design was to detain then that they might not be serviceable to the Duke of Nemours in the Battle, which as things then stood, it was believed must soon be fought.

CHAP. IX.

The Peace Concluded by the Archduke with France; It takes no effect; Succours from Spain arrive at Naples The Lord Aubigni defeated and taken.

Archduke A T fuch time as the Archduke was departing from Madrid, he pressed the King his Archduke T Father in Law to let him under the his ultimate Resolution as to a Peace with France, concludes and give him Commission to Treat in case that King could be brought to any reasona-Pesce be and give him Committee of the Catholick King would not confent, fulpeting the Archduke and twist ble Terms. At first the Catholick King would not confent, fulpeting the Archduke and twist spain and his followers to be too well affected to the French, and fearing to discourage, his Friends spain and his followers to be too well affected to the French, and fearing to discourage, his Friends in Italy, if they heard he was upon Treating with France. Nevertheless such Instance was in 1101, it they heard he was upon Arotating With a very limited. Influence was made by the Archduke; that he gave him a Commission with a very limited. Instruction, which he promised not to exceed, and afterwards by F. Bernard Boil, Abbot of S. Mi. chsel de la Cuxa, sent him new Instructions and a larger Commission, yet so that he should let no body know he carried that Commission, but the Archduke; who should swear not to reveal it; and if he followed not the Instruction, he should not give him the Commission till reveal 11, and 11 he followed not the initiation, the mount not give infinite Committed the faither Orders. The Archduke came to Lions at fluch time as the War was carried on in Apulia and Calabria, as, has been faid, and the Princes at Alcalà de Henares was delivered of a Son called Ferdinand; being Baptized by the Archbishop of Toledo, and the Duke of a son cancul returnance, being Boptica of the Archamor of Najara and Marquess of Villena being Godsathers. At Lions was the King, the Pope's Legate, and the Cardinal of Roan. They began to Treat, but not according to the Infructions. The Abbot put the Archduke in mind they ought to proceed no farther without acquainting the King. He was not allowed to fend an Express, but on the conwithout acquaining the Ange Alo and the conference of the French, and his own People additing him not to regard the Instructions, that he consented to what they pleased. It was believed the French had bribed his followers. The substance of the Agreement was, that one of these Two Methods should be taken, either the Catholick King should resign that one of there I wo Avendors mount be taken, either the Catholick King insuld refign up his Part to his Grandfon Prince Charles, and the King of France his, to his Daughter Claudia, these two young Princes being Contracted, and that till such time as they were Married, the Catholick Kings Part should be put into the Handsof the Archduke, and the other to remain in the power of the French. Or else that both French and Spaniar's should profiles each their own Part, and Capitanata about which was the strike, should be delivered in Truft to a Third Person. These Conditions were extravagant, for by the first, the Spaniards were to lose what they held, and the French were less no pale filting and the latter less the whole Dispute still undecided. Mean while she Catholick King returned to Zara-goça, to break up the Cortes that Sate still. They agreed to surnish 200 Men at Arms, and 200 light Horse, at their own charge for Three Years, both the Men and Officers to be Natives of the Kingdom. These Men were soon raised, and ordered to march to Rusfillon, to oppose the French if they should attempt any thing on that side, because the Mar-schalos Britany, Captain General of France, the Sieur de Dunois and the Grand Escayer were marching with Forces towards Carcassonne. Hereupon the King ordered his Forces to draw near to Figueras, and D. Saneb de Castilla General of Russillon put all Places there in a Poflure of Defence. The King intending to be near the Frontiers, came to Poblete, where he had Intelligence from the Abbot Roil, how the Archduke was pressed to come to Agreement, contrary to his influctions. Orders were fent him by the King how to proceed.

All this availed notifing, for the Peace was Proclaimed; and the Archduke fent John Edin his Harbinger, and the King of France Edward Bollotte of his Bedchamber, to give notice of it to the Great Captain and Duke of Nemours, that all Hostilities might Cease. This done the Archduke departed towards Savoy to fee his Silter the Lady Margaret, with whom and the Duke of Savoy he flayed the Eafter-Holidays. John Edin and Edward Bollette speeded on their Journey through Rome, giving out the Peace was concluded. They came to Barleta at fuch time as both Parties were preparing to come to a Battle, particularly the Great Captain, after 2500 Germans whom he had long expected, came down the Gulph of Venice, and joined him. John Edin gave him the Archduke's Letter, requiring him to ceale from any farther Acts of Hoftility, but he was already advertized by the King, of the Affidukes going into France, and Commanded not to obey any Order of his, un-The prace less Confirmed by his Majetty. Therefore he answered, those Orders could not be regarded till the King were acquainted with them, and that Policy should not avail the French, for he knew his Duty, and would himself carry the Answer to the Duke, of Nemours. He was as good as his Word. The Catholick King would not agree to this Peace, but to fatisfie the World, proposed the restoring of King Frederick. The King of France would not hear the Ambassador sent to this effect, but turged him away with differace, being offended the Peace

The Lord of went over to Kijoles to make War in Lasaria, as nau been directed in Spain. The Lord of Aubigni, after he had defeated Emanuel de Benevides and D. High de Cardona, lay at Mora Bubalina, in hopes to flave Grācbi, which was but 3 Leagues off, whither most of the Spaniards fled after the Rout. The Prince of Bassename was gone home, and the Prince of Salerna and Earl of Miles to Naples. Portocarrer resolving to take the Field, mustered his Forces at Rijoles, and there fell lick of a Fever. Before his death he understood that some Officers of Note were there ien fick of a revers. Desire his death he anneathout that followed the pollessed of Terranova, which the French abandoned upon the News of the arrival of the Sparnish Fleet. He was also informed, That the Lord of Aubigni hearing of his Sickness, had benijo Freet. The was and middlined, That the Lord of Lawren meaning of his obstacles, had be-fieged them, and that they were diffressed, that being a Place of no Strength. Hereinon Po-tocarrero appointed D. Ferdinand d'Andrada his Lieucenant, ordering him to march with all the Forces to the Relief of the Besieged, and at the same time the Admiral Villamarin to come with the Galleys before Joya, to make the French believe there came Relief both by Sea and Man the Saniards made halte, being informed the Belieged fuffered much for want of Land. The Spaniards made halte, being informed the Belieged futtered much for want of Provisions. They being come to Semenara, the Lord of Aubigni removed from Burge de Terranova to Cajales. D. Ferdinand fatisfied he had relieved the Belieged, stayed at Semenara Thither came to him Emanuel de Benavides, Antony de Leiva, Gonçalo Davalos, D. Hage, and D. John de Cardona, with their respective Companies, with which he sormed a Body strong enough to rout the Enemy in their Retreat to Melito. This was the Opinion of D. Huge; but D. Ferdinand excused himself, saying, he had positive Orders not to hazard a Battel. In fine, Personand died and his Body was buried at Macina. D. Peranana exculent minien, saying, the had pointed of the part of haddle a Datter. In time, Portocarrero died, and his Body was buried at Meçina. Hereupon fome Difpute arose among the Chief Officers about the Supream Command. They referred themselves to the Viceroy of Sicily, who gave it for D. Ferdinand d'Andrada. D. Hugo and D. John de Cardons were offended of sterry, wing gavers for December 2 Americans. A singular sterry of the continuous were offended that a younger Soldier flould be put over their Heads; yet they fubmitted. Both fides were eager to fight, and the Lord of Aubigni fent a Trumpet to offer Battel; but the Spanish Commander relufed upon account of his Orders This encouraged the Enemy, as allo that they understood our Soldiers were distaissed for want of their Pay.

Therefore the Lord Aubigni understood our Soldiers were dissatissed for want of their Pay. Therefore the Lord Aubignis marched his Forces out of Resons and Joya, and came in fight of Semenera. He passed the Rivers, and entred the Plain. Not long before, the Soldiers of Galicia had mutinited for their Pay, and there was danger some Dissater might happen. The Viceroy of Sieth sending some Money, and the Osincers selling their Plate and Jewels, son appealed them. The French wore 300 Men at Arms, 600 Light-Horse, 1500 standing Foot, and above 3000 of the Country-People. The Spaniards marched out of Semenera in good Order, being about 800 Horse and 4000 Foot. The Lord of Aubigni retired to Joya, not daring to stand a Battel. Lord of Our Men sollowed, designing to attack the Town. To this effect the Spaniards passed the River somewhat higher; the French imagining they to the elect the openiaria patient the Kivel somewhat inglied, the Premo imagining they drew off, charged diforderly, having fired their Cannon at random, which did no hurt nor discomposed the Spaniarid, who had placed the Foot on the Left, the Light-Horse on the dicomposed the operators, who had placed the root on the Left, the Light-roote on the Right, and the Men at Arms in the Centre. Our Horfe charged the Enemy with fuch Porce, that most of them were difinounced; whereupon the Foot who followed field without firlking froke. The Spaniards pursued them to the Gates of Joya, whither most of them feed. Most of the French Commanders were taken, and Horatius and Alonfo de Sanfeverino, the Brother and Coulin to the Prince de Bifgnang, furrendered themselves and the Town of Joya. The Lord of Aubigni was taken at Roça d'Angire, whither he fied. This Victory, one of the Famousest during that War, was the cause that all Calabria submitted.

French. Next day they continued their March towards Cirinola, always in good Order, beconfifting of above 1000 Light-Horse. D. James de Mendaça led the Vang in which were 2000 Spanish Foot. The Great Captain kept in the Rear with some Min at Arms and 2000, Spanils Food. The Germans, to receive the Enemy if they floutd follow him. The Country was dry, the Day hor, and the March long, which fo fatigued the Men, that some Men at Arms and Foot died for Thirst: This being known to the Frence, they agreed to lay hold of to good an Opportunity and March, out of their Strength to give them Battel. Their on to good an opportunity and related out of the art of good and of the feet o the Army, which made the Main Body. The Spanish Foot were best, if they had not been fo fatigued; but the Enemy had the Advantage in Horse. In this manner the French marched to attack our Rear. It seemed impossible for the Spaniards to reach Crimbla, where they had to attack our rear. It received impossible to the page and many of the Foot, who lay about the Fields, overcome with Thirst and Weariness. This nothing difinayed the Great Captain, who caused the Horse to take up behind them such of the Foot as were most faint, he himself doing the fame, and carrying Drink to those that wanted most. In this manner they reached their Camp without any loss two Hours before Sunset. At this time the Enemy's Horse appeared, and the Spaniards food drew up within their Trenches. Fear often is more Powerful than Weariness. The Great Captain went about encouraging his Men, and then the Fight began. It being so late, the Duke of Nemours was willing to have deferred it till next day; but the Lord d'Alegre pressed it should not be delayed, believing the Victory was certain. On each fide were 13 Pieces of Cannon: The French played their first, which did no execution; but ours being planted higher, made a great Slaughter. It was fired but once, because an Italian thinking the Spaniardi had fled, fet fire to two Waggons of Powder. The Confufion that followed was great, and the Flame spread so much, that all gave themselves for lost, still the Great Captain had so much Presence of Mind, that he said with a chearful Countenance to those about him, A good Omen, my Friends; for these are Bonsires for the Vistory we have already in our bands. The Harm done by our Cannon moved the Duke of Nemours to join Battel immediately: He charged our Body with 800 Men at Arms. Before our Men was a Trench, which he had not observed, and obliged the French to wheel off, without breaking Lance to put themselves again into a posture. Then the Graman Musqueteers fiting upon that Squadron, made a great Slaughter. After the Men at Arms sollowed the Lord Chambiou with the Swifs and Gascons: These the Spaniards charged with such Bravery, that they instantly broke Swiff and Galcons: These the Spaniards charged with luch Bravery, that they initiatily broke them. The Princes of Salemy and Melfi, who, were in the Rear advancing, were received by the Great Captain as became him. To conclude, the Enemy on all sides sled, the Spaniards pursuing them to their Camp, which was 6 Miles off, and was taken at the same Heat, our Men finding their Supper ready, whereof they had need enough being for tired. The Booty found there was great. This santous Battel was sought upon the 28th of April. At the first Onset was killed the Duke of Nemours, whose Body the Great Captain caused to be Honourably buried in the Church of S. Francis at Barleta. Besides him died the Lord Chandiou, the Count Morcon, and most of the Swiss Commanders. The Princes of Salerno and Melfi, and Marques de Lochito were wounded. All their Cannon and most of their Colours were taken. The Slaughter had been much greater, but that Night coming on prevented it. The Victors having rested that Night, next day Civinola surrendered upon Discretion, as did 700 that had sled to the Castle. Canosa also declared for Spain. None but the Spaniards fignalized themselves in this Battet, for the German, bathing the Volley they poured in upon the Enemy, did nothing. Among others, they that gained most Honour were of the Italian the Duke of Termes, and of the Spanishid D. James de Mediças, of whom the Great Captain said, He had behaved himself as became the Grandson of such a Grandfather. Of the French it appeared 3700 were killed; of the Spaniard only 9, and never a Man of Note. True it is many died by the way with Droughth, and 1500 could not be dragged from the Water they found in certain Wells, nor did any Service that Day; which rendred the Success the more dubious, and confequently the Victory the more glo-

Captain. This Account was not brought sooner, because D. Perklinand de Andrada having succeeded

Luis Petroegopiero in the Command, did not think himself subordinate to the Great Captain and the Captain of the Command, did not think himself subordinate to the Great Captain, which he refented, and asked Leave to return to Spain. The Catholick King or-dered Ferdinand to cease from that Pretention, and the Great Captain to give him a Company of Men at Arins. The News of these Two Victories, and sending of several Barons home to their Estates, soon caused most of Capitanata and Basilicata to submit, and in the Principality many Towns and Barons declared for Spain. Those who fled from the Battel, made their way to Campania, deligning to fortific themselves in Gaeta, a City naturally impregnable, giving all the reft for loft. Peter de Paz pursued them with some naturally impregnance, giving an one left for rote. Leter ac Laz purision them with some Horse, whose approach gave opportunity to Capua to declare for Spain; and some of the Horte, whose approach gave opportunity to Capua to Gestare for Spain; and some of the Citizens purfuing the French, killed about 50 Men at Arins before they could get into Gasta. The Marques of Soebio, tho' burt in the Fight, went away with his Wife, and what he could carry to Rome, to his Unkle the Cardinal of Siens. The Great Captain encamped at Leonefa near to Melfi and Venofa. There the Prince of Melfi fubmitted himself, upon condition he might be allowed to live in another of his Towns, till it were known whether the King of Spain would admit him into his Service upon the Terms before proposed; but there was little Confidence to be reposed in his Fidelity. Fabricins Colona and the Earls of Populo and Montorio were fent to Abruzzo to reduce that Province entirely. Villamarin the Admiral was ordered immediately, with all the Force he could make, to fail towards Naples, whither the Great Captain was marching with his Army by the way of Benevento and Gandelo. From this last Place he fent a Letter to the Citizens of Naples, premising them all deto. From this last Piace ne tent a Letter to the Citizens of Naples, premifing them all manner of good Ulage, and defiring them to prevent his Army doing any harm in their Territories. The Earl of Matera and the Syndies came out to Treat, and furrendered the City. At this time Montieur de Vannes, Son to the Lord d³ Albret, hearing of the Defeat of the French, obtained Leave of Duke Valentine whom he ferved, to go join the remains of the French Army in Naples, which he did with 200 Horfe and fome Foot. Thefe being strengthened by some Forces from Apulia, Calabria, and Abrazzo, formed some manner of Army, and encamped near Garckiano. For this Reason about 400 Spanish Horse manner of army, and encampes near or carame. For this Reason about 400 Spanish Horle were put into Capua and Selfit. The Great Captain keeping with him 1000 Men, which he thought enough to befiege the Castles of Naples, tent all the rest of his Army towards the Enemy. The Spanish Soldiers, desirous to be at Naples the Night before, demanded their Pay, which they faid the General had promiled to give them at Naples. To pretheir Pay, which strey had the Semena mad promised to give them at Napica. To piec-vent further Diforder, he took the Spanish Foot with him, sending the Men at Arms, Light-Horse, and Germans to Sessa, assuring them he would soon be with them. On the Reception Light-Horle, and Germani to selfa, anuring them ne would foon be with them. On the Reception of the of May he entred Naples with as great Pomp as if it had been the King himself of the Before him marched the Spanish Poot. The Gentry came out to meet him, and the GraetCap-Multitude covered the Fields, admiring that General who had to often Overthrown his Enemies. He was conducted through the Streets richly hung, ftrewed with Flowers, and full of fweet Perfumes, in the fame manner as when their Kings went to be Crowned, and full of fweet Perfumes, in the fame manner as when their Kings went to be Crowned. Nothing but Joy appeared; they that were most inclined to the French, expressed most Nothing but Joy appeared; they that were mon meaned to the Prenen, exprened mon Satisfaction to diffusile their own Faults. The City Naples, from whence the whole Kingdom takes its Name, is one of the faireft, richeft, and most Populous in all Italy. It is feated on the Coast of the Mediterranean, at the fide of a Hill that rifes betwixt the West and the North. The Streets are long and ftrait, full of ftately Buildings, because the No-bility, who are very numerous, live there most of the Year, and vie amongst themselves in Erecting flately Houses. The most Famous are those of the Prince of Salarno and Duke of Gravina. They encline to live there by reason of the Temperature of the Air, the Fruitfulness of the Soil, and the beautiful Gardens that furround the City: So that there is fearce any City where fo many Great Men refide. It is divided into Five Sejo's, which reacte any Cary whole to many Steat and Finder to Baryton the Price Sept 1, which are fo many Council-Houles, where the Nobility and Gentry of each Quarter meet, to confult about the Affairs of the City.

The Churches, Monaferies, and Holpitals, are Numerous and Magnificent, particularly the Holpital de la Amunciata, which finends yearly above 50000 Ducats, gathered by the Charity of the People upon pious Uses. The Walls are strong, adorned with Towers and Four strong Castles. Of these the First is Castelnero, large, and to appearance impregnable, feated on the Shoar near the Mole which makes the Harbour. The Second the Gare of Capua, on the North, formerly a famous Place of the Harbour. The second the Gate of Capua, on the North, formerly a famous Place of Strength, now the Place for holding the Courts of Judicature. The Third the Caftle del Ovo, in the Sea on a finall Rock, but inacceffible. The Fourth that of Samtelmo, in the highest part of the City, commands it all, and is of late strongly sortified. Two of these Forts, to wit, Castelnovo and Castel del Ovo, were now in the hands of the French. As foon as ever the Great Captain alighted, he went to give Orders for befieging those Castles Costelnovo was furiously battered, and they began to undermine it; but the Befieged made a vigorous Defence. Villamarin with the Fleet came to an Anchor at Nofra ignora de Pie de Gruta; seven days after, the Great Captain entred the City. On the last day of May, the Pope created Nine Cardinals, Five of them Natives of Valencia. On the that of man, the representation and state of them evalues of ranner. On the rath of June, after a vigorous Refilance, Caffelnovo was taken by Storm. John Pelaes, de Rerio, Servant to the Great Captain, was the first that entred. The Captains Peter Navarro, an able Man at Mining, and Nuño d'Ocampo, figualized themselves; the last Had the Command of the Fort given him. Among other Priloners taken there, was thugh Roger Earl of Pallas, who had been above 40 Years in Rebellion against the Catho-lick King and his Father King John. He was sent to the Castle of Xativa, where he ended his Days. Some French and Genoese Ships came from Gasta too late to relieve the Besieged. The French Fleet, consisting of 6 Carracs, other Great Ships, and 5 Galleys, besides small Vessels, came at last; and Vistamarin being too weak to oppose them, retired to the Port of Ischia, which being bessel by our Fleet, desended it sells so well, that small harm was done to it. The Marquess des Gasto took care to desend the Fleet and Island. The Great Captain could not stay to take the Castle del Ovo, but lest that in charge to Peter Navarro and Naso d'Ocampo. They in Boats covered with Hides approached to undermine the Rock on the side of Picifalcon. Our Batteries killed most of the Desendants, so that only 20 remaining, they stirrendered, articling only for their Lives. At the same time Fabricius Colona with 800 Men sent Irom Rome, took the City of Aquila, the Chief of Abruzzo, and all that Province submitted. Fracaso de S. Severine, and Hierone Galles, the Chief of the French Faction in that City, made their escape to the Lands of the Church.

CHAP. I.

The Siege of Gaeta; The Death of Pope Alexander VI. Pius III. Chosen. Practices of the Spaniards. The French Invade Roussillon.

N the 18th of June the Great Captain fet forwards from Naples towards S. German, in order to oppose the French, who lay incamped on the other side the River Garellano, formerly called Lyris, and to reduce fome Towns thereabouts that still relation, formerly caused Lyrus, and to reduce some Lowns thereadouts that this held for the French. He passed through Aversa and Capua, those Cities desiring to see him, and express their Affection to Spain. Whilst he was thus stayed, James Garzia de 8s. German. Paredes, and Christopher Zamudio, advanced with 1500 Men to attack S. German. That City taken, and its Castle soon surrendred, notwithstanding that Peter de Medici lay with some French. and its Cause from Information, incommenting that There are accused by with former remover. Forces near hand at Montecaffine. He definiting of holding out there, went away, leaving 200 Men in the Monaftery, who furrendred the Place. The Great Captain took Roca Guillerma, a strong Place, also Targeto upon the River Garellano, and other Places. Castellon, and Mala, which lie near Greata, libratted. This done, the Great Captain on the first of Tuly Gatta be-incamped near the Suburb of Gatta. That City is very strong, being for the most part en seed. compassed with the Sea, only towards the Land is a narrow and uncouth way to it, and over the City Mount Orlando of difficult access, where the French had planted many Pieces of Cannon, so that there was no coming near to it. In the Place were 4500 Men, 1500 of them Horse. What was worst of all, they were Masters of the Sea, being much stronger than the Spaniards, and confequently there was no hindring the recourse of Provisions, or other Supplies to them, tho Villamarin came thither with his Galleys. The Great Captain caused his Cannon to be brought from Naples to batter the Mount, whence his Men were much annoyed, lying within Shot.

Many of his Men were killed, and among them D. Hugob de Cardona, a Man of great Worth.

The Besteged suffered for want of Provisions, but chiefly of Meal, not having wherewith to grind their Corn. On the 6th of August they received Supplies of Provisions and 1700 Men in two Carraes, 4 Calleons, and Gone Galleys, which carried the Marquels de Saluxes, who was to succeed the Duke of Nemours as Viceroy. The fame day this Supply came to them, Rabassein, Colonel of the German that served in the Spanish Army, was killed by a Cannon Shot. This made the Great Captain draw back to Castellon. All this while nothing was done, for tho a Breach had been made in the Town Wall it could not be attacked, nor did the Besieged offer to Sally. But the day we retired 2500 Men attacked our Germans in the Rear, who drew them on to an open Ground far from the City, then 400 Spaniards charged them fo furiously they were driven to the very Gates of Gasta with the lofs of 200; whom our Men returning stripped at their leasure. Whilst this was doing at Gasta, both sides made great Preparations. The King of France sent the Lord de la Trimouille to the Relief of Gaeta with 600 French Lances and 8000 Swift, besides 4000 French gone by Sea to Leghorne, Telamon, and Porto Hercules. The Rendezvous was at Parma. Thither repaired the Duke of Ferrara, the Marquess of Mantua, and other Italian Noblemen. Trimosille dying, the Marquess of Mantua was made General of that Army. On the other frimmulae dying, the Indiques of Iriamina was made General to Command fide the Catholick King fent 6 Galleys to Naples, with Men and Money, under the Command of D. Raimund de Cardona. Still the Spanish Fleet was inferior to the French, which confished of 30 Sail of all forts. The Great Captain laboured to bring the Family of the Ursini to the Service of the Catholick King, and at length prevailed, Bartholopew de Albiano coming into Practices the Service as their Chief, and behaving himself afterwards with much bravery in the Wars of of the Italy. Money was offered the Emperor to induce him to invade Lombardy, and the Pope was Spaniards. also tampered with to declare for Spain, for at this time he stood Neuter, but the Treaty feemed to be well advanced if there were any Confidence to be reposed in Duke Valentin. Death prevented this taking effect, for the Pope was fnatched away by Poifon Duke Valentin had prepared for certain Cardinals in the Garden of Cardinal Adrian Corneto, where they Supped. The Servants mistaking the Bottles, gave the Pope, the Duke, and Cardinal Adrian, of the Poilon. The Duke immediately took Antidotes, which with the strength of Youth carried it off, but the Pope and Cardinal being old, could not overcome the strength of the Potion. This was the end of Pope Alexander, who had scandalized the World. Many a spired to succeed him, grounding their Pretentions on their Interest rather than their Learning or Piety. King Frederick had now an Interview with the King of France at Macon, and

ing of Piety. Any Freather has now an interference of the Forces that gathered about Narbonne. Hereupon the Catholick King went to Zaroge fa, raifed Men, and conflitted D. Frederick de Tolelo, Duke of Alva, General of Raffillow. Some were for perfivading the King to be before hand with the Enemy, and invade France. The distrust conceived against the King and Queen of Navarre daily increased, all that Family being of the French Interest. infomuch that the Lord of Vannes, Brother to the King, ferved under them at Naples, and his Father, the Lord d'Albret, was now made Governour of Guienne. Beside the Lord of Lusse intended to enter into the Valley of Anso, which is part of Aragon, to attack the Castle of Verdun, and this could not be done without he were suffered to pass through Val de Roncal belonging to Navarre. That King endeavoured to clear himself, and had to that purpose sent his Daughter Magdalen to be bred under Queen Elizabeth, but this was now a small tie, because this same year was born to him a Son called Henry, who inherited that Crown. Upon this suspicion Queen Elizabeth ordered the Constable of Castile, and Duke of Najara, with their own Forces, and 500 Horse she sent, to draw near the Frontiers of that Kingdom, tho John de Ribera who commanded there before, was putting all things into the beft pollure he could, no body doubting but the War would break out on that fide. So it proved, for the King of France with all his Forces, which amounted to 20000 Men, tho the strength of them consisted in 1000 Foot and 1000 Horfe, resolv'd to invade Roussism, believing he should find no sufficient Force there to oppose him. About the end of August the Marcichal de Rieux having affembled all these Forces, incamped on the Borders of Rouffillon at a Place called Palma. There they stayed some days, and then marched towards Salfas, the Foot over the Mountain, the Horse through the Plain, leaving the Passes guarded left our Forces should cut off their Provisions that came from France. On the 16th of September they sate down before Salfas. The Duke of Alva was then at Perpignan with 1000 Light Horse, 500 Men at Arms, and 6000 Foot. Next day after he came D. Sancho de Castilla, who Commanded there before, threw himself into Salfas. Some of the Dukes Parties went out to view the Enemies Camp and allarm them, the Duke himself came out of Perpignan, and encamped at Rabaltas, above Sallas and the French Army. There was no coming at him there by reason of the strength of the place, and he was ready to lay hold of any Advantage should be offered, yet he offered Battle, which was too much boldness considering how much weaker he was than the Enemy, but he had much the advantage of the Ground. Whilst the French lay before Salfas, the Cardinals at Rome were thut up in the Conclave to choose a new Pope. There were many Candidates. The Cardinal of Roam was ftrongly supported by the Fr. nob, and the Cardinal Bernardin de Carvajall no less by the Great Captain. Yet neither of them, nor the Cardinal Peter Julia de Robere, nor he of Naples who also made Interest, carried it, tho they stayed the Election 35 days. The Cardinals agreed, that whosoever was chosen Pope should be obliged within two years to assemble a General Council, and that one should be called every 3 years ever after to Resorm all Abuses. To this all the Carpine III. dinals Swore, and then by Plurality of Voices made choice of Francis Picelemini Cardinal of Elected Sina, who had the Reputation of a Pious Man. He was Elected on the 22th of September, and took the Name of Pine III. in Honour of his Uncle by the Mothers fide, Pope Pine II. His first Thoughts were to Reform the Church and State, which he declared before his Coronation, resolving to call a General Council immediately. But Death snatching him away 26 days after his Election, put a ftop to all his Virtuous Deligns.

A T Salfas, or as the French call it Saulfes, they battered the Caffle fo furioully, at the famit, time carrying on their Mines, that they overthrew a large space of the great Tower and Bulwark that was not quite finished. Thus the Ditch being filled up, they made their Approaches to the Wall. The Befieged refolved to quit the Bulwark, which when they faw covered with the Enemy, they blew up, and fallying upon fuch as had escaped that danger put them to the Sword, so that above 400 perished. Fresh Forces still resorting to the Duke of Alvo, his. Army was now increased to 400 Men at Arms, 1500 Horse, and 100000 Foot. With this Power on the 13th of October he marched down, and stood till Sun-set before the French Camp. The Enemy would not leave their Works the our Cannon played upon them, and did some Execution. At this time the Catholick King came to Girona, to gather the Forces that were coming from Castile, no sewer in number than those at Perpignan, and better Armed. He gave out he would attack the Prench in their Works, if they refused to march out. A Fleet was also provided under the Command of Estopinan for the Coast of Renshillon, but was not yet come. Whilft the King drew all his Forces to that part, 19 Sail of Moors Ninetten took the opportunity to do forie harm upon the Coaft of Valencia and Grandda. Minists Het. Sail of nandez. Galindo. Admirat of the Coaft of Grandda; met them near Carriagena, where after a Infidels hot Dispute they were all burnt of sunk. This Joyiul New being brought to the King, he feet districted the Moore of the Moore with from Givina, and came to Pergnani on the 19th of Ottober. There inderstanding the Diffress of the Besieged, he resolved that part of his Army should attack the French on the fide next to France, and the relt on the opposite part. For the better effecting of it, he first assaulted and took a Wooden Fort the France had raised to secure the passage into France. first assaulted and took a wooden rott the reason and the loss of their first they drew off their fort, and approach of the King, fo dismayed the Eriethy, that they drew off their Arallery that night to the Road of Nathonne, and the day following marched off, Siege of leaving part of their Baggage and Ammunition. At strike they came down into the Plain, as saulted. leaving part of their baggage and Ammunition. At printingly came down into the Plain, as if they had deligned to fight, but immediately wheeled off towards Narhome. The dragonian and Catalonian Horse falling in upon their Rear, made them abandon forme of their Airtillery and Baggage, yet the the King came up in Person, the Enemy having their Rear treat a hand got off. The King entring Frame, took Lecasta and some other Places about it. On the 24th of Osiober was born at Lisbon the Princes Elizabeth, afterwards Empress and Queen of Spain. Soon after came Ambassadors from France, by whom a Truce was concluded for Months betwixt the two Kings, exclusive of Naples. Thus the War ceasing, the Marques de Denia was lest to Command on those Frontiers with 1000 Men at Arms, 2000 Light Horse. and 2000 Foot. D. Dinas de Reguefen was made Governo of Salfat, and then the King returned to Barcelotta. Thence he lent Michael, John Gralla, and Antony Augustin, his Ambassadors into France, to endeavour to settle the Assairs of Naples, for which the Catholick King dors into France, to chicagonia were going thither from France, but chiefly because non-the Death of Pope Pin III. the Cardinal of S. Peter had been Elected Pope on the first of No-Death of Pope Pin III. the Cardinal of Streter had been Elected Pope on the first of November by the Name of Julius II. He was by Birth a Graeper's, but in Affection a Frenchman, Julius II. and it was leared left he should embroil all Italy. Duke Valentin had instunced this Election, Pope. At this time the Archduke departed out of Savoy to see his Father, who advised him not to press the observation of the Peace he concluded with France. He also offered if the Cathod, lick King would surnish him with Money, to make War in Lombardy, but the Catholick King nex ring would infinite that was responsible to be gain now plainly to appear that the Princes Joanna was delayed, and nothing concluded. It be gain now plainly to appear that the Princes Joanna was distracted, which much troubled her Parents. She pressed to be gone to her Husband, and her Mother put her off with good Words, because the Season was not proper. It came to that, that she offered to depart a foot from Mota de Medina, where she was kept. No way was lest to stop her, but taking nor norm notate at meaning, where the was kept. Yo way was let to Itop ner, but taking up the Draw bridge. She perceiving the could not get away, flayed at the Farriers, and there eat, and lay in a Kitchin, not regarding the Coldness of the Weather, and inconveniency of the place. Neither could D. John de Fonseca, Bishop of Cordova, who was with her, or the Archbishop of Toledo, who came on purpole, prevail with her to return to her Chamber; till the Queen came, who was sick at Segovia. To please her she ordered a Rieet to be Rigged at Laredo, to carry her as soon as the Weather would permit to Flanders, whither her Hufged at Lareas, to carry her as soon as the weather would permit to Januarys, whither her Fiulband the Archduke was come, after his long flay in France and Saviny.

The, Frence Army in Italy marched very flowly towards Naples. They marched through Frence flowers and Siene without any let, under the Command of the Marquels of Manua. The Army Lord de la Trimpaille being files followed after, but went no farther than Rome. That City marched not admit the Review but filtered them to pass the River Tiber at the Bridge called through Molle, which is two miles from thence. The Great Captain was in care how to continue the Siege of Gaeta, and oppose those Forces that came to relieve it. Francis de Rojas, the Spanish Ambassador at Rome, very approximately supplied him with 2000 Spanish, German, and Italian Foot, he gathered in that Gay, and 100 Light Hosse, and made up 200 German and 500 Italians to lend after the others. D. Hage de Moncada, who had been in the Service of Duke Valentin, led these Men. This Supply came very opportunely, because the Siege of Salfat hindred any Succours coming from Spain. As soon as the Great Captain understood the Enemy approached to the Borders of the Kingdom, he marched with all his Army from Cafelban towards them. The first day he came to the River Garellano, and leaving Peter de Paz with a Party to fecure a Pass there, advanced himself to S. German. Then the French Army day at Pontedrue, a Town of the Church only 6 miles off. It was reported they were 1000 any at Pontecorous, a Town of the Church only 6 miles oil. It was reported ney were tools (Curafficis, 2000 Light Hotfe, and 9006 Foot, most of them Indians. They had 36 Pieces of Cannon, whereof 16 were large, the reft Field Pieces. Peter Newers advanced with a Body to attack the Castle of Montecosimo, which fill held for the French. It was carried by main force, to the great shame of the French, who lay in fight, and durft not relieve it. It was given out the Duke of Mantua used to boast, he desired nothing more than to come to a Battle with that Rabble. The Great Captain encamped within a mile of him, and then fent to offer him Battle, fince the was to defirous of it. He answered they would meet at Garellano, which River he would pass in despight of him. This River has its Springs in Abruzzo, and runs between S. German and the Lands of the Church in a narrow Channel, but so deep it is scarce fordable. There was no Bridge thereabouts but that of Pontecorvo. It has many great windings, and therefore the Gatta stands on the Bank next to Rome, the shortest way to Relieve it was by passing the River twice. The Lord of Alegre came from Gaera to join the

French Army with about 3000 Men. He pressed for passing the River and sighting, not taking warning by the last Battle at Cirinola. They passed the River at the Ford of Ceprana about the middle of Ostober. Reassess was the sinst Spanish Town shey came at after passing the River. Chrispher Villativa Pizzara, and Zamudsh, were there in Garison with 1200 Men. With these Troops they sell upon the Rear of the French, and cut off 300 of them. The French laid fiege to the Town, but the Defendants fallying killed above 200, and drove the reft to their Works. Next day Profper Colona, and Peter Navarro, reinforced the Town with 2000 Men, the Great Captain marching with all his Army to their Relief, but the Enemy fearings if any disaster beself them, to lose their Cannon, and the Weather being very Rainy, tearing it any chainer penet users, to lote their cannots, and the weather being very Kany, repailed the River. Two days after they palled again, and incamped at Aquina, 6 miles from S. German, whither the Great Captain was returned. The great Rain hindred them coming to a Battle, and the French drew back to Pancervo. The Great Captain to prevent their repalling the River, followed till beyond Aquino, and bid them Battle. They drew into an adpatting the Kiver, tonowed the beyond sequents, and not them battle. I hely drew into an advantageous Poft with their Cannon, and the Spaniards were forced to return to S. German, The French repatted the River Garellano. At the fame time the Urfni agreed with the Colnifeit at Rome to come over to the Service of Spain by means of the Spanish and Fenetian Mere, not fond of having fuch a Powerful Neighbour as the King patiations. For the relation was not not not naving native a covering relation to the King of France. The Urfini obliged themselves to ferve with 500 Men at Arms, for which they were to have a Pension of 6000 Duccats. Bartislomen de Albismo, chief of the Urfini, who was in all the Service at Garellano, offered to ferve with 3000 Horfe and 500. Estricine Colona took Roea de Vandra in fight of the French Army, which marched down the River to a place 18 miles from S. German, and but 12 from Gaera, where is a Bridge which they defigned to pass. Peter de Paz, lest to guard that Pass, with 1200 Foot and a few Horse, 200 other Horse having since joined him, made it good against the French Army 3 days and 3 nights.

By this time the Great Captain game up with all his Army, and string a part of the Bridge, which was of Wood, incamped at the soot of it. Here was great disorder among the Spamiards, who because the Weather was bad, and they not payed, robbed the Country, and many deferred, infomuch that the great Officers advised to draw off. It went so far, that a Private Centinel put the Spear of his Pike to the Great Captain's Breaft. He bore all with Private Centures put the Spear of this Pike to the Great Captains it realt. He bore all with great Refolution, and gathering what Money he could, gave every Man Two Duccass, and to the Captains who prefled him to retire he answered, I know of what Moment the Business in Hand is to the King, and am resolved rather to gain one sathom of Ground, tho it were to make my Grave in, than to give way, tho to live 100 years. This Dispute must be bere ended, as it shall place God, and let no Man gain[a] it. The Colonels chiefly pressed to retire, and were therefore suspected to hold Intelligence with the French. Many steed from the Spanish Camp, which tore suppected to hold intelligence with the French. Many fied from the Spanific Camp, which was much weakned. Hereupon the French laid a Bridge over the River, and above 1900 of them passing, by surprize drove the Spaniards from one of their Intrenchments. The Camp, which constited of a small number of Horse, and 5000 Foot, taking the Alarm, the great Defeat of Spaniar mounted to, range his Men. That done, he alighted, and taking a Halberd in his the French. Hand, was the first that charged the Enemy. About 5000 of them were already over, and Defeat of Caprain mounted to, range his Men. That done, he alighted, and taking a Halberd in his the Frenth. Hand, was the fift that charged the Enemy. About 2000 of them were already over, and the 'reft continued to pafs, their Cannon playing upon our Men from the other fide of the River. Neverthelest the Spanipil Foor charged with fich fury, that they obliged the Enemy to turn their Backs, and fly towards the Bridge. About 1400 were killed and drowned in the flight. The Great Captain noe, 'regarding the Enemies Cannon, came to the foot of the Bridge, and fome of his Menripalied over among the Frenth, but in their Retreat fulfatined fome lofs from the Enemies Cannon, fome Men of Note being killed, and others wounded. Captain *Zemdau among the reft was dangeroully hurt. Nothing is more admirable than the Notable 'b Valour of the Enfign Ferdinand de Illefan, who having his Right Hand flot off, held the Co. lours with his Left, and that being also carried away, bugged them betwix his Arms without a spanic strip of the Enfign Ferdinand de Illefan, who having his Right Hand flot off, held the Co. lours with his Left, and that being also carried away, bugged them betwix his Arms without firring till the French were drove over the River. A Man worthy of Immortal Fame, and the great Rewards bestowed on him by the King at the Instance of the Great Captain. This Deleaf to discouraged the French, that they guarded the Bridge narrowly, left our Men should come over to them, not thinking themselves secure, tho the River was between them. Befide great Differences arising between the Wisters of Montana, and the Lord of Allegre, the former resolved to quit the Command of the Army, faying, he could not bear the Insolency of the French. In his flead, till their King's Pleasure were known, the Officers made choice of the French. In his flead, till their King's Pleasure were known, the Officers made choice of the French. In his flead, till their King's Pleasure were known, the Officers made choice of the French. In his flead, til the Spaniard's had passed the River, the Prench quitted their Camp, and reitred to the top of a Hill. Sui and Castellore, held by the French upon the River, furnanted that that night out Army lay incamped below Monforts, and the next day marched down by the River to fight the Enemy. The French sent Peter de Medicis to carry part of the Artillery in Boats to Gasta. Being come to the mouth of the River, the the Water was rough, he would attempt to cross it, but the Boats with the Cannoth were fink, and he drowned. The French Armiy an hour before day abandoning their Bridge, Heavy Cannon, Toms, and part of the Baggage, made halter to get into Mola, which is near Gauta. The Great Captain understanding the way they Beset took, sent before Prosper Colona with the Light Horse to stay them till the Foot could come the breast in Besing come to the Bridge of Mola the Fight began, but latted not long, for the Firmy again. Son, field. Our Men pursued them close at the Heels up to the very Gates of Mola and Gauta, where part of the Enemy faved themselves. Many were killed by the way. They lost 3.2 Pieces of Cannon and 1500 Horses. Such of the French as sled towards Fundi, and others that were quartered thereabouts, were killed or taken by the Country People, who role and secured all the Passes, for that very sew of them elegand. Bagt belowers, de Alviano and D. Hugo de Moncada gave great Proof of their Valour in this Action, and during the whole time it was in Hand.

CHAP. III.

The City Gacta surrendred: A Truce betwixt France and Spain; The Prefett of Rome spain; The Nobility of Naples swear Allegiance to Spain, and several Cities of Italy sue for the Protection; Truce for There years betwixt France and Spain.

THE Great Captain would gladly have made life of the Confusion the French were in to Gasta furthave possessed. I but the Rain was so rended A have policined. Billine of visions of the control the French to fortifie themselves in Mola with their Field pieces, believing that would be the first Place attacked, but the Great Captain having refreshed his Men, to make his advantage of the Enemies Consternation, marched directly to Gaeta. Very little Defence was made at the Mount, where our Cannon had before made a Breach, and the Garison had scarce time to retire into the City. Here they loft what had been faved in the Fight, 1000 Horses were taken, and two Pieces of Cannon that did us all the mischief the first Siege. What is more, the French were quite diffmayed, especially when they faw the Spaniards intrench themselves under the Works of the Town, 50 Men at Arms commanded by the Earl of Mirandula, came out of the Town, and furrendred themselves. That same night 3 Deputies came out from the Marquels de Saluzzes, to Treat of a furrender. Their first Demand was to have the Pri-Then the Marquets at Sautezer, to Treat of a fortners. Then that Office the City and Caltle of Gatta, the Rock of Mondragon, and all the Spanish and Italian Priloners they had, in Exchange for the French and Italian Priloners on our fide. This Proposal was not disagreeable to the Great Captain, yet he would not confent to feleafe the Italians, particularly the Marquels of Bitonto, Mathew de Aquaviva, and Alonso de Sanseverino, Cousin to the Earl of Bistina. no, whom he intended wholly to put into the Hands of the Catholick King. After fome Debate, the French abandoned the Italian, and on the first of Transp., 1504, it was agreed, That the Lord of Aubigni, and the other French, should be dicharged; and that as to the Italian. lians the Catholick King should not Execute any of them till such time as the King of France could fend Ambassadors to intercede for them. The Souldiers were to depart with their Arms and Baggage. The Citizens of Gaeta to be no way molefted, nor the Inhabitants of any other Place for having fided with the French. Upon this Agreement fuch as were to go by Sea began immediately to imbark. Theodore Trivulcio marched out with the French and Italians that were to go by Land: This done, on the 3d of January the City and Caftle were delivered up, and the Prisoners on our side released. The Government of the City and Castle was given to Luis de Herrera, as he had well deserved. His Command of Lieutenant of Taranto was conferred on Peter Hernandez de Nicuessa. Two days after the Surrender came thither the Lord of Aubigni, and about 1200 French Prisoners. Aubigni went presently aboard, the rest were conducted by Land, but most of them died by the way, as did the Marquels de Saluzzes at Genoa. The Sieur de la Palisse had before been Exchanged for D. Antony de Cardona. This D. Antony served very well, as did his Brothers, wherefore the Catholick King gave him Padula, which had belonged to the Earl of Caparlo, and created him Marques thereof. Some blamed the Great Captain for giving such Advantageous Terms, but he had Reasons enough to justifie his Proceedings, the chief were want of Money to pay his Men, who he feared might again Mutiny; Then that the Pope was wholly Devoted to the French; And lattly, the Treaty about Refloring King Frederick, which did the Spaniard an incredible diskindles. For fuch as were of the Spanish Faction were discouraged, and their Adversaries took Heart, befides none of the Revenue was payed in, every one waiting to pay it to King Frederick if he returned. Thus the Wants of the Army daily increased. Therefore Gaeta being reduced, before any Change should happen the Duke of Termes was fent to Govern Abruzzo, and bring under the Estate of the Marques de Bitonto in that Province. Bartholomew de Albiano against Luis de Arfi, who fortified Venofa. Against the Earl of Conversano, went the Earl of Matera, and Peter de Paz. Giles Nieta, and Peter Navarro, besieged the Earl of Capacho in Laurino, and gave him leave to depart with his Wife, and Children, and Equipage, to Trana, held by the Venetians, but he was to leave the Cattle, Cannon and Amunition In Galabria, Gomez de Solis took all the Dominions of the Prince of Rolano, except the City Rolano and Sanfevering. the first of which was Besieged. The Great Captain designed to Invade the Lands of the Prefect of Prefect of Rome in the Kingdom of Naples, which he prevented by fubmitting them to the Rome fub- Crown of Spain, wherewith the Great Captain was fatisfied, the he knew him to be in his Heart a Frenchman, and only to submit to necessity. Rojano was at last delivered up by the Townsinen, and in it the Prince and several Barons were made Prisoners. Samseverino soon after did the lame. Peter de Par. took Convergion by Storm. Thus all Calabria was reduced, and D. Hugo de Moneada was appointed Governor of it, in the Place of the Earl of Ayelo, grown unfit by reason of his great Age:

Having settled the Affairs of Gueta and ordered it to be Inhabited by Spaniards, to save the great charge of a Garrison; the Great Captain went away to Naples, where he was of Naples received with such applause as if he had been their King who had returned Victorious. their to Thither he furmoned the Barons, & Councels, because many, the they had submitted to Spain, $900. had not yet taken the Oath of Fidelity. Such as had formed well because many. had not yet taken the Oath of Fidelity. Such as had ferved well, he gratified and rewarded, particularly, Bartholomew de Abviano to whom in the Principality of Bifignano he affigned 8000 Ducats a Year, and 2200 among his Kindred,, according to every Mans merits. These favours done to the Ursin, so nettled the Coloneles, that Profer Colone went to Spain to complain, and have the Government altered, and Fabricius sent from Rome to ask pain to serve the Florentines, which was granted, least he should have taken it, and so the Breach had been the greater. His chief care was to Reeftablish the Administration of Justice, much depraved by the late Confusions. He endeavoured to raise some Supplies of Money to help defray the past Expences, and pay the Forces he was to keep on Foot, which he Quartered about, as might be least offensive to the People. Some Companies of Spaniards whom he knew to be Infolent and Injurious he fent away to Spain in Two Ships. He forgot not to repair the harms done during the War, and particularly the Walls of Naples, and Gafko. Capua he fecured with fuch Works as made it ftronger than if it had been Walled. Thefe things he did to be in a readiness, in case the Enemy should attempt any thing again, and all was Several action to be in a reaconies, in case the Engeny motion attempt any timing again, and all was several actions of the great reputation he had gained, not only in that Kingdom, that Star but throughout all Italy, so that many Cities offered to side with Spain. Genoa, both the rection of were supplied with 2000 Spaniards. Talkin at Medicios Brother to Peter that of the River Gardlano, promised 100000 Ducats a Year from himself and his Party, if he were reputation to the River Gardlano, promised 100000 Ducats a Year from himself and his Party, if he were reflored to Florence, whence at present he was Banished. The Council of Pila to avoid falling again into the Hands of the Florentines, proposed either to submit themselves wholly to the Catholick King, or to put themselves under his Protection. The City Arego rather than continue subject to the European continue subject to great, importance for the defence of the Kingdom, put himself under the Protection of Spain. To be short, Pandolfo Petrucci and Paul Ballon made the same Overtures for themselves and their Cities of Siena and Perusa. Even in the City of Milan, 600 of the Citizens offered their Service, if he would attempt to Conquer that Dukedom. All thefe practices were at an end by the Truce concluded in France by the Ambassadors Gralla and Antony Angustin, for Three Years, the Kingdom of Naples included. The Catholick King Swore to observe it at Mejorada about the end of January. One of the Articles was, that the said Truce should be Proclaimed at Naples on the 25th of February, which was not per-FAmee and formed because the Great Captain would first have it made known to such as were still in Rebellion. The Prince of Rofano would not admit of it; but because the Commendary Solis on that foore did not press Rofano, he with his Forcessate down before Cherimbia, where he did much harm. Luis de Ars, tho he admitted the Truce, drove the Cattle of Andria and Barletta, and took what Prisoners he could. Our Commanders said, that notwithstanding the Truce they might punish such of the Barons as committed any Insult after it, and therefore preffed both them we have spoken of. Venosa with its Castle was easily taken, because Luss de Arst lest it unprovided, when he retired thence to Trana, and thence to France, which in a Bravado he did with Colours slying and Bear of Drum. Thus only Six Towns in that Kingdom, and those remote from the Sea, were lest to the French. The King of France pretended that all that was taken after the day appointed for proclaiming the Truce, ought to be reflored, as unlawfully gained, and fulpected the Delay of proclaiming had been advifiedly contrived to that purpole. On the other fide it was gueffed, he never intended to observe the Truce, and had only contrived it to have the better Opportunity of taking the Spaniardi at an Advantage, which might well be believed, because at the same time he had appointed John James Trivulcio his General in Italy, besides 5000 Swiffers and 500 Hotel were daily expected out of France, under the Command of the Lords of Aubigni and Alegre, and the Marques of Mantua and Duke of Ferrara raised all the Forces they could in Italy. At the fame time the Great Captain was dangeroully fick, which with the Report forcad abroad of Re-establishing king Frederick, and the Pope's foliciting to have him General of the French Forces, gave occasion to People to discourse variously of matters of State, and particularly the Colone's took the Liberty to utter fome bold Speeches. All was again appealed by the Recovery of the Great Captain, who pefently appyled himself to make all the necessary Prepa-

tions for a mighty War, which was expected would break out again in that Kingdom. All Great F4. tions for a iniging, war, which was expected would offer our again in that rangeom. All orest re-lady and Spain inferred very much this Year by Famine, and on the 5th of April being Good mine. Friday, there were great Earth quakes in Cafflie and Andalusia, which overthrew many Build, and Barths ings. The greatest harm was done in some Towns on the Banks of the River Guadalphivir, Lope Soares de Albergaria Sailed from Lisbon with a good Fleet for India. This same Year Lope Source de Augergaria Saneti Ironi Livor with a good ricet for india. This fame Year the Catholick King gave the Office of Lord High Steward to D. Bernard de Sandoval, y Rojas Marquels of Denia, of whose Family, because often mention is made, it will not be from the purpose to set down the latter part of their Genealogy. Ferdinand Gutierrez, de Sandoval, who purpose to les digni die latter part of them Selecatory. Ferramana conserves, ac canacous, who is faid to have been chief Commendary of Cafile, was Father to D. James Gomez de Sandou val, first Earl of Cafire and Lord Lieutenant of Cafile, his Eldest Son was Ferdinand, the Father of D. James Gomez de Sandoval, whom King Reedinand Created Marques of Denia. His Son was D. Bernard, who we faid was made Lord High Steward to the same King Ferdinand in which place he continued even after the King's death, to Queen Joanna. D. Bernard had by his Wife the Lady Frances Enriquez. Four Sons and Six Daughters. He had also a Baflard Son, who for his good Parts came to be Archbishop of Sevil. Luis Eldest Son to D. Bernard was Father to Francis Earl of Lerma, who died before him, but left a Son called D. Francis Gomez de Sandoval who came to be Duke of Lerma, and a Cardinal, of whom we thall speak in another Place. D. Ferdinand Youngest Son to the said Marques had many Children, and among them D. Bernard de Rojas y Sandoval Cardinal and Archbishop of Toledo, to whom that Church is obliged for reftoring to it the Lieutenancy of Casoria, after it had been many Years Alienated.

CHAP. IV.

Perfidiousness of Duke Valentin, who is as perfidiously sent into Spain by the Great Captain contrary to his promise, and he ill represented to the King; Projects of Peace betweet France and Spain come to nothing.

THE Venetians after the death of Pope Alexander, had possessed themselves of several Persidi-Cities in Romania, and aimed at the rest. Duke Valentin being no way able to oppose outness of them; agreed to deliver fuch Forts as remained in his power to Pope Julius, who fent one Duke Vathem; agreed to deliver near a constant and a power to tope fund, who tent one buse Peter de Ovide to take policifion; but the Duke clanging his Mind, gave private Ordersto his lemin. Licutenant at Cefana, to Hang the faid Peter. He did lo, whereupon the Pope Arrefted the Duke, till he should cause the Places to be delivered. It was agreed that till the Surrender Dure, till ne mound cause the Flaces to be delivered. It was agreed that the ne of the Towns, he should be in Cultody of the Cardinal Bernardine de Carvarjal at Ofita, which performed, the Pope was to surnish him with Two Gallies to go over to France. As which performed, the trope was to turnin nun with I wo Gaines to go over to France. As from as the Great Captain had notice of it, he sent Lescano to Ofia to the Cardinal to advise him to perswade the Duke to go to Naplet, that so that Bautsem might do no more mischief. The Cardinal having promised to use his endeavours, Lescano gave him the Great Captain as the Conduct. Mean while the Towns were delivered, and then the Duke at the perswasson of the Cardinal went to Naples, and delivered himself up to the Great Captain, who entertained him nobly. But he being a reftless Spirit, and well beloved by the Soldierry, as soon as he came to Naples contrived to fend Men and Money to Relieve the Castle of Forli, which still held for him. He also meditated how to make himself Master of Plembin, Perofa and Pifa, tho under the Protection of the Catholick King, and endeavour-ed to debauch the Spanish and German Troops with great offers he made to them. The Great Captain understanding of it took care to disappoint his Designs. The Dukehad laid Horses to make his escape from Naples, knowing the King of France had sent the Marques of Final to Offia, on purpose to draw him to his Service. To prevent his Escape, the Great Captain ordered him to be secured in Castlenevo, tho the Pope demanded he should be fent back to Oftias, fince the Castle of Forli was not delivered; but at length by the Probe the back to Oping, muce one Catalor to Army was not universely, out at length by the Curement of the Great Captain that Place fubmitted to him. Soon after the Great Captain The great refolved. D. Aniony de Gardona, and Lezcano, should carry the Duke to Spain to prevent far. Captain ther troubles in Italy. Most Men blamed the great Captain, as guilty of breach of Faith, in contrary Confining and fending the Duke to Spain, and the Catholick King at first was forry it was to histaith done. But the Great Captain had more regard to the common Good, than to his own Ho fends nour. The King of France was much concerned at the Dukes Imprisonment, as believing Duke Post he should have a want of him, and as soon as he was informed of his being sent to Spain, limit into faid, From bence forwards the Word of the Spaniards, and the Faith of the Carthaginians may go Spain. together, fines they are alike in all things. At this time the King and Queen of Navarre had fent a folemn Embaffy to Caffile, to propose a Match betwirt Henry d'Albret their Son, and Prince of Viana, and Elizabeth 2d Daughter to the Archduke. At first the Catholick King and Queen willingly harkned to this Treaty, as the proper means to secure themselves on the side of Navarre, which gave them no small Trouble; and the more for that the Princes Magdalen of Navarre who was kept by them in the nature of a Hoftage for performance of the former Treaty, died foon after at Medina del Compo. D. John Manuel the Catholick King's Ambai.

fador at the Emperor's Court, by the Archduke's Order went to Flanders. He was afterwards very great with that Prince, and for the present it was Ordered that all Affairs relating to Spain should be communicated to him, which was more pleasing to the Emperor, who hoped by his means to compose some Differences he had with Son, than to the Catholick King, hoped by his means to compole some interences he had with Son, than to the Catholick King, who pressed to have his Grandson Prince Charles brought to Spain for many reasons that moved him to it. The Emperor and Archduke delayed his coming, being desirous to conclude the Matett betwixt him and Claudia, Daughter to the King of France, believing this to be the furest way to compose all the Differences then on Foot betwixt Spain, France and Burtherlands of the Compose of the furest way to compose all the Differences then on Foot betwixt Spain, France and Rurgundy. Besides the King of France offered that the Estates of Orleany, Britany, Milan and Burgundy; should swear to them as lawful Successiors, and offered to give what Security should be demanded for the Performance. The Queen, Mother to the Bride had rather she should be Married to France de Valoir Duke of Angousesme, who was Heir to the Crown, and would no ways stiffer such large Dominions to be Alienated from it, unless they were immediately delivered up, which could not be done. It is the midst of all his Prosperity and Honour acquired, the Great Captain was not free from Troubles and Crosses; for there are never wanting some who endeavour to undermine and ensure those whom they see Rise shows therefollows and Princes comprosals and Services.

ill repre- and enfinare those whom they see Rise above themselves, and Princes commonly pay Services and entitate those whom they tee this above themselves, and rimes commonly pay services with Ingratitude, when they are greater than can easily be recompenced. It was impossible to faitifie all that had Served in that War, for every one values his own Merits at a greater Rate than he ought. Such as were distantified, either want themselves to Spain to complain, or fent their Grievances in Writing, and were perhaps better admitted than they ought to have or fent their Grievances in Writing, and were perhaps better admitted than they ought to have been. Many Articles were exhibited againft the Great Captain, the chief were, That he had affifted the Cardinal Fulian de Rouer to obtain the Papacy, as appeared by a Letter intercepted from the faid Cardinal, promiting great thingsif he would iupport him. The Truth is that the Great Captain favoured Cardinal Bernardin de Carvajal, and the Ambasilador Francio de Rojas the Cardinal of Naples who had promised him a Cardinals Cap, but neither of them coming up, malicious Men charged the Election upon those who had no hand in it.—His next charge was, that the Soldiers committed many Infolencies, and were nor punished which rended the Sonaized officies to the People, and might be the no nand in it. The next cleaner was that the order of the People, and might be the were not punished, which rendred the Spaniards odious to the People, and might be the cause of some disorder. He answered, he could not commend the Virtue of those People, most of them being such as Spain for their Villaries could not longer endure, and had been necessitated to disburden it self of them. Yet that the chief cause of their Disorders was want of Pay, and that it was rather to be admired they had been fo much under Command having fuffered fo much, especially at Gardano and Gaeta, where 14 Months Pay was due to them, and yet no Mutiny happened. That nevertheles no Man committed a Crime, but he was punished, tho in time of War, it was impossible to prevent all disorders. His Third Acculation was, that the Revenue was lavished, since that which was great, together with recunation was, that the revenue was tarnined, lines that which was great, orgenter with the Confications amounting to valt Sums did not fuffice to pay the Army, and that no Account could be given of the Money fent him from Spain. This last was the Fault of Francis Suarez the Paymaster and other his Officers, who had the Receiving and Laying out of that Money. The Revenue of Naples, did not exceed 450000 Ducats, and the Pay of the Army in one Year came to 800000. As for Confiscations, there could not so much be made of them as was imagined, because the greatest Part was spent in Gratifications to those that had Served well. Hence spring the chief Article exhibited against him, which was, that he gave away Towns, Estates, and Commands as if they were his own, and presented the Clergy to the Pope for Benefices, a Prerogative only pertaining to the King, and not to his in the Cale of John Claver whom he kept out of the Estate of Alonfo de Sanfeverino, given him by the King, as he had done in other Cales. That at least he ought to have given his Reasons for suffereding those Grants, if there were any. There is no doubt but in this particular the Great Captain was to blame; but perhaps his Meaning might be good, the the times would not bear it. These Articles were urged and much aggravated by the Coloneses, and particularly by Profer Colone; who went to Spain purpofely to complain, and endeavour the Great Captain should be removed. His greatest Grievance was, that Bartholomen de Albiano had been better Rewarded than either he or his Brother. The Great Captain advifed the Catholick King to fatisfie Profer, yet fo as not to wrong the Urfini, because it concerned him much to bind both those Families to his Service. In fine, the Complaints against the Great Captain were fo urged, that the King resolved to send Alonso Deza, one of the Queens Servants to him, to say before him all the Heads of his Accusation, and charge him cucins servants to min, to say before min an incircans of ms Accuration, and charge film for the future to take Care that the Revenue flould be prudently managed, that the Soldiery should be kept under, the greatest part whereof he Ordered to be drawn away to serve in the War he designed to make in Africk. The Administration of Justice he Ordered to be reduced to the ancient Form; and that John Baptish a de Espinelo should not execute the Office of Conference that Management and the Mindson of the According to reduced to the ancient Form; and that your paping are spirited industrial to the Office of Confervator, that Name being very odique in the Kingdom. In short, that he should not intermeddle with any thing farther than belonged to the Authority of a Viceroy. This last Article highly offended the Great Captain, thinking it a great Indignity that he who had Conquered the Kingdom with so much Glory, and obtained so many Victories, should be red up to the common Rules of other Governors. It also perplexed him that the Lieute-

tenancy of Castelnovo which he had conferred upon Nuño de Ocampo was given without his knowledge to Law Peixo. In France there was a Difcourse of changing the Truce into a knowledge to Line term. In praintenance was a pricontine of changing the Truce into a Peace. It was allo proposed to restore, King Frederick, which the Catholick King was not averse to, provided the Duke of Calabria would Marry Jeanna Queen of Naples his Niece. The King of France would have him Marry Germana de Faux his Niece, in case that King were Reestablished; but he rather inclined to the other proposal of marrying Charles Son to the Archduke, with Claudia his Daughter. Some Months were spent in these Debates. Son to the Archaeuke, with Camman in Dauguter. Some Andrews were then in the Elebates. The King of France would refer the matter to the Pope, and the King of Spain would have the Cardinals joined with the Pope. In floort, they agreed in nothing. The greated Difficulty was in refloring the Barons of the French Faction, for the King of France folemnly Engaged when the Princes of Salerns, Bilignams and Melif came to him, not to make Peace with Spain, unless they were restored to their Estates. After much Canvassing the matter, without coming to any Agreement, and the News coming that Pifa had declared for Spain, the King of France in a Rage ordered the Spain Ambalfadors Gralla and Antony Augustin to depart the Court. They visited the Queen and Legate, and the next day had a Conference with King frederick, aftering him of the Catholick King's good-will towards him, and telling him he might by the Management of Affaits perceive whole fault it was, that he was not Restored to his Kingdom. This done, they took their way towards Spain on the 26th of Angust.

The League betwixt the Emperor, the Archduke, and King of France; The League against the Venetians; The death of King Frederick of Naples, and Queen Elizabeth of Caftile : Contention about the Government of Castile betwixt King Ferdinand and King Philip: Treaties with France.

ONE of the principal Causes of removing the Spanish Ambassadors was, that they The Employer and Desensive and Desensive from peror, after Concluded on the 22th of September, betwith the Emperor, the Archduke his Son, and the Archduke King of France. The principal Articles were, That the Emperor should attempt nothing and King against the Dukedom of Milan, or any other State then in League with France, but should of France pardon all Offences by them committed against the Empire since King Charles passed the Lesque.

Alps. till that day. That if for the siture they failed of their Duty, he might Punish them, and the King of France should not Protect them. That the Investiture of Milm should within 2 Months be given to the King of France for him and his Heirs, he paying 200000 Livers for the faime. That the King of France should come to no Agreement with the Catholick King about the Kingdom of Naples without the Emperor's Consent, and in case the Catholick King would not be brought to Composition, the Emperor should affit the King of France to Recover that Kingdom. That Lands and Revenues should be affigned in France to the Children of Luis Speria last Duke of Milan, whenslover they would go thither. That all those who were sted thence should be restored to their Estates, and the King's favour. Four months were allowed the Catholick King to come into the League, upon Condition he should resign all his Right to the Kingdom of Naples, to Charles his Grandlon, on the Terms before proposed; and that each of the Allies should have 3 Months allowed him to bring his Confederates into the League. It much diffulfed the Catholick King, and most Men observed that neither the Emperor, not the Archduke named him among their Allies. This League was managed openly, but under Hand another was agreed upon betwixt the fame Princes and the Pope, on pretence of Uniting their Forces against the Turks, but the real design was against the Venetians. Each of those Princes pretended that Seigneury wrongfully detained several Towns of theirs, which now they proposed to Recover by Force. A mighty Storm threatned that State, whereof Lawrence Suavez de Figueroa gave League aby Force. A mighty Storm threatned that State, whereof Lawrence Shayez de Figueroa gave League at them notice, deligning to draw them to join with Spaining. The Enemy was Powerful, and gaint the the Catholick King much Exhausted, for it appeared by his Books that he had already re-Pantiann, turned above 331 Millions for the Charge of that War in Italy. (F. Mariana names not what these Millions were of, I guest shirm to be of Maravedits, which will amount to above 160000 Pounds Sterling, a voss. Sam in those days.) The Venetians would not believe any thing of that League, and were resolved to shand Neuters, and take Party with that Side which proved strongest. At the same time they held Intelligence with the Soldan of Egypt, for hindring the Portugues Trade in India; which totally Ruined theirs at Alexandria. To this effect they fear an Ambastador to the Soldan of Envidence and Course as also Shipwinghe & build Stier. fent an Ambassador to the Soldan, and Foundersto cast Guns, as also Shipwrights to build Ships after our manner, and a great quantity of Mettal to be fent forward to Calicut, the chief Mart of the East for Spice, to the intent that King might drive the Portugueses out of those Seas. They also proposed to the Catholick King to be Mediator betwixt them and the Portugueses, for adjusting those Differences, which he refused, it being a matter not easily to be reconciled, the Interest of both Parties being so deeply concerned.

None of the Princes we have fooken of enjoyed any great Satisfaction. The Emperor was poor, and at variance with his Son. The Princes, Wite to the Archduke, was not in her right Senses. Queen Elizabeth laboured under a foul, tedious; and incurable Disease, which is was faid would son make an end of her. It was seared her Death would produce Troubles and change of Government. What Satisfaction could the King of France have, seeing himself despoted of a Kingdom he looked upon as his own? King Frederick coaled not to contrive ways how he might be reflored. Seeing himfelf forfaken on all fides, Discontent cast him into an Ague, with which he returned from Blois to Tours his ordinary Residence. It grieved him to fee there was no way left to reconcile the Kings of France and Spain; but above all, that his Son the Duke of Calabria was not a Man of those Parts as to wade through such Diffichildes. Hereupon towards his latter days, he wrote a Letter to him full of Fatherly Advice.

Bertune fo perfecuted this unhappy King, that one night the House where he lay took fire, and he had much ado to escape naked with his Wife and Children. This Accident increased

Frederic and the near much and to clearly made with in which and climber. His Accident increased King of his Sickness, of which he died in that City on the 5th of November. He left by his First Naplu dies Wife one Daughter married in France, and by the Second five Children, Elizabeth, Fulia, Alons, Caofar, and the Eldest of them all Fardinand Duke of Calabria, who received the News of his Tather's death at Medina del Campo, where the Court of Spain then was. Profer Calona was fent by the King to give him the News, and comfort him. The King himself was then much afflicted on account of the Queen's Sicknels, she being then in great danger. She pressed to amieteer on account of the cucer's signess, the being then in great danger. She prefiled to have the Archduke and his Wife come into Spain, but the Archduke excufed, himlelf on account of the War he was engaged in against the Duke of Guelders. The truth was, he had no mind to come, and feemed not to value the Interitance of fuch large Dominions. At Elizabili hength the Queen died on the 26th of November. Bo ordered her Body to be buried at Graguent of the Come Grands, where, because the Chapel designed for that Use was not finished, the was deposited in the Albanders. By her Will the warred from Grands produced to the Come Come of the Albanders.

Queen of Mada, writere, Decaute the Consecutory of or for any other Caule, should not take upon her the Government, then, as had been before resolved in the Coste, or Assembly of the Three Estates, King Ferdinand was to Govern till Prince Charles were 20 Years of Age. Besides the Administration of the Masterships of the Prince Charles were 20 Years of Age. Beindes the Administration of the Matterlinps of the Three Military Orders granted by the Pope to King Ferdinand, the less him half the Profits of the Islands and Continent newly discovered, and 10 Millions (of Maravedics) yearly, out of the Revenue artifung in the Lands of the Three Matterships. Her Executors were the King, the Archbishop of Toledo, the Bishop of Palencia, Antom Fonseca and John Velasuez her Comptrollers, and John Dopes de Lexarraga her/Secretary. Notwithstanding the Queen's Will, there wanted not some who advised the King to enter upon the Government as Heir to the Crown, he being descended of the Male Line of the Kings of Castile, affirming this was his faste way, and that easing the People of some Burdens. he would be received with General faiest way; and that easing the People of some Burdens, he would be received with General Applause. However, the King, tho offended at his Son in Law, and knowing the Incapaoity of his Daughter, yet that very Afternoon appeared publickly on a Scaffold, and cauled his Daughter Joanne to be proclaimed Queen of Caffile, and the Archduke Philip king, as being her Husband. In all other Places only Queen Joanne was proclaimed, without making mention of the Archduke, on pretence that he ought first to swear he would preserve their Privileges, and not put Strangers into Publick Employments, which Queen Elizabeth had or-dered in her Will: This Winter the Rains were to violent, that all the Corn was destroyed, and there enflied a great Famine

Garcilaffe de la Vega; Chief Commendary of Leon, who prefided in the Affembly of the Three Effates having feen that Claufe in the Queen's Will which related to the Succeffion and Government, following liver Footman Rightful Queen of Geffile, and the Archduke her Husband King in her Right, and the Catholick King as Governour there. the Archduke her Husband King in her Kight, and the Catholick King as Governour thereof. Soon after the Queen's Diffemper being made known, they made application to King Ferdinand to take upon him the Government. Letters were also sent in Flanders to the Archduke pursuant to this Address. However, there ensued great Contention about the Government Many of the Nobility being disjusted by the Catholick King, desired a Change.
The chief of these were D. Peter Manrique Duke of Najara, and D. Jante. Lopez Pacheo Marquess of Villena, who openly opposed the Catholick King; others, tho' of the same Opinion, temporized. Only D. Frederick de Toledo Duke of Alvas stood firm to King Ferdinand. The Natur King and his Council proposed against the Decreedings of the Catholick King, say New King and his Council protefted against these Proceedings of the Catholick King, saying, It was preposterous either to take the Title of King, or come into the Kingdom, if he was not to have the Power and Prerogative of a King. D. John Manuel, a Gentleman of a little Body but sharp Wit, heightned these Discontents. The Catholick King to remove him

Upon the death of Queen Elizabeth, there arose Differences and Contention. King Fer-

from the Archduke, commanded him to return to the Emperor's Court, but the Archduke would never confent; and rather valued him the more, making him privy to all his Secrets. Would never coments and rainty valued in the more, maning man pury to an ins secrets. This Project failing, the Catholick King endeavoured to gain him by large Promites finade to, his Wife the Lady Catherine de Cafélla; but he midde more account of the prefent Bounty of a Young Prince, than the Promites of a behalf vold King. Nor was this all, the King grew jealous of the Kingdom of Naples, fearing left the Great Captain flould encline, to, favour his parties of the many parties of the second states of Arms should be reduced to 200. Besides, the Catholick King ordered only 1200 Ment at Arms, 600 Light Horse, and 3000 Spanish Foot, to be lest in the Kingdom of Naples, 2000 Spaniards to be sent to Spain, and the Germans dismissed, all to save Charges, and weaken that Kingdom. A particular Council was erected in Caffile for the Government of it. Ladron de Mauleon was sent Ambassadot from the King of Navarre, to confirm the ancient Alliance with King Ferdinand, by concluding the Match betwixt the Prince of Viana and the Archduke's Daughter. He also present the house of the properties of the prince of rinne and the Archduke's Daughter. He also present to have Duke Valentine, then Prisoner; released, as did many Cardinals created by Pope Alexander. The King was willing to renew the League, and inclinable to the Match. As to the Duke he said it could not be done at present, tho at the same clinable to the Match. As to the Duke he laid it could not be done at pretent, tho at the lame time he thought to make ule of him in Italy to balance againft the Great Captain. He defired Security that he would be true to his Intereft, and Alonjo d'Effe Duke of Forrain, offered to be bound for him. Emanuel King of Forrigal fent the Bilhop of Ford and James Pachee his Ambalfadors to Rome, to acknowledge Pope-Julion. After he had fent feveral Fleest to Trade in India, he now fent Francia d'Almeda with the Title of Governour to refide there, that all who passed to those Parts might know who they were to obey. Many Difficulties attended the Profecution of this Enterprize, besides the length of the Voyage: One was, the Opposition made by the Venetiams, as has been hinted before; Another, that the Soldan of Babylon, either at the Instigation of that State, or of his own accord, undertook to ruin their Trade in those Parts. He sent Maurus, Guardian of the Monastery at Hierusalem, with Lettrage in those rates. The tent plantam, your Letters to the Pope, complaining of the Proceedings of the Catholick King in the Conquet of Granada and Convertion of the Moors, and of the King of Portugal for ruining his Trade in India and taking his Ships. He defired him to put a flop to any further progress in this Affair, otherwise he threatned to destroy the Holy Sepulchre, and put to death all the Christians within his Dominions. This moved the Pope to fend the fame Religious Man with the Letters to Spain to both the Kings, neither of whom made any account of them or the Threats they contained.

CHAP. VI.

King Ferdinand becomes odious to the People; The Posture of Affairs in Italy; The Emperour and King Philip of Castile Ratifie the Peace with France; King Ferdinand agrees with the French King.

THE Cortes at Toro passed the Laws called of Toro, which had been framed before the King Frideath of Queen Elizabeth. After the Cortes were dismissed, King Ferdinand continued at dinand becomes of the Cortes were dismissed by the Cortes were dismis To dill the end of April, to be thoroughly faitsfied whether King Emanuel of Portugal appro-comes oved of his continuing in the Government. The Nobility, in hatred to him, gave out, that the Peoble treated about marrying the Princes Foanna, Daughter to King Henry, and to affert her ple. Title, which before he had impugned; and by that means to maintain himself not only as Governour, but Rightful King of Caffile, in opposition to his Daughter and Son-in-Law. It is scarce credible how much this Report incensed the People. Certain it is, his Vice-chaptelles. chancellor Alonso de la Cavalleria endeavoured to persuade him to change the Name of Governour for that of Administrator and Guardian, as Eathers are to their Children before they are of Age; and Queen Joanna might be account fuch, either in regard of her want of Senfe, or of her being confined, and that, he ought to take the Title of King either on this account, or as Husband to Queen Elizabeth. He brought the Example of his Farher King John, who ftill called himfelf King of Navarre, the he had Children, and that Kingdom had been his Wife's. The Nobility of Caftile, and those of the New King's Council, were of another Opinion: They faid it were better for King Ferdinand to retire to the Kingdom of Aragos, and from therice to aid his Children in what they fhould defire, for that One Kingdom would not admit of Two Heads! Neither could they agree as to his Kingdoms of Granada. and Nulples. The Catholick King pretended a Right to Granada, as conquered in his Wife's life-time; and as for Nulples, he laid there was no dispute of its appertaining to the House of Aragon, and therefore highly resented that his Son in Law should pretend to dispose of it, Aragon, and therefore nighty retented that his son-in Law mount pretend to cupote of it, without confluting him to whom only it belonged. This made him fulpiclous of the Great Captain, who was a Caftilian; for the Emperor had fent to know which fide he would encline to, in case of a War, and the Pope had put the same Question to him. To the Emperor he answered in general Terms; to the Pope resolutely, telling him, It was plain he knew not what Men he had to deal with, who were not used to commit any thing that was disloyal to their King, or unworthy themselves. From Tore the Catholick King went to Spewis, and thence sent D. John de Forscea, Bilhôp, of Palencia, we Flanders, to, attend upon the Oneen his Daughter. From the Emperor and his Son came as Ambassadors to the Catholick King, Andrew de Burge of Cremona, Japad Philibert, Lord de Vere, who was great with the Archduke, and had much Knowledge of the Affairs of Cashie. To him the Gatholick King made known his Grievances, and again attempted to draw D. John Manuel from King Philip, but he instead of it discharged himself: King Ferdinand's Service. King Philip also kept Lope de Conchillo, Secretary to the Bilhop of Palencia, a long time close Philoner, for writing a Letter ter was intercepted, and thereupon no Spaniard was suffered to speak to the Queen; which so heightend her Distemper, that she was flut up. In Italy the Great Captain fant Nasio de Ocampo with 1000 Men of those that were ordered to be dismissed, to defend Planbius and Pila. The Florentines laid Siege to Pila, but Nuño de Campo throwing himself with his Men into they were socaed to rise and depart without it. The Colones present and the Worth of that Gentleman; but afterwards understanding he held Intelligence with the Pope, and de signed to Favour the House of Medicis against the Florentines, his Command was reduced the knowing of it, thought to have feized Planbius but being disappointed, aimed a Pila. The Great Captain collimanded him to dessift, upon pain of Forseting his Possession. The Florentines Islaing was for his Disobedience his Estate was seized, whereupon he went over to the other Party. The Spanish Soldiers, who according to the King's Order were to be distinished, the Virtua Spanish Soldiers, who according to the King's Order were to be distinished. The Stream is spanished to the Conquet of Gelver mutnicied, and much perspected the Great Captain. Yet he appealed, and sent them to Spain as he was ordered.

The Emperor and King Philip met to raislie the Treaty concluded with the King of France, peror and from whom came allo the Cardinal of Amboile, who took the Oath, and did Homage to King Phi. the Emperor, in the Name of the King his Malter, give the Investiture of Milina, granted to Pay of Ca-him and his Heirs Males; and for want of them, we was to devolve to his Daughter Claudia filt ratific and Charles her Husband. Yet in cafe that Marriage were disappointed through the King of the Peace France's means, then that Dukedom should again fall to the House of Austria. It was also dewich clared that Investiture was given saving always a better Title, which asservants the Sons of Sporta pleaded for recovery of that Dukedom. On account of the first of these Conditions, Prince Charles when Emperor pretended that Dominion appearained to him; but then the King of France was to be repaid the 2000000 Lives he gave for the Invefiture. Nothing was concluded concerning the Kingdom of Naple; but the Marriage of Prince Charles and K. Ferdi.

Lead a been before agreed. These things perplexed the Catholick King, who therefore contrived grees with how to gain the King of France, and secure himself on that side. He thought the belt was to marry Germana de Evis, that King's Niece. F. John de Enguerra, of the Order of S. Ber-

nand a Deen Berder agreed. These things perposed the Cattolick King with the World and the King of France, and focure himfolf on that fide. He thought the beft way the Fronth was to marry Germana de Faix, that Kings's Niece. F. John de Enquerra, of the Order of S. Berger, and and Inquition in Catalonica, Was fent to propose this Match. This was 60 pleasings to the King of France, that he resigned over the Kingdom of Naples to his Niece and her Heirs. On the other side, the Catholick King contented, That in case he had no Issue of the King dom should devolve to the King of France and his Heirs. Besides, he engaged to pay him 50000 Ducats within the space of 10 Years. He also promised to restore the Barons of the French Faction, which was hard to be done. All the Prisoners the Great Captain had were also to be fet at liberty, and namely the Prince of Rosam and Marquesis de Bisonac. Only Duke Valentine and the Earl of Pallus were excepted. On these Terms the King of France promised to as the Catholick King against the Emperour and his Son, in case they attempted to remove him stom the Government of Cassis. Guicciardin adds, That the Catholick King engaged to assist the Great Captain had been to depart his Dominions. "Alkshefe Articles were agreed upon this Summer, and on the 2th of August D. John de Spous Earl of Cifuchty, and Micre Thomas Massist, and also Orders to release the Prisoners at Naples, and of George to Salerno, and Head of the Barished Barons, to marry the leady Marina Advagon, Daughter to D. Alons de Aragon, Duke of Villabermosa and Earl of Ribagors; which was to pleasing to the King of France, that he endeavoured to hinder King Philip from going lino Spain, lending his Secretary to require him not to undertake that Journey, till the Differences betwitk him and his Father-in Law were adjutted. To make the surer of him, he encouraged the Duke of Gudders to prosecute the War against him with a greater Power. This Treaty put the Kingdom of Naples into an Uproar; and those Barons who were possessed to t

Callile were no less disgusted, it being reported. That Queen Elizabeth before the died ob liged King Ferdinand to fivear he would never marry, before the committed to him the Government of the Kingdom. Some blamed the Great Captain; because he did not declare for King Philip, fince that Match of King Ferdinand cut off Prince Charles from Inheriting the Kingdom of Naples, whether the King had Iffue or not. King Philip was not a little oliginal to have the Kingdom of Naples absolutely disposed of from him, and the Crown of Aragon left difputable, if King Ferdinand should have a Son. The Catholick King, to prevent surther Mifputation, it lands for the Protonotary, who had been before Ambalfador in England to Flanders, that he, with Gatierre Gomes. de Fuenfalida his Ambalfador theresshould acquaint King Philip with the Treaty concluded, and endeavour the Enlargement of Lope de Conchillos. kept clofe Pissoner at Vilvorde. As to the Marriage, King Philip in general Terms answered, He rejoiced at it, that King Ferdinand was slee, and might marry where he pleased. For what concerned Lope de Conchillos, he faid, he was his Servant, and received Wages from him; and therefore having imprisoned him for his Demerits, he did not defign to release him. Still the Venetians looked on, without perceiving how great a Storm threatned them. True it is, they compounded with the Pope, retaining Faenge and Arimine, and refloring what they had in the Earldoms of Imela and Seffena. On these Terms they took into their protest on the Duke the Earldons of Imida and Signal. Official Earlisting does not use proceed in the Duke of Urbino, and the Prefect of Rome the Pope's Nephew, whom the Duke had adopted, and to the intent he might inherit the Dukedom, given him to Wife the Daughter of the Marques of Mantua his Brother in Law. Advice was given to the Great Captain of the Peace conof Mantia his Brother-in-Law. Advice was givent ou in Great Captain of the Feace con-cluded with the King of France, and he ordered to come to Spain, the Archibishop of Zara-goes being privately appointed Viceroy of Naples. The Great Captain expredied Joy for the Peace, and caused it to be proclaimed at Naple?; and as to his departure, answered it should be very speedily; but fill he sound Excuses to delay it, which encreased the Jealousie before conceived of him, and furnished much matter of Discourse, the fent his Secretary John Lopez de Vergara to justifie him.

Mazalquivir in Africk taken from the Moors; The Nobility of Spain divided for and against King Philip; The Agreement made betwixt the Two Kings Ferdinand and Philip; The latter in England.

HE Archbishop of Toledo never forsook the Catholick King, but upon all occasions food Manualia by him with extraordinary Fidelity, and was a great Check to many difaffected Per-quivir in This Prelate was a Man of a mighty Spirit, and more: Generous than might have been Africk toexpected of his mean Education. He often prefied the King, even whilft Queen Elizabeth ken was living, to make War upon the Moors in Barbary, as foon as that in Naples were ended. This Business was fo far advanced, that the King ordered part of the Spanish Forces to be sent out of Naples into Spain, which was accordingly done. The Earl of Tenshila offered, if the out of reaper into pann, we make two documents done to conquer Oran and the Port of Maxalquivir, with the Towns adjacent. In case any of that Sum were left after defraying the Charge, he promised to restore it; but if it fell short, to make it up of his own. This Con. Charge, he promised to retrore it; but it tell mort, to make it up of ins own. Ins Contract being well advanced, was broke off by the Quéen's death. Yet that the Enterprize might not be wholly laid asset, and the Neapolitan Soldiers be idle, the Archbishop lent the King it Millions towards carrying on that Defign. A Fleet was fitted out on the Coast of Andalusia, at first intending to take Tedeliz, a Town betwitt Bugia and Argiers, to which purpose Intelligence was held with some Persons in it. But this appearing to be a Place of pul por fine greater was near with order extends in it. Date this appearing to be a rince of in Confequence, nor worth the keeping, it was refolved to attempt Maxalqueir, which in Arabick fignifies the Great Port, and Prolomy calls it Portus Magnus. It flands near to Oran, almost opposite to Almeria, only a little more to the Eafkward. The Fleet confifted of 6 Galleys, and a great Number of Caravels and other finall Veffels, in which were about 5000 Men, under the Command of D. James Fernandez, de Cordova, a Valiant Officer. They failed from Malaga upon Friday the 29th of August. D. Raymund de Cardona was Admiral. They met with bad Weather, and were forced to put into the Port of Almeria. Thence they fet forward on the 11th of September, and came to an Anchor with the whole Fleet in the Harbour of Mazalquivir. On the Point of the Harbour was a Bulwark planted with Cannon, with other Works, under which our Fleet entred. 150 Horse and 3000 Foot came to obfruct our Men landing. The Landing place was bad, and the Weather temperatuous, yet the Valour of the Christians overcame all Difficulties. Peter Lopez Zagal, a valiant Soldier, was the first that leaped ashore. The Moors were forced back to Oran, and only 400 lest in the Fort of Massalquivir. The Fort was battered, the Commander of it killed by a Cannon-Ball, and their best Guns dismounted. This so discouraged the Moors, that the third day they furrendered, and the Spanish Colours were set upon the Walls. It sell out very fortunately in the first place, that the Fleet was stayed by ill Weather; for upon the News of their setting out of Malaga, a great Multitude of Moors affembled; but having waited 8 days, and Provilions growing scarce, they thought our Fleet had steered another Course, and so they dispersed. Next, that the very Day the Fort surrendered, a great number of Moors came down the Mountain to relieve the Befieged, who might have done us much harm if they had come from enough. They joined with those of Oran, and took the Field, in order as was thought to give Battel, which yet they durft not do, tho' our Commander drew out to meet them. Some Skirmilhes there were with our Parties that went out for Wood or Water, of both some sammines there were with our ratios that went out to wood of water, of both which they were fearce. The Command of that Fort, with the Title of Captain General of the Conquests in Rarbary, was given to James Pernandez de Cordova. D. Raimand de Cardona returned with his Fleet to Malaga, on the 24th of the aforesaid Month. Those that were left at Mazalquivir concluded a Truce with the Moors at Oran, by which a Free Trade was allowed between them, which was very advantageous to the Moore because of their Trade, This Enterprize gained the Catholick King much Reputation, tho at the fame time malicious People gave out that was only a Colour to gather Forces, which in reality were defigned to keep out his Son in Law, if he should attempt to come to deprive him of the Government. This good Beginning encouraged the Archbilhop of Toleda to spend most of his Rement. This good Beginning encouraged the Archbilhop of Ioleda to Ipend molt of his Revenue in profecuting that Delign, informuch that he thought of going over into Africk himfelf, as at laft he did. About the middle of this Month the Queen was delivered of a Daughter called Mary. The Catholick King fent Charles d'Aragon, one of his Dometlicks, to vifit her, and advice King Philips of Peace. King Philips of Peacy and the Prince of Pering retired to Ameria, because the Plague began to operad at Lubon. This fame Year the Court of Chamery was removed from

Plague began to oppea at Lagon. It is the learning of the Count of Country was removed from Ciudad Real to Granada, and the Bishop of Afterga made President.

Nobles in King Ferdinand spent some Months at Segonia, and in the Forrest of Bulgain, and on the Cassis Took of October went away to Salamanca, where he caused the Peace concluded with France Galille for 20th of Oldober went away to Salamanea, where he catifed the Peace concluded with France and at to be Proclaimed, which was not fo well liked for the most part in Caftile as in Arigon. gainst k. The fame thing that peafed the one Kingdom, diffcontented the other, that is the Separation of the Kingdoms. All things were disposed to oppose King Philip in case of an open Breach. He from Profile sent to require the Nobility to stand by him, particularly the Marques de Villena, the Duke of Najara, Garleinford la Vega, the Duke of Madina Sidonia, the Earl of Urcha, the Admiral and Constable of Caftile, which Two last, the related to King Ferdinand were wavering. D. John Manuel with his Letters widened the Breach, but always seemed desirous they should come to 'Agreement, which he said was easie if King Ferdinand would leave Caftile to his Son in Law, whose of Right it was. Otherwise he must expect to be unread out of it, and in dancer of Arazon. For King Philiseither with King Ferdinand would leave Cafille to his Son in Law, whose of Rightir was. Otherwise he must expect to be turned out of it, and in danger of dragon, for King Philip either with or without his consent would be there very foon. In order to it, a great Fleet was fitting out in Zealand, and 60 Sail were already in a readinels. Notwithstanding the King of France sent twice to, require King Philip not to undertake that Voyage till he had agreed with his Father in Law, on the 8th of November he set outstrom Brussels for Zealand. There he delayed the time, whereupon it was believed he staied to have those of his Party in Spain to declare themselves openly as the Marques de Villend's chief of them going at this time to Titelde, it was supposed he had Orders from King Philip to secure that City, which alarmed the People, and the Family of the Silvas who stood firm to King Ferdinand, joined with the Governor D. Peier de Castilla to oppose him, but the Marques went away quietly. Bestids the Family of Silvas, the Duke of Alvas, and the Archbishon of Tibelas the quietly. Besides the Family of Silva, the Duke of Alva, and the Archbishop of Toledo, the principal Men that adhered to the Catholick King were, D Bernard de Rojas Marquess of Denia, D. Gutierre Lopez chief Commendary of Calatrava, Antony de Fonfeca and Ferdinand de la Vega. These were for opposing King Philip by all means whatsoever, if he should attempt to come to Castile before some Agreement were made. This was the Resolution of the Catholick King, tho' he was unwilling to take up Arms against his Children, and believed the Country would not be faisfied to have Force uled against its rightful Sovereigns. When things were in this posture tending to a Breach, King Philip sent ample Commission to his Ambassachers to promote an Accommodation. In pursuance hereof the Two Kings came to an Agreement at Salamanca, on the 24th of November upon the following Conditions. That both Kings and the Queen should Govern jointly, and all their Accord twist the Names should be inserted in all Orders, Patents, or other publick Wrings; and the Secretaries staries should subscribe by Order of their Highnesses. That as foon as King Philip and Persimond Queen Soanna came into the Kingdom, they should be Sworn King and Queen, King and Prince Charles Heir apparent of the Kingdoms of Caffile, Leon and Granuda, That the Revenue of the faid Kingdoms should be divided into Two equal Parts after all charges deducted, one Part for King Ferdinand, the other for King Philip and his Cucen. That all Employments should be given in like manner, even the Commendaries of the Military Orders, tho' the Administration of them appertained beyond all dispute to the Caholick Kings' The Pope, the Emperor, and Kings of England and Portugal were chosen Guarrantees for the performance hereof. It was also decreed that in case the Queen would not be concerned in the Government, still all Three Names should be used, but only the Two Kings Subscribe, and if either of the Two was absent, then all business should be done by the other. A Copy of these Articles was sent to Flanders, which displeased King Philip and his; howfoever they were accepted of, and Sworn to; for the King of France had great power in Flanders, and befides they hoped when they came into Spain all things would become more easie. Now the Secretary Lope de Conchillor was enlarged, having been all this while close Prisoner. This Agreement was Proclaimed at Salamanca on the 6th of Famuary 1506, and Two days after the King and Queen fet Sail from Zealand. Such a violent Storm arofe that some Ships were loft, and the rest forced to put into Weymouth in King Phiolent Storm arole that some Ships were lost, and the rest torced to put into Weymouth in King Pl. England. Thence King Philip went to Windfor to meet the King of England, where they con-lip in cluded a League, and agreed that the King of England should Marry Margaret of Austria, England Widow of the late Duke of Sarvoy, and Prince Charles of Austria Marry that Kings Daughers, which Matches took no effect. King Philip delivered up the Duke of Saffolk who had put which Matches wook no enece. Any ramp denvered up the Duke of Supple who had put himself into his Protection, to the King of England. In this, and in Feating was spent all the next Month, after which King Philip returned to Plymonth to take Ship. The Catholick King hearing of the Storm his Son in Law had been in, gathered all the best Ships along the Coast of Spain, and sent them to him under the Command of D. Charles Enriquez de Cisneros, who about this time raifed the Estate, which his Family still possesses at Portugalete. At such while about the theorem to Etades, while his Farmily filli politeles at Portugalete. At flich time as the Treaty was at Salamanca, the Catholick King writ a Letter to D. John Annel requiring him to advife King Philip to wave all palt discontents, and be entirely reconciled. It will not be amist to infer this answer, to show the Wit and boldness of that Gentleman, it is thus. I received your Highness's Letter, and shall perform which is your Order, which is to use all the doubted that I good a Master as your Highness, and given possibly established, for it is not to be doubted that I good a Master as your Highness, and sick good Scholars as the King and Queen will contribute much to the Happiness of those, and perhaps your Highness may Conscience can bear Witters, that has been always my Study, the's some, and perhaps your Highness may have sudged otherwise by the ill Usage I have received. But Mens Tongues and Thoughts are not to be Consined or he I seek any Reward for what I have done. It would suffice that my post Services and Fasigues were not forgotten as they are. I judge by my Age, and the small regard had of me, that your Highness were not some other recompence in this World, but in Prayers against 120 into the new. While reward I do not as spire to, for I have often beard it said, that a Prince can carry his Ministers to Hell; but never, that any Kings, tho the most Christian, as its be of France, etched any of the Eavourites out of Purgatory. However, I will not fail of doing my Daty, nor forbear begging your Highness to use your ordinary Good-ness and Prudence towards advancing this Agreement. time as the Treaty was at Salamanca, the Catholick King writ a Letter to D. John Manuel

In order to entertain whom, he made great Preparations, and cauled much Plate to be provided either to Treat or prefent him, for it was believed he would Land in Andalazia, and therefore might touch in some part of Portugal. But the Plague spread there and was come to Santarem, which made the King remove from Almeirin to Abrantes, a Town feated on a rifing Ground and healthy. There on the 3d of March the Queen was delivered of Prince Luis, who proved a Perion of fingular Worth, Piety and Virrue, especially towards the end of his life, which was short. Yet in his youth he had by a mean Woman a Bastard Son called Anony, who was Prior of Ocrato, and famous, for that upon the death of his Unkle Henry the King and Cardinal; he took upon him the Title of King, and brought great mifchief upon his Country. The joy for the Birth of the Prince was allaied by a mutiny raifed in Lisbon upon a A bloody light occasion. In the Church of S. Dominick was a Crucifix, which over the wound of the mutiny at Breast had a Glass. Some People hearing Mass there, thought the light that came from that Liber. Class had been miraculous, which one there prefent being a few newly converted, freely contradicted.

The People in a rage laying hold of him, dragged him out of the Church, made a Fire, then killed and burnt him. A Friar of that Convent coming out, made an Harangue to the rabble, exhorting them to revenge the injuries done to our Saviour by the Jews, which was pouring Oyl upon the Fire, for immediately the multitude ran to the Houles of the new Converts, Two of the Friars going before them with a Cross. Such was their fury and madnets, that in Three days this mutiny lasted, they murdered above 2000 of those People, and among them, either through millake, or for private grudges, several of the ancient Christians. The Flemmings and Germans that were aboard their Ships in the Harbour came to take flare in the plunder of the Houses. The King hearing of this Turnul, fent James de Almeyda and James Lopez to take cognifiance of the matter. The Two Friars that were the Ringleaders, were put to death and burnt, and many others punished. The Strangers hoisting Sails got away with a rich Booty. In Castile, on the one fide was expected the coming of the new King and Queen, and on the other was great rejoicing for the Marriage of King Ferdinand and the Lady Germana. From Salamanea went the Archilhop of Zarageez, with other Men and Ladies of Quality to Busentain, to attend the Bride King Ferdinand, the Two Queens of Naples, Mother and Daughter, the Duke of Calabria and many more Lords went to Valladolid, and thence to Duñis. There on the King Ferdinand Marries The Queen was great Niece to the Catholick King, and Marries Queens of Navarre. The Popes dispendation was obtained which the Calabria was the Emperor and his Son opposing it. With the Queen came Luss of Ambois Bishop of Albis, Helder Vignatelo and Peter de Santandrea the King of France his Anti-bassadors. There came also the Princes of Salerno and Melfs, and other Barons of the Faction of Anjous, to settle their Assatism start day after the Marriage, the King and Queen with all their Train set out towards Valladolid. In that City the King took a solemn Oath in the presence of many Presens and Noblemens of Oath in the presence of many Presens and Noblemens of Oath in the presence of many Presens and Noblemens of Oath in the presence of many Presens and Noblemens of Oath in the presence of many Presens and Noblemens of Oath in the presence of the Noblemens of Oath in the presence of Marria for the League with France. A sew days after the Neapolitan Barcus did Homage to the King and Queen as rightful Sovereigns of the Kingdom of Naples, for themselves and those that were absent. This Solemnity being over, the King sero to the Prot of that Coast, with whom went the Archilhops of Telede and Seroit, the Duke In plans of Alva, the Admiral, the Constable and the East of Cifuents. All these seemed inclined to show the Nobility and Commonality shood affected towards him to be the Santha the could from his Father in Law, to have time to find how the Nobility and Commonality shood affected towards him to be the present himself accordinely. This was the Advice of D. John Manuel who had great influence over him, and would have earried him to land in andalucia if the Weather had permitted. About this time Gongalo Mariño de Ribera Commander of Melila for the Duke of Medina Sidnaia had the Town of Capeapa delivered to him by Composition. It is in the Kingdom of Fez, 5 Leagues from Melilla, and has a good Port, and remained in Propriety to the Duke of Medina China.

With King and Cashile to Declare for him, which was the way to raite Tumults rather than settle Peace.

Finding this contrivance answered, his expectation, and that many freely declared for him, he presently prosessed in the produced him to the late Treaty concluded at Salamanca. He also began to discountenance his Faither-in-Laws Servants, and one day speaking to D. Peter de Ayales told him, that tho'he had in Flanders and England winked at his Proceedings in opposition to his Service, he would no longer bear with it; and since he was his Subject, he should take care how he behaved himself: He turned away the Alcaides, and Alguarailes de Corre, sent by King Ferdinand to attend upon him, thinking his Father-in-Law designed to choose his take care now he behaved nimingin. He turned away the Alcandes, and Alguaziusi at Corfe, left by King Ferdinand to attend upon him, thinking his Father-in-Law defigned to chooke his Family. He was well influeded not to allow of any Tutor or Overfeer, as D. John Manuel called it. His followers exclaimed against the Catholick King, especially for his Marriage, and the Articles of it, which gave away the Kingdom of Naples from his Daughter and Grandson. In this particular, no doubt they had reason; but the King did it to gain the King of France. On the other Side the Catholick King, as soon as he heard of his Sonial was a Daughter's Lording Earth 2 January de Carlona and Englishmed de Verse and Verse a inlaw, and Daughters' Landing, fent D. Raimmal de Cardon and Ferdinand de Vega to visit them, and went himself towards Leon in order to meet them; but stopped at Aftorga still be knew their Will. He ordered the Marquels of Villea who was come to Burgus with a great Train, and the Duke of Najara. Who was raising his kindred and followers to got Ocorana in Warlike manner, to forbear proceeding after that manner, and to go thither with their usual Warinke manner, to torozar proceeming arter that infantle, and to go funder, with their dealing frequency of the prefield his Son-in-Law to difinife 2000 Germans he brought with him, fearing that might give fome- caule of Difcontent to the People. He also fent Almagan his Secretary to join with his Ambaffladors D. Rainmand, D. Ferdinand & Vega, D. Peter de Ayla, and Gaiterre Gomez de Eurofalida, that they might agree upon the Place where he fhould meet his Son and Daughter, which he defired might be very specificy, and King Philip's followers laboured to delay as much as might be. First Sarria, then Ponforada were the Places propofed for the interview, but none pleafed his People, and particularly D. John Manuel who managed all, and feared that if the Two Kings met, the one being very fubtle and the other open; besides the respect due to a Father, they would easily agree, which was what he chiefly laboured to prevent. To this purpose he told D. Peter de Ayala, that the Catholick King might be perswaded three things, whereon he much relied should never come to pass. Tiss that at the Interview there should be no manner of Discourse of Business. Secondly, that the meeting should be in the Field, and not with equal Retinues, but that King Philip thould have much the greater. Thirdly, that the Catholick King should not Confide in the Favour of the Queen his Daughter, for it would not avail him Great Offers were again made to of the Queen his Daughter, for a wond not wanted to the control of the Well-Indies, the first Discoverer of the New World. Now also the Marquess of Villena, the Christop the Well-manistering Discovered of the New Mothe. New and the transparent of rineral, the complete Earl of Benavent's and the Duke of Najara were come to Cornina, and daily more People Column of the Marian and more Men of Note. as the Duke of Reiar the Marinesses of Afford det. Earl in Benaverne and the base of rayma were come to tornas, and dauy more People reforted thirter, and more Men of Note, as the Duke of Bejar, the Marquesses of Astroga and Aguilar, Gazilasso de la Vega and the Duke del Instantado. This encouraged the followers of King Philip. The Catholick King stayed at Astroga till the 15th of May; thence he went of King Philip. The Catholick King Itayed at Afterga till the 15th of May; thence he went to Rawand, defigning to go on to Samingo, and to appoint the Interview there. Some of his Council advited him not to be too halty, because Delay would breed Dictord among the Noblemen and the Favourites of King Philip, and by that means he would be reduced to submit to his Father-in-Law. This was the Posturge of Affairs in Gaftle. The Princes of Italy and other Nations expected the Event of King Philip's going into Spain, believing the Catholick King would be Affronted and much Weakened. This they were the more are to give Credit to, because they saw the Great Captain contrary to his King's Orders conto give Credit to, becaule they law the Great Captain contrary to his king's Orders continued at Naplet, which they could not believe to be without some Myllery. But he understanding these Surmises, sent before his Horses and Equipage, and with it Peter Navarro, to acquaint the Catholick King with the true Reasons of his stay, which were to Order the Garrisons, and appeale the Soldiers, who mutnined for want of Pay. On the other Side, John Baptiss Espinels went away at the same time for Spain to Complain of the Great Captain, and blame all his Proceedings; which was easie to do because he had much Credit with the Catholick King. Calumny often prevails above Truth, at least its first Efforts are more violent. Thus the Catholick King resolved to use all means to draw the Great Captain from lent. Thus the Catholick Aing reloved to the all means to draw the Great Captain from Naplez; and to this purpose appointed his Son the Archbishop of Zarageça to go, and take the Government of that Kingdom upon him. At the same time he sent from Lopes de Vergara, Secretary to the Great Captain, with a Note under his Hand, wherein he folemnly Swore, he would give him the Maltership of the Order of Santiage, as Soon as he came into Spain. This was believed to be only a Design to intrap him, for at the same time he Ordered Peter Navarro, created Earl of Olivito, to go with the Archbishop, and Apprehend Ordered Feter vavarre, created Eart of Ordering to go with the Artenbunge, and Apprenend him in Caffebrovo. The reason why the King changed his Mind, was because he received a Letter from the Great Captain assuing him of his Fidelity, and swearing to stead by him and keep that Kingdom at his Devotion, besides he promised he would soon be in Spain. Thus this Storm was laid, which at that time might have been of dangerous Confequence.

CHAP. IX.

The Spaniards and Flemmings at variance upon their first meeting; King Ferdinand railes Forces; pretending to Rescue his Daughter; Many forsake him, and he is forced to quit Castile; An Interview of the Two Kings.

O fooner were the Noblemen come to Coruña but, there arose Disputes and Contenti-Plumings, ons among them, nor could they agree with the Flemmings. The Marques of Fillens and Spenitook Place of all others, and as Lord High Steward, when the King heard Mass, stood next orde discovered the content of the co the Curtin on the one Side, and Monsieur de Vere, as Steward for Flanders, on the other. They agree could not agree about the Interview betwixt the Two Kings. The Cafilians, were for himdering of it, that they might not agree; the Flemming as the more fincere People thought it best they should meet to prevent Milunderstandings. Monsieur de Vere was he that appeared most for the Interview, yet some malicious Persons said he did it out of malice to D. John Manuel, by reason of his great Interest in King Philip. But he at this time gave greater signs of Difference, that of being in Favour; the coming of formany Noblemen having very much flartled him, fearing leaft fome of them flouid; flep in before him, and be the caule of his fall. All of them agreed in their Complaints against the Catholick King. Some thought it hard he should take to himself half the Revenue of the Crown, and not divide the Income of the Mafterlhips. Some faid, how could Three Kings be endured in Cafile; and D. John Manuel produced a Grant passed in France, wherein King Ferdinand Stiled himself King of Castile, Many, restected, that all Commands in Spain were held in the Name of the Catholick King, who was still to appoint Governors to many Cities; whereas it would not be in the power of King Philip in a long time to dispose of those Posts. Above all they exclaimed that he railed Men under Colour of letting his Daughter at Liberty; the being kept up, and not allowed to be feen by reason of her Indisposition. This Article was true, For King Ferrailed dinand had fent out Orders to levy Forces upon pretence of Refeuing his Daughter, or ratied by ftrengthen himself if they should come to an open Breach. The Duke of Alva had already railed a Force in the Kingdom of Leon, to stand by the Catholick King, he only, of all the Nobility adhering to him; tho' he was fensible of the Danger he expeled himself to, fince all forfook the King; even the Conflable who was his Son in Law, and the Admiral nnce all tollook the King; even the Containe who was his south Law, and the Fadhira his Coulin having thought it more for their Advantage to accompany King Philip. King Ferdhand not fatisfied with raifing Men in Cafile, fent an Aragonian Gentleman called Jaime Albian to acquaint the King of France with the Posture of his Astairs, and request him to flir to the Duke of Guelders and Bilhop of Liege to make War upon Flanders, by that means to bring down King Philip to his own Terms. Still the Talk of an Interview continued, bit could not be agreed upon. King Philip refolved to fet out from Cornina towards Santiago. Before him marched the Germans with their Cannon in as good Order as if they were in an Enemies Country. The fame day being the 28th of May, the Catholick king and Queen fet out towards Betanços. D. John Alonfo de Fonfeca Archbilhop of Santago had and Queen let out towards Betangos. D. John Alonjo de Fonjeca Archbilhop of Santingo had declared for the Catholick King, which was the reason King Philip would not meet him there, nor made no long stay in the Place, but turned off to Oranje, and the Catholick King staid at Villafranca. Then King Philip sent Word to the Catholick King that if he would send the Archbilhop of Toledo to him, he hoped all things would be adjusted to Content. This was accordingly done, and the Archbilhop laboured to reconcile all Differences, but adversed things the Differences, but adversed things the Differences. vanced little; the Nobility oppoing it, as unwilling that the Two Kings should be reconciled. Prom Villafranca King Ferdinand went to Baneza, and thence to Matilla, at which time many Prelates and other Gentlemen forfook him, being drawn away by the Nobles that had Declared against him. This made the Catholick King despair of being able to support himself, if the matter came to be decided by the Sword, which was the cause he endeavoured to Compound with his Son in-Law at any Rate. Hereupon he fent him a Letter defiring they might meet without farther delay or hearkning to ill affected Perfons. His answer was only Complaints that the Catholick King railed Forces against him, and that he asperfed him, giving out that he kept the Queen Priloner, and obstructed the proceedings of the nguintion, favouring those it had Apprehended; and that all this was Invented to render him Odious to his Subjects. The difficulty obstructing the Interview was, that King Philip? Party would before they met know whether the Catholick King would Confent to altering Party would before they met know whether the Catholick King would Confent to altering fome Articles of the late Agreement, and which thee were; but the Catholick King was very referved, and would not lay himself open to any till he met with his Son-in-law.

Ferdinant The Archbilhop of Toledo on the one fide, and Monsieur de Villar, with D. John Manuel, forced to on the other, by Commission from their Masters, Treated of Reconciling all Differences.

on the other, by Commission from their Mailers, Treated of Reconcuing an Differences, Their Defigns were nothing alike, and therefore they could not agree. The Arcibilhop acted fincerely, as became his Dignity, and the good Opinion conceived of his Life. The others fabrilly laboured to do all things for the Advantage of their Mafter, or at leaft to protract time, hoping at length the Catholick King being forfaken by all Men, would be lorced to depart that Kingdom, and retire to his own. The Arcibilithop defparing of coming any rate to see his Son in Law, who was now come to Verin, and thence sent D. James de Guevar to the Catholick King, then at Rienegro, to defire he would forbear going to meet him, for for thehoved. Still King Ferdinand perfilted in his Refolution. He faid his Son in-Law could not take it ill that he came to fee him, fince it was in a Peaceable manner, whereas he was prepared for War. Since it could not be avoided, Monsieur de Villar, and D. John Mannel, refolved to go meet him, and fix a day for the Interview. The Duke of Alva was feat to King Philip as a Hoftage for D. John Manuel, tho the colour was he went to Adjust fome Affairs. Mean while King Philip removed to Publia de Sanabria, and King Ferdinand to Afturianos, which are but two Leagues distant. Monsieur de Villar, and D. John being come to Afturianes, the King spoke lovingly to them without the least sign of Discontent. As to the Agreement, he answered in such manner as made it appear the fault should not lie at his Door, if all things were not done to the fatisfaction of his Son in Law. It was agreed the Interview should be the next day in a Wood, that is betwitt Puella de Sanabina, and Assirtance, near a Farm called Ramssal. The Kings set out as had been appointed, but with very unlike Attendance. King Ferdinand, with about 200 of his Followers, mounted upon Interview Mules, and without Arms, in Peaceable manner. King Phillp in a Warlike posture. Toward Puebla de Sanabria were drawn up about 2000 Pikemen, besides the Country People, and a good number of Horse that followed the Nobility. About 1000 German advanced to fee the Country was clear. After these followed King Philip's Domesticks, and he after them on Horseback, Armed under his Cloaths. On his Right Hand was the Archbishop of Toledo, on Hortedeck, Armed under ins Cloans. On its Right hand was the Archdinop of Leided, and on his Left D. John Manuel. Before he came up King Fredinand placed himself on a rifing Ground to see the Company pass by. The Grandees and other Nobles came to Kish his Hand, whom he received with a pleasant Countenance. He Embraced the Earl of Binavente, and seeling his Armour, said similing, My Lord, How comes it you are grown so said in the answered, Sir, the Times are the canse of it. To Garzilasso he said, Garzia, What are you so? He replied, By God, Sir, we are all so. Then came King Philip, who tho he shewed fome Discontent in his Looks, offered to alight, and Kis his Father in Law's Hand, but he prevented, Embracing and Kiffing him with great Signs of Affection, and a pleafant Counthe Archbilhop of Toledo and D. John Manuel. The Archbilhop with his usual Freedom said to D. John, It is not convenient for Private Men to be present at the Conference of Princes, let us to D. John, it was convenient for extension to prefer at the Convenience of runner, let us both be gone. D. John could not gainfay him. Being both together at the Door, die Arctibishop bid him go out, for he would be Porter. Then he shut the Door and sat down by it. After the usual Civilities the Kings sell to Business, and the Catholick King told King Philip. it was not for want of Bulinels or Riches that he had pretended to govern Caltile, for he had enough of both, and should advance himself little by taking from his Children, but that he had done it as being better acquainted with the Humours of the People by his long Experience, however he was willing to comply, and refign all up to him. He advifed him to be careful in the Choice of his Ministers and Counfellors, and recommended to him the Archbifthop of Toledo, as a Man fit to be trufted. King Philip antwered as he had been before infruded, and Thanked his Father in Law for his Advice. Thus they took Leave, having been together two hours, without 6 much as naming Queen Joanna. In fine, they patted more dillatisfied then they met. This Interview was upon Saturday the 20th of June.

CHAP. X.

The Two Kings of Spain agree, and join in League; Joanna, King Philip's Queen, Di-firacted through Jealousie; Troubles in Castile; King Ferdinand and his Queen go to Zaragoza ; Jealoufies started against the Great Captain ; King Philip dies.

B Oth Kings continued their Journey, at 3 or 4 Leagues distance from one another. A Leagues King Philip came to Benavente on Midjummer Day. King Ferdinand still pressed to con Desensive. clude in Friendly manner. At last their Commissioners agreed the Catholick King should and Offenclude in Friendly manner. At last tight Committioners agreed the Catholick King mount and Offenquit the Government of Cafile and retire to Aragon, fill retaining the 3 Mafterlhips, and what five beother Leagacies the Queen had left in her Will. Upon these Terms they concluded a League twixt the Defensive and Offensive. King Ferdinand Swore to this League on the 27th of June at Villa. Two

Next day King Philip also Swore it. In private they both Signed a Writing, declaring the Queen's incapacity to Govern. The Catholick King protelled he consented against this Will, being in the power of his Son in Law, and then went away to Tordefillas. There on the first of July he published Declarations, declaring his Design had always been to resign up the Gobefore he went thence, King Philip lent to acquain him with forme things that had passed be-Before he went thence, King Pohily lent to acquain him with ione things that had palled between the Queen and himfelf, defiring he would, as a Father, prevent the like for the future. King Ferdinand referred him to his own Confcience. From Tordyfillas the Catholick King went to Tiddda, a Village near Valladolid, and King Philip to Musicines. By the way he laboured to draw the Nobility to confere under their Hands to thus upthe Queen. It was granted. So the Admiral being asked to Sign, defired first to speak with the Queen. It was granted. So the Ad. miral and Earl of Bevavente, went to the Castle of Mucientes, where the Queen was. They found her in a black Room, cloathed in black, her Face almost covered. At the Door stood Garzilasso de la Vega, and within the Archbishop of Toledo. The Admiral had some Discourse Garzilaffo de la Vega, and within the Archoinop of Josean. The Ammrai nau tome Income with the Queen, and the never faid any thing from the purpose. King Philip pressed the should be shur up, the Admiral advised him to be careful what he did, for it would be of evil Confequence to go to Valladelid without her, and might be a Motive to raise Tumules under colour of setting the Queen at Liberty, That his Opinion was, he should not element the period flow up would only serve the cause from him, and fince Jealousie was her greatest Distemper, her being shut up would only ferve the cause to increase it. This being proposed in Council, it was decreed she should never let her be placed to increase it. This being proposed in Council, it was decreed she should never let her be placed to philips. Valladoid. Before this it was agreed the Two Kings should-meet at Reneds, a Village a League Queen's and a half from Tudels, and two and a half from Mucientes. King Ferdinand desired, that Distemto avoid Scandal this Meeting might be with greater Demonstrations of Affection than the personnel. to avoid Scandal this Meeting might be with greater Demonstrations of Assection than the Pormer. On the 4th of July, aster Dinner, the Two Kings set out towards Renedo. King Ferdinand came first, alighted at the Church, and there expected his Son in Law. They met with great Demonstrations of Assection, Discoursed together an hour and half, then called the Archbishop of Toledo, before whom they used many Expressions still of Kindness, no Business was spoken of, nor mention made of seing the Queen. This done they parted, and King Ferdinand went on his Journey towards Angen. The Duke of Assection that the set of the Son of Expulsion out of Cafile with great Resolution, and appeared always pleasant to the Nobility that came to take their Leave of him. If any charged others with Ingratitude to him, he said they had done him good Service, and he would Reward them as sar as lay in his Power. In thort, he went away as if he expected foon to return.

Scarce had King Ferdinand turned his Back, when there began to be great Commotions in Troubles Cafile, which made it appear to the People what mils they were like to have of the late Go-in Cafile, vernment. King Philip had fummoned the Cortes to meet at Valladolid. He fill urged to flut up the Queen on account of her Infirmity, and that the should not have any Hand in the Goup the Queen on account of the infinitely, and that no mount have my stand in the Go-vernment. The Nobinity complied, and the Archibilhop of Teledo made Interest to get the rinto his Hands. Only the Admiral of Castile opposed it, and perswaded the Commons not to confent, they promifed they would not if any of the Nobility would fland by them, and he folemnly Swore never to forfake them. Thus most of them gainfaid it, and only Swore as they had done before at Toro, Queen Joanna Queen of Castile in her own Right, the Archduke King as her Husband, and Prince Charles Heir to the Crown after his Mother's Death. They gave 100 ber Huband, and Prince Charles Heir to the Crown after his Mathor's Douth. They gave soo Millions of Maravedies, to be raifed in two years, for carrying on the War against the Moorr, which was looked upon as a heavy Tax by reason of the Famine then raging in Castile. Spain was supplied with Corn out of Sicily, a thing never before heard of. It was also surprising that the Council of State began to interfere with the Business of the Inquisition. They gave Ear to those who made Complaint against James Radriguez Lusero Inquisitor at Cordeva, him and his Inserior Officers they designed to remove from their Employments. The Earl of Cabra and Marques of Priego stood up for them. The People Mutinied, secured the Judge and a Notary of the Inquisition, and entred the Palace where the Inquisitors resided. They complained of the Archbishop of Sevil, D. James de Peza, with was Head Inquisitor, and of all the General Council of the Inquisition, which was made up of Dr. Roderick de Mercado, who was afterwards Cardinal and Archbishop of Toledo, and the Licentiate Sosia, all Men of known Integrity. They resided as Tore, and had in Cultody a great number of rich Jews. It was no lefs strange, that at once all the Governors of Towns and Forts, and Generals of known Integrity. They refided at Tora, and had in Cultody a great number of rich Jeon. It was no lefs firange, that at once all the Governors of Towns and Forts, and Generals of the Frontiers, were changed. This Alteration was the cause of Three great Evils, one, that many Places of Trust were given to Flowing. The, second, that the number of Preferments being so great, they were not bestowed on Deserving Persons, but as every Courtier or Nobleman was in favour, or else as every one offered most. Money. The third, that all those who were removed thought themselves wronged, being outed those Places without any cause, which they had obtained by their Service. This was cause of great Discontent. The Discontent of those who had lost their Places, the Ignorance of the new Officers, and above all, the Report that all Preferments were sold, and that the Queen was fill Treated, gave occasion to the Multitude to Mutiny and Combine together for Redrelling those Grievances, and preventing greater they seared were like to follow. Now, it was thought, had the Catholick venting greater they feared were like to follow. Now, it was thought, had the Catholick King returned into Caltile, all Men would have followed him, and the new King began to be held in fuch fmall Account, that when he would have made Garcilasso de la Vega President of the Council, and Tutor to Prince Ferdinand, the Nobility would not allow him either. D. John Manuel acted as President till such time as that Employment was disposed of. In Andaluxir the Duke of Medina Sidonia, the Earl of Urena, the Marquels de Priege, and Earl of Cabra met, as was supposed to Treat about fetting the Queen at liberty. The King and Queen in August went iron Valladolid to Segovia, on account that the Marquels and Marchionels of Moya would not resign the Command of that Castle to D. John Manuel, as they were nels of Moya would not relign the Command of that Cattle to D. John Manuel, as they were ordered. But they knowing Forces were raifing againft them, fibmitted. The King hearing of it, returned to Tudela de Duero, defigning for Burgos and Vitoria, becaule it was reported the French had a Force in readinels to invade the Frontiers on that fide. To fecure himself on the fide of Navarre, he appointed the Duke of Najora General of those Frontiers, in the place of D. John de Ribera, and concluded a League with that King and Queen, for Caffile and Leon, without mentioning his Father in Law or the Kingdom of Aragon, which was contrary to the Agreement made with King Ferdinand at Villafafila, and misbecoming the Duty of a Son to a Father.

Duty of a Son to a Father.

King Ferdinand

The Catholick King by the way of Montagudo and Hariza, went to Zaragoça, where the dinand

Queen first, and then he, were received with great Joy, the People having conceived hopes and his Queen king?s Marriage would produce a King of their own. By the way, before King Ferdinand left Caffile, he at feweral times pressed in Right Philip to deliver up to him Duke Valentin as his Prisoner, that he might keep him in some fecture place in Aragon, or carry him over to Naples, whither he designed soon to go, and to that effect was string out a felter at Barcelona.

The Catholick King fent Charles de Alagon to Naples, to give Advice of his coming, and Affure the Colloneses that regard should be had to their Services. On the 4th of September he set sail from Barcelona, and with him Queen Germana, the Two Queens of Naples, Mother and Daughter. Barcelona, and with him Queen Germana, the Two Queens of Naples, Mother and Daughter, and a great number of Capitilian and Catalonian Noblemen that attended upon him: The Fleet was very great, for in it were the Galleys of Sicily commanded by Triflam Dolz, and those of Catalonia by D. Raymund de Cardona, besides many Ships. The Galleys of Naples were lest there for the Great Captain to come out and meet the King, which he did accordingly On the 7th of September he set out from Naples by Land, the Weather being unfit for the Galleys. He stayed at Gaeta till the 20th of the month. With him was the Duke of Termens, and many Spanish and Italian Gentlemen. Prisoners he carried the Prince of Resono, the Marques of Bitonto, Alons de Samsevrino, and Fabricius de Gesuldo, others he lest sick to Naples. At the same time King Polish being come to Bargos, and lodged in the Constables House, immediately ordered the Lady Joanna de Aragon, the Constables Wife, to depart the Court, that the Queen might have no body to make her Complaints to. The Sestlement made by the Nobility of Castile after the death of King Philip; The Catholick King goes over to Naples, his Reception in that City; No Settlement in the Government of Castile. Amidst their Confusions Duke Valentine makes his E-

ons upon of King

O foncer was King Philip dead, but feveral Malignant Humours began to appear; there being no Body left to put a ftop to Evils that Threatned the Commonwealth. The Queen to whom this principally appertained, was Incapacitated by reason of her Indiposition. Her Son Prince Charles was a Child and Bred abroad, and if he Succeeded in the Bucceeded i dipolition. Her Son Prince Charlet was a Child and Bred abroad, and if he Succeeded in the Place of his Mother, he mult be governed by Strangers. Of his Two Grandlathers, the Emperor was far off, and unacquainted with the Affairs of Spain. Only King Fredinand, on whole Prudence they might Rely; but he was then absent, disjusted, and some search he would if he were in Power, Revenge the Affronts offered him. For this Reaston many projected strange Methods of Government; and the day before King Philip died, there being no hopes of Life, there was sinch Contention among the Nobility as threatned a War. To prevent all Differs, the Constable, the Admiral, and Duke del Myantedo Met, and Declared for his Catholick Majesty, and joining with the Duke of Najera and Marguels de Villena, the Heads of the contrary Faction at the Archbilhop of Toledo's Lodging, they agreed that all Debates arising, should be absolutely decided by the Archbilhop, and 6 others cholen out of both Parties, and that their Determination should be binding. Thus on the First of Odeber Articles of Agreement were Concluded upon among the Nobles, and they all Swore to stand by them, and they to continue in Force all the Month of December. Among other things it was Decreed, that none should presume to levy Forces. That none should insert or Invade the Lands, Castles and Towns of another. That none should brief or Invade the Lands, Castles and Towns of another. and none monic interference of the Queen who was of Burger, or of Prince Ferdinand who was at Simancas. Peter Nance, de Gueen who was of Burger, or of Prince Ferdinand who was at Simancas. Peter Nance, de Gueen his Governor, to prevent any furprize, had Recourfe to the Prefident and Council of Palladolid, and they went to Simancas, and brought away the Prince, Placeing him in Safety in the College of S. Gregory, Built by D. Alonfo de Burger Bi-floop of Palencie, and given to the Dominicans. The fame day the Nobility Concluded their Agreement & Burger & College & King Environment of the Property of the College of t Agreement at Burgot, the Catholick King, arrived at Genoa. His Voyage was tedious, contrary Winds forcing him to touch at Palamoi, and Toulon; and then to Coast along by Sanona and Genoa. Before he came to that City, he was met by the Great Captain with the Gallies of Naples. The King received him with great Affection, being then convinced of his Fidelity; notwithflanding all Afgerifons caft upon him, and ipoke very much in his Commendation, both before him and in his Abfence. Moft Men, but particularly the Italian King For could hardly be perfuvaded that fo Wife a Man as the Great Captain would put himself in the Power of fo jealous a King. The City sent the King many Presents, the's the would hardly be perfuvaded that fo Wife a Man as the Great Captain would put himself in the Power of fo jealous a King. The City sent the King many Presents, the's the would ready to Affist his Brother the King of France. This made them quiet for the present, the's force after they obliged the King of France. To come into Italy to pacific them. Putting to ready to Janus in strong the King of France to come into Italy to pacific them. Putting to Sea again from Genoa, contrary Winds forced him into Portofo, there on the 5th of Odober he received the News of the death of King Philip. The Archbilhop of Toledo and others of his Party defired him to return with all speeced to Caffile, as did also D. Alvaro Osirio who was with him, with the Character of Ambassador from King Philip. Yet he resolved to prosecute his Voyage. He writ to the Prelates and Nobility, expressing his Grief for the death of King Philip, and Recommending to them to continue Loyal to the Queen, promiling to be with them as foon as he had fettled the Affairs of Naples.

ite comes From Portof he went on to Gaeta, where at Puzol he fpent fome days to give the Neapolito Naples, tans time to prepare for his Reception, for they had never believed he would come, especially after the death of King Philip. From Puzol he went to Castel del Quo, there on the First of November 20 Galleys came out of the Port, and the King went aboard the Admiral. The Cannon of the Galleys was fired first, and then that of the Castles and the Ships in the Harbour. This done, the Galleys laid along the fide of the Mole. The King and Queen landed by a wooden Bridge built for that purpose. The Great Captain and all the Nobility came out to meet them. Being come to the last Arch of the Bridge, the Great Captain leading the Queen, there the King fwore to preferve the Privileges of that City. After which, they took Horfe under a Canopy carried by the Elects of the People. Fabricine Golona carried the Royal Standard, given him by the King himlelf, with the Honour of Standard bearer: Next him went the Kings at Arms, then the Great Captain, and on his Right-hand Profper Colona: After them, the other Nobility and Amballadors. But the pleafancel Sight of all was, the Prisoners then set at Liberty. Next behind the Canopy were the Two Cardinals of Borgia and Sorenso. In this manger they were conducted through the Principal Streets, and Lanes of Gentlemen and Ladies richly clad, and great Companies of Vocal and Instrumental Musick. Being come to the Great Church, they were received by the Clergy and Religious Orders in Procedion. At Castelmovs, where the Cavalcade ended, they were received by the Two Queens of Naples and the Queen of Hungary. Next day the King rode about the City, accompanied by the Barons, and to Honour the Great Captain alighted at his House. He entred upon Busines, and went about to restore Ten Barons who had Forseited their Estates. A Parliament was held, where they took the Oath of Fidelity to the King, to his Daughter Queen Joanna, and their Heirs, without mentioning Queen Germana, contrary to the Agreement made with France. The Pretence was, that the was indisposed, and had already been Sworn Queen of Naples at Valladolid. Mean while Caffile was full of private Diffention, yet nothing broke out in publick. The Queen neither would nor could attend the Government; only fuch as would, obeyed the Orders of the Council. Some would have the Cortes affemonly then as would not go be a close of the Council Soline would have the Correst anembled to appoint Governours. This was chiefly urged by the Archbishop of Toledo, the Conflable, and the Admiral. They could never persuade the Queen to sign the Writs, and Uncertain therefore the Council issued them. The Duke of Alva, tho not at Court then, opposed it, Governfaying only the King could affemble the Cortes. For this reason, tho' some of the Commons ment of laying only the King could attembte the Cortes. For this reaton, the Tome of the Commons ment, nothing was done. All was in confusion, the Nobility at variance; but yet the most Confusion agreed that King Ferdinand ought to Govern. The chief of these were the Archbishop of Toledo, the Constable, the Admiral, and the Dukes of Albuquerque and Bejar. Some of these would not allow him to Govern, unless he were present; others said he might, the Aschot. Of these was the Archbishop, who follicited the King and Oneen to give him as ample Comof there was the Antonimor, who know that the same and a subject the million as when he Treated with King Philip. The Duke of Najara, D. Alonfo Tellea, Brother to the Marqueß of Villena, and D. John Manuel, were of Opinion that no account ought to be made of the Queen, no more than if she were dead, by reason of her Weakness; and therefore her Son Charles ought to fucceed. But neither could they agree in this Point, for the Puke would have him brought to Spain, that fuch as the Kingdom made choice of might Govern in his Name. D. Alonfo faid, the Protectorship belonged to the Emperor as Grandfather by the Father's fide. This Opinion prevailed above the Duke's and the Emperour was desirous to take upon him the Government, proposing to come himself into Spain. Somethere defirous to take upon him the Government, propoling to come himlell into Spain. Some there were that would commit the Government to the King of Pertugal, and marry Prince Feedinand to his Daughter Elizabeth, proclaiming him King, being utterly averfe to strangers, others were for marrying the Daughter of King Philip to the Prince of Viana, and so putting the Kingdom under the King and Queen of Navarre. These were all Chimera's, framed according to every Man's Interest. They said the Archbishop aimed at a Cardinal's Cap, and desired a Bishoprick for his Companion F. Francs Rays. The Duke del Infantada coveted the Bishoprick of Paleusia for one of his Sons.

The Duke of Albuquerque would have the Castle Searchia returned to the Marques of Maya. of Segovia restored to the Marquels of Moya. The Duke of Najara was displeased to see the Constable to great with the Catholick King, and the Marquels de Villena was unpicated to let the Duke of Alva's Favour. The Earl of Benavente would have the Fair granted to his own Town of Villalon by King Philip, confirmed, tho' it was to the Prejudice of Medina del Campo. Others had other private Pretentions, without any regard to the Publick Good. To prevent Dif-orders, the Archbishop of Toledo and the Deputies for deciding of Controverses, agreed that the Nobility should Swear, That before the Meeting of the Cortes, they would not call in any Prince, nor make any fort of Contract with any; and the Catholick King from Naples writ to many of the Nobility, promising to content them in their Pretentions. The Diffention among the Nobility gave occasion to many Disorders: One was, the escape of Duke Valentine from Mota de Medina. He fled to the Lands of the Earl of Renavente, and thence, with the affiliance of the faid Earl, to Nevarre. D. John de Guerram, Duke of Medina Sidonia, fent his Son Honry with Forces to beliege Gibraltar, a Place given him by King Honry, and taken away by King Ferdinand. The Governour in it defended himself; and Relief being fent by the Earl of Tendilla and the Councils of some Cities, the Siege was raised. The Archbishop of Sevill promifed he would prevail with the Queen and the King her Father to fland Trial at Law with the Duke. Afterwards the Duke and Archbishop met at Toçina with the Earl of Uron, and Cabra, and the Marquels of Priego, and there engaged together to fland by the Queen and Kingdom, to obey all Orders from the Queen and Council; but as for the Cortes, they protefled, if their Resolutions were not for the Honour of God and the Advantage of the Queen and her Kingdom, they thought not themselves obliged to obey them. D. Roderick at Mendoça, Marquels of Cente, was upon marrying the Lady Fonfeca; but some Dispute ariting about it, that Lady was by the Queen's Order fecured; yet the Marques took her by force out of the Monastery of Huelgas at Valladolid. At Toledo the Earl of Fuenfalida would not allow Peter de Castilla as Governour; but the Family of the Sylva's, and some Soldiers fent by retriet commanded Vega, standing by him, the Earl was forced to desift. At Madrid the Family of the Zapata's, and D. Peter Lasse de Gastilla, took up Arms for the Catholick King, and John Arias to oppose them. At Segevia the Marquels of Maya secured the Great Church and Gates of the City, hoping to recover the Castle. Thus all the Kingdom was in a Flame, and no body to quench it.

CHAP. II.

Oueen Joanna departs from Burgos; Is wholly incapable of having any Part in the Government. The affairs of Naples. Queen Joanna brought to bed of a Daughter at Torquemada. Great Disorders in Castile.

THE Queen, by reason of her Indisposition, was rather a Hindrance than a Help to Business. On All-Saints-day having heard Mass in the Monastery of Miraflores, after Dinner she caused the Coffin of the late King her Husband to be opened, as was believed fearing it had been carried away to Flanders by the Flemings, who pressed to be paid their Arrears, in order to return home. This being proposed to the Queen, she gave no answer, but that she would take care to pray to God for her Husband. It was several times proposed to remove her from Burger, but she could be persuaded to nothing that did not hit with her own Humour. Her Combut the could be pertuded to including that his his his men and of the third pany file most delighted in was the Lady Jamaa d'Aragon, the Marchioness of Denia, the Countes of Salimas, and the Lady Mary de Ulua. Being very big with Child, the reforded to remove to Torquemada, and carry the Body of her Husband, in order to fend it to Granada. The day before fine fet out, she commanded John Lopez de Lazarra her Secretary, to write an Order, by which all Grants made by her Husband were vacated. This being a thing of dangerous Confequence, the Secretary delayed it, and thereupon she called Four of the Council to iffue that Order. She appointed such as had been of the Council in the time of her Mother to continue, and the rest to be removed. Some of the Commons asking whether she would be pleased to fend Two of them to intreat King Ferdinand to come and affift her in the Government: She answered, she would be glad of the King's coming, but said nothing as to the Government. Yet she bid them be gone, and not meddle in any thing that related to the Cortes without her Order, which was as good as diffolving that Affembly. The Queen let out by night with the Body of her late King, and came about midnight to Cavia, and thence went to Torquemada, where the stayed. At Burgos remained the Council of State, the Archbishop of Toledo, the Admiral, and Duke of Najara. Differences arole about protracting the Term prefix'd to the Agreement made betwixt the Nobility. The Conftable opposed, and the Admiral was for prolonging of it, and having the Council Obey till the Catholick King came. To obstruct whose coming, some proposed the Queen should marry; but the Queen would hear nothing of it.

Embaffies Many Ambaffadors from the Princes of Italy reforted to King Ferdinand at Naples. It was to K. Fr. contrived, with the Affiltance of the King of France, to obstruct the Emperour's taking the dinand at Government of Flanders into his hands, that so neither he nor his Grandson Prince Charles might come into Spain. The King of France endeavoured to join in League with King Ferdinand and the Pope against the Venetians, to recover such Places of his as they possessed. The Catholick King was willing, that fo he might regain what they had in the Kingdom of Naples. Yet he thought better to be at Peace with that Republick, that he might be at leifure to attend the more important Affairs of Caffile. Some time before died his Ambaffador to that State Laurence Suarez, and his Son Gonzalo Ruyz de Figueroa succeeded him. The Pope, to that state Latteries shares, and this soil consequences register registron accessed minimal to the consequences and the same against John de Benigwoglia, who had feized the City Belognia, yet thought good to make use of the Catholick King, who sent to acquaint Benizwoglia, That he could not but affilt the Pope in recovering the Patrimony of the Church. Hereupon Bentiveglia offered to admit the Pope upon certain Conditions, which was accordingly done. King Ferdinand sent Antony d'Acuña to Congratulate with the Pope, and endeavour to join in a strick League with him, to the end to obtain the Investiture of Naples for himself and his Heirs, notwirhstanding the Agreement made with France. For Kings regard nothing but their own Interest. At the end of the Year he sent F. Giles de Viterbo, Vicar General of the Order of S. Augustin, to offer his Forces to the Pope for recovery of the Lands of the Church, and to make War upon the Turks. At this time the restoring of the Barons of the Faction of Anjou to their Ellates was in hand, a thing very difficult, their Lands being given to those that had Served the King. He was forced to requite those that were in possession, to buy our whole Estates, and alienate part of the Crown-Lands to satisfie them all. The Chief Men reflored were the Princes of Salerno, Bifignano, and Melfi, the Dukes of Tangeto and Arri, the Earls of Conça, Morcon, and Monteieon; and belides these, Alonfo de Sanseverino. The Dukedom of Seffa was bought outright, and given to the Great Captain, a Reward due to his great Services. Many Italians and Spaniards had the Lands before given them taken away, which the latter easily condescended to, being desirous to return to their Country, and content with any Recompence there. Yet even some of these had no manner of Satisfaction made them in Spain. Special regard was had to content the Urfini and Colonefes, the Two Principal Families in Rôme. Care was allo taken to gain the People of Siena, and the Lord of Piombino, Two important Places for the Affairs of Italy. The Bilhop of Lowrain and Luke de Reynalds came to Naples from the Emperour, about fettling the Government of Calfile. They having Complimented the King upon his Arrival in that Kingdom, proposed, that the Government nours then in being might be continued; and also that the Barons of the French Faction might nours their in Continuous, and and that the Datains of the Present Leather linguis-not be reflored, because it was entertaining of fo many Enemies. Likewife, that the King should promote the Match before agreed upon, betwist Prince Charles and Claudia Daughter to the King of France. In order to it, they faid it was convenient the King and Empe Prafitics? rour should meet. The Emperour designed to go into Italy, under colour of being Crowned; of the Emi but his Defign was to oppose the King of France, who it was reported would go to Rome, peter to be Crowned Emperour, and create the Cardinal d'Amboise Pope, of which the Emperour grievoully complained in the Diet affembled at Constance. The King immediately answered the Ambassadors, That the Government of Castile belonged only to his Daughter; and in case the could not or would not manage it, then it only appertained to him as her Father, and the same if she should die; and that as yet there were no Governours chosen in Castile. As for the Barons, that he had promifed, and could not avoid restoring their Estates. That in what related to the Marriage, the King of France had acquainted him how displeasing it was to his People to have Britany and Milan alienated from the Crown; and therefore defired the Princels might be married to the Duke of Anguallelme, who was their to the Crown. And as to the Interview, he said he should be glad of it when Affairs would permit. In a Second Audience, the Ambatladors offered, that the Emperour would give the King the Title of Emperour of Italy, refign over all his Right to it, and affift him in the subduing of it. To this he answered, it was not not convenient the Emperour should lessen his own Authority; and for himself, he coveted no more of Italy than was his own. Then they propothorney, and to miner, in exceed to mote have fail was in some Their step proposed a League betwixt the Emperour, Kings of France and Spain, and the Pope, against the Vience intians. To which he faid, if the rest were agreed, he would not oppose it. Then the King sent D. Jayme de Conchillos, Bisshop of Girachi, his Ambassador to the Emiperour, on presence of prevailing with the Plemmings to admit of the Emperour as their Governour, for Prince Charles his Grandson. But at the same time the King's Deligns, were quite different, as has Queen Joanna was, at Torquemada at the beginning of the Year 1507. There on the 14th, 1507, of January she was delivered of a Daughter called Catherine, asterwards Queen of Portugal, Quiannal She was in great danger for want of a Midwife, which want was supplied by the Lady Mary de delivered Ulloa, her Favourite and Lady of the Bedchamber. The Council laboured to compose the Daughter. Differences betwixt the Nobility; but their Orders were of fmall force. The Mutiny at Cordova about the Inquisitors encreased. The chief Reason was, That the Prisoners to make their Business the more intricate, had brought in many of the Nobility as accessary to their Crimes. This the People attributed to the Malice of the Inquifitors. At Toledo the Silva's and Applies took up Arms; the latter in defence of a Judge fent by the Council with Power to controul the Governour and his Officers. The Silva's flood by the Governour, and had fe Mutiny at cured the Gates and Bridges; but the People favouring the Ayala's, the Governour was turned out, and feveral People were killed and wounded in the Scuffle. Madrid was in a Mutiny betwixt the Two Parties of D. Peter Laffo de Castilla, and John Arias, the former being for King Ferdinand, Philip Vafquez, d'Aciña, Governour of Cuena, kept the Coincil of that City under, fo that they could not obey the Queen's Orders. James Hustado de Mandey, how thin out of the City, and ordered that the Cou. I coi. ould chule Two Meaides, who throad him out of the City, and ordered that the Cou. I coi. ould chule Two Meaides, who throad Govern the City in the Queen's Name. At Segovia the Marquess of Moya had belieged the Caltle, turned out all the Citizens that opposed him, and burnt the Church of S. Romanus, where fome of them made themselves firong. The Queen only ferved to hinder Business. To prevent these Mischiols spreading in Andelsaria, the Marques de Priego, the Earl of Cabra; the Earl of Tendila Captain-General of Granda, and the Lieutenant of Murcia, affociated themselves in savour of the Queen, to preserve that Country in Peace till the coming of the Catholick King. The Earl of Urena coming to Court, interposed his Authority for reconciling the Nobility, tho' at the same time he made his Complaint, and had his Pretentions. which tended to be restored to the Government of Carmona taken from him, and to obtain a Commendary for his Son Roderick. The Admiral raised Men to recover Villena and Villavicencio, wrongfully taken from him, as he faid, by the Duke of Alva. The Duke of Najard had a Guard of armed Men, and at Villamedina took up the House appointed for the Council; who thereupon removed to Palencia. D. John Manuel came to Taquemada with 60 Horfe. The Marques de Villena and Constable levied Forces. The Archbishop of Toledo gathered 400 Men, and ordered the Ordinary Guards to be paid out of his own Revenue, and would have had them Sworn to the Queen and himfelf. Hercupon the Duke of Najara raifed more Men. and they were near coming to Blows with those of the Archbishop. To prevent these Diforders, it was deared that no armed Men but those of the Queen and Archbishop should remain in the Town, upon which the Duke went away in a Passion. D. John Manuel the Admiral, the Marquels of Villena, Earl of Benavente, and Andrew de Burgo the Emperour's Amballador, met at Grijota, in order to hinder the coming of King Ferdinand, unless he first sacontained, there is a trypus, in color of interest the colling of Killing and many control of the Archibithop and Coinfable kept the Queen Prifoner. Laftly, they went to Villation to levy Forces to relieve the Castle of Segovia; before the Marquels of Maya. The King of Partugal he'd Intelligence with the Marquels at Villena, to obstruct the coming of the Catholick King, neral intenigence with the Marques at Finena, to constitute the coming of the Cartonick Ming, and promote the Emperor's bringing Prince Charles, and taking upon him the Government. At this time came from Rome D. Amony Acina, being made Bishop of Zamora. He had Orders to make large Promises to the Marques de Villena, as did D. Alvaro Olovio to the Duke of Najara and D. John Emanuel, if they would take Party with the Catholick King; but all was and the Council, because he was not presented by the Queen, sent Orders to the Chapter not to admit him; or if admitted, not to continue him. These Orders came after he was in possession, and the Alcaide Ronquillo was fent to put them in execution, but the Bishop apprehended and kept him Prisoner. The Governour of Salamanca and Duke of Alva gathered a Force to revenge that Assign one to the Open; but all in vain, for D. Antony kept his Bishoprick. All the Kingdom was full of Tumults, Oppression, Complaints, and Pretensions. The best strove to sell their Loyalty at as dear a rate as they could. The Catholick King, tho' he designed not to take Revenge of those that opposed him, thought it hard to buy what he looked upon his as Right. At this time the Council Prorogued the Cortes for 4 Months whereupon the Commons, who ffill continued at Burgos, returned home.

CHAP. III.

The Death of Duke Valentine, and Troubles in Navarre. The Treaty betwirt the Emperor and King Ferdinand. The Great Captain courted to Command the Venetian and Pope's. Forces. King Ferdinand fettles the Affairs of Naples, and departs from that

Hilft Cafile was thus in confusion, new Troubles broke out in Navarre. King John taking the advances of the Caballah Victorial Carballah Victorial taking the advantage of the Catholick King's absence, who always was a Check upon him, refolved to be revenged upon his Constable the Earl of Lerin, who had offered him many Affronts, and still been protected by Cafille. As soon as Duke Valentine, the King's Brother in Law, came into Navarre, he made him his General, resolving to seize all the Earl of Lerin's Estate, as of an Enemy to the Crown. He gathered 200 Light-Horse, 150 Men at Arms, and about 500 Foot. With this Force he fate down before Viana on the 10th of March. In this Place was Luis de Biamonte the Conftable's Son. The Night following being very flormy, the Constable with 200 Horse put Supplies into the Place, leaving 600 Foot without in ambulh. Being discovered in his return, he was charged by Duke Valentine with about 70 Horse, the King coming after with the other Forces. The Duke having killed and taken Duke Ve by a Horfeman, and those that lay in ambush rushing out, killed and stripped him to his Shirt, without knowing who he was. He being Ilain, all the Forces returned to their Camp. The Constable went away to Lerin. Thus died he that had been the Firebrand of all Laly. It was observed he died in the Diocess of Pamploma, which was the First Bishoprick he had, and on the same Day he had first taken possession of it. He left only one Daughter in the keeping of her Unkle the King of Navarre, who pressed the Siege, being reinforced with some Troops from the Constable of Castile. The Duke of Najara and Archbishop of Zara. nome 1 roops from the Contrable of Caffile. The Duke of Najara and Archbilhoo of Zaragoga prepared to relieve the Place; yet it was furrendered, and the King with 600 Hore and 8000 Foot laid figge to Ruga. The Council of Caffile fent to require the King of Navarre to forbear using Force for 3 Months. The King offered to condeteend, if the Earl would K. Jahn of come and beg his Pardon, deliver up the Town of Lerin, fend his Sons to Court, and then Navarre himself depart the Kingdom. Still whill they treated, the King went on, took Raga and all full was to the Place from the Fall and the Carlot for the Fall and t other Places from the Earl; only Lerin held out fome time, but was at last forced to submit. nis kepel-lions Sub-Upon this the Earl went away to Castile, and thence to Aragon, having not a Foot of Land Lypon to see the train went away to Lapine, and thence to Aragon, having not a Foot of Land left him in Navurre, Now the Catholick King's Party, what with Promites, and what with prefent Glits, was grown confiderable. Many died of the Plague at Torquemada, the Infection foreading this Year through all Spain: The Queen went to Hornillot, a Village a League from that Town, refolving to expect the coming of her Father taperabouts. She had reflored to the Council fuch as were of it in her Mother's time, and dicharged the refl. It was endeavoured to periuade her to recall that Order, but the could not be prevailed upon. At Segoria the Marquek of Moya continued the Siege of the Callle, and the well defended for 6 Months, it being undermined, the Belieged furrendered on the 15th of May.

The Emperor's Ambassadors at Naples pressed for an Interview betwixt their Master and King Ferdinand, and proposed Nice or Rome for the Places to meet at, faying, They could distracts more Business in one Day being together, than in several Months at a distance. King Ferdinand gave many Excuses to avoid meeting; whereupon the Ambassadors required him not to return to Caltile till all Differences were adjusted; for otherwise the Emperor would also not to return to Caffile till all Differences were adjusted; for otherwise the Emperor would allo be obliged to go thither, and then all the Mischiefs that should follow, must be imputed to him Treaty that was the Cause of them. This looked more like a Challenge, that an overture of accomprodation. Yet the Ambassadours were appointed to treat with the great Captain, the Lord roand Chamberlain and Secretary. King Perdinand pleaded that being the Queen's Father he had King Frakight to be her Tutor, besides that it was her own desire, and he had been appointed by the dinand. Will of Queen Elizabeth. For the Emperor it was urged, that the Queen being non Compor, the Prince was to succeed, and then his Grandsather by the Fathers side ought to be Tutor; before the Associated by the variety contractive to the Promise media of Compor. fides that the Catholick King was married contrary to his Promife made to Queen Elizabeth, and that the Nobility were against him. As a medium between both it was proposed on the Emperors part that the Government flould be committed to 24 Perfons, 16 to be chosen by the Emperor and 8 by the Catholick King, that of all Preferments the King should have the Gift of one 3d part, and the other two should be in the disposal of the Governours, that the Revenue should be divided into four parts, 3 for the Queen and the 4th for the King. That to fecure Prince Charle in the Succession, all Places of Strength should be put into the Emperor's hands. That some Children of the Nobility should be sent to Flanders to be bad with Prince Charles, and Security given that none should suffer for having taken part with King Philip. That the Investiture of Naples should be obtained in such manner as might not be prejudicial to Prince Charles. The Catholick King not approving of these Conditions prepared to depart, notwithstanding the Emperor required him not to stir till all differences were agreed. Nevertheless King Ferdinand being resolved to return to Spain, sent Bernard Dexpueb Master of Montesa, Amony Augustino, and Hierome Vichis Ambasiladors to do Homage to the Pope, which was done on the 30th of April, and at the same time an offer made of all the King's Forces for the Service of the Church. The Pope was well pleased; and in Token of his Affection sent the golwhice of the Church. The Pope was well pleated; and in Token of its Antection lent the golden Rose that is blessed on Chrismas Night to the King. He also offered the Great Caprain to make him General of the Forces of the Church, which Employment the Venetians also offered bina in their Service, but the King prevented him from accepting either by promising again to make him Master of the Order of Santiago. That it might not be thought an empty Promise, the King sad given Orders to his Ambassador Antony Angulino to obtain leave of the Pope to resign that Dignity into the hands of the Archisthops of Tokedo and Sevil and the Bings of the Control of the Control of the Pope to resign that Dignity into the hands of the Archisthops of Tokedo and Sevil and the Bings of the Control of the Control of the Pope to the Pope to the Control of the Pope to the Pope floop of Palencia, that with the Pope's Commission they might confer it upon the Great Captain. The Pope was willing the Great Captain should have that Dignity, but would not agree to the Committion as a lessening of his own Authority. Hereupon the business was delayed, which made it all to be looked upon as an Artifice of the King'sto draw the great Captain out of Italy. He was then Duke of Sessa and Terranova and Constable of Naples. King Ferdinand being desirous to alter the late Capitulation with France touching the Inheritance of the Kingdom of Naples in case Queen Germana had no listue, promised to assist the Cardinal d'Amboise towards obtaining the Papacy if he would prevail with the King of France to quit his ptetentions to that Crown. It was indeed but reasonable since the King of France obstructed the Marriage of Prince Charles with his Daughter Claudia and thereby cut him off the Inheritance of Britany and Milan, that he should make him amends by quitting all Claim to Naples. The King of France would not hearken to this, being offended the Nobility at Naples had taken the Oath of Fi-delity to Queen Joanna without making mention of Queen Germana, contrary to the express Articles fworn to by the Catholick King.

It was very requifite the Catholick King should hasten his Return to Spain, but the Af-

It was very requisite the Catholick King inouid natien in Keurin to Spain, out the Al-fairs of Naples detained him. He pressed the Pope to grant him the Investiture of Naples for which the Pope at last was willing to grant upon condition he would recover for him the Naples feet led. Cities of Faença and Arimino taken by the Venetians. This being a thing could not be prefently done the King resolved to depart. To oblige the great Captain the more, he caused a publick Instrument to be made in vindication of his Loyalty, Copies whereof were sent to all Princes. John de Lanuça, Viceroy of Sicily, was come to Naples, him he resolved to leave with the same character in that Kingdom. But both he and his Son dying before the king embarqued, he gave that Command to his Nephew D. John de Aragon Earl of Riba-gorça, and fent D. Raynund de Cardona to Sicily with the Title of Lievtenant General. The Viceroy was commanded not to distoblige the Coloness and Urssin, and Bartholment de Albi-ano, having submitted himself to the King, was restored to his Estate. Besides the ordinary Forces, 200 Gentlemen were appointed to do Duty at Court, and 150 Duceats pay allowed each of them. Philip Ferreras was fent Ambassadour to Venice to assure that State, which was jealous of the Kings deligns. All things being thus ordered the King fet fail on the 4thof June with 16 Galleys. Eight days before the Ships fet out under the Command of the Earl Peter Navarro. At this time the Kingdom of Portugal was in a most flourishing condition, and famous throughout the World, for the valour and prudence of its King. On the 5th of June the Queen was deliver'd at Lifbon of a Son called Ferdinand, who died in the flower of his Age. Some Noblemen of Caffile and particularly the Marquels de Villena would have committed the Government of Castile to the King of Portuga!, to exclude King Fird mand. He thought not good to hazard any thing upon the promifes of fo few, tho at the same time he was willing to have had a hand in the Government of Castile that he might marry his Children to those of Queen Jamma, and make use of the Forces of that Crown for advancing his Conquests in India and Africk, or at least have conveyed that Power to the Emperour. The King of Navarre, also offered the Emperour passage through his Kingdom, being jealous if the Catholick King grew to powerful he would never defit till he had deprived him of his Crown. The Nobility of the Emperor's Faction pressed him to come over: and it is certain he had possitively resolved to take a journey into Spain.

CHAP. IV.

The King of France enters Italy with an Army to reduce Genoa, has an Interview with King Ferdinand, who returns to Castile. The Spaniards defeated in Africk. The Emperor offended at King Ferdinand.

The King of France was now in Italy, whither he came with a great Army to reduce the Genecles, who had mutiny'd against the Nobility, beaten down the French Arms, and chofen for their Duke one Paul de Nobe a Silk Dyer. It was agreed that as the Catholick King returned to Spain he should meet the King of France at Savona. Bad Weather detained the Galleys some time at Gaeta and upon the Coast of Rome and Tuscany. On the 26th of June the Catholick King came to Genea, where Gafton de Foix, Lord of Narbonne, his Nephew and Brotherin-law, went out to meet him with 4 Galleys. The King of France being before at Savona met the Catholick King upon the shoar, and having embrac'd him, they went together under a Canopy to the Castle where they were to be entertained, King Ferdinand on the right hand the King of France on the left and the Queen in the middle. The more to honour them, the French in King of France went to lodge in the Bishop's House. On S. Peter's Day they heard Mast to tasty.

gether, the Nobility of both Kingdoms vying in cottly Apparel. That night the Queen supped with the King of France her Unkle, and the two Cardinals of S. Praxeder and d'Ambosse with King Ferdinand. Next night the two Kings and Queens supped together and with them the great Captain at the Request of the King of France who spoke very honourably of him. King Ferdinand commended the Lord of Abbign, who thence conceived hopes of recovering the Earldom of Venafra, which he was possess of when the War broke out. It was the Subject of many reflections, that the Catholick King put himself into the Power of his Competitor. The chief business discoursed of at this Interview was about the League against the Venetians, before designed. The Kings having taken leave of one another, King Ferdinand profecuted his voyage which was tedious, by reason of contrary winds. He arrived at Codaquer upon the Coale of Catalonia on the 11th of July, but because the Plaque was, in that
Countrey, failed away to Valencia, where he arrived the 2 oth of the same Month, Peter Navarro with the Ships being there before. The King and Queen were received with great Pomp, the Queen under a Canopy it being the first time she had been there. Upon the arrival of the King Coffile eafily fubmitted, and particularly the Marquets of Villana complyed, upon promise that the King would stand Tryal at Law with him. Satisfaction in Mony and Lands was promised the Duke of Medina Sidonia for Gibraltar. The Archbishop of Toledo was pleased that befides other Favours the King had obtained him a Cardinals Cap and the Office of Inqui-fitor, General of Cafile and Leon, the Archbishop of Sevil religning that place. F. John de Enguerra the King's Consessor was Inquisitor General for Aragen. Thus the Nobility were gained and all Castile pacified. What gave scandal was, that the King prevailed with the Pope to grant the Archbishoprick of Santiago to D. Alonso de Fonseca, a Youth of no Learning, and what is worfe, his own Father religning of that See to him upon the Title given him of Patriarch of Alexandria. True it is, they had both done good Service which might in some measure excuse this odious Succession of a Bastard to his Father's Bishoprick, but yet it was no way justifiable. It remained now to reduce the Duke of Najara D. John Manuel, and the Earl of Lems who in Galicia had taken the Town of Ponferrada, belonging to the Crown, and most of the Marquilate of Villafranca to which he pretended a Right. The Duke of Alva and Earl of Benavente were lent against him with 2000 Horse and 2000 Foot. The Duke of Bragança would have affifted the Earl, but the King of Portugal would not permit: yet he prevailed with the Archbishop that the Earl should not be put out by force of Arms, but by regular course of Law. At last the Earl submitted, restored Ponferrada and the Marquisate of Villasfrenca. D. John Manuel being resolved to go for Flanders whether all the Flemmings were already gone, gave up the Cattle of Burgos to the Duke of Najara, and that of Jain to the Earl of Cabra.
Interview About this time the Catholick King received the News that the Alcaide de los Donzeles Goverof the two nour of Mazalquivir having made an Incursion towards Tremezen with 100 Horse and 3000 Foot, being upon his Return with a great Booty near Oran, was overthrown by the King of Tremeçon. The Governour fought his way through with 70 Horfe and got to Mazalquivir, on 1940 more eleaped by flight and as many were taken. Upon this News the King sen tome Galleys from Valencia to the Relief of Mazalquivir. At Naples James Garcia de Paredes, James de Aguayo, and Malgarijo turned Pyram. James Garcia went to the Lavant and did great harm there. The other two lay at Isolan and robbed all that came in their way. Mitbaloi de Pratz. a brave Commander, fent the by the Viceory to flupper fishem near Belveder, in the Prince of Bifgnamo's Country, took their Veffels, and they fied to the Shore. Scarce had Michalor done this, when the Caravel he went in was lost and he drowned in a fudden Storm. On the 28th of August the King came to Tortole and the Queen falling at his Feet, he knelt down to take her up. After embracing they withdraw, and having conferred together the Queen went away to her Lodgings. Next day the King went to visit her, and after that began to dispose of all things. There they continued 7 days, and then went to Santa Maria del Campo. The King would have given the Archbishop the Cardinals Cap there, but the Queen said it was not fit she should be where there was any Rejoychigs, and therefore it was given him at the Church of Mahamud. He was honoured with the Title of Cardinal of Spain, but the private Name was of S. Balbina. Andrew de Burgo, the Emperour's Ambalfador, ceafed not after the coming of the Cardholick King, to perfused many to declare a gainft his Government. The King fent him away, and with him John Albion, to defire the Empegamin in Government. The rangient min away, and withinin your Autom, to center the Emperour to fend an Ambalfador that would promote the Peace and Welfare of those Kingdoms. He undertook to reconcile the Admiral, Constable, and Duke of Alva, and secure them to his own Interest. He gave Orders for appeasing the Tumults in Andaluzia, and for securing the Sea-Potts of Bisea, and Galicia, ordering the Earl of Lemos and D. Ferdinand de Andrada to come out of Galicia, where they had great Power. The same was done at Gadiz, Gibraltar and Malaga, and for more security the Morison, that is, those descended of Mower, were ordered to retire a Leagues from the Sea Coast, that all those Shores might be peopled by the antient Christian Race, but this could not be compassible. D. John Manuel had possessible the Castles of Burgos, Jaen, Plasenia, and Miravete, which the King commanded his Lieutenants to deliver. He of Burgos delayed, whereupon the King sent Peter Navarro with Forces to bestege it, and then the Lieutenant submitted, as did all the others. D. John Manuel by the way of Navarre went into France designing for Germany. There only remained the Duke of Najara, who fortified that Town and levied Forces, hoping the Emperour would son come, and therefore acted in the Name of Prince Charles, as his Viceroy. To put a stop to these troubles, the King set out towards Burgos, and from Arcos sent Ferdinand Duke of Strada to require that Duke to deliver up his Forts. The Duke excused himself. The King leaving the Queen at Arcos, because the Duke. Count Peter Navarro was sent with his Forces, the Guards and Artillery, to see all the the Sea-Ports of Biscay and Galicia, ordering the Earl of Lemos and D. Ferdinand de Andrada to Duke. Count Peter Navarro was fent with his Forces, the Guards and Artillery, to seize all the Duke's Estate and his Person. Several of the Nobility interposed, and the Duke submitted to Duke's Litate and his Person. Several of the Nobility interpoled, and the Duke libinited to deliver up many Places of Strength. Hereupon, the King pardoned the Duke, and not long after by degrees, restored all those Forts to Duke Antony Manrique, Earl of Triveno, Son to the Duke. To oblige the Duke of Albuquerque the King proposed to marry the Lady Joanna de Aragon Daughter to the Archbishop of Zoragoça to the Dukes estells Son, but this March did not succeed, and she was afterwards married to D. John de Borgia Duke of Gandia:

The Emperor was much offended at the Kings of France and Spain. He complained of the Catholick King, for that he had seized upon the Government of Caglile without agreeing with The Empire of the Person of the P him. It was reported he would fend 3000 Germans to Naples, to favour the Pretentions of the Peror dif-Duke of Calabria; and it was also suspected that the Great Captain forwarded this Design, in lopes guilted to marry his eldest Daughter to the Duke, and would accept of the Command of General of the Forces of the Church, with a Pension of 6000 Ducats. But those were mere Jealousies, and foon after the Emperor declared, he would break through the Dutchy of Milan and with all his Forces invade the State of Venice. The Catholick King took care to fecure the Duke of Calabria, who was at his Court. The Emperor was offended at the King of France, for that he support that he support to the court. ported the Duke of Guelders, and had made War in Burguidy at the time that King Ferdinand went into Italy. He did not approve of the Conference betwixt the two Kings, and took it ill that the Match betwixt Prince Charles and the Prince's Claudia was broke off. At this time that Lady was contracted to the Duke of Angoulefine Heir to the Crown of France, and thereforethe Emperor pleaded the Investigure of the Dutchy of Milan, according to the Agreement made with King Philip, was void. The Catholick King valued not the Match, thinking by this means to facure Prince Charles the Inheritance of the Kingdom of Naples. The King of France not regarding the Emperor's Complaints, he thought of marrying Prince Charles to Mary France not regarding the Emperor's Complaints, he thought of marrying Prince Charles to Mary Complete to the King of England. This Match was fo lar advanced, that the Princes's Portion was affigned to be 250000 Crowns, and the Time and Place of Marriage appointed. It was concluded the Confeit of King Ferdinand and Queen Joanna Hould be asked, but the Marriage to be confiummated tho they opposed it. This Match pleased the King of England, yet he was to be confiummated tho they opposed in the Marriage of his Daughter the Princes Catherine with King gave him good words to fecure the Marriage of his Daughter the Princes Catherine with the Prince of Walter. But the King of England at the same time delayed, in hopes to promote the Match for himself, which was a strange Complication of Politicks. Death broke off all the King of England's designs. Many said King Ferdinand intended to marry Queen Joanna to his Brother-in-law Gasson of Rolls, to put him in possible of the Kingdom of Navaure to his Brother-in-law Gasson. And the strange of the King and Queen of Navarre who had often offended him; and lastly, in sezing the Estate of of the Earl of Lerin, who was married to his Sister, and resting to restore and stand Tryal with him. D. John Manuel was come to the Emperor's Court, but not so well looked upon as before, which he perceiving was married to his Sifter, and refusing to restore and stand Tryal with him. D. John Manuel was come to the Emperor's Court, but not so well looked upon as before, which he perceiving thought of returning to Spain. In order to it he proposed to King Fredinand either to restore him to his Estate and treat him according to his quality, or else to give him leave with his Wise and Children to go to Portugal, otherwise he must like a desperate Man do all that he could against him. Nothing was granted him, and he tho out of savour, by his sharp Wit sowed against him. Nothing was granted him, and he tho out of savour, by his sharp Wit sowed Discord betwixt those two Princes. It was also believed Cardinal Bernardin de Carvojal the Pope's Legate at the Emperor's Court did King Ferdinand no good Offices there; wherefore the King requested of the Pope that he might be removed and called back to Rome, which at last he obtained.

The Defigns of bringing Prince Charles into Spain. King Ferdinand in Andaluzia to fetile that Country. Penon in Africk taken by the Spaniards, the Por tugueses loofers at Azamor inthat part of the World, yet relieve Arzila.

The Emperor now declared his warlike Preparations were not defigned against Naples, but peror professor against the French in Milan, and tho the Pope and King Ferdinand interposed for a Peace ceedsa- or Truce, he would not give ear to it unless upon very advantageous Conditions. He left the gainst Mi-Princess Margaret his Daughter to Govern Flanders, in Jan, 1508 marched towards Italy, and in Fibruary came to Trent. There he took the Name of Emperor Elect, being till then called King of the Romans. His General was the Marquess of Brandenburgh, his Forces so sinall, that no great matter could be expected of them. The first Hollities were committed in the Valley of Cadors, subject to the Venetians, and the Emperor understanding that 5000 Swift were going into the French Service, returned into Switzerland to prevent it, and thence to Luxemburgh because French Forces marched that way. Upon his departure most of the Germans and Cadora disbanded, and 2000 that remained were deseated by the Venetians. The Catholick Cadora disbanded, and 2000 that remained were defeated by the Venetians, The Catholick King, the fetiedin the Government of Caftile, thought himself not secure, knowing there were many that perfittedin their aversies to him. Among the rest the Bioshps of Radajox and Catas nia fignalized themselves, having no hopes of Preferment unless the Government were changed. The Pope at the King's Stits, commissioned the Archbishop of Toledo, and Bishop of Burger to The Pope at the King's Suits, committioned the Archbulhop of 10steagand Billiop of Burgos to profeculte them. He of Badajoz, endeavouring to make his escape into Flanders, was apprehended near Santander, and after being Prisoner some time at Attienca, was remitted to the Archbilhop of Floteloaccording to the Pope's Order. D. Jame de Conchillos Bilhop of Girachi, the King's Ambasiador at the Emperor's Court, pressed to have Prince Charles sent to Spain, to have him bred after the manner of the Country, and to secure his Succession; but the Emperor would never consent to it, unless he were allowed to share in the Government, and also in the would never confent to it, unless he were allowed to share in the Government, and also in the Revenue; by which means he thought to sipply his great wants. He endeavoured to draw into his Service 1500 of the Catholick King's Soldiers that served in France, but the Catholick King sent Alonghole Olmedes to keep them where they were. They obeyed the 'the Marquess of Branchenburgh declared them Rubels, as if they had been the Emperor's Subjects. The Emperor highly refented that the Catholick King would not admit of Andrew de Burge, whom he sent with the Character of his Ambassador. At this time King Emanuel of Portugal extended the Goory of his Name, still sending new Flegts to India, and obtaining stells victories. The Kings of Calieut and Cambaya were professed Engineers of the Portugusses, and therefore made Warupon the King of Cachin and obtain and obtain the Princes, who received them into their Ports, and traded with them.

The Nobility of Andaluzia were offended, for that the Catholick King made not so great Malecone account of them, as of those of Castile. The chief of the Malecontents were the Marques tent in of Prices, D. Peter Fernandez de Cordova and the Earl of Cabra. In a Tumult at Cordova the Officers of Justice Apprehended one of the Mutineers, whom the Bishop's Servants rescued

King Ferdinand fet Fernan Gomez de Herrera an Alcalde de Corte, with some Men to punish that Infolency. He having begun to do his Duty, the Marques of Priego fent him Orders to defift and depart the City till the Kings Plealute were farther known. He on the contrary Commanded the Marquels and his Brother in the Kings Name to be gote out of Cordova. The Marquels gathening a Force apprehended the Alcalde, but released him again upon promife; that he would not return to Cordova. This Affront the King highly refented, and fet out himself to revenge it. At Area he took Prince Ferdinand from the Queen against her will, upon pretence of his Health. He summoned Forces to join him in order to punish that Infolence, and in pursuance thereof, the Deputy of Sevil, D. Thiga de Velasco Ordered all betwixt 60 and 20 years of Age to be ready to march against the Marquels. The Great Captain writ to the Marquels his Cousin, advising him to submit; and he intended to do. The Nobility, and particularly the Great Captain, laboured to appease the King; who was resolved not to give way to Intreaties. The Marquels came to submithinsels when the King was at Toledo, and was Ordered to Wait; Leagues from Court, and deliver up all his strong Holds. He obeyed With the King went to Cordova 2000 Horse and 3000 Foot. The Marquels being taken, and charged with High Treason, would make no definite; but cast himself upon the Kings Mercy. Judgment was given, some Gentlement were condemned to death, some of the Commonalty executed. The Houles of D. Alons de Carra. Punishma and Bernardin de Bocamegra who were in Prison, were Razed. The Marquels was ba went of fift and depart the City till the Kings Pleafute were farther known. He on the contrary ma and Brinardin de Bocanegra who were in Prison, were Razed. The Marques by a ment of nished for ever out of Cordova, and out of Andaluxia during the King's pleasure; who was the Mutalso to fecure all his fivong Holds, except his House at Ameilla, which was to be demolished. The Great Captain, and Constable were extreamly disgusted at this Severity;

molished. The Great Captain, and Constable were extreamly disgusted at this Severity, infonunch that it was thought the latter would have departed the Kingdom. From Cordova the King sent D. Henry de Toledo and the Licenciat Ferdianal Tello to do Homage to the Pope, for the Queen his Daughter. At Naples died the Queen of Hangary, so very Poor, the Viceroy was forced to pay the charge of her Obsequies. She was buried in the Church of S. Peter, Martyr, where the Body of her Mother lies. King Ferdianal went to Sevil, where he was received with great Pomp and Joy. With him went the Queen his Wise, and Prince Ferdianal. Henry Duke of Medina Sidonia was lest young by his Father, under the Constitution of Duken Charles and Workship of Duken Charles and W Guardianship of D. Peter Giron, to whose Sister he was contracted. The Duke was haughty, and turbulent, and had defigured to affift the Marques of Prieg. To appeale the King, it was offered he should deliver up his chiefest Fortresses, and the Constable would be bound for his good behaviour. Nevertheles, neither the Duke nor D. Peter Giron came to submit for his good behaviour. Neverthelets, neither the Duke nor D. Peter Giron came to lubmit themselves to the King, who thereupon put D. Peter from his Guardianship, bansishing him from Sevil, and all the Lands of Medina Sidonia, and the Duke was commanded to deliver up all his Places of strength. They both sed to Portugal, and the King Ordered their Lieutenants to deliver the Forts. Those of Niebla and Figueras would not submit, and therefore Niebla was taken by force and plundered. This Severity made all Places comply. This Estate was put into the Hands of the Archbission of Sevil, and the Council Ordered to prosecute D. Peter Giron. The Nobility, but chiefly the Constable resented this rigorous prosecution we the King was resolved to humble their Pitcle and this Archbission of Stelds. Proceeding, yet the King was refolved to humble their Pride, and the Archbishop of Toledo advised him so to do.

The Catholick King spent all Autumn in settling Andaluzia, and thence promoted the War in Africk, affilling the Portuguese who were much distressed. The King of Fee being War in Africk, affilting the Portuguese who were much diffressed. The King of Fee being at variance with his Two Brothers, it was thought a good Opportunity to gain some advantage in Africk, and to this purpose a Fleet was fitted out at Malaga. The Pyrates of Fenen in Velec. de la Gomera did much harm at this time along the Coast of Granada. Count Peter Africk tail Neware our Admiral gave them Chase, took some Vessels, and pursued the others to an Island opposite to Velect, and the common resign of those Corfairs. There were 250 Moore in the Fort of that Island, which they call Person; these thinking the Earl would Attack Felex, abandoned the Island, to defend the Town; but he immediately possels himself of the Castise, which Commands the Harbour and City, and thence did them so much harm, that the Moors were forced to live under Ground. This Place was taken on the 25th of July, and Ordered to be Fortised and well Garrisoned. The Portugueser made War on the Coast of Ordered to be Fortified and well Garrifoned. The Portuguese made War on the Coast of Africk along the Ocean. A Moor called Zelum, Cousin to the King of Free, offered to put them in a way to take Azamor, a famous City on that Coast. King Emanuel giving Credit to him, fitted a Fleet which carried 400 Horse and above 2000 Foot, under the Command of D. John de Menefes. This Fleet failed from Lisbon on the 26th of July, and found all things otherwise than they expected, for the Citizens defended themselves well, and Zelum aided them. This brought the Portugueses into great Danger, and they were forced to de- Portugueses part without doing any thing. The Weather being bad, and the Tides low, fome Veffels, futain lofs and among them one Gally struck, the rest came to the streights Mouth. This loss seemed at Austruct to be a special Providence; for the King of Fex with a mighty Power stee down before burreliered Arxila on the 18th of Ollober, D. Vasco Coutino Earl of Borva was Governor, who the fifth Arxila on the 18th of Ollober, D. Vasco Coutino Earl of Borva was Governor, who the fifth Arxila day repulled the Moor with much Bravery; but the next day a Breach being made in the Wall, they entred the City by Force. The Earl was wounded in the Arm with a Dart, and obliged to retire into the Caffle, which was not well provided for a Siege. The Caffle was battered and undermined. This News being carried to Tangier, where D. John do

He fought Two days with the Enemy, who were already Mafters of one of the Bulwarks, drove them thences and relieved the belieged, reduced to extreamity. The King fent Orders to Peter Newtro who lay at Gibraltar to Succour Arzila. Ramino de Guzman Governor of Korez, with a Ship wherein were 300 Foot and fonde Horfe, failed first, and governor of Korez, with a Ship wherein were 300 Foot and fonde Horfe, failed first, and got into the Calle with Thomas Menifer Disch and Outworks. On the 30th of Oddobra came Councifers Navarro, who pladely is Cannon fo furioully among the Moors that Encamped along the Shore, that they were forced to break up; and the King of Fez having burnt the Town, retired to Aleaquarquivir. The faving of this Place contributed much operating of the others on the Coalt of Africk. King Emanuel joyful for this good News, fent 6000 Cruzados as a Prefent to Peter Navarro, for his good Service, and the same Sum to the Governor of Korez. They both excused themselves from receiving this Prefent, saying, they served the Catholick King, and expected their Reward from his Bounty. He returned thanks to the Catholick King for seasonable a Relief, yet at the same time complained of his taking Prima as appertaining to the Conquests of Paraugal, being in the Kingdom of Fez. The Catholick King pleaded that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and that Peter was a distinct Kingdom of it self; and the Arage and no Profit, only to secure the Coalt of Granada, yet offered, if it appeared to belong to the Crown of Fez, to Menefes lay, and to Sevil where the Catholick King was, D. John fet out immediately with ragon, his Son D. Luis de Biamonte succeeded him.

Discovery of Conspiracies in Spain; The League of Cambray; The Soldans Fleetworst-ed in India; Death of Henry VII. of England; Henry VIII. succeeds him.

Conspirate THE Catholick King returned from Sevil to Caftile in the dead of Winter for Two reacies in a fons. One was, that D. Peter Brother to D. James de Guevara, who was in Germany in covered. the Emperor's Service, coming to Spain diliguized in the Habit of a Footman, was taken, and being put to the Rack, deckared, that many of the Nobility held Intelligence with the Emperor; the chiefelf of them, were the Great Captain, the Duke of Najara, and Earl of Urvina. The other was, that the Duke del Infantado and other great Men conspired against him, and the Cardinal of Spain had a Hand in those Proceedings. The Earl of Tendila by his Wislom drew the Duke del Infantado and other great Men conspired against him, and the Cardinal of Spain had a Hand in those Proceedings. The Earl of Tendila by his good Advice. King Ferdinand reduced the others, some by fair Promiles, and some by Threats. In particular, he agreed with the Marquess of Villena, and in lieu of that City and Almansa, besides the full value of them, gave him Toka and Monda in the Kingdom of Granada, wherewith he seemed content. The Emperor to be at leasure to Revenge himself of the Catholick King, was for composing all Differences with Prance, and in order to it, Lesgue of the Princess Margaret on his Part, and the Cardinal d'Ambolfe for the Pope and King of Cambrey. Thither repaired Jaime de Allion the Catholick King's Ambassadin in Regulary of the Prance, and tho' the Emperor designed to exclude King Ferdinand, the Bussiness was so managed by the Pope, that those Three Princes joined in League with him against the Vencians for Recovery of what that State had taken from each of them. He that fire recovered his for Recovery of what that State had taken from each of them. He that first recovered his own, was obliged to affift the others, and the Emperor and King of France to go in Person to this Expedition. The first day of April following, they were to commence the War. The Emeperor offered by that time to give the King of France the Investiture of Milan, provided he paid him 100000 Crowns for the fame, and should be obliged to affift him to Revided he paid min 100000 Crowin, not the static, and yet the Emperor not to be obliged to Aid, him for recovery of what appertained to Milan. That Judges should be appointed to decide all Differences betwirk the Emperor and the Catholick King, left they should be any hindrance to their Proceedings against the Venetians. It was agreed the Duke of Savoy should be invited to come into the League, on account of the Kingdoff of Cyprus, which he pretended to, and the Venetian were pollefied of. Also the Duke of Ferrara, and Marques of Mantua, who had their Pretentions. What is more, the Kings of Spain and France, to whom the People of Florence and Pifa had referred all their Differences, delivered up Pifa to the Flagentines, in hopes to draw them into the League, and for the Sum of x00000 To the Florenines, in hopes to draw them into the League, and for the Sum of rocood Ducate. A hameful thing for fuch Princes to fell the Liberty of a Republick shat had put it felf into their Hands; but chiefly, King Ferdinand was to blame, Pija being immediately under his Protection. This League was concluded on the roth of December. Thence the Princes Margaret went to France Committed to the Rolfestion of fome Towns the King of France had ingaged to deliver to the Duke of Burgundy. This fame Month died at Naples Robert de Sanfeverino, Prince of Salieno. He left a young Son called Ferdinand, who was Heir of his Eflate, and Hatred to the Crown of Aragon, which produced his Ruin. Next day they engaged, and after a very bloody Difpute, the Portuguese obtained the Victory. Of the Enemy 4000 were flain, of which number were all the 800 Mamaluci, except only 22. Three of their great Ships were funk, besides many small Vessels; Two Galleons, Two Gallies and Four great Ships were taken. The Commanders Mir Hoxem and Meligue escaped. On our side 22 were killed and 3:0 wounded. This done, Almeyda returned to Cochin, where there was much contention about the Government, which was ended by Ferdinand Courtow, who this Year sailed from Liben with r. Ships and Orders to nut Alonso de Albarabeau in Desilession of the Government. Government, which was cruced by retainant Common, which the state affects to put Alboylo de Albeguerque in Possession of the Government, as was accordingly done. From Valladolid the Catholick King went to Areas, where he found the Queen his Daughter so ill Lodged, that the last Winter she self like through the coldness of the Room she lay in. In February he removed her to Tordefillas, and with the the Body of her Husband, which was afterwards by her Son the Emperor Charles the V, buried in the Royal Chapel at Granads. Queen Joanna's Condition was such, she might better be counted among the Dead than the Living. Her two Sisters ran different Foreunes. The Queen of Portugal lived happy, abounding in Riches, and having a numerous Iffue, and this very Year she was delivered of a Son called Alonjo, who was atterwards a Cardinal, but died young. The Princels of Wales in England, neither Widow nor Wile, was hardly used by her Father-in-Law, who hoped that England, neither Widow nor Wife, was hardly used by her Father-in-Law, who hoped that way to induce her Father to give him in Marriage his other Daughter Joanna Queen of Cafile. The King's death, which happed upon the 2xlf of April, for the prefent put an end Death of to those Discontents: Soon after, the Match before agreed upon betwirk this Lady and the Hory of the Prince of Wales, after his Father's Death King Henry VIII. was confirmmated. That Princes and had no Inclination to this Match, but it was for the Conveniency of both Kings. King hinds the Hory was of a graceful Presence, but very Lewd, especially towards his latter days, informed VIII. such that to gratise his Lust, he cast of all Obedience to the Church, and made way for all the ecods him Consusion that afterwards happed in that Kingdom. Whilst Queen Catherine was yet living, the 'he had by her a Daughter called Mary, informed presence she had been married to his Brother, and that the Pope could not dispence to marry her, he put her away, and pub. Brother, and that the Pope could not dispense to marry her, he put her away, and publickly married Anne of Bullen, whom afterwards he convicted of Adultery, and executed. By her he had Elizabeth, akerwards Queen. Next he married Jane Seyman; who died in Childbed; but her Son lived, and was called Edward VI. His Fourth Wife was Jame of

The last was the Lady Catherine Parr, from whom he was not divorced, nor had any Children by was the Lady Caiberine Parr, from whom he was not divorced, nor had any Children by her, death putting an end to his wicked Courles. King Ferdinand made publick rejoycing at Valladdid, upon the News of the Marriago of his Daughter on Midlimmer.day. He also agreed, that Prince Charles should marry that King's Sifter, and ordered Gatierre Gemee, his Ambassador to Compliment her upon the same. At Valladdid Queen German was delivered of a Son on the 3d of May; he was called John Prince of Aragon, but died within a sew Hours. His Body was deposited in the Monsièry of S. Paul in that City, and thence translated to Poblete, sitte ancient Burlal-place of the Kings of Aragon. The Catholick King prepared to make Wat upon the Ventianu, and grounded the Justice of his Proceedings, principally upon Two Points: The first, That thole Cities the Ventians were possessing in Apulla, were mortgaged to them by Ferdinand II. King of Naples, and that they neither performed the Conditions of the Morigage, nor would reflore those Places when the Money was tendred to them. The Second was. That the Catholick King had been at a greater Evence. med the Conditions of the subtrages, nor would renore those Places when the Money was tendred to them. The fecond was, That the Catholick King had been at a greater Expendence either in gaining Cephalonia for that Republick, or in the War made upon France on their account, and upon promise that they would allow him 5000 Ducats a Year towards the Charge of that War, which Debt, tho it had been demanded of them, they would never pay, nor fo much as acknowledge.

The Cardinal of Spain takes Oran in Africk. The War against the Venetians and their Loss; They recover Padua and other Places.

Reat Preparations were made throughout all Spain' for the Conquest of Africk, and the Cardinal of Spain did not only surnish Money towards it, but designed to go over in Person. The Rendezvous of the Forces was at Caribagena; Stores of Ammunition and Provifions were made there and at Malaga. About 14000 Men were gathered, as well Horse as Foot. The Principal Commanders were James de Vera, who had charge of the Artillery; D. Alonfo de Granada Vanegas, Lord of Campo Tejar, who Commanded the Forces of Annaluzia; and Colonel Hierome Vianelo, accounted an able Seaman. Count Peter Navarro was General. and there was a great Number of Gentlemen Volunteers. The Fleet, confifling of 10 Galleys and so other Veffels, met at Carthagena the laft Month. Before they fer fail, fome Dip putes arole betwirt the Cardinal and the Earl, on account that the former beflowed fome Commands on his Servants, which the other had before promifed to others. Some Perfons interpoling, the Count fovore to obey the Cardinal in all things. On the 16th of May they fet Sail from Carthagena, and the next day being the Fealt of the Assemblem, entred the Port of Mazalquivir. It was declared their Delign was upon Oran, a lamous City in the Kingdom of Trenseen, containing about 6000 Inhabitants, feated near the Sea, partly in a Valley, and partly on the fide of a Hill, encompaffed with a frong Wall, the Streets all contrived after the rude manner of the Moors, diffant from the City of Trenseen 140 Miles, and opposite to Carthagena. It was once one of the most Principal Martson that Coast, by reason of the great resort of Genosse and Catalonian Merchants, and was so rich as to maintain a small Fleet, which inselted the Coast of Andalusia. Our Fleet entred the Harbour at Night, and he next Morning began to land the Men. They drew them up in Four Bodies, each containing 2500 Men, with the Horse upon the Flanks. Mean while the Cardinal was in the Church of Mazalquivir; but when they were ready to join Battel with the Moors that came to hinder their Approach to the City, he came out mounted upon a Mule, the Clergy and Religious attending him. One F. Ferdinand, of the Order of S. France, carried the Cros, with a Sword girt upon his Habit, as had all the others by the Cardinal's Order. He encouraged the Men, offering to lead them into the midft of the Enemy; but the Commanders begged of the wien, one ing to lead them into the mind of the Lenemy; but the Commanders begged of him to offer up his Prayers to God for them whilft they fought. He complied, and returning to Maxalquivit, continued at Prayers in the Chapel of S. Michael all the time of the Battle. It was Three in the Afternoon, and the Earl being doubtful whether it were not better to delay the Fight till next day, adviled with the Cardinal, who was of Opinion not to fuffer to the control of the Soldiers to cool. The Signal being given, they began to march up the Hill, and tho' the Moore, to the Number of 12000, befides the Recruits that conftantly came to them, calf down all forts of Weapons upon them, they gained Ground. Some Soldiers of Guadalajara advanced contrary to Order, one of whom was killed, and the rest forced to retire. That Man's Head being cut off, was carried to the City, and there rolled about the Streets, the Rabble crying the Alfaquin (so they called the Cardinal) was killed; till a Christian Slave, who knew the Cardinal by fight, undeceived them. Our Horse began to Skirmish with the Enemy, among whom our Cannon did some execution; and then the Foot came on, driving them, tho the Hill was uncouth, till they came to certain Conducts of Water; There they halted a while, and removing their Cannon to the highest part of the Hill, with that and their Swords put the Moors to flight, purfuing them beyond the City, because the Gates were shur against them. A great number of Moors salited out, under the Leading of the were thut against them. A great number of Moors sallied out, under the Leading of the Macsuar or Governour of Oran; and whilst these were hotly engaged, some of our Men actempted to scale the Walls, the Inhabitants opposing them. Hey that were in the Galley attacking the side next the Sea, had leisure to make themselves Malters of certain Towers and all the Aleagava. Thus the City was entred by the Christians, and plundered. Those Moors that sought in the Field seeing the Spanish Colours upon the Walls, thought to have got into the Town; but some of our Men sallyings, they were taken in the middle, and a great Slaughter made. 4000 of them were killed; and about 5000 them. This Victory was looked the sallies of the Disorder of our Men. but much mice beautifus because of the Disorder of our Men. but much mice beautifus beautifus deals and a great state. Slaughter made. 4000 of them were kuled; and about 5000 taken. I his victory was looked upon as miraculous, because of the Diforder of our Men, but much more because immediately after the Mexaur of Tremeen came with such a Multitude, that it would have been impossible to have taken the City had he come some. This success was attributed to the Prayers of the Cardinal, who entred the City with Joy, and Confectated the Great Mosque by the Name of S. Mary of Victory. After which; he returned the next day with his Galleys to Carlbagena. He left the Command of that City to Peter Navarro till the King's Pleasure were known. From Carthagena he fant the King an account of the Victory, and went himself to his Town of Aleala, where he entred more like a Religious Man than a Conqueror, nor permitting any manner of Publick Reception to be made for him.

The Pope's Forces took Solarole, Fannsa, Arimino, Ravensa, and Servisa, which was all that belonged to him. The Earl of Ribagorca had gathered his Army by the end of May. Villamarin Earl of Capacho the Admiral was ready at Massima with 12 Galleys and 10 Ships, and only expected the French Fleet to join him, in order to go upon the Coast of Applies but they was no need of these Preparations: For as soon as the Viceroy of Naples laid slege to Trana, the Seigneury of Venice sent Orders to all their Governours on that Coast to deliver up the Cities. The Duke of Ergans and Martines for Mantina rook forme Places tions the Viceroy and Coast to deliver up the Cities. The Duke of Ferrara and Marques of Mantua took some Places from the Venetians, Cities. The Duke of Ferrara and Marquets of Adantia took Iome Places from the Venicians, to which they presended a Title. Venice was brought to low, that it was reported the Senate defigned to fubmit it fell to the King of Hangary, to be by him protected. There remained the Emperour, who in June was 7 Leagues from Infprack, on his way to Italy. On the 8th of that Month the Florentimes fibbled the Gity of Fl/2. As foon as the Emperor came to Efternan, the Venicians proposed an Accommodation with him, and it was faid they fent him a Blank figned for him to make his own Conditions, so he would protect them in that desperate Condition. As the Emperor marched all Places submitted to him, so that the Venetians had not a Foot of Land left them in Italy, except the City Venice, which the Emperor deligned befiege by Sea and Land. To this purpose he would have the French and Spanish Fleets join to shut up the Sea, whilst his and the French Forces attacked it by Land. Nay, he proposed when taken to have it divided into Four Parts, with as many Caffles, whereof each of the Confederate Princes should have one. In order to it the Catholick King, tho he disbanded all the Land-Forces fave 500 which were to be transported into Spain, ordered the Fleet to stay in Italy, yet afterwards neither the Pope nor he would confent to the utter subverting of that State. confidering it would redound only to the Advantage of France, by reason their Dominion of whilm lay lo near, and the others fo far off. Nay, they apprehended it might be a step towards making that King Master of all Italy, and that then he might make a Pope according to his own Mind; which the present Pope was so apprehensive of, that both he and the Catholick King laboured all that in them was to disappoint an Interview proposed betwixt the Emperor and King of France.

The Imperial Forces lay at Trevije and Priedli, which was all the Venetian had left them in Italy, 'Andrew Critis, by Intelligence he had with some of the Inhabitants, recovered the City Padua for the Venetians, 42 days after it had submitted to the Emperor. This News being brought to him, he retired into the Country of Tred. With the same afte the Venetians took Affilia, where they put to the Sword 150 Spainards that were there in Garrison; the same they did to 200 more they sound in Castelfrance, and took Alvarado their Caprain Prisoner. Most of the 1500 Spainards that went over from the French Service to the Emperori, were thus killed or taken. Verona being about to involt, was prevented by the Sieur de la Paliffe, who secured it till the Emperor, who expected Supplies out of Germany that the profit of the Trede in an Army of 2000 Man. The King the stear at a range, who recured it that the Emperor, who expected supplies out of Sermany and Flanders, fent to take possession of it. He made up an Army of 30000 Men. The King of France sent him 1300 Horse, the Pope 300, and asterwards 1000 Spanish Foot. With these Forces he laid Siege to Padna on the 5th of September. The Earl of Pitillano, and all the their process he had siege top some on the full of opposition. The Earl of Philado, and all the Chief Commanders of Venice, threw themselves into the City. Their greatest Strength confided in 2000 Albanian Horse, who did much harm among the Imperialists. A Breach being made, the City was assaulted, but the Enemy repulsed twice, fresh Supplies still coming in to the Besieged, till they made up 25000 Men. In the first Attack many of the Spaniards were the Besseged, till they made up 25000 Men. In the sirst Attack many of the Spaniard were killed, being blown up in a Bastion they gained. This discouraged the Imperialists 60, that about the beginning of Ottober they raised the Siege. Their Retreat soon changed the face of Affairs. The People of Viencesa being affilted from Padna, took Gaspar de Sanseverino, lest in that City with 3000 Germans. The Forces of Venice recovered Esses, Monssiler, and Montagnana, and then laid slege to Ferrara; but the Forces of France and the Pope coming to the Relief of the Town, and having sink 170 of their Galleys on the Po, they were forced to the West. A Feer the Earl of Lerin Constable of Navarre died, the Catholick King was the more prefing with the King of Navarre to reliver Luga de Biamonte, Son to the Decealed, and his own hephew. Nothing could be obtained, tho' it was pleaded the Son had no hand his Father's Crimes. The People of Sanguelja made an Inroad into Aragon, on pretence to take UI and Filera, which Towns they said belonged to them. On the other fide, the Aragoniam ravaged all the Plain of Sanguelja up to the Walls of the Town. These things seemed to tend to a War 5 but being private Grievances, they were not looked upon as a Breach to Luis sought to recover his Estate by sorce of Arms. The Emperor and King of Spain proposed some means to agree about the Government. The Catholick King, tho' well fixed in the possession of it, was willing to agree to prevent Disorders which the Discontented Nobility seemed to threaten. Yet he would keep the Government as long as his Daughter lived; but if the died then to resign to Prince Charles when he was 20 Years of Age. The King of Free the Earl of Lerin Constable of Navarre died, the Catholick King was the more prefif the died, then to refign to Prince Charles when he was 20 Years of Age. The King of France and Cardinal d'Amboife were chosen Arbitrators. Andrew de Burgo came to Spain to Capitulate, and was well received. The Bishop of Catania was with the Emperour upon the fame account. At length these two Princes agreed upon these Articles: That the Catholick King should continue in the Government; but in case he had any Issue Male, then the Empe- Honica King model Contains to Sworn Heir to the Crown of Cafile in the Cortes, and King ror and K. The Emperour would have had the Prince receive the Revenue of the Kingdom of Afturias, but the King faid it had never allowed any Prince, and therefore confented to allow him 30000 Durang late it had never allowed any raines, and interest contented to allow min goods the cats a year, and to add to that Sun whenfower he was married. The Emperour alfo demanded for himself roocco Ducats, of which 50000 were allowed him to be paid by the Florentines, on account of the delivery of Pifa to them. King Ferdinand also offered to affift the Emperour against the Venetians with 300 Men at Arms, to whom he would give 4 or 5 Months Pay. It was also agreed, that whensever Prince Charles would go into Spain, a Fleet should be sent for him, and Prince Ferdinand should go to Flanders as soon as the other was landed in Spain. Upon these Conditions they joined in League, and all Differences were reconciled. Because the King of France and Cardinal d'Amboise had been chosen Arbitrators, these Articles were sent to them to peruse, and they approved of the same on the 12th of

King Ferdinand being desirous to employ his Forces against the Infidels, was always for con-ferdinand cluding a Reace with the Venetians, and joining in League with them, after each of the Con-defires federates had recovered what he pretended a right to. Thus he proposed with the joint Forces Peace of them all to make War upon the Times, the common Enemy of Christendom. It was hard give to reconcile such different Interests. He propped to join his Forces with those of the other Princes, and to go himself in Person to title Levant. This his Design he made known to the Pope, who approved of it, and offered to forward it. They Kingdoms of Neples and Sicily Levant Princes and the Circumstances of Thisses. Pope, who approved of it, and one-to to forward it. They conground of expets and stery lay opportunely for this Enterprize. Those who well weighed the Circumstances of Things, thought it not fit for the King at his Age, and in the present posture of Affairs in Castile to thought it not it for the sing at his rage, and in the present porture of Attairs in Caffile to ablent himself so far off. It was thought more expedient to continue the Conquest of Africk so fortunately begun. Count Peter Navarro had 33 Ships well equipped in the Port of Mazalquiviv. He sailed thence with some chosen Troops to the Island Tvira, where Hieram Vinnel expected him wish another part of the Fleet. There they staid some days, it being the dead expected him with another part of the Fleet. There they Itaid some days, it being the dead of Winter. It was declared the Fleet was designed for Bigid. They failed from Twics on the first of January, 1320. The Forces consisted of about 3000, Men, well provided with 1510. Cannon. THE War was carried on against the Venetians but coldly; for the King of France having recovered his own, returned into France, and the Emperour into Germany before he had done what he designed. It was agreed that the Contederates, in pursuance of the Treaty of Cambray, should attist the Emperour list he were possessed in the the Venetians held from the International Commanded the Imperialists, but had very similar fegrees, and no extensive the International Commanded the Imperialists, but had very similar fegrees, and no extensive the International Commanded the Imperialists, but had very similar fegrees, and no extensive the International Commanded the Imperialists, but had very similar fegrees, and no extensive to pay them. Mean while the King neglected not the War in Africk, or before they are described the King of France to consent to alter that Article concerning or each of those three Provinces. Mean wanterne range negrected not the War in Aprice, of Roby; and particularly preffed the King of France to confent to alter that Article concerning the Succession to the Crown of Naples, in case Queen German had no Islie. The King of France would not hearken to this Proposition, still hoping to recover that Kingdom and especially now the Cardinal de Ambusse died, who had always great Insuence over the King, and made use of his Interest to promote Peace. This Affair perplexed the Catholick King, and therefore he thought fit to apply himself to the Pope, and improve his hatted to the King of France for obtaining the Investiture of Naples. At first the Pope was averse to it, but afterwards confidering the Affiftance of Spain, would fland him in good flead to carry on the great Designs he had in hand, he-resolved to grant the Investiture in as ample manner as could be Investi wished. Pope Alexander having given the King of France the Investiture of that part of the ture of wilhed. Pope Alexander naving given the Angol France the Inveltiture of that part of the ture of Kingdom before mentioned, with the Title of King of Naples and Jerufalem, it was hard to de prive him of it without a catife shown. Therefore he declared that King had forfeited his Title for not paying the Acknowledgment he ought in so many Years, and for altenating that mand. Feositio for the Church when he agreed with the Catholick King, without obtaining the Consense of the immediate Proprietor. Thus the Investiture was granted to King Feedmand and his Heirs, upon Condition he should pay every Year on the Feast of S. Peter and Paul 8000 ounces Heirs, upon Contain in minor pay cosy a continuous and in the cast of the author and coso ounces of Gold, and every three Years a white Palifey. Befides he was for once to pay 5000 Duccats, as should his Successors when they received the Investiture. These were the same Conditions that had been imposed upon Charles the first of France. About the beginning of fulr this Grant was passed by the Pope and College of Cardinals. On the 7th of August the Pope remitted the yearly Tribute and the 50000 Duccats, contenting himself with the white Palfrey and his Furniture, and 300 Horse to serve him wheresoever there was War in the State of the Church, deligning to use them against Ferrara. In the time of Pope Leo therewas imposed an acknowledgment of 7000 Duceats, for the leave granted to the Emperor Charles impoted an acknowledgment of 10.00 Duceaus, for the leave granted to the Emperor Charles the 5th to hold that Kingdom together with the Empire, which was contrary to the antient Capitulations with the Houles of Anjas and Aragon. The King of France was much offended at this Proceeding, and by his Ambaffador the Bilhop of Rieux, complained grievoully thereof to the CatholickKing whilst the Cortes sat at Mongon. There on the 13th of August was a Subsidy granted the King of 500000 Crowns, a great Sum confidering the Time and the Liberty of those Provinces. They also, in Case the King should be called away, authorifed Queen Germana Provinces. They are the control of the Cortes again if broke up, provided the were committed as Lieutenant of those Kingdoms. The Allocations erected some Years before, were now diffolved. The Fleet failed in the heat of Summer carrying 7000 fets with Men. Part of the Fleet and 3000 Men were left at Bugia to secure that Place. James de Ve. Forces inra having put Bugia into a good Posture followed the Fleet, and they came together, being 16 to Africk: ra haying put Bugia into a good Potture toilowed the Fieer, and they came together, being 16 Galleys, to the Port of Tripol at the time as Count Peter Novarro had embarqued his Men to the number of 8000, defigning for Gelves, the greatest and most important siland on the Coalt of Africk about 100 Leagues West of Tripols. It is plain and Sandy, covered with Palm and Olive Trees, so near the Continent, that on the one side there is a Bridge to go overto it. In length it is above 16 miles, wants Water, has no Town but featuring Houses, and on the Shore a Castle where the Lord lives. It was once subject to the King of Tunez, but at this time had a Xeque or particular Lord. On the 28th of August they arrived at Gebuer. The Forces had a Acque of particular Lord of the Lord of the Lord of the Continent at a Town they call Puente Quebrada. All the Army was divided into 3 Bodies. D. Garcia, tho he was General, would advance before the reft, with the Gentlemen that followed him. Some fay it was by adwould straine be about the time of the control of the control of the Novarro, others affirm it was againft his Will. The Xeque had about 150 Horfe and 2000 Foot, but to ill armed, and to fearful, they offered good Terms rather than come to Blows. It was Afternoon when our Forces began to march, the heat of the fandy Ground was fo violent as if all had been in a Flame. Scarce had they advanced 2 Leagues when fome fell down dead with Drought, and all fuffered extremely. The Vanguard being come to a Wood of Palm Trees, fell into Disorder to seek Water at some Wells, they imagined there were near of Paint 1965, in the More observing their Confusion, fell upon them. D. The Moors took the advantage, and falling on killed four of those that aligned; the spanishic which were D. Garcia, Garci Sarmient, Langu and Christopher Velafquez, all Commanders of most first. Note. There was no ftopping of those that fled. The Count ordered the Batalions of Jans Frick. Pocheco and Giles Nieto which were with him in the Rear, to make head against the Moors, and by that means prevented their being all cut off. The Earl hindless was in such a Constraint on, he was one of the first that embarqued, tho he might pretend it was to oblige the Galleys next the Shore to take in the Men, many being drowned because they would not admit them. About 4000 of our Men were killed or taken, and among them many of Note. The Body of D. Garcia was carried to the Xeque, who writ to D. Hugo de Moncada Viceroy of Sicily, that Supposing that Lord to be the King's Kisman, he kept his Body in a Chell, to be disposed of as he should direct. D. Garcia left a young Son called D. Ferdinand Abvarez de Toledo, who was afterwards one of the famous Generals of the World. Count Peter Navarro having fent the Heleft James de Vera in that City with a Garrifon of 3000 Men, other 3000 he disbanded, being unfit for Service; and he with 4000 more and part of the Fleet, went out to fcowr the Coalt between Gelvez and Tunez. Bad Weather obliged him to lie by most part of the Winter, the Governour having received from Supplies from the Illand of Madera, defended himself bravely; and the Siege being raifed made an Inroad as far as Almedina, 32 miles from Safin. He had several Skirmishes with the Moors, tooka great Booty, but in his returnsuch great Numbers came upon him, that he was forced to quit it. He made several other Incursions and came up to the very Walls of Morocco, an Action of more Honour than Advantage. The same was done by D. John Coutino Governour of Arzilla, and Peter de Soufa of Azamer; both brave Commanders, and ambitious of enlarging the Portugues Dominions in Africk, which might have been the more easily performed, that Country being divided into many Kingdoms, and they at variance among themselves.

Some Cardinals Revolt from the Pope; Bolonia taken by the French; The Revolted Cardinals Summon a General Council.

Much about the same time the Catholick King having broke up the Cortes at Monfon, returned to Castile and Pope Julius set out from Rome towards Bolonia. The King was going to the Cortes of Castile, summoned to meet at Madrid, to take care for carrying on the War in Africk, and no less to provide for the Affairs of Italy. The Pope King For- thought being at Bolonia to advance the War againft Ferrara, in which the Duke of Urbin dimend of made little Progress: On the 6th of October King Ferdinand in the presence of the Emperor's fifts the and Prince Charles his Ambassadors, and of the Popes Nuncio, took an Oath at Madrid to Govern that Kingdom as became a just and rightful Tutor. He also Ordered Fabricius Colona with 300 Lances from Naples to go join the Forces of the Church, to ferve against Ferrara, but not against the King of France. To oblige him, he Ordered the Admiral Villamarin with 11 Gallies that returned from Gelves to join the French Fleet at Genga, in order to fecure that City. The Duke of Termens was in Verona with 400 Lances in the Emperor's Service, and faved that City from falling into the Hands of the Venetians, who laid close Siege to it. The Pope when he fet out, Ordered all the Cardinals to follow him. Cardinals to the Segre to it. The Pope when he tet out, Otherea all the Laramas to nonow mm. fall of fall of from the form of them fled to Naplas, and not being admitted there, went thence of Florence. There they staid, the the Pope pressed them to come to him. The French now attempted to have surprized Bolonia, where the Pope and Cardinals were in great Danger, but. Fabricius Bolonia with his 200 Lances delivered them. The Pope fell fick, where the Pope and Cardinals; which he having notice of, as fembled them, and published a severe Bull against such as were guilty of Simony in the Election of a Danger Tha Musingus Cardinals as Microser thought of calling a general Council lection of a Pope. The Mutinous Cardinals at Florence thought of calling a general Council to Reform the Church Discipline, and also to Depose the Pope, The Emperor and King of France joining with them, and endeavouring to draw in the Catholick King. The Emperor and King of France declared all the Confederate Princes were obliged to affift one another, till they had Recovered all that was detained from any of them by the Venetians, They also would have the Pope remit the business of Ferrara to be Tried by due Course of Law, and in order to it, would have all Ecclefiaftical Perfons, not excepting Cardinals or any others, to refide at their Benefices upon Penalty of Forfeiting their Revenues, This caucied the Pope to Excommunicate all the French Commanders in Lish, and all those who had any Hand in the Gallican Provincial Synods held to this effect. The Catholick who had any rand in the Cantonick King never agreed to this Decree of the Gallican Church, but laboured to reconcile the Emperor to the Pope and the Ventiam. It was now proposed to Marry the Queen of Naplex, Nicce to the Catholick King, to Charlet Duke of Savoy, and the Treaty was so far advanced, that 200000 Ducats were assigned for her Portion, and she was called Duchels of Savoy; yet at last it broke off, and the Duke Married Beatrix Princes of Portugal. At Naples the People mutinied, because it was designed to introduce the Inquisition there, after the manner of Spain. The Tumult was so great, that the Viceroy to prevent farther mischief, commanded all the Jews who were come thither from Spain in great numbers, to depart the Kingdom by the last of March, as also that the Inquisition should not be Established. Thus the People was appealed, the Pope himself being of opinion they ought not to have been provoked by erecting that fevere Tribunal.

The King of France was jealous that the Catholick King would join in League with the Jealousies of France was jealous that the Catholick King would join in League with the of Princes Pope against him, and the Swife that served the Pope gave him cause to suspect he might intend to War upon Milan. He offered very advantageous Conditions, but the Pope thought himself secure of all the Dukedom of Ferrara, whereof he had already taken the greatest Part. The Emperor required him to restore Modena as a Feosse of the Empire, to which the Pope was not averse, so he would ingage not to return it to the Duke of Ferrara. which the Pope was not averte, to the would ingage not to return it to the Duke of Ferrara, nor put it into the Hands of the Fernels. The Catholick King had bent his Thoughts against Africk, yet neglected not the Affairs of Italy. He ordered the Duke of Terment to return to Naples, there being no Service about Ferrara. The Duke obeyed, and by the way visited the Naples, there being no service about recome. And Sunce source, and by the way rined the Pope at Bolonia, by whom he was well entertained. About the beginning of January 1911 1911 King Ferdmand went to Sevil to forward the Preparations for the War in Africk, being de-King Ferdinand went to serus to sorward the rreparations for the War in Africa, being defirious to Revenge the loss sustained and state of thereme Viantle, who was surprized and slain with 400 Men in the stand Querqueus, between Gelveis and Tunica. The Pope himself in the dead of Winter laid Siege to, and took Mirandula. Thence he returned himself to Bolonia, but sent his Army to Ferrara. Both his Forces and those of the Venetians who came to his affiftance were forced by the French to quit that Enterprize. In March the Pope at Ravena created 9 Cardinals.

All the Cardinals in the Conclave wherein Pope Julius was chosen, before the Election All the Cardinals in the Conclave wherein Pope Juins was chosen, before the Election had taken an Oath, that whosever of them came up Pope, would call a general Council The Pope within 2 Years after his Promotion to the Pontificate, befides it was decreed in the Council Field to cils of Confame and Bofte, that general Councils should meet every 10 Years, and grievous call a generalties denounced to finch as should obstruct them. Pope Juins after he had obtained the penalties denounced to fine a fine Oath, or the Decreesof shole Councils. Manuser Councils Papacy, made no account either of his Oath, or the Decrees of those Councils. Many were defirous to correct the Abuses crept into the Roman Court, especially during the Reigns of Alexander and Julius. The Emperor and King of France favouring this Defign; the Cardinals that were withdrawn from the Pope ifflued out their Mandates for funmoning a general Council to meet at Pifa on the 1ft of September. The Emperor confented to all this Proceeding, and only defired to have the Council affembled at Confiance in Germany. The Catholick high and only defined to the Control of the Control might be, to require that King to Restore Bolonia to the Church; not to Invade the Territories thereof any farther, and to defift from that Affair of the Council. The King of France excused himself, faying, the Pope had infringed the Capitulation made at Cambray; nevertheless he would admit of Peace upon honourable Terms. He demanded the Articles agreed upon at Cambray should be duly observed. That the Cardinals who had for saken the Court of Rome should be Restored, even as they were before they went thence. That the Marques of Mantua who ferved as General of the Venetians, should be Absolved of the Oath he took to that Republick, and have his Son Restored to him, whom he had delivered to the Pope as Holfage. That the Duke of Ferrara should be received into the Pope's savour, and the Sentence denounced againft him recalled, without obliging him to refign his Lands beyond the River Po, or Cemo, or Pieze, fince they were his Wives Portion. The same things were the River Po, or Cento, or Preve, lince they were his vives Portion. In a lame things were required of the Pope in the Emperor's Name. But he looked on these as hard Conditions, and being of a haughty Spirit, would have no Body Capitulate with him, but submit to his Will. The Catholick King seeing there was no Expedient to prevent that mighty Breach, resolved to declare for the Pope. In order to it he altered his Design of going over reloted to declare for the rope. In order to the accept in Bengal of Bong of the himself into Africk, and fent home rooc English Archers the King of England had furnished for that Expedition. They arrived at Cadix. in June, where he Rewarded, and Diffmilled them well latisfied. Moreover he articled with that King, that in case the King of France and the Canadis in the Agree. them well fatisfied. Moreover he articled with that Ning, that in cale the Ningoi France Agree-would not Reflore Bolonia to the Pope, and defift from calling a general Council; then the ment be Catholick King should affift the Pope, and the King of England should make War in Guiene, wink K to prevent the French invading the Frontiers of Spain. This done, King Ferdinand went a Ferdinand way from Sevil to Burgos. From Gaudalupe he fant Orders to Count Peter Navarre to go and he king where D. Raimund de Cardona the Vicerov under prewith the Forces he had to Naples, where D. Raimand de Cardona the Viceroy, under pre-tance of the War in Africk, had all the Horse in the Kingdom in a roadiness. It was dered that Tripoli should be annexed to the Crown of Sicily, that the Viceroys might thence dered that Input noute be annexed to the Crown of Statey, that the viceroys might thence Relieve and Defend it. D. Fapme de Repuélin was fent Governour thither, with a good Fleet. This was done becaule the King defigned James de Vera the former Governor to be General of his Artillery. D. Fapme enjoyed that Command but a flort time, for a mutiny happening among the Soldiers of that Garrifon, the Viceroy of Statey Removed them and their Governor, and fent his own Brother William de Moncada to fucceed him in that Post.

The Catholick King laboured by all means to withdraw the Emperor from his Ingagements with the King of France. To this purpose he sent Peter de Urrea to him, who was to The Enter fucceed D. Jayme de Conchillos Bishop of the Canaries as Ambassador at that Court. The Peror canal Emperor being a Man of a various Temper, could be brought to no Refoliusion. At lathe note be 62 agreed to fend an Ambassador to the Pope, and D. Peter de Urrea to Venice that they might from conclude some Accord. The Pope in the Name of that Republick offered that the Empe-France ror should retain Verona and Vincenza, and the Venetians all other Places that he pretended to, yet so, that they should pay down 250000 Ducats for the Investiture, and a Pension of 30000 yearly. All other Differences he would have referred to himfelf and the Catholick King, to be by them Terminated. These were advantageous proposals, yet rejected by the Emperor. Nor did Peter de Urreas journey produce any good Effect, for the Venetians perceived by what was working, that all haly would from be in confusion, which would give them a time to Breath, and perhaps to recover their Losses. The Emperor and Princes Margaret made application to the Catholick King for Supplies, either of Men or Money, againft the Duke of Gudders, who countenanced by the French, Insested Flanders, and took some Towns, there being no body to oppose him.

But the Catholick King was so intent upon Italy, that he regarded nothing elfe, and the Emperor himself thought fit to connive at it, rather than break with France.

With him went Garcia de Soula and Ferdinand de Magallanet, the first discovered the Island Sumptra, opposite to Malaca, under the Equinocital. It is very large and fruitful, divided into many Kingdoms, and Inhabited by Moors and Gemiller. He Traded with those People, and then saited to Malaca a large and rich City, having a mighty Trade. Formerly it was subject to the King of Siam, at this time had a King of its own called Malacae. With this King Sequeira Treated and they settled an Alliance. Sequeira sent Robited Angas alhore with certain Portugues to settle a Factory. The Moors being sealous of the Portugues, attempted to seize the Ships, and being disappointed seized the Ment that were in the City: Those at Sea were not strong enough to revenge that wrong, they holised Sail, and having touched at Cockins, Returned to Portugal with what Loading they could get. Almos de Albusateque then Governor of India resolved to revenge this shour. He gave hoifed Sail, and having touched at Cochin, Returned to Portugal with what Loading they could get. Alongo da Albuquerque then Governor of India refolved to revenge this Injury. He gasthered a Fleet, and failed to Sumarta, and thence to Malaca. By the way he took a Ships, which his Men having entred, there, arofe fuch a Flame they were forced to quit ber; attenwards it appeared, that Flame was Artificial and did no harm. Soon after they difcovered another Sail, which alter a vigorous refiftance they also made themselves Matters of: It was observed that the Captain of her called Nabodabeguia, the he had many large wounds, tild not bleed. He being fitpped, and a Gold Bracelet taken from him, the Blood presently gulfied out. It was found that in the Bracelet was fet a Stone which if the Kingdom of Siam is taken out of certain Creatures called Caviffu, and has wonderful Virtue to stanct Blood. The Fleet arrived, at Milaca on the sirst of July: After a vigorous Resistance made by the Inhabitants, the City submitted to the King of Portugal. Thus Christianity was diffused into the utmost limits of the Earth. In Last the Authority of the See Apostolick was much impaired by reason of the Schism that was like to be. The Pope leaving the War, Returned to Rome, and there to oppose the Designs of the Schismatick Carditials, simmoned a General Council to meet in the Church of S. John Lateran on the 19th of April of the following Year. In that Gouncil among other things he proposed to declare, that the present of the provinces of Narmandy. following Year... In that Gouncil among other things he proposed to declare, that the prefent Queen of France was not lawful Wife to that King, and that the Provinces of Normandy and Guine belonged to the King of England, the People thereof being consequently absolved on their Qath of Allegiance, taken to the French King. This was in order to frike a Tertor into, that King. He hereupon began to give Ear to a Peace with the Venetium; but at last thought better to stick to the Council of Pl/a, which the Emperor defired should be removed to Kropa or Treat.. The French King who influenced this Affair would not consent, but haltened the Cagadinals, to open the Council at Pl/a, but they delayed, and proposed to be reconciled to the Pope. At Rome the Pope deprived the four Carditals Carvajal, Co. firsts, S. Male, and Bayrancos all their Dignities, tho' at first the College opposed it, and some excused them, affirming the Pope must be deposed for opposing that Assembly, according to the Decree of the 11th Session of the Council of Basil.

he pressed to have Balonia restored to the Pope. Still that King resolved to Protect that City, whereupon the English Ambassadors formally required him to deliver that Place, which was as good as declaring War, if he did not. He answered he was resolved to desend Bolonia as he would Milan, where Pope sell so sick it was thought he could not escape. The Emperor came as far as Trent, having conceived hopes of belig Seated in S. Peters Chair, and possessing the Kingdom of Naple. But the King of Aragón, the Pope, and Republick of Vinice on the 4th of Ostober concluded a League to Desence of the Church, and against the Schismaticks at Plac. By this League the King was obliged within 20 days after the publishing of it, to sumish 1200 Men at Armis, 1000 light Horse, and 10000 Foot. The Pope 600 Men at Armes, the Republick was to join their Army to the other Forces, and their Fleet to the 11 Galleys of Spain. Fabricius Colona advised to waste the Country, and take in the weaker Places of the Country of Bologna, and leave vifed to waste the Country, and take in the weaker Places of the Country of Bologna, and leave that City to the last. Count Peter Navarro was positive for besigning Bologna, and besing a bold Man represented the taking of it as a matter of no difficulty. His advice was followed, because he was in great esteem among the Soldiery, and never served well when contradicted. The Duke of Termens dying in his way from Rome and the Duke of Urbin resulting then to command the Forces of the Church, thoasterwards he son his Lieutenant, the Pope ordered them to obey the Legates and Viceroy to whom he sent a Sword and Cap, as also the Standards he besised on Constitution 1909. The Ventians neither frent the Supplies of Mony they had promised, nor of Mein, but under the shelter of the League, endeavoured to recover what the Emperor and King of France had taken from them. The Viceroy encamped four miles from Bologna, and the next day being the 16th of Tanuary within Cannon shot of the Town at Belogna, for and King of France had taken from them. In evicercy encamped four miles from Bologna, and the next day being the 16th of January within Cannon shot of the Town at Beloggie a Country House of the Benivoglies. Within the City were 500 Horse and 2000 Foot under the Command of Monstein de Alegre. The same Day the Vicercy matched towards Belogna, the Duke of Ferrana took Basilda and related it to the Ground. The Vicercy work up his Quarters at Beloggie, the Marques of Padula and Count de Populo advanced with the Foot and possed themselves of a Monaletry called S. Michael de Bolgue, quenching the Firefer to it by those with. in. There they planted some Pieces of Cannon, and the reft on a Hill hard by. Before this Advice was brought that Goston de Foix Duke of Nemours, was at Parma gathering his Forces, which were 800 Lances, 1000 light Horfe, and 3000 Foot, and was to joyn at Final 20 miles from Bologna, the Troops of the Duke of Ferrara being 2000 Cascons and some Horse, all this in Order to raise the Siege, Fabricius Colona lay about Cento and Pieve with part of the Army to obferve the passage of the French; the Viceroy ordered him to come to the other side of the City towards the Mountain. It was refolved to move the Batteries to that fide, the Wall being there weakest, but soon after it was agreed the Army should lie all together to secure the Cannon, and weakert, but 160n atter it wasagreed the Army Ihould lie alltogether to fecure the Cannon, and repulle the Relief. The Artillery was planted betwikt S. Adebad and the Florence Gate. On the 28th of January they began to play. Part of the Wall was beaten down and fome Soldiers got into a Tower, where they displayed the Colours, but were foon drove out by the befigged. Caust. Peter Navarro finished a Mine, and having fet Fire to it, the Wall was lifted up, for that they without saw those in the Town, and the Townfinen those in the Field under the Wall, yet it sell again in the same place and selected as fast as st first. This was looked upon as a Mircele, because within adjoyning to the Wall was a Chappel held in great veneration called of Barcan. Newtheless the Circumstance. cle, because within adjoying to the wait was a chappet near in great veneration cancer of barcaens, which like the reft was blown up and fettled again. Neverthelefs the City was in great danger, when there fella Snow for 3 Days together. This gave the Franch General an opportunity of throwing himself into the City with a good Body of Men, without being discovered by the Centinels. For this reason and because the Weather continued very severe, the Army of the Consederates raised the Siege and drew back to S. Lazaro 2 miles from Bologna. The Fortes of the Pope retired as lar as Imola, the Viceroy to the Caffle of S. Peter, and the Porces were dispersed in the neighbouring places. This was the event of that of much talked of Siege. Many, as is usual in the like Cafes blamed the General, for that, as they faid, withour regarding the unfeasonableness of the weather he had let slip 8 Days, in which he might have made a confiderable Advance. That the Army encamped far from the place where it ought to have been. That the Trenches were not well carried on, nor the Mines rightly placed. In fine, Deem That the I relief were that was called any not the Bright poster. I may that the Guards were fo ill kept, they gave the Enemy an Opportunity of getting into the Town without being difcovered. The truth is, the Weather was unfeafonable, and neither the Town without being discovered. The truth is, the Weather was unleasonable, and neither the Swife came as was expected, nor did the Fentium send any Supplies of Men. There were at this Sigge among the rest Antony de Levya, Captain Alvarada and the Marques of Festara D. Ferdinand de Avalos, who was asterwards a most Renowned General. The King of England prepared to be in a readiness as soon as the Season would permit, to invade the Province of Gui. He ordered the Town should be divided. 600 Houses were appointed; 200 for Horse, and the rest for Foot. The Houses Orchards and Lands belonging to the City were distributed among the Inhabitants, that the Place might be more easily maintained. For the greater encouragement of People to come and inhabit there, it was granted they should be free from all manner of Taxes and Impositions, besides that they were to receive Pay. On the last of January Queen Mary of Portugal was delivered at Lisbon of a Son called Prince Henry, who was afterwards a Cardinal, and lastly upon the Death of his Nephew

King Sebastian came to be King of Portugal. The same Day this Prince was born is snowed very much at Libbon, a thing extraordinary in that City. Curious Persons said that Snow denoted the Innocence of his Life, which was very holy, and the purches of his Chastity which he preserved as long as he lived. He was in his Countenance the likest to his Father of all the preierved as long as ne lived. File was in his Counteranice the filed to first rather of all the Brothers. King Bredinand was now at Burges, there on the 16th of February, upon the Death of the Constable D. Bernardin de Velasse, the contracted the Earl's Daughter, Juliana, Grandchild to the King himself, being born of the Lady Joanna of Aragon, to Ferdinand de Velasco eldes Son to D. Inigo, who succeeded his Brother Bernardin in the Lordship of Haro and the District Conductor.

The Absence of the Duke of Nemours gavean Opportunity and Courage to the People of Bref-fa and Bergamo, to revolt from the French and submit themselves again to the Venetians, excepbeginns fa and Bergams, to revolt from the French and lubmit themselves again to the Ventians, excep-and Briffs ting the Castles which the French fill kept. This was a Thing of dangerous Confequence being a return to Precedent for all the other Cities which had been newly conquer'd to do the like. As foon the Obe- as the Duke had relieved Bolonia he refolved to repair thither, and carried along with him dience of Monfieur a Alegre. Amarea Grain with the Army of the Republick and the Inhabitants of Bress marched forward to oppose the Duke. He retired to the Mountain, and after Midnight entred the City by the way of the Castle. Thence he marched out to fight and after Midnight entred the City by the way of the Castle. Thence he marched out to fight he Venetians. A bloody and obstinate Battel was sought, and many killed on both sides, but the French obtained the Victory, Andrew Gritti, Antony Justiniano Governour of the City, and Paul Manfron were made Prisoners. Count Lus Bogara who delivered the City to the Venetiam, being a Native of it and having great Power in it, was not only taken, but condemned and executed as a Traytor. After this Success the Duke of Namours soon recovered Bergamo and executed as a 1 raytor. After this success the Duke of removers soon recovered Berganio without any Difficulty. He left the Lord of Aubigni with a fufficient Force to fecure Breffa, the reft of his Army he dispersed in the Territory of Verona, and went away himself to keep the Carnavalat Milan, and there to rejoice at his Victory. The King of France was much offended this Departure at such a juncture of time, and ordered him immediately to march with all his Forces and observe the Consederate Army then much weakned and in Distress. Hereupon his Forces and observe the Consederate Army then much weakned and in Distress. Hereupon the Council at Pifs took the boldness to appoint the Cardinals of Bolonia and Avignon their Legates; and the Ventians refused to agree with the Emperor, tho the Pope, urged they should accept of the Conditions so often proposed, as did the Emperor to join with the Consederates. Yet soon after, as has been said, the Republick concluded a Truce with the Emperor, upon Condition to pay him down a certain Sun of Mony. The King of France fortified the Frontiers of Normandy first, and then those of Guienne for sear of the English. At the same time he laboured to secure the King of Navarre to his Interest, tho 'under-hand he gave great Affurances to the Tube of Navarre search that the same time he had to see the same time the same time that the same time the same time the same time the same time that the same time that the same time that the same time that the same time the same time the same time that the same time that the same time time that the same time the same time the same time the same time time the same time time the same time t Duke of Nemours of putting him in Poffession of that Kingdom, associated were in Italy were ended. This strict Alliance of the King of Navarre with France was the cause of his Ruin, which was contrived and carried on in this manner. The Pope understanding how that King favoured and affilted the Enemies of the Church, and fided with the French and the Council of Pi/a, refolved with the Advice of the Colledge of Cardinals to take fuch course against him as was usual against schissmatick Princes. On the 18th of February he pronounced Sentence of Exwas utual against ichimatick Princes. Onthe 100 of review are the pronounced sentence of Exemples of Communication against the King and Queen of Diagnity, and giving their Dominions to any that would take possessing them of the Regal Stile and Queen of Dignity, and giving their Dominions to any that would take possessing them. It was suppossessing the communication of the communicatio is determined by the second of and to engage them not to give ahy Aid to France upon that Conjuncture, nor to allow paliage through their Dominions to, his and the Churches Enemies. He also required them to deliver up to him their Son the Prince of Vinna, promiting to marry him to one of his Grand-daughters, that is either the Princes Elizabeth, or Princes Catherine. They refused to comply with any of these Demands, treated the Catholick King's Friends in ill manner, and continued to raise Men and make other Warlike Preparations. D. John de Silva who was General for Cafrasse Men and make other Warlike Preparations. tile on the Frontiers of Navarre, omitted not to require them to forbear those extraordinary Motions, but they made no account of his Messages. They were much encouraged by the News brought from Italy, of the great Power of the French, and Diffres of the Confederate Army. The Victory remained fill in the Earldom of Balonia, not daring to retire for fear of losing Reputation, and being too weak to advance and take any Enterprize in hand, altho the loung Reputation, and being too weak to advance and take any enterprize in hand, altho the Pope prefied him to break into the Territory of Milan. The Viceroy leared to be cut off his Provisions which were fent him from Revenna. He had loft many othis Men that hard Weather, some were dead, and others deserted. What was worst of all, at such time as the Enemy was very near, the Duke of Urbin's Lieutenant with the 600 Lances belonging to the Pope was very near the Lune of Course Institute with the work and that they were jealous of form Spaniardi. The truth was, the Duke held Intelligence with the King of France, and had Bills of hispayable at Florence to raife Men for his Service. Our Army was fo reduced, that the Viceon inspayance at the Method in Service of all Army was rectained, that the Yele you of Legate refolved to take into Pay 4,000 [Lallain, to reinforce it. The Pope would have had 8000 and paid down Mony to raile them. He was for fighting the French immediately, his great Spirit being void of all Apprehension.

THE Duke of Alva continued at S. John de Pied de Porte, and his Forces took fome finall places of little Importance. Thicher James de Vera with great difficulty brought the Artillery. The Dukes of Longueville, Bourbon, and Monpenfier, the Sieur de la Paliffe, and Monfieur de Lautree, lay at Sauveterre and the neighbouring places, to oppose our Army. Their Force was 800 Men at Arms, and 8000 Foot. The Dauphin lay at Garrie, with another great Body ready to second them. This only waited the coming of King John with his Forces to march into Navarre. In hopes of their coming the People of the Valley of Salazar and Roncales revolved from King Ferdinand. The Mareschal of Navarre also, who till then had stood neuter, declared for France, and went away thither from Tudela, whither King Ferdinand went to meet the Queen, after the had broke up the Cortes of Aragon at Mongon. This caused king John to Assenberg and Wentare are two Palles through the Mountains betwixt Navarre and Brance; one is called Valderroneal, the other Valderronear. At the entrance of Valderroneas is 3. John de Pied de Porte, where the Duke of Alva then was. Through the other Pals the King Ied his Army about the middle of Ottober: With him went the Sieur de France la Palisse.

The Spaniard were no where firing enough to give them Battel; yet feveral Commanders pofted themselves in the Straights of the Mountains. Among the rest Fredmand Villex took his Post at Burgi, which place was very weak. The Enemy coming on, assauded that place, and tho they lost 450 Men, carried it, killing many of the Defendants, and among them Ferdmand de Valdez. The Dune of Area conjuding the Gainger ampeau was in the following the second of the first and the second of the secon himlell with the reft to repals the Mountains into Navarre. They Enemy might have prevented him, but they were overfeen as well in that as in not marching directly to Pamploni, which they might easily have taken. This delay gave the Duke leidure to march thinker; and the Archbiftop of Zaragota to join him with 600 Men. Several Castles that had revolted were reduced. Having taken Torla, and salling to plunder it, the People of the Valley joining with the Townsiene, sell upon the Forces, killing above 2000, and taking all their Baggage, with some Field-Pieces. King John encamped at Urroz, within two Leagues of Pamplona, hoping the City would declare for him, but our Army had prevented it by expelling 200 Citizens: besides as Pumple dela People united to be above a great Padra (Santhela et al.). Citizens; besides, at Puente de la Reyna, which is hard by, a great Body alsembled to relieve the place if it were requisite. 1500 Men came from Trasmiera and Campas, and 900 from Bugia, which were landed at Barcelona. Soon after, the Forces of Aragon came thither. The Duke of Najara was chosen General of this Army. The French fill expected more Forces from the Dauphin, and the Sieur de la Palisse was distatisfied for that nothing succeeded to his Mind. The French encamped to as to cut off the Provisions of the City. Another Body, nis Mind. The reense encamped to as to cut on the rroymons of the cut. Another nody, ieft beyond the Mountains to diver the Forces of King, Ferdinand, entred Guipufcon. They halfed by Fuenterabia, and fate down before S. Sebaftian. Monfieur de Lautree Commanded that Army, and refolved to attack that Town. D. John d'Aragon, Son to the Archbilling of Zaragopa, was in the place, who so encouraged the Garrifton, the single, the thing of the control of the standard of the standa of Naples, deligned to fly to the French, but was taken, with Four others that managed his Intelligence. He was kept many years a Prisoner in the Castle of Xativa, and his Accomplices executed. The Season was unfit to lie in the Field, wherefore the French resolved to be the executed. The Season was unfit to lie in the Field, wherefore the French retolved to be the most expedite they could: They facked two Monasteries of Nuns that are without the Walls. A German Capitain opening the Taberinacle to Scale the Castodium, threw out the Bleffed Sacrament upon the Altar. The Nun that was Sacrifam faid, How dare you commit fach a Sacrifage? He answered, This is not the God of the Germans, but of the Spanniards. He is faid son after, like Judan, to have burst assince. They planted their Cannon, and gave two Assaults, but fill the Defendants held out. The Duke of Najara with 600 Foot beliefs the Horse, appeared on the top of the Mountain; designing either to sight, or else to cut off the Enemy's Provisions. On the last Day of November the French raised the Siege, and returned towards France. The Confide lat War. All the Agramontofes submitted themselves, and the City Pamplona was repaired, and a place marked out to build a Castle.

D. Raymund de Moncada having fortunately fettled the Affairs of Florence, marched towards. Lombardy. At Modena he held a Council of War, to confult what was best to be done. The City Bresse was besieged by the Venetians, who hoped to possess themselves of it. The Emperor pretended to it, and the Swiss would have it given to Duke Maximilian Sforcia, whose Quarrel they had espoused. To end this Quarrel, it was agreed the Viceroy should hold is for the League, till it could be decided who it belonged to. D. D. Peter &Urrea and his Companion sed the Pope with good Words. He resolved to send Bernard de Binan, who was afterwards a Cardinal, to acquaint the Viceroy with his Will. At this time the Marquels de Pesara being ransomed from the French, came to Milan, and had the Command of the Company of the Men at Arms, that had belonged to Caspar de Pomar, killed in the City, given him. On the first of Ostober the Viceroy passed the Po with 9000 Foot. Prosper Colona was marching with above 200 Men at Arms and 2000 Foot. On the New York of the Power of t marching with above 400 Men at Arms, and 1000 Foot, to join the Viceroy. The Pope endeavoured to hinder him, but could not. He alfo laboured with the Cardinal of Son, that the Swift should not admit the Spaniards into Lombards. At Verona, Rocandulpho, a Commander of the Emperor's, joined the Viceroy with 2000 German, 400 Horfe, and 27 Pieces of Cannon. M.d. Aubigni, before diffrested by the Ventians, seeing this new Supply, set up the Emperour's Colours. Bernard de Bibiena now coming to the Camp, the Viceroy answered, He was too forward advanced to go back; but as foon as he had put an end to that Undertaking, he would obey the Commands of the Pope. Monfieur a Anbign had leave to march out with his Garifon, Arms, Baggage, and Horfes, to what part, he pleafed, provided it were not to the Callip of Milan, or any other that held out for the French. The Garrifon of the Callie agreed to furrender upon the same Articles, if not relieved in 21 days. This same day, being the 25th of October, the Spanish Army mustered at Castanerala near Bressa. It was found above 8000 25th of Olibber, the Spanish Army muttered at Lastanerala near Bressa: It was tound above 8000 Foot ftrong. Commendary Sola was left in that City with 1000 Men; the rest of the Army marched to bestege the Castle of Bergama, the City being already surrendered. Admiral Villamenia sailed from Naples with 7 Galleys, to join those of the Pope at Civita Vecchia, in order to bestege the Castle of the Lantern at Gena, which held out for the French. They sound there 3 Galleys of Venice sent to the same effect. Four other Galleys the Duke of Gena had furnished, but ill equipped. The Siege went on slowly. At Marseilles the French had but of Galleys and one Galleon. The Schilmatick Cardinals continued their Council at Lions, and march as Castleys and one Galleon. The Schilmatick Cardinals continued their Council at Lions, and Galleys and one Galleon. The Schifmatick Cardinals continued their Council at Lions, and made large Offers to feveral Princes. D. Hugo de Monada, Viceroy of Sizily, failed over to Tripoli, to give Orders for fortilying that Place. The Duke of Urbin lay between Ravenna and Bologna, with 500 Men at Arms and 1000 Swift. His Italians, who were more numerous, daily ravaged the Country, but did nothing confiderable.

Maximilian Sforcia flayed at Trent till the French were quite expelled the Dukedom of Milan, similian and the Milanefes had faitsfied the Swift, who as they flood firm to his Interectf, to they would Sforcia rec. have their flare in the Booty. The Milanefes agreed to give them 150000 Ducats in hand, covers Mi. and 40000 yearly for ever, and offered Three Strong-holds in that Dukedom for their Seculting. The Fungary Cowered that Dukedom for one of his Genafous, but the Divines of Make.

rity. The Emperor coveted that Dukedom for one of his Grandfons, but the Princes of Italy were against it. In fine, to put an end to all Disorders, Maximilian Specia entred that City upon the 29th of December, immediately preceding the Year 1513. He was received with the Pomp and Joy usually expressed to the former Dukes. The Swift Ambassach or presented him Point and Joy unually expressed to the former Duges. The Duge Third and the presence in the Keys with much Ceremony. Next care was to reduce those Places still held by the French. The Marques of Padula, with the Spanish Infantry, soon took the strong Castle Trees, on the Banks of the River Abdua. That of Novara was surrendered to the Duke's Forces. In order to conclude a Peace betwixt the Emperour and the Venetians, the Truce, which was expired in January, was continued till the end of March. The Cardinal of Gurse would have the fame Conditions the Pope promised the Year before to the Emperour, but the Ventians would hear of nothing, unless Verona were restored to them. It was though convenient to make War upon them with the Forces of the Emperour, Spain, and Milan, without making mention of the Swift, who it was believed would foon agree with the French, through the Nemention of the say's, who it was delieved would not agree with the reme, through the re-gociation of Monfieur de la Trimoulla, finit to that purpole, which was the beginning of new Troubles. The Viceroy to fecure Milan, where the French had fill footing, and Trioubles, And gathered 5000 Foot, more Supplies daily reforting to them, placed Proper Colona at Africantic with a good Body of Men to fecure that Pass. The Catholick King thought it convenient to make the of the Power of England against the French; and because the English were not willing to mix-with other Men, he perswaded that King by the way of Calair to invade Normandy, while at the same time he undertook to conquer Guienne, and deliver it up to him. King Henry fitted out 50 Sail to transport 5000 Foot, all choice Men and well Armed; and and the formation collisited the Calabilate Vice. and at the same time follicited the Catholick King to fend him 50 Ships more. It was not easie to answer in so many places at once; for besides all other things in hand, King Ferdinand was sick, and Andaluzia in an uproar. The occasion of his Sickness was a certain extravagant Potion the Queen made him drink at Medina del Campo, in hopes of conceiving; fo Dr. Carvajal and Peter Martyr relate it, as a thing allowed by all Men. The effect of it was such, that the King grew very weak, and delighted in nothing but being in the woods. His Difease daily encreased, he had sainting Fits, and Signs of a Dropsie. Andaluxia mutinied upon the death of Henry Duke of Medina Silonia. He had a Sister by the same Father and Mother called Menia, and married to D. Peter Giron, and also a Brother only by the Father's fide, called D. Alonfo Perez de Guzman. In his Will he appointed his Sifter to Inherit, affirmming the Second Marriage of his Father was invalid. Upon this account D. Peter Giron thought to possess himself of that Estate, and security Medina and Sidonia. The Lady Elle. thought to possess himself of that Estate, and secured Medina stid Sidonia. The Lady Ellenor de Zustre Septemother to D. Meinta, and the late Duke stood up for her son, who had the true Titte; and the King savoured his Caule, intending he should marry the Lady Anne of Arigony Daughter to the Archbishop of Zaragoga. This Dispute was like to be decided by force of Arms, both Parites having powerful supports. Justice prevailed, and the Brother of the Duke carried the Estate. Gonzalo Mariin commanded at Bugia, and Martin Argota at Oran, as Lieutenant to the Marquels of Commerc. Some Skirmishes happed with the Moors, but nothing remarkable, only that Muley Abdalla with some Forces came up to Bugia and burnt the Suburbs. No part was lest standing but one Tower, where the Jany save themselves. At length the Pope died on the 20th of Rebrasy: The People mutinied Lea X, at Rome; and there was great Contention betwirk the Colonefer and the Urfini. The Mona-chofen flery of S. Paul of Benedictine Monks was plundered, and other difforders committed. Hierome Vie the Spanish Ambastador, contributed much to pacifie the Multitude. On the 4th of March the Cardinals entred the Conclave, having first diffcharged the Son of the Duke of March the Cardinals entred the Conclave, having first diffcharged the Son of the Duke of Manua, kept as a Holtage till then; and on the 11th by Votes of almost all of them, Cardinal John de Middiei, was chosen Pope, and took the Name of Leo X. That very day he declared he would continue in the League, and bring the Emperor and King of England into it. The Cardinals Cardenial and San/everiro who were at Lione, but in no great Effecting, deligned to go into Italy, and get into the Conclave. Profeer Colona favoured them, and defigned himself to go to Rome and have a Pope of his own creating. But the Viceroy would not fusser him to go, left he should raise some Mutiny, and put a restraint pon the Conclave. Thither the Viceroy repaired with his Army thought to have done the same of ranna. Addition the vicetoy repaired with this army to oppole the French, it being no Season to make War upon the Venetians. He suffered great want of Money, and there was no way to supply it. The Discourse of concluding Peace betwith the Emperor and Venetians continued, but they could not agree upon the Conditions. The King of France stept in, and agreed with that Republick. The Conditions were, That the Peace between the Conditions were the peace between the peace of the pea The King of France frop in, and agreed with that explaints. The Committons were, I not the Peice be-Republick should keep all its ancient Dominions, except Cremona and Giaradada, which were twice restored to the French, and Incorporated into the Dukedom of Milan. For Recovery of France and that Dukedom and of the Lands of the Venetians, the Republick was to surnish 1000 Horse, Ponter, and 6000 Foot under the Command of Bartholometa de Albiano, and the King 1200 Horse and 6000 Foot under the Command of Bartosomew as Austrame, and the Ming 1200 Horse and 12000 Foot, Robert de la Mare was to be Captain General of the Foot, Monsieur de la Trimoville and John James Trivolleis Lieutenant Generals. As soon as this Agreement was made publick, Trivolleis entred the City Afe with the French Forces. Bartbolomew de Albiano with the Venetian Army marched to Verone intending to join the French, Hereupon, and by reason of the Viceroys absence and Towns of Lomberdy declared against Duke Maximilian. reason of the Viceroys abtence most Towns of Lombardy declared against Duke Maximilian. The King of Fance was the more earnest to conclude this Treaty, because he had another in Hand by means of Cardinal Garvajal, which was for a Cestation of Arms betwix him and the Catholick King on this side the Alper. This Accord was convenient for both Kings, for King Fardinand to secure Navarre, and the King of Fance the State of Milan, without any regard of the King of Navarre or Duke Maximilian. After some Difficulties and De Farting and Conditions of the Cardinal any regard of othe King of Naviarre or Duke Maximilian. After fome Difficulties and De. That during the Cellation, there should be free Trade betwixt the Two Kingdoms of this side the Alpea. King John of Navarre was Excluded this Treaty, which was delivering him up to be devoured by his greedy Enemy. The Emperor and King of England had two Month's allowed them to sign those Articles, or else to be Excluded. Months allowed them to fign those Articles, or else to be Excluded, as in Effect they were, whereat the Emperor was greatly offended. He urged it was contrary to the Catholick

Above ally he exclaimed that the Treaty was Managed by Cardinal Carvajal, who had been a Person too opposite to their Interest. This Contrivance was doubtles a great piece of Subtity; but what grieved the Emperor most was, that he must thus lose all the Cities he had in Isaly, the he pleaded other causes of Discontent. Before the Truce was concluded with France Monsicur de Laurre, made all necessary prenations to possess in thisself of S. John Field M. Part; after the taking of which Place he deligned through that Pass to enter Neurare. The Marquess de Comerc sent some Persons to secure the Country thereabouts, and some Supplies of Men to James de Vers to desend that City. But the Cellation of Arms put an end to all these Designs. This gave our Men the opportunity not only of maintaining what they had, but of extending their Conquest, the American as Body of about 5000 Men to oppose them. He required the Bishop of Lameres according to parole to Intrender himself again a Prisoner; but King Ferdinand eclared, he was absolved of that Promise as being taken contrary to the Law of Arms, he being an Ambassacor, and in the Service of the See Apostolick, as also by the death of the Dube of Languéville to whom he had engaged his Word. The Mareschal of Navarre who stilled himself Marquess of Corters, broke into Gaipuncoa with 2000 Men. The Country People, in pursuance of their Orders from D. James de Vera and Lope Zambez de Valenquela were sent by the Marques of Commerce to Beliege that Castle, which they did, yet having Intelligence that King John and the Maressand Nowarre were coming to relieve the besieged, they drew off, leaving the Cannon at Azaplicuta in danger of being loss. The Marques marched thirther himself with 2000 Men and some heavy Cannon, and the Delendants seeing there was no hope of Relief from France, and their own King was too weak to attempt it, soon surrended. HE great Rendezvous of the French Army was at Afte, and in Piedmont Montieur de la Rendezt Trimouille made all necessary Preparations, and about 400 light Horse were come to vouz of the Army Miles have Trimoulle and Secondary Vision with Confession Promb at him out of France. With him was John James Trivulcio, and Sacromoro Visconte, who for taking Alle. the Duke of Milan whom he had Served, went over to the French. Bartholomew de Albiano made ready with the Venetian Army to Beliege Verona. In that City were 5000 Germans, and 600 light Horse, who ravaged all the Country as far as Vincenza, as if they had been Maodd ngin tone, with largest an the Country as an analysis and bell miss. Hers of the Field. Near Placenia lay the Vicercoy with 1,000 Men at Arms, 800 light Horfe and 7000 Foot, all tried Men. With the Duke of Milan were 8000 Swiffs, and he expect. Neither durft the Duke give them Battle, but leaving the Camp, retired to Neuran. He entred that Place on the laft of May without reflecting, that those very People had before betrayed his Father to the French. The Vicercy feemed willing to join the King; but no Money coming from Rome, as the Ambassador Vie had promised, and having received Or-

dets from Spain to Return to Naples, he was unwilling to engage to far in that War. He refolved to look on, and only encourage the Affairs of Lombardy by his preferee. The Command of the Foot, Vacant by the Marquels de Padula's being preferred to be General of the Florentines, he gave to Commendary Solis, and fent Luys lears to take charge of Bressa in his flead. He put the Forces of the Pope into Gremona, and afterwards feat thither Ferramofa with 40 Men at Arms, 300 Spaniard and 500 Italians. Yet Albamo for all this, took that City, putting to the Sword all the Men at Arms to the number of 200, and difarming the Spanish Foot. This fuccess encouraged the French to lay Siege to Novara. Their Army consisted of 800 Lances, and 8000 Foot, 3000 of them Germans, the rest bad Troops. Being about to storm the Town, news was brought them that 12000 Swiffe were upon their march to relieve the Duke, and that the Baron of Altfaxe followed with 5000 more. This caused the French to return to their strength betwixt Gaya and Novara: Upon the first supplies joining them, the Swife resolved to march towards the Enemy, without expecting the Baron of Ablaxe. The French would have avoided fighting, but could not : The Mcn at Dation of defeate. The cremes would have avoided naturally to the two hours betwirt the Foot. A most desperate Resistance was made by the Germans, but the Swiff got the day. On the fide of the French above 7000 were killed, and among them all the German, and of People of Nore Coliabano, Trivulcio and Luis de Biamonte. After the Victory came the Baron of AltJaxe, and most of the State of Milan submitted to the Duke. The Viceroy sent the Duke 400 Lances Commanded by Profeet Colona, because he was in great want of Horse, and all the Enemies Horse were lest entire. The rest of the Army remained as before, near the River Trebia, not far from Placencia. Albiano's being prevented joining the French Army, made that Victory the easier to be purchased. He hearing of the Deseat, retired with his Forces which were 1000 Lances, 300 light Horse and 5000 Foot, most of them base Soldiers. That Republick was fo streightned for Money, they were forced to raise the 10th of Estates, and one in the hundred out of all Merchandize. Albiano in his march took Lignagno defended by Captain Villada with 200 Men. Thence he marched to attack Uerona; but the Garrifon fallied, and cut off-part of his final Forces. At this time the two Schiffmatick Cardinals publickly acknowledged their Crime, and Abjured the Schiffm they had raifed, and swift out on the 27th of July were received into the Church, and reftored to their Dignities. The the Princh. Duke of Milan pressed the Viceroy to join him, because the French were with all Diligence recruting their Army. In 3 days march he came to Sarafina, thence he fent the Marques de Peleura to Genoa, as was said before, and went himself to relieve Verona, before which Al. biano still lay. Pontevico, Urfonova and other Places surrendred, as did Bergamo promising frome fupply of Money. The Viceroy went on to Pelguera, leaving Mofen Puch at Bergamo to receive the Contribution. Renfo a Venetian Commander having notice of it, and fome Inreceive the Contribution. Knip a Ventian Commander naving notice of it, and tome in-telligence in the Place got into it by Night, took the Money and forme of Puch his Com-pany, he with difficulty faving himfelf in a strong House. The Viceroy took Pefque-ra which is strong, and the Cardinal de Guree joining him with some German Forces, they fat down before Padus about the beginning of Angul : Padus is large and strong, and Al-biano had thrown himself into it, which obliged them to quit the Siege. During the Siege, in a skirmish Alonso de Carvajal and the Captains Cardenas and Espinosa were taken by the Albanefes. Here the light Hoffe fent to Genea with the Marques of Pefeara were nucl mif-fed. The Catholick King was now old, fickly, and worn out with 6 many Wars, and therefore thought of making Peace with France. It was proposed that Prince Ferdinand should Marry the youngest Daughter of France, and her Portion should be the States of Milas and

Genoa, and King Ferdinand should give his Grandson the Kingdom of Naples. These were only Contrivances to gain time, especially on the King of France his part, who dreaded

Hereupon Tournay furrendred. String of Seaty, who in the string of England. There the Emperor, Princets Margares and Prince Charles came to lee the King of England. Thence they went to Life, where it was agreed as foon as the Truce was expired, the Einforce and Kings of England and Spain should each on their own Side Invade France. King peror and Kings of England and Spain should each on their own Side Invade France. King Ferdinand was to conquer Guienne for the English, but it appeared he did not approve of this Treaty. The Match before proposed betwisk Prince Charles and the King of England's Sister was construed, and it was agreed is should be Consummated the following Year. Summer before Gene King Hurse required into England. France was in distress. The Saudin having being spent, King Henry returned into England. France was in diffress, the Swiffe having broke through Burgundy. Monsieur de la Trimeville overthrew, and yet compounded with them. The King of France ingag'd not to favour the Council of Pifa, and to withdraw his Garrifons out of the Castles of Milan and Cremona. No part of this Accord was performed, except what related to submitting to the Church.

After a troublesome Voyage, they landed at Azamor about Autumn. Several Skirmishes passed betwixe them and the Defendants, as also those that same to relieve the Place, but many Men of Note among the Moors being killed, the rest sted out at a Gate that could not be secured, and thus the City was taken about the beginning of September. Some neighbouring Places surrendired, and among them the Cities of Gina and Almedina. Having lest a good Garrison at Azamor under the Command of Roderick Barreto and John de Menset, the Duke returned to Portugal, the many advised to besege the City Morocco, but he said he had no such Orders. This Success encouraged King Emanuel to protecute his Conquests, along the Coast of Africk on that side, and therefore resigned any Pretensions he might have to Prima and the City Velex, upon Condition the Catholick King, should not pretend to any thing along the Coast of the Kingdom of Frzs, even down to Cape Bojador. In Italy, the Viccroy entred the Territory of the Venetians, by the way he took many Boats and Carts-loaded withthe Goods of People that sled. Albiano marched to out off the Viceroy from Vincenza, and greamed in a new Mountains: Albiano marched to cut off the Viceroy from Vincenza, and encamped in a narrow Pass near a Town called Olmo. Our Army was in great danger, it being impossible to advance, and dangerous to turn back, yet they resolved to retire, that they might draw the Enemy into the open Field. They thinking our Men had sled, pursued has they are in Discretely and in Discretely the control of the property of the pro

Enemy into the open Field. They thinking our Men had fled, pursued hastily and in Disorder, whereupon the Viceroy by the advice of Profer Colona and the Marques of Pesara, commanded his German's to charge the Enemy; which they did with such sirry, that they soon broke them. The Marques of Pesara pursued them up to the City, where the Gates being shut, many were drowned in the River, and among them Sacromio Visconie. This done, the Viceroy with the German and some Spaniards, attacked a Body of the Enemies Horse and Foot, who fortified themselves on a Hill with 5 Pieces of Cannon. These also were easily put to flight. This Battel was sought on the 7th of October. 700 Venetian Men at Arms were killed that Energy discontinuation and many others and 22 Pieces of Cannon were staken. all their Foot dispersed. Paul Baillon and many others, and 22 Pieces of Cannon were taken. Albiano and Griti escaped. The Viceroy marched to Vintenza where he stayed some Days. At the same time the Castle of Bergamo was taken from the Venetians by Storm. Paul Baillon was released upon his Parole, that he would furrender himself again, in case the Venetiati would not give Alonfo de Carvajal in Exchange for him.

Carvajal died in Prilon, and Bailon would not give Aunyo as Caronjo in Exchange in initi.

Nothing was left the French in Lombardy, but the Caffle of Lanterna at Genoa. The Duke layed Siege to it, and the Adornos and Flifos encamped before Gensa, but were forced to retire leaving some of their Cannon behind. The Pope continued the Lateran Council, and admitted the French Ambassadors, they in their King's Name, renouncing the Council of Pifa. and the Protection of the Schifmaticks, fo the Galican Church fubmitted to the Roman. The Pope was concerned to fee the Republick of Vigite so mear Destruction, and underhand designed to relieveit. He sent to require the Viceroy to proceed no sather against it, that some Accommodation might be made. Aragon was how in an Uproar, on account of some Quarrel between the Earls of Ribegorgs and Aranda. At length the King interpoling, the Difference came to Tryal, and the Earl of Ribegorgs being sound tailty, was banished the Kingdom of Aragon during the King's Pleasure. In the Kingdom of Noplas some Towns had revolted, being oppressed by their Lords: And Peter de Castro tho with much trouble reduced them all. The Earl of Marc Governour of Apulia, was commanded to go and reside at his Government, and Michael de Apraye to the Mountain of Abrazzo. All had Orders to savour the Execution of Unition

Ramiro Naño de Guz-man was sent Ambassador to Roose by King Ferdinand. By the way on the 5th of March, he concluded a Treaty with the Genoese; by which the King was obliged to protect that State, and they to assist the King. At the same time the Adornes were treating with the Swiff, about changing the Government of that City. In France the Bission of Timpoli again revived the Discourse, of marrying that King's youngest Daughter to Prince Ferdinand, in Order to a Peace, and also of matching the King of France then a Widdower, with Ellenor Sister to Prince Charles. The Emperor and Venetians at last referred the Decision of the Dissernaces between the Popes was so that King Fordinand should approve of his Decision. On the 18th them to the Pope; yet so that King Ferdinand should approve of his Decision. On the 18th of March the Pope Decreed, that the Emperor should keep Verona and Vincenza, and the Veof March the Pope Decreed, that the Emperor should keep Verona and Vincenza, and the Venetian Birlia and Bergame, they paying down to the Emperor 250000 Duccats and 30000 yearly. Before the Catholick King's Approbation could be had, the Ventians declared they would not stand to that Decision. The Truce between Spain and France was prolonged for twist a Year more, in order to conclude a Peace. The Dauphin was against this Truce, searing lest spain and france was prolonged for twist if a Peace followed. he might hole the Dukedom of Adilan. The Emperor was rather for it, Powerprehis Thoughts being bent against the Venetians. But the King of Emgland was 60 offended, that longed on the 7th of American of the King in Father in-Law. Luis Carrox the Spanish Ambasilador at that Court, laboured to annease the King, as did Oucen Catherine. but all in France, without making any memon of the bang his cause in Law Line Spains, Amballador at that Court, laboured to appear the King, as did Queen Carberine, but all in vain. Soon after D. Luis Carroe returned to Spain, and the Billop of Trimpoli went over from France to fucceed him. In Lombard, the Viceroy by Storm took Citadela, a very ftrong Town between Padua and Treviso. Prosper Colona with the Duke of Milan's Forces befieged Crema, which was well defended for the Venetians by Renço Cherri, Garcia Mamique lay at Robiby with some Companies of Men at Arms. Albiano who watched all Opportunities to revenge his Losse surprized them by night, the Spaniards surrended themselves, and Garcia Mainique with the other Officers were fent Prisoners to Vincenza. Renço Cherri sallied out of Crema by Night, and fetting upon part of the Duke's Forces commanded by Silvio Sabelo, put them to the Rott, and went himself to Bergamo which he took without any Resistance, the Spaniards retiging into the Calle. On the sirst of November came the Viceroy to their Relief, and Renco feeing no Possibility of holding out, surrendred the City upon Articles. About the sametime the Castle of Lanterna at Genoa, which till now had held out for the French, was delivered to Duke Octavian Fregoso. Letus turn back a little.

The Great Turk having put an end to the War with his Brothers, and the Soft Ifmael who Preparation took their part, was fitting out above 130 Galleys, and defigned them againft hely. It was one of the fuppoled, he woul invade by the way of Marca Anoma, which belongs to the Church. The Inva Pope, laboured to bring the Emperor, Kings of England, France, Spain, and Portugal, and Smith nathor Dukes of Milan and Genoa, into a League Offenitive and Defenitive against the Turks; but as ter he had made a great Progress herein, it all sell to nothing. Private Quarrels hindred those Princes from uniting, and other Wars diverted the Turk from his Designs upon Christendom.

Only the King of Portugal enjoyed Peace and Prosperity, being enriched with the Trade of About the end of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year, he sent a formal prosperity of the last Year. lemn Emplay to the Pope, to make his Compliment of Obelfance. As a Token of his Grandeur, he also fent very rich Presents; which were, a Pontifical Vestment of Cloath of Gold, embroidered with Pearls and precious Stones, the richest that had ever been in the Treafury of S. Peter. An Ounce brought from Persia, wonderfully seet, which an Indian carried behind him on horfeback; and had taught it when he made a Sign, to leap off and hurt. An Elephant covered with Cloath of Gold, and a Caffle on his back, being taught, befides other things, to kneel before the Prince, to dance to a Pipe, and to fill his Trunkwith Water, and fprinkle the Reople. defigned to fight with the Elephant, these Creatures being naturally Enemies. But the Rhinoceros was lost, the Ship being cast away upon the Coast of Genoa. Tristan de Acuna, a Gentleman well verted in the Affairs of India and principal Ambassador, made his publick Entry into Rome upon the 12th of March. On the 20th, the Day appointed to receive Audience of the Pope, James Pacheco a great Civilian, and one of Acuna's Companions, delivered himfelf to Pope, James Pacheco a great Civilian, and one of Acuña's Companions, delivered himieli to the Pope in this manner: 'King Emainel of Portugal,' moth holy Father, has lent us to Relicitate 'your happy Affumption to the Pontificate,' wilhing you may enjoy it many Years for the good of the Church, as we all hope it will be; and allo to pay his Obedience as is ufual and 'due, yet done by him with a moft ready Will, which may make amends for the Delay, caufed by many great and weighty Obffacles He also humbly makes Suit to your Hollines, to caft the Eyes of your Eatherly Care, upon making up the Breaches of Christendom, upon reconciling the Christian Princes, and uniting their Forces against the common Enemy, who grows upon our Losses, and builds his own Grandeur upon our Ruines. For what Enterprize can be more glorious or profitable than this? Let the past Rage suffice. For they deserve no better Stile who turn their Weapons upon themselves. To this Purpole it will be very requifite the Holy Council be continued, as the King earnethy defires. For his own part, he promifes not to be wanting to the publick Caule, and if requifite, will not spare his own Blood in this Quarrel, It is all his Study to advance the Christian. Religion, as appears in India; where, to his immortal Glory, he has fet up the Holy Standard of the Crofs, among ferce and barbarous Nations, even as far as the utmost Bounds of the Earth-No lefs has be done in Africk, having there spent his Treasures, and employed the Bravery of his Soldiers. Of the Spoil and Riches of India, he has commanded me to bring a Sample, and the first Fruits: a Present to be esteemed for the Place from whence it came, and for the East with which it is offered, befides, the hopes those vast Regions give us, of humbling them-felves at the Feet of your Holines. Instead of the Spoil of Africk, which as more common, could not be so acceptable, I present your Holiness with a Petition, in my Judgment, most reafonable. It is, that in regard of the Importance of carrying on that Conquest, and that the Revenue of Portugal is not fufficient to continue it, your Goodness will affist, the King my Master, with your Blessing and Indulgences; and besides, will grant that towards the advancing that Enterprize, he may make use of part of the Ecclesialtical Revenues. For how can they be better spent, or more to the content of the Donors, than in destroying the Enemies of Christ? And since all are Partakers of the Honour and profit, it is reasonable all should bear a part in the Burden. We do not believe this Holy See will deny that, in such necessity, bear a part in the Burden. We do not believe this Holy see will deny triat, in lucin necessary and for such a Purpole, which has been at several times granted to other Princes. The Pope heard the Ambassador with great statisfaction, and returned a savourable Answer, saying, He bigbly esteemed the King of Portugal, received his Presents with great Affection, and would forward his Designs by all the means that lay in his Power. He granted his Bulls for the Croisfade, and all lowed the King for to defray the Charge of his Undertakings, to make use of the 3d part of Ecclessatical Revenues affigned to the Churches, and the 10th of all other Church Revenues. Great Difficulties were met with in the Execution of these Orders, which was the Fault of isl Ministers. For this reason the Church compounded for 150000 Cruzado's paid down, and three Years after, all these Taxes were quite taken off. The Commonalty milliked the applying the Revenues of the Church to any other uses, and urged the Example of the Kings of Castile; who were ever poor, since they had to do with the Mony of the Church. The Kings Ministers either to flatter him, or that their Opinion was really luch; affirmed, that fince the King defended not only the Laity, but the Clergy, it was reasonable they should all contribute to the necessary Charges of the Kingdom, the Churches enjoying a great part of the Revenue. It is most certain, that in the time of S. Ambrof, the Landsof the Church payed Taxes to the Emperors. This was the Success of that Embassis, About the same time arrived at Libba, An Am. one Matthew an Armenian by Birth, and by Profession a religious Man, sent Ambassacor from bassacor Presser John, the Great Emperor of Ethiopia. That Prince, called David (since the time that from Ethi-Peter Covillan went into those Parts as was faid before) had heard of the King of Portugal, and after that of his Fleets failing to India, and the Valour of his People. He thought good to make use of his Forces, and to that Purpose sent this Ambassador, who was well received by Alonso de Albuquerque and sent to Portugal. Those who carried him made a Jest of him by the way, and treated him very feorifully. At Libon they were apprehended, and had been punished, but that the Ambasador interceded for them. The King received himhonourably, and was much taken with his Letters, written in the Abyssima and Person Languages, and also with a piece of the Holy Cross he brought set in Gold. By this Ambassador they understood the Customs of those People, odd enough for Christians. It would be tedious to speak of them at large, let it suffice to know, that the 8th Day, as well the Women as Men are circumcifed, artiage, let it tunce to know, that the 5th Day, as well the women as Men are circumcited, and the 4oth Saptized. Women after Lyingin, observe the Cultom of Purification. They abfain from Meats forbidden in the Old Law. They fast till Sun-set. They communicate in both kinds, Their Priests marry, but not their Monks, nor the Bilhops chosen out of Monalteries. They use auxicular Consellion, and worship Saints. Let us return to Italy. The Pope was possessed to him by the Emperor for 40000 Duccats. It was thought he designed these two Cities as also Placensia, Parma, and Ferrara, for his Brother Julian, whom soon after he married to Philiberta Sister to the Duke of Savoy, and gave her himself roooo Duccats Portion.

ING Lais of Grance, foon after his Marriage with the English Princes, died, as is usual Lui, King the fift Day of the Year, 1515. Francis de Valois Duke of Angoulgine, the fift of the Name, dies. and a Prince of a great Spirit lucceeded him. It was generally believed he would not rest 1515. till he had recovered Milman and Navarre; and he seemed to intrinate as much to those Kings.

His chief Care was for Italy, and therefore he sought to leave all behind secure. With England the Proposed a Match herwise Prince Charles of Angles, and he Stops in the proposed a Match herwise Prince Charles of Angles, and he Stops in His chief Care was for may, and instruction is notified to reave an bening secure. With engiana he was at Peace. He proposed a Match betwire Prince Charles of Austria, and his Sister in. Law Renata, which was so carried on by the Earl of Nassan and Michael de Croy, both of the Princes Bedchamber, that they concluded it at Paris on the 24th of March. Her Portion was Frinces Decentations, that they became the state of the doctors of the theorem the prince was now come to Age, and put into the Poliefino of the Government of the Low Countrys It remained to fecure King Ferdinand. Monfieur de Laustre-Governour of Guienne, proposed to the Marques of Comars, the Prolonging of the Truce for a Year but King Ferdinand understanding his Policy, would not grant it, unless it was the Institute of the Laustre of fer at 600000 Duccats, 200000 to be paid down in Mony, and the Dukedom of Berry for the fent the Queen with a futneant Committon to prefide there, and thence to go to Letida to those of Catalonia, and o on to Valencia, to those of that Kingdom. He went himself to Burgar to be there at the time appointed. His grand Design was, to raise Mony or the War which threatned on all sides. The Corres of Burgar gave 150 Millions of Maravedies. This they did in respect that King Ferdinand then united the Kindom of Navarre to that of Castile, whereas formerly it was united to Aragon. By this it appears, the King had no Thoughtsof refloring that Kingdom, but esteemed it as much his own, as any of the others, without the least remorfe of Conscience upon that account, as he was often heard to say. He gave three leaft remorfe of Conficience upon that account, as he was often heard to fay. He gave three Reasons to justifie this his Proceeding. The first, the Pope's deposing that King. The second, the site of that Crown to the Kings of Cashile, made by the Princes Clare, first Wise to Prince Henry, afterwards the 4th King of Cashile of that Name; when her Father King John of Aragon delivered her up to Gaston de Foix, and her Sister Ellenor her declared Enemies, who fought her Death, to fecure themselves the Possellison of that Crown, and therefore he said, it was but just, to revenge that Murder, by depriving the Grandchildren of those that committed so great a Crinte of the Kingdom. His third Reason was, the Right that Queen Germana pretended to the Crown, after the Death of her Brother Gaston de Foix. Three Years after this, it appears she assigned over all her Claim, to Prince Charles then King of Gastile and Aragon, but the Nobility would not conseque, unless their Vassals were cut off, from having any Appen, to the King. This hindred all Proceedings for some Months. The Archbishop of Zaragon to try what every City in particular would contribute. King Ferdinand, tho his Sickness in creased, so that he was given over for Dead, one night resolved to get into Aragon, shelieving to try what every only in particular would continue. Sing eventuana, the his steknels increased, for that he was given over for Dead, one night refolved to get into Aragon; believing his Prefence would reduce that obstinate People, He sent for the Vicechancellour Amony Augustin to meet him, and associated as a came to Aranda, caused him to be apprehended, and sent gustin to meethim, and asson as he came to Aranda, caused him to be apprehended, and sense Prisoner to the Castle of Saimoneas. Every one guessed at the Cause of his Imprisonment, but nothing was certathly known. The King lest the Cardinal and Council at Segovia, and hasted to Calatayud carrying Prince Ferdinand with him. He could not prevail with the Nobility to quit their unjust Pretensions. His Sickress increased, and it is reported, the samous Bell of Visible prognosticated his Death, for in Aragon it is a received Opinion, that Bell rings of it self, before the Death of Kings or any other great Missortunes. Thus having done nothing, he returned to Madrid in Autumn. The Queen having broke up the Cortes of Aragon, went to Levida to those of Catalonia. At the same time these Cortes sat, the Emperor, the Brothers King Scillward of Poland and Ladislaus of Hunvarr, and his Son Luis. then King of Bobenial met at Lerias to those or manners. At the same time times were sat, the emperor, the prothers Aing Spigimand of Poland, and Ladiflam of Hungary, and his Son Luis, then King of Bobemia met at Vienna on the 17th of July. Their meeting was, to celebrate the Nuptials of Prince Ferdinand and the Princes Mary, with Luis King of Bobemia, and the Lady Ame his Sifter, the Children of the Hungarian King. Prince Ferdinand being ablent, the Emperor stood Proxy for Land Cardinal of Stringing the Done Land Emperor Manner Cardinal One Land Emperor Manner Manner Cardinal One Land Emperor Manner Cardinal One Land Emperor Manner Man her. Thomas Cardinal of Strigonium the Pope's Legate, performed the Ceremony. It is worth observing, that as Ferdinand and Mary were Grandchildren to the Catholick King, for

Luis and Anne, were great Grandchildren to E e or Queen of Navarre, and Silter to King Lans and Anne, we great standard to the same and the same abroad.

Alms a Great things had been done by Alons de Albuquerque Governour of India, and great is the Albuquer obligation his Country owes him, for having Founded their Dominion in those remote que his A Parts. He was now old, fickly, and worn out; and had many Enemies who sent Corpularity to being impossible to pelace all Men. King Emanuel sent Lope Suarce.

Ladia.

La there the Ethiopian Ambassador, and Duarte Galvam sent in the same Quality by King Emanuel; but he died by the way. Some time after Relativistic de Lima was sent, who carried Mathew into Ethiopia, but he died before he could reach the Court. Now also went Francis Alvarez the Priest whose Bookis extant, giving an account of his Voyage. The new Governour arrirefer two poors extent, giving an account of its voyage. In the Worder of which was a very fhort time. On the 7th of that Month, the Queen of Portugal was delivered of a Son called Edward, an affable and mild Prince, addicted to Hunting and Musick. He died young, yet left a Son by his Wife of his own Name, and two Daughters, whereof Mary was married to Alexander Farnessus, then Prince, and alterwards Duke of Parma, and Catherine married to the Duke of Bragança. When Lope Suarez arrived at Goa, Albuquerque was at Ormuz ill of his last Sickness. Having settled that Island, he embarked, being desirous to see Goa, which Place laft Sickneß. Having settled that ssland, he embarked, being desirous to see Goa, which Place was his Delight. By the way he received advice of the coming of his Successor; he was extreamly surprized, and cried out, Good God! bow many Missortunes surround me! If I please the King, Men are offended; if I satisfie them, my King is displayed. Retire to the Church, unbappy Old Man, for no ether Sanctianary is left; our. Soon aster, being better come to himself, he said, Iruly it is God that guides the Hearts of Kings, and dispose all things: What would become of India, if there were not one to succeed me after my Death! In how great Danger would it be! This said, he reposed; and sinding his Malady enclease, ordered his Coulessor to be brought to him from Goa, which was not far off. Maving made his Peace with God, he gave up the Ghost. He was doubtless one of the Bravest Men that Spain ever bred. His Valour, Mildness, Prudence, and Justice reigned in an equal degree. He was patient of Labour, different in his Resolutions, quick in Execution, amiable to his own People, and terrible to his Enemies. It was a great Mercy of God to give to the Parisquefer Two fich Governours at first as was he and Francis d'Almeyda being both Wife and Reiolute Men, and Zealous of their Prince's Service and the Propagation of the Faith, tho they differed in Opinions as to the Means of carrying on that Great Work: For Francis d'Almeyda, who was the first, thought it best-only to make themselves Masters of the Sea, and not undertake any Conquests; whereas, on the contrary, Albaquerque was wholly for gaining Strong holds, in order to fecure the Trade, and have a Retreat for their Fleets. Experience has eaught how much he was in the Right. Albaquerque was never married, but he left a Son by a Servant, and a little before his Death rebuquerque was never married, but he left a Son by a Servant, and a little before his Death recommended him to King Emanuel, writing to him these Words: This is my last, which I write with many Sight, and assured Tokens of my End. I leave only one Son, who I beg may find Favour in regard to my great Services. I will say nothing of my Sussivingt, but refer my left to my Allions.
His Body was buried at Goa, in a Chapel he had built of the Invocation of the Bellest Virgin.
His Funeral Pomp was performed with Regal Magnificence, and great Grief of all sorts of People. When the News of his Death was brought to Portugal; the King was much concerned; he sert for his Son, whose Name was Blan, but in memory of his Father he would have him called Alons 2 Alinquerque. The King provided for him, and matched him Honourably.
He lived many Years, and beautified the Chapel where his Father, lay. King Emanuel designed to build a Fort at the Mouth of the River Mamora in Africh, about too miles from Arxila. He sent Anton, Noronba with a Fleet of 200 Sail, and in it 8000 Men, to perform this Work.
They sailed from Libbon on the 12th of Yulv. and came to the Mouth of that River on the They failed from Libon on the 13th of July, and came to the Mouth of that River on the 23d. As the Work began, such a multitude of Moor came upon them, that they were forced to quit that Enterprize, and return to Portugal with Dishonour, and the loss of 4000 Men, as also the Cannon which they lest in the Fort they had begun.

CHAP. X.

The King of France recovers Milan. The Swifs overthrown. Death of the Great Captain, and of Ferdinand King of Spain.

As foon as King Francis of France found himself peaceably possessed of his Kingdom, Milan tet he gathered a powerful Army, in order to go overeinto Lombardy. 15000 Smill covered marched to the Desence of the Duke of Milan. Prosper Colona with his Men at Arms thought by the power of the powe marched to the Defence of the Oute of Milan. Prosper, Colona with his Men at Arms thought by the to secure a Pass, but was himself surprized at Supper in Pillafranca, and made Prisoner Pronts. By the Forces of the Steur de la Paliss. The Viceroy lay with his Army near the River Abdua. Laurence de Medicis, Son to Peter that was drowned in the River Garellano, with the Forces of the Pope Quartered at Plasmia. It was very requisite these Forces should join with the Swiff, and the Duke of Milan earnestly pressed them so to do, and the more because the French began already to be successful; for Alexandria yielded to them, and Novara with the Castle was taken by the Industry of Peter Navarra, who in a Passion for that he was not Ransomed, agreed to serve the King of Stance, he surchassing his Life vara with the Castle was taken by the Industry of Peter Navarro, who in a Passion for that he was not Ransomed, agreed to serve the King of France, he purchasing his Liberty for 2000 Ducate King Berdinand sent to make him great Offers, but too late, for he was engaged, and therefore excused himself, resigning up the Earldom of Oliveto he had in Naples. The Viceroy was jealous that the Swijs held Correspondence with France, and no less of the Pope's Forces, searing he should compound with the Enemy to save Parma and Plassing, which the Swijs intended to take from him. He less Mark Antony Colona in Verona, and Luis leart in Bress, with good Garrisons, and he with the rest of the Army passed the Po, and fortised himself near Plassing was offended at this Delay which proved said. They resolved the reit of the Army panen the ro, and horoned names near ringonia and the Kiver. Trebia. The Swift were offended at this Delay, which proved fatal. They refolved themselves with only a sew Italians to fight the French, who lay strongly encamped near Donato and Marignano. This they did to prevent Albiano joining the French with the Venetian Forces, which consisted of Nine handsed Men at Arms, One thousand four the Venetian Forces, and Nine handsed Men. The Swift based and Nine handsed Henry threathed and the result of the Nine handsed Henry threathed and the result of the Nine handsed Henry threathed and the result of the Nine handsed Henry threathed and the result of the Nine handsed Henry threathed and the result of the Nine handsed Henry threathed are the Nine handsed Henry threathed and the Nine handsed Henry threathed threath hundred Light-horse, and Nine hundred Foot. The Swift marched out in good Order, hundred Light-horfe, and Nine hundred Foot. The Swifs marched out in good Order, and the Frenkb drew up to receive them. Charles of Bourbon led the Van, the Sieur de la Palife the Rear, and the King the main Battel. The Frenkb Artillery, which was numerous, did the Swifs great harm. They charged furiously to take it, and overcoming the Over-Enemy's Works, made themselves Malters of part of it. Night came on, and yet the thow of Fight ceased not as long as there was Moon-light, which was till between Eleven and the swift. Twelve of the Clock. The Kingawas fo forward, that he was forced to stand upon his Guard, only reposing himself a little on a Cart. He neither took off his Helmet, nor eat a mouthful in Twenty seven Hours. Understanding the Swifs would charge the cess of the Cannon, he gave the Charge of it to the Germans. At break of day the not eat a mouthful in Twenty feven Hours. Understanding the Swiss would charge the rest of the Cannon, he gave the Charge of it to the German. At break of day the Fight was renewed with as great Fury as before. The French Artillety playing athware the Swiss, did great execution, and Albiano coming upon them with some Troops of Horse, they imagining his whole Army was come, retired in good order to Milan. This samous Battel was sought on the Thitreenth and Fourteenth of Soptember. From Milan the Swiss marched away towards Lago de Come. The Milanes delivered up the City to the King, who Jaid straight Siege to the Castle, whither the John Lad straight Siege to the Castle, whither the John Lad Graight Siege to the Castle, whither the John Articled he should have a Pension of Thirty six thousand Crowns, up the condition he should not depart that Kinedom. All the other Cities and Stroops. on condition he flould not depart that Kingdom. All the other Cities and Strongs-holds of the Dukedom immediately fubmitted to the King. D. Raymund de Cardona the Viceroy marched in hafte to Naples to fecure that Kingdom. He had Orders for em-Vicercy marched in haste to Naples to secure that Kingdom. He had Orders for employing of the Soldiers to attempt the taking of Gelves on the Coast of Africk. The Pope easily temporized, and meeting the Victorious King at Robinia, granted him all the could ask. In Spain King Ferdinand had many other Cares upon him. It was reported the Great Captain, the Marques of Priego, and Earls of Cabra and Uriñas, designed to go over to Flanders. The King sent Orders to secure the Great Captains, but it happened he Great Fless of a Ague at Losa, where he generally resided, and yet it was thought his Sick Captain ries was counterfeit. The King of England's Dissipations array very high, and it was convex ordered nient at such a ticklish time to appease him. King Ferdinand ten him a rich Present of the appease him the Captain of the C Jeweis and Hories by the Commendary Luis Gidabert. He arrived at Inch time as it was confirmed the Queen was with Child, to the great Joy of that Kingdom. At the fame time Thomas Wolfey received the Cardinal's Cap, for which there were great Demonstrations of publick Satisfaction. This Prelate role from a very mean Extraction to that High Dignity through the Favour of this King. His Pride and Ambition atterwards, fatal to that Kingdom', caft him down. This Cardinal and the Catholick King's Amballador conferred together, and on the Fighteenth of Offober concluded a firm League bowist

the Two Kings. Before this, Luis de Requefens, with Nine Galleys he Commanded, near the Illand-Pensialarea, defeated 12 Vessels of Turks that did great harm on the Coast of Sicily Burbaross and all those Seas. Burbaross, the famous Turks is Commander, with his Fleet came before the Burgia: Many Meorr came down to his Aid by Land, and the Siege lasted fome Months.

Busia in D. Raymund Cartex, Commander of that Place, desended it with much Bravery. D. Michael de Garren, Viceroy of Majorca; came to this Relief, but could not raise the Siege. The Benefiege fuffered great want of Provisions. At fuch time as they were upon surrending, there came to them a Ship laden with all forts of Victuals, sen by the Viceroy of Sardinia. This is the West of the Place and the Discount of the Burger of the Place and the Pla Supply lafted them till the Turk despairing of carrying the Place, raised the Siege about the end of the Year.

The Catholick King's Dropfie and the Great Captains Ague increafed, both of them being mortal Difeafes. The Great Captain fet out of Loss upon the point of death, was carried on Mens Shoulders to Granala, and there gave up the Ghoft on the 2d of December, Garibay fays on the 10th. He was a Man not to be matched, being the Bravelt and most Forumate Commander that Spain had for many Years. The Severity of his Usage increased his Glory, it being very rare to Sail long in the Seas of Prosperity without some Storm. Many great Men in process of time had the Brightness of their Honour Millied. Time cut the Thread of his Life; but his Renown will endure as long as the World. Upon his death the Office of Constable of Napley was Vacant, which was given to Fabricius Colona, and continues in his Family to this day. His Estate sell to the Lady Elvira, Eldest Daughter and Heire's to her Father. The Catholick King was gone from Madrid, to Plajenia, in order to continue his Journey to Sevil, because the Air of that Place is very Wholesome. There, tho very slick, he was nobly Entertained, and staid some days. He sent Prince Revolution to Guadaley, thinking to Return thither, and so went on Serens to divert himself with Hawking, that being a good Country for it, and he delighting in that, and the like Sports. With him went the Admiral, the Duke of Alva, the Bishop of Burgos and 3 of his Council, which were Dr. Laurent Calindae, de Carvayal, and the Lieutenants Zagata, and Francis de Vargat. To this Place about Christinas came Admira Dean of Lorvain, Prince Charles his Preceptor, sent for m Flanders. It was agreed at his coming, that the Prince should be supplied with 50000 Ducatsa Year, and King Ferdinand, altho Q. Joanna died, should during shis Lile continue in the Government of Casilie. They showed themselves liberal to him, who according to appearance must some pass and to them. The King re-Prince should be supplied with 50000 Ducatsa Year, and King Feedmand, altho Q. Joanna died, should during his Life continue in the Government of Cashie. They showed themselves liberal to him, who according to appearance must soon, resign up all to them. The King returned to Madrigalejo in the Territory of Traxillo; his Disease encreased so that it was plain he had but sew days to live. The Dean of Louvoin repaired thinter, at which the King was offended, and ordered him back to Guadalage, whither he went to see Prince Ferdinand. He made his Will, and Consession, on the Danger he was 'in, set out from Lorida, and came to him the day before he Signed his Will. Next day, being Wednesday the 23d of Jamany, 1716. between One and Two in the Moning he gave up the Shoth. He was one of the most revewen One and Two in the Moning he gave up the Ghost. He was one of the most revewen One and Two in the Moning he gave up the Ghost. He was one of the most reverse one at Burgo 2 years before his Death; the second at Aranda de Duero, 2 years later; and the last when he died. In all of them he names Queen Joanna his Heirels, and Prince Charles her Son Governour. In case the Prince was not in Spain, by his sirt Will he ordined Prince Ferdinand should Govern in his stead; but in the other two, he changed that Article, and ordered that during the Prince's abscince the Archbistion, was admitted to the Government together with the Cardinal. To Prince Serdinand the Kings should Govern Aragem, and the Cardinal of Spain Cassile. This was punctually observed as he had commanded. True it is, the Dean of Louvain producing the Prince's Commission, was admitted to the Government together with the Cardinal. To Prince Ferdinand the King his Grandstather left in the Kingdom of Naples the Principality of Tavanto, and Cities of Cassor, Tropea, Amania, and Galipoli, besides a Pension of 50000 Ducates out of the Revenue of that Kingdom to be paid him till such time as his Brother settled an equivalent Estate upon him. He also ordered that the Duke Body. By the way whole Towns came out to meet it with Crosses and in Mourning; particisularly at Cordovo, when the Body passed through that City, the Marques of Priego and

RANCIS the new King of France having fettled the Affairs of his Kingdom at home, and being a hot and fiery Youth, refolved to carry the War into French K. Italy. He paffed the Alps with all his Forces, and at his first Entrance over- in Italy. threw and took Prisoner Prosper Coloma, who with the Horse thought on have stopped his Passage. Next he took Novara, and the Castle, wherein he was much assisted by the Industry of Countr Peter Navararo, who weary of his long Imprisonment, and offended that he was not Ransom'd, had taken Service with the French. Thence the French King' March'd towards Milan. With Duke Maximilian, were the Smiss, Raymand de Cardona was at Verona, and Laivneved et Medicio General for the Pope at Placencia. They not coming in time as they ought to have done, the Smiss marched out to meet the King; and tho the Battle was fo resolutely fought, Swiss root that it lasted all day and part of the night, next morning the Swiss terrified with a false tea. Rumour that fresh Supplies were coming to the King, were overcome and put to flight. The Duke was taken in the Castle whether he field for refuge, and sent Prisoner into France as his Father had been, and continued there in like manner as long as he lived. This memorable Battel was stought on the 13th of September.

The Consequence of this Victory was such in Italy, that the Spaniards, who before were spaniards absolute, being, drove out of Lombardy and the State of Milan, began now to be in fear expelled for Naples. The Catholic King raised Men, and endeavour'd to have Succours from all Milan. Parts; yet at the same time he gave Orders to secure the Great Captain Gongalo Fernandez, de Cordova and other Men of Quality, because they designed to go over to Flanders, but he fell sick in Olbober at Loxa, and died the Second of December at Granada.

Ferdinand the Catholick King died at Madrigalejo near Truxillo, as he was going to Sevil, K. Ferdion the 27th of January, of a Dropfy which had troubled him many Months. It is re-nand dies ported that the Bell of Veilla in Aragon which uses to denounce such Misfortunes, had aliobeen heard to ring of it self before this. He appointed his Grandson Charles of Anglria his Heir. To his Grandson Ferdinand he left the City Taranto and some other Lands in the Kingdom of Naples. To govern during the absence of King Charles, he appointed the Cardinal of Spain Archbishop of Toledo in Capilie, and his Son the Archbishop of Zaragoça in Aragon. Ferdinand Duke of Calabria he ordered to be set at Liberty, and to have a competent Revenue assigned him. His Body and that of the Queen his Wise, were buried in the Cathedral of Granada, as he had ordained in his Will. King Charles by his Letters Patents appointed Adrian, Dean of Lovain, to govern together with the Cardinal of Spain; and notwithstanding his Mother was still living, he took upon him the Title of King, without consent of the Nobility, yet he continued to use that Stile, it being a thing of dangerous consequence to oppose him.

Our Governours were in care for Navarre, searing least now upon the Change of Princes.

Our Governours were in care for Navarre, fearing least now upon the Change of Princes Navarre That Kingdom fhould declare for its own antient Kings. For this reason they chose the peasified Duke of Najara Governour and General of that Kingdom, he being a Person very fit for that Employment, by reason of the great Alliances he had among that People, his Estate lying near at hand. Nevertheless Peter of Navarre, Mareschal of that Kingdom and Marquis of Cortes raifed fome Commotions, which were not of any moment, for he was taken and fent Prisoner to Simaneas, where he continued in Confinement as long as he lived. Besides, all those Contrivances ended in the Death of King John d'Albret, who died in his Dominion of Bearne upon Tuesday the Nineteenth of June.

Eight Months after ensued the Death of the Queen his Wife. Both their Bodies were buried at Lescar, a City in the Province of Bearne, tho they in their Will had ordered themselves to be buried at Pamplona, as King and Queen of Navarre, by that means as it were to make good their Title, which was a small comfort having lost the Crown. Henry d'Albret their Son succeeded them in their Possessions, as also in the Pretensions to that

Adrian. Tortofa in Spain, was at Rome choien Cardinal on the 27th of June.

K. Charles Charles of Auftria the new King, arrived with his Fleet at Villavicofa, a Town in Aftain Spain. Thas, the 19th of September. The Cardinal of Spain went to meet him, but died by the way at Roa. His Body was buried in the Colledge of 9. Halfonfus at Acada de Henares, which he had built from the Ground, and endowed with plentiful Revenues to be a Seminary of Learning. The manner of it is after that of the University of Paris, if we may be allowed to compare small things to great, at least much Profit has redounded from it to Spain, a great number of Youth being there instructed, and many Persons of great Learning having been brought up there. He was Archbishop 22 Years. Cardinal William de Crons I Femina Succeeded him in that Dismire. liam de Croy a Fleming succeeded him in that Dignity.

This Year was remarkable, and no lefs Untortunate, for two things that happened: One the Emperor Herachius, when the falle Prophet had appointed were Supream in Spirituals as well as Temporals. These continued till the War of the Holy Land, when Spirituals as well as 1 emporals. These continued tin the war of the Poly Laint, when King Amalarius of Hierafalem, having taken the City of Damiata formerly called Pelanfium, drove the Caliph to fuch ftreights, that he was forced to crave Aid of the Sultan of Siria. Sarraco was fant with these Succours. He in requisal for the Affifance given polleffed himself of the Kingdom of Egypt, leaving to the Caliphs only the Spiritual Jurifdiction. Saladin the Son of Sarraco was Sultan of Egypt and Siria, and having obtained many Victories over the Christians, and taken Hierafalem, reduced the Christians these to great streights. Not long after Melechfala being possessed of that Empire, finding himfelf too weak to oppose the Christians, bought of the Tartars a great number of Circassian Slaves, with whose help he did many great things, and among the rest took S. Luis King of France Prisoner at Damiata. The Slaves having murdered Melechsala, chose a King from among themfelves called Turquenius, upon condition that neither his Sons should inherit the Crown, nor the Sons of the other Slaves should be admitted into their Order, but that only those should be Soldiers and bare command who being the Sons of Christian Parents had renounced the Faith. These they called Mamalucks, and from among them the King was to be chosen. This Government flourished 300 Years, till the time of Cayerbeyus, who obtained many Victories over the Turks, and reigned in the time of King Ferdinand of Spain. Campson his Successor, after the Turks had overthrown the Persians near the City Tarvisum, fearing they would invade Siria, marched against them with his Army, and was near Damaseus deseated and slain by Selymus the Turkish Emperor. In his flead the Manual Fet up Tomombeyus, who being by the Turks in Battel put to the Rout, and the City Caire taken, was by them impaled. Thus the Turk Selymus having conquered the Provinces of Siria and Egypt returned home victorious, his Empire being much augmented, and his strongth increased by so large an Addition.

Martin Luther took this Occasion to spread his new Doctrine. Pope Julius had begun the Structure of the Vatican, and Pope Leo the Tenth his Successor to finish it granted a Jubilee throughout the World to fuch as gave some Charity towards that Work. Albertus Archbishop of Mentz, to whom the charge of publishing this Jubilee in Germany was committed, gave it in charge to Tezelius, a Dominican Friar: Martin Luther, who was Professor of Divinity at Wirtemberg, and an Austin Friar, so highly resented that Commission was not given to him, that he immediately began to preach against it, and meeting with others that gave ear to him ran into many other Extravagancies, which foon spread abroad; the many Abuses then crept into the Church, being a motive for the People to Revolt from it.

Ellenor, Sifter to King Charles, was Married to Emanuel King of Portugal about the end his Sifter of this Year at Ocrato, a Town in Portugal, with much Pomp and Grandeur. They had married to afterwards Islue Charles who died Young, and Mary who lived long but was never K of Portugal.

It was now proposed to divide the Archbishoprick of Toledo into several Bishopricks, because of its immoderate Greatness, and particularly Madrid and Talavera were designed to have Prelates of their own. Pope Leo granted his Bull in order to the effecting of it. He gave the Inspection of that Affair to the Cardinal Adrian, the Bishop of Cosenza his Nuncio in Spain, and D. Alonfo de Marrique Bishop of Cuidad Rodrigo, who were impowered to order it as they should think sit. They met with so many Difficulties that they were

Anno 1519.

Maximilian the Emperor departed this Life on the 12th of January. Soon after the Maximilian Electors met at Francfort to appoint a Successor, and the there were many Pretenders, as dies, and great Instance particularly made by Frances King of France, yet Charles King of Spain Charles and gleat limited patternally and cory reasons thing of France, yet Charles (ring of Spain Charles was preferred before them all, and declared Emperor on the 28th of June. But in re-the 18th gard that the Kings of Naples could not accept of the Empire, they being fo engaged to chosen the Popes, he obtained a Dispensation upon condition he should pay yearly 7000 Ducats, as an acknowledgment for that Kingdom, and a White Hacapey, as is done to this Day. This point was not perfectly agreed upon till fome Years after.

King Charles received the News of his Election at Barcelona, whence croffing all Spain he went to Cornina, and failed thence in May for Fanders. A Angligrar the first Crown Charles of the Empire was put upon his Head on the 22th of Odober, by the Bishop of Cologis, the Eisth whose Office it is. At the same time he freely refigned to his Brother Fordinand all Au-Crownest. Aria and the other Hereditary Dominions of his Grandfather Maximilian. Cardinal hard and the other resecuting Dominions of this Standards, D. Henry Erriques, were left. Governours of Spain. They omitted nothing that could be done to quell the Commonaltry, who rofe in Rebellion, but could not prevent their taking up Afrik, whence enfined Rebellion the Civil Wars called Communidades, or the Commons War, Their Pretences were, that in Spain. the CVII wars cance communated. Of the Commons war, Incir Precences were, that a through the Avarice of the Flemmings all the Gold of Spain was carried away, and that the Liberties of the Subjects were infringed by their tyranical Government. The common cry of all rebels. The greateft Grievance was, that Charles de Gevres, the new Kings Tutor, not content that he had preferred his Nephew William de Cryp to the Arch. Autor, not content that he mad preferred his Nephew william ae Crip to the Archibifoprick of Toledo, had by many knacks and contrivances raked together a vafi quantity of Spanish Pistols. The principal Heads of the rebellion were John de Padilla, one of the first Gentlemen of Toledo, and D. Antony de Acnia, Bishop of Zantora. Several Towns and Gities joyned with them. Several Engagements happened between the Loyallists and Rebells in many places, with various success, till about the end of this Year the Kings Army took Tordefillas, where the Rebels had fortified themselves and kept Queen Joanna. On the 2st of Aprit the following Year, was fought the Battle of Villalar, in which they were totally overthrown, and the Ringleaders of them taken, which were, John de Padilla, Bravo and Maldonado, who were executed, and the Bishop was hanged at Simaneas, where he was priloner. Thus those Tumulist were brought to an end by the Prudence and good Conduct of the Councel, to whom the King had wholly committed that Charge. Da Maria Pacheco, Wife to John de Padilla, in the place of her Husband headed the Rebels, and encouraged them to hold together, but could do nothing worth remembrance. The Duke of Committee of Columbia and the State of Columb of Segorbe defeated the Germanats of Valencia near unto Morvedre. So the Rebels in that part of the Country called themselves.

Anno 1521.

William de Croy Archbishop of Toledo, died in Germany the 11th of January, without coming into Spain, or having done any thing remarkable during his Life. D. Alonfo de Fonfeea, a Man of great Spirit at that time Archbishop of Santiago, was translated to the See of Toledo. The Archbishoprick of Santiago was given to John de Tavera, Nephew to F. James Deza Archbishop of Sevil, at that time Bishop of Cuidad Rodrigo and Ofma, and of the Councel of the Inquisition.

The Rebellion in Caffile produced a new War in Navarte. King Ferdinand to hinder Navarre any Infurrection had demolished all the Castles in that Kingdom, and the last Year all the by the Garrisons and Artillery were drawn thence against the Mutiniers of Castile. Francis King by the of France desiring to restore Henry d'Albret to that Crown of Right appertaining to him, laid hold of that favourable Opportunity, and fent a numerous Army to that effect, under the Command of Andrew l'Esparre, younger Brother to Odes Lord of Lautree. He found all things easier than he could have imagined, and over-run all the Kingdom, taking the Capital City Pamplona, abandoned by D. Antony Maurique the Viceroy. Only the Caftle held out, being defended by Ignacius of Loyola, a Man nobly defeended in Guipazcoa, then a Soldier, and afterwards Founder of the Order of the Jesuits. A Cannon Ball struck up a Stone which broke one of his Legs and hurt the other, which brought him into danger of his Life. He being wounded the Castle surrendred. The French Commander not content with having recovered that Kingdom, entred Castle, and for some days lay before Logrono. Our Forces marching to the Relief of the Place, obliged him to quit the Siege Not long after at a place called Noayn near Pamplona, they overthrew the Figureh and took their General Prisoner. After this Victory the Kingdom of Navare was with the same ease again brought under the Crown of Castile.

The King of France highly offended at this Disappointment, to revenge it sent a new French in Army into Biscay, under the Command of the Admiral of France, who took Fuenterabia. a strong Town upon the Frontiers. Several Rencounters' happened betwixt our Forces and those of the Enemy, but at length the Town was recovered

Nevertheless he is blamed, as having been given to his Pleasures more than became his high Dignity, and for immoderately extolling his Kindred, first his Brother Julian, and after his Death Laurence his Nephew, Son to Peter his other Brother. To raise them he designed to deprive the Duke of Urbin of his Dominions, but the Death of both the Brother and the Nephew prevented the execution of his Deligns. Pope Leo was of the House of Medicis, whose Genealogy is this which follows.

The Great Cosmo de Medicis, who lived in Florence 100 Years before this, had a Son called Peter, and by him two Grandsons Laurence and Julian. Laurence had three Sons, Peter, John the prefent Pope Lee, and Julian. But and a natural Son born after his Father's Death and called Julia, who came to be Pope, and was called Clement the Seventh Peter, Brother to Pope Lee, had a Son called Laurence the Younger, who was General of his Unkle the Pope's Forces. He by a Mistrifs had Alexander afterwards Duke of Florence, by his Wife Magdalen of Bolonia left Catharine, who came to be Queen of France, where-by the House of Medicis is related to many Royal Families. The second Julian, Brother to Pope Leo, had a Son called Hypolito, who was afterwards a Cardinal, his Unkle Pope Clement giving him the Cap.

Anno 1 122.

On the 10th of January Cardinal Adrian, tho a Fleming, and at that time absent, was by the Conclave chosen Pope. At that time he was employed in the Government of Spain. The News of his promotion was brought to him at Vitoria, where he then was to give Orders for carrying on the War against France and recovering of Fuenterabia, Immediately he hasted away in order to pass over into Italy, yet he came not to Rome till the Summer was well advanced. His Papacy was fhort, as not exceeding twenty Months. but his Learning, Wissom and Virtue were very great. He changed not his Name, but was called Adrian the 6th. By him St. Antony Archbishop of Florence, and Benon Bishop of Missa, were Canonised. On the 3d of February the Royalists under the Conduct of the Archbishop of Bari overcame the Rebels, who were possessed of the City Toledo, and so those Tumults ended.

Anno 1523.

Pope Adrian granted to the Emperor Charles and his Successors Kings of Spain the full Authority of electing and prefenting the Bishops within their Dominions. His Bull was passed on the oth of September. He also for ever granted them to hold the Administration of the three military Orders, which other Popes had only granted for a time. The Death of Pope died at Rome on the 12th of the same Month, oppressed with Care and Grief for Pope A that the Turks had the Year before possessed the Mand of Rbodes, after it had endured a Siege of Eight Months. During the vacancy of the Papal Chair died at Rome Cardinal Bernardin de Carvajal, who had been Bishop first of Astorga, then of Bada-Joz of Carthagena, of Siguença, and laftly of Platiencia. D. Gatierre de Carvajal, Bifnop of Platiencia; was Nephew to the Cardinal who religned that See up to him. This Year also died F. James Deza Master to Prince John, successively Bishop of Salamanca, Jaen and Sevil, Inquisitor General and Rect: of Toledo. On the 20th of December Cardinal Ju-Leo the X. 201, inquintor Scienar and Exect of Tolean. On the Zoth of December, Cardinar Ju-Les in line de Medicis Coulin-German to Pope Les the Tenth, was chosen Pope in the place of shoten Adrian deceased, and took the Name of Clement the Seventh. He governed the Church Pope. ten Years, 10 Months, and 7 Days. He confirmed the Order of the Theatins, calling it the Congregation of Divine-Love. It was inflituted by Peter Garrafa Bilhop of Theatinann, and other pious Perfons. Their Habit differs not from that of the other Clergy, their Life is retired, free from worldly Bufinefs, and employed in finging the Canonical Hours.

The French who had entred the Dutchy of Milan, and made themselves Masters of a Over-Anno 1524 great part of it, were this Year almost enclosed by the imperial Army under the Com-throw o mand of the Duke of Bourbon, who took most of the Places from whence the Army was the French: fupplied, and by that means brought them into great Diffres for want of Provisions. This obliged the Admiral of France, General of those Forces to endeavour to make a re-treat, but the Imperialifts were so close upon him that he was forced to fight, his Army treat, one the inheritants were to crote upon that that he was forced to light, his Army was wholly overthrown, and only a small part of it returned home by the way of Turin.

This Victory encouraged the Duke of Bourbon and Marquis of Pescara to lay Siege to Marfilles, where when they had lain fix Weeks, hearing that the French King was coming with a powerful Army, they fent away their heavy Cannon by Sea, and retired with great with a powerful Army, they remember the neary Caunon by sea, and retired with great precipitation. Of all these only Prince John and the Princess Mary lived to be mar-rors sifer.

Pope Lee the same Year he died entred into a League with Charles the Emperor, for rope Les the same year he used entred into a League with Charles the Emperor, for expelling the French out of Italy, upon condition that every Year upon S. Peter's Day the Emperor should for the Kingdom of Naples, befiges the White Hackney, pay 7000 Ducats; and that the Kingdom of Sicily should be owned as a Feoffe of the Church, paying only 15000 Ducats as it had used to do. That till such time as the Pope were repayed his Expenses in that War, he should hold the Cliffon of Physics and Payer. his Expences in that War, he should hold the Cities of Plasencia and Parma, the Profits whereof were not to be deducted out of the Principal, and that the Dukedom of Milan fhould be given to Francis Sforcia. Afterwards followed the expulsion of the French, and their return, as was faid the last Year. The King of France lying before Pavia, in which their return, as was said the land to the Residence of the City. These were Charles de Lanoy Viceroy of Naples, Charles Duke of the Residence of the City. His Reins not being chained were cut, and his Horfe ran with him into the midft radiffs. of the Enemies, where the King of France himself killed him with his Lance. This Battel was fought upon Friday the 24th of February being the Feast of the Apostie

Thus Europe for a while was delivered from the Defolation of War. King Francis of France was Prisoner in the Castle of Madrid. His Mother the Queen-Regent of France in his absence, earnestly desiring her Sons Liberty, sent her Daughter the Lady Margaret, modation. She managed the business fo well, that on the 14th of Jamary an Alliance Accordewas concluded between the King and the Emperor upon the following Conditions: That twixt Spain thence forward it should not be allowed the Flemings to Appeal to the King of and France. France. That the King of France should quit all his Pretensions to Milan, Genoa, and Afte. That he should restore Burgundy to the Emperor. That he should Marry Ellenor the Queen-Dowager of Portugal, the Emperor's Sifter, and should have with her 200000 Duccats. That he should Pardon Charles Duke of Bourbon, And, That all other Differences should be determined according to Equity.

The Duke of Bourbon had to Wife Susanna Grandchild to Lewis the Eleventh King of France, and Daughter to Peter Duke of Bourbon and Anne the aforesaid King's Eldest Daughter. To him Charles, last of the Duke of Angers, had by his Will left his Dominions in France, and his Title to the Kingdom of Naples. Charles the Eighth, Son and Heir to King Lewis, left no Issue, therefore the Duke of Bourbon, tho he pretended not to the Crown as not being the next of the Male Line, yet he inlifted that all the Dominions that had accrued to the Crown by other means belonged to his Wife, as next of Blood to the late Kings. After her Death he pretended, tho he had no iffue, to retain the Dukedom of Bourbon, as next of Kin in the Male-Line to his Father-in-Law. But the King's Mother urged that she was Neice to the said Peter of Bourbon, being his Sifter's Daughter, and this Title prevailed.

A Compendious Supplement to

The Treaty being concluded, the King of France departed out of Spain, leaving as releated. Holtages (acording to Agreement) for performance of the Capitulation his two Sons, Francis the Dauphine, and Henry the Younger.

Part of the Nobility were for Ferdinand of Austria, because he was Married to the late King's Sifter; and part stood up for John Sepusius Vayvode of Transilvania, whence ensued grievous Wars. Mary the Queen-Dowager having no Issue returned to Flanders.

Cardinal Pompeius Colonna and Vespasian Colonna having raised Forces in the Territory of Cardinal Pompeius Colonna and Vefpafian Colonna having railed Forces in the Territory of Rome, and being joined by others fent by D. Hugo de Moncada Viceroy of Naples, they had so fireightned the Pope at Rome, that he could scarce secure his Person, or prevent few the Soldiers Plundering the Sacred Palace. After which Charles Duke of Bowthow with part of the Imperial Army marched out of Lombardy towards Rome, designing to Plunder that City. The Duke of Torin and Jamein des Medicis, Father to Cosmo who was after Duke of Florence, set out to oppose him, but were overthrown passing the River Mincius, and Jamein sain. The Duke of Torin Doube of Torin to Saldiers writing Rome was killed with a Musc Shot from the Walle, presynthess the Soldiers writing their Design and Sacked the City Laving the Walls, nevertheless the Soldiers pursued their Design, and Sacked the City, laying Siege to the Castle of Santangelo, whither the Pope and Cardinals retired.

King Henry of that House, which was the Cause why afterwards they lost their Liberty. King Henry of England hearing what had happened, declared for the Pope and the League before speaked of the Pope and the League with of. The King of France also upon the same News sent his General Odet de Lautrec with Forces into Italy, who joining with the Venetians took Alexandria and Pavia, two confiderable Cities in the State of Milan.

Margaret Sifter to the French King was Married to Henry d'Albret King of Navarre, and had Illice youmna, who for want of Heirs Male inherited her Father's Dominions. This Lady most obstinately persisted in Heresie, as I suppose, because the Pope had given away the Kingdom of Navarre from her Forefathers.

Anno 1528.

Prince Pbi. At Madrid the Three Estates swore the young Prince Pbilip Heir to his Father's Kinglip tworn doms. The Emperor complained that the French King did not keep his Word, or perform what he had so solemnly promised when he was Prisoner in Spain. The French King fent a Herauld to challenge him to fight him Hand to Hand. This Affair was advised about with the Nobility. On the 24th of June the Emperor sent his Answer by Letter, accepting the Challerige, and appointing the Place of Combate: But the King of trance was so cautious he would neither open the Letters, nor give Audience to the Herauld fent from Spain upon that Errand.

Mean while Lautree having wintered at Bolonia, marched towards Naples, laid Siege to that City, hoping foon to possess himself of all the Kingdom. On a sudden the Plague began to rage so violently in his Army, that great part of it Perished, and he among the rest. Others were made Prisoners, and among them Count Peter Navarro, who spent the rest of his Days under severe Confinement.

reft of this Days under ever commensure.

This Differ moved Andrea Daria, a Génoefe, but Admiral of the French Fleer, to go Daria ever to the Emperor, and afterwards he reflored his Country to its Liberty, having dequits the feated and expelled the Family of Freeh, for which and his great Virtues he gained im-tervice.

Anno 1529.

Charles the Emperor earnestly desired to go over into Italy by Sea, there to receive the Imperial Crown at the Hand of the Pope. To this purpose he was reconciled with him, after fo many Discontents and Affronts, and promised to give his Bastard Daughter Margaret in Marriage to Alexander de Medicis, as also to restore that Family to its Country. At the same time he renewed the League with the King of France, the Embal- Compositators of both Princes meeting to that purpose at Cambray, on the Frontiers of France and tion be-Flanders. He sent home that Kings two Sons ransomed for Two Millions of Gold, and twist Fra: with them fent his Sifter Ellenor who was to be Married to that King. From this time and Spate. forward the Low Countries were wholly exempted from the Jurisdiction of France, and on the other fide Burgundy was entirely made over to that Crown.

It remained now to agree the Differences with Portugal, about the Molecco Islands. It Agreewas concluded that the King of Portugal should lend the Emperor 350000 Ducats, upon ment with Condition that till such time as that Sum was repayed, the Castillians should forbear Trading Portugal.

Little was done in this Affair, only that the Hereticks presented in Writing a Confession of their faith, which of that City was called the Authory Confession. He that composed it was named Philip Melanston, a Learned Man.

The Imperial Forces having long belieged Florence, reduced the City to such streights, that they were forced not only to admit the Family of the Medicis, but to receive Alex-Medicia ander de Medicis for their Duke, and so lost their ancient Liberty. Ibi.iter Prince of restord to Orange, and Alonso Davalos Marquis del Gasto and of Pescara, since the Death of his Cousin Florence. Ferdinand, were the General's that commanded at this Siege.

Margaret the Emperor's Aunt died at Mecklin in Brabant on the 1st Day of December. She was Governess of those Provinces, and Mary Queen Dowager of Hungary succeeded her in that Charge, which she held for the Emperor her Brother many Years.

In this Fight Zuinglius was killed. At Bafte Ecolampadius was found dead in his Bed. Both these were Heads of that wicked Sect of Sacramentarians.

The Emperor assembled the Diet at Raistbon, to raise the Forces of the Empire, to oppose Solyman the Great Turk who threatned Hungary. Liberty of Conscience was granted to the pretended Reformed Religion, whereupon the Profesiors of it joined with against the Catholicks in raising Forces. The Pope sent a Supply of Italians under the Conduct of the Cardinal Hippolito de Medicis. The King of Portugal also sent Succour. Thus about 20000 Horse and 80000 Foot were raised. They encamp'd near Vienna, whither the Turks had defigned to advance. The Emperor in Person commanded this Armv. The Infidels understanding the great Power of the Christians, tho they were much more numerous, durft not hazard a Battel, but contenting themselves with having ravaged Hungary, and part of Austria, returned the same way they came.

Duke Alexander de Medicis was murdered at Florence the 6th of January, by the Contrivance of Laurence de Medicis his Kinsman. Upon his Death the Citizens chose for their Duke Cosmo de Medicis, Kinsman to the late Duke, but at a great distance.

The Emperor held the Diet of the Empire at Worms, where an Edict was published Diet at against the Lutherans, but it was of no force, those People being then in Arms. All Men Worms. wished for a General Council, but there were great Difficulties that obstructed it. However the Pope Summon'd the Council, and appointed the Cities of Mantua first, and then that of Vincenza for it to be held in, both those Places being in Italy, and not far from Germany. The Hereticks pretended that the Pope, as a Guilty Perfon, could not be a Judge, nor the Bilhops, as being obliged to him by Oath. They required the Council infould be free, and held in Germany. What they aimed at could not be any way allowed; for how could they either as Perfons accused or accusers, set up for Judges. To exclude the Bishops was never practiced, and even the secular Princes themselves refused to determine Matters of Faith. Their delign was only to baffle and delay time.

Solyman the Eunuch Baffa govern'd Egypt for the Great Tark. By his Order he fitted out a Fleet of 80 Sail in the Red Sea, and failing into the Ocean, laid Siege to the most important Fortress of Diu in the Kingdom of Cambaya, intending to drive the Portugueses Diu beout of India, and wholly exclude them their Trade in those Parts. About the same time the Pope appointed nine Cardinals to consider of all things that ought to be reformed. They composed a Book, containing the Heads of many things to this purpose. A League against the Turks was also proposed. It was agreed that the League a Pope, Emperor and Venetians should join their Fleets to this intent, and that the French gainst the King might not be any hindrance to them, they resolved to have a Conference with him Jurks. at Nice in Provence.

This being determined, the Pope, tho then very old, made hast thither, the Emperor came from Spain by Sea, and the King of France by Land. The Meeting was in May. After a long Debate, no Peace could be concluded, but a Truce was agreed on for Ten Truce for Years. Neither could it be brought about that the Emperor and French King should come 10 Years. together. Thus all those Preparations proved fruitless, and the next Year Cafelinova was retaken by the Turks, with great flaughter of the Spanish Garison left there. The Venetians concluded a Truce with the Turk, which produced a lafting Peace.

The Emperor refolving to repair thither in Person, to gain time took his way through France. Henry and Charles, that Kings two Sons, came to meet him on the Borders of the Kingdom, and the King himself accompanied him from Orleans to Paris. It was a desperate Action of the Emperor, to put himself into his Enemies Power. It is reported there was a defign to stop him, but God delivered him from fo great a Danger. Being come to Ghent, he punished such as were most faulty, and raifed a Cittadel to curb that People.

Many Disputes happened about Re- betwixt the Divines of both Parties, which might have been a fure Remedy for that about Research to Difference, and the Obtinacy of the Hereticks been to be convinced by any Arguments.

Germany. The last Year on the 25th of November, at Worms, was began a Conference betwixt the Divines, which held on till this Year, but upon the coming of the Emperor all things were referred to the Diet at Ratiflon, which was opened the 5th of April. The Divines appointed on both fides disputed, the Chief for the Catholicks was John Eccius, for the Elereticks Philip Melanston. Cardinal Gaspar Contarenus, the Popes Legate at this Diet, granted to the adverse Party certain Points relating to Justification, and Transubstantiation, for which after his return to Rome he was publickly reproved by Cardinal Peter Garrafa, who was afterwards Pope, and called Paul the Fourth. All men guessed by the severity of the Reprimand that it came from the Pope, who was there present, and therefore the Reflection upon him was the greater. The Diet at Ratifbon being broke up, the Emperor went into Italy, and conferred with the Pope at Luca in September. The chief Subject of their Conference was about Assembling a General Council. Leaving the Pope, he went to Genoa, where Andrew Doria had a great Fleet in readiness to go over to Argiers on the Coast of Africk. The Season was then too far advanced, therefore the Pope and others laboured to diffwade the Emperor from that Enterprize, but he was not to be moved. Being come upon the Coast of Africk about the end of October, and having lost great part of his Fleet in a terrible Storm, he was forced to retire to Bugia, whence he passed over much afflicted to Carthagena, having done nothing and fustained great loss. Ferdinand Cortes, who accompanied the Emperor in this Expedition, his Galley finking, was obliged to fwim for his Life, and lost two Cups made of Emraulds, which he had tyed about him in a cloath, and were worth 300000 Duccats.

Anno 1542. The bloody Wars betwixt Christian Princes disappointed the Pope's design the last year, of affembling a General Council, but now he published a new Edict, Summoning all Council of the Bishops to meet at the City Trent. He appointed the Cardinals, Parifius; Moron, and Trent. Pools, to prefide in his Name; but this delign was also put off, because the French King made War upon the Emperor. The cause of this War was, that the King sent two Embassadors to the Turk, one a Genocfe called Fregofo, the other a Spaniard whose name was Antony tors to the Imrs, one a Generge cancer regyro, the other a spaniara whose name was Antony Rincon. Adopto Davidsto, Marquis del Gaflo, was then Governour of Milan. Certain Spanish Soldiers discovered these Embassagors salling down the River Po, tho they were disguisted like Pilgrims, they seized and drowned them in the River. This happened the last year, and so incensed the French King, that he immediately had recourse to Arms, and with a mighty Army invaded Flunder. Bessets Leow the Dauphis by the Settlem, and with a mighty Army invaded Flanders. Besides Henry the Dauphin by his Fathers order and Singery Alley Invested to the Control of Spain. The Garlion defended themselves with fuch bravery, that fallying they nailed his great Guns, and Succours coming from all Parts, he was forced to raife the Siege and retire.

John de Vega, Lord of Valverde, was at this time Viceroy of Navarre, whence he went Embaffador to Rome, then Governed Sicily feveral Years, and laftly returning into Spain was Prelident of the Royal Council of Castile, which Office he discharged with great Re-

Anno 1543.

The Emperor having appointed his Son Philip Governour of Spain, failed over to Genoa, Prince Phibeing in care for Italy and Germany. At Buffeto, between Placencia and Cremona, he met lip Goverthe Pope, there they conferred about the General Council, the Pope's Legates being already nour of at Trent, waiting the coming of the Bishops. It was also proposed to make Peace between Spains France and Spain, but the time was not yet come. Coffno de Medicis, Duke of Florence, was allowed to buy out the Castles of Florence and Lephorn, then held by the Emperor, for 200000 Duccats. The Pope had given the Cities of Placencia and Parma to Peter Luis his Son, and would have had the Emperor confirm his Gift, those Cities belonging to the State of Milan, but could not prevail.

In Germany great Application was used to reduce the Hereticks to submit to the Council of Trent, to this effect a Diet was held at Worms. The Emperor was there pre-gainst He fent, and Cardinal Alexander Farnefius, the Pope's Legate and Grandson. Nothing was concluded, for that Luther publishing new Books, ceased not to make the breach wider. The Hereticks demanded a Conference and to have the Points in Controverfy disputed, and the Catholicks infifted to have all things referred to the Fathers at Trent, as being fensible how little good is done by private Disputes. All these things were only the preludes to the War which foon after broke out in Germany.

At length about the end of this Year the Fathers affembled at Trent, opened the Tremt o. Council. The first Session was on the 13th of December. Three Legates of the Pope presided, which were the Cardinals John Maria de Monte, Marcellus Cervinus, and Reginald Pool. The Chief of the Spanish Divines were F. D. Alonso Davalos, Marquis del Gasto Governour of Milan, deceased at Vigevano, and Ferdinand Gonçaga succeeded him.

The Diet was held at Ratisbon, where there was a Disputation between the Catholicks and Hereticks. Malvenda a Spaniard, and Chocleus fignalized themselves among Catho-Catho-licks and in May, but all this forted to no better effect than it had done at other times, but the Hereticks. differences were rather greater, for the Hereticks departed when the dispute was but begun. Most of the Princes tho summoned, appeared not: the most remarkable of them were Frederick Duke of Saxony, and Philip the Landtgrave, The Emperor thought sit to have recourse to Arms, and ordered Maximilian Count de Bure to make Levies of Flanders. In Germany Albertus, and John, Marquiles of Brandenburg, did the same for the Emperor tho they were both Hereticks. The Spanish Forces marched out of Italy, and at the same time the Emperor directed his Letters to the Cities of Germany, admionishing them not to fuffer themselves to be led away, for that many abusing his Patience had forced him to have recourse to Arms. Having dispatched these Letters the Emperor set out from Ratisbon for Bavaria. He encamped near Landshut, whether was come a good body of Men sent to him by the Pope, under the Command of his Grandson, Octavius, and Cardinal Alexander Farnefius. Sone after came thither 6000 Spaniards. D. Ferdinand of Toledo, Duke of Alova, was appointed General of those Forces. The Enemy with a strong Army came to Ingolitat. The principal Commanders were the Duke of Saxony, and the Landtgrave, whom many other Princes and Cities either openly or underhand supported. They encamped on a riling Ground, whence they played their Artillery upon the Emperor's Army which lay below them, but the fright was greater than the harm. The Landtgrave was for affaulting the Emperor's Camp, which was not well intrenched, but the others opposed him, which proved the fafety of our Army then much inferior to the Enemy, for that our Supplies were not come from Flanders. As foon as they came, the Emperor marched towards Nerling, the Enemy still following in the Rear. At the same time Maurice, Duke of Saxony, being surnished with Forces by King Ferdinand, possessed himself of the Lands of his Cousin Frederick, some whereof were engaged, and others so intermixed that it was convenient to fecure them, left his own Subjects might fuffer by their ill Neighbours. To put a ftop to their Proceedings, and because they wanted Provisions, the Hereticks returned towards Saxony. The Landtgrave went away to his own Dominions and thence to Francford. The War continued hot, and feveral Princes and Cities being fenfible of their Error: Particularly Frederick Count Palatin, despairing of the Success of the Rebels, was reconciled to the Emperor. The Duke of Wittemberg and the Citics of Ulm, Francford, and Ausburg followed his Example, but were forced to buy their Pardon for great Sums of Money, and give Security for their future Loyalty,

Anno 1547.

These things were in agitation at the beginning of this Year, at the same time that Frederick Duke of Saxony recover'd all the Places taken from him by Duke Maurice, except Lipstat, which he could not reduce.

Soon after this Victory the Landtgrave submitted, and furrendred himself up to the Emperor. These two Princes being in Custody, all the rest were foon quell'd. As a token of his Victory, the Emperor fent part of the Cannon taken to Italy, part to Spain, and part to Flanders, whither he went himself.

The General Council was removed from Trent to Bolonia, and foon after broke up to the Council great Diffatisfaction of the Catholicks. Peter Luis, the Pope's Son, was killed in his House of Trem art Plasencia, but it could never be known by whom his Death was contrived, but Ferdinard Gonçaya, Governor of Milan, seized that City, and put a Garison into it. The Pope fortified Parma, and put Camillus Ursimus into it. Asterwards that Dominion was given to Octavius Farnesius, Duke of Parma, Son to Peter Luis.

· Anno 1548.

The breaking up of the Council of Trent was so much the more resented, for that among the other Articles of Peace with the Princes and Cities of Germany, one was, That they should submit themselves to the determination of the Fathers in Matters of Re-Concession ligion. This design failing to reconcile all Matters in Difference at the Diet at Auspurb, one for rea Book was published in Defence of the Catholick Doctrine, but allowing the Laity to ducing communicate in both Kinds, and Priests to Marry. It was called An Interim, because to Hereticks. last till the Council met again, and determined what was to be done. Julius Phibug, Michael Sidonia, and Eilebius Agricola composed it. In Saxony, at the desire of Duke Maurice, the Hereticks publish'd another Book, called Adiapora, that is, Things Indifferent, Philip Melantton was the Author of it, and mentioned many things that ought to be Tolerated for the fake of Peace. Matthias Illiricus and Nicholaus Gralius, more rigid Hereticks, wrote against this Book.

At the same time Muleasse King of Tunez came to Ausburg, being expelled his Kingdom. and having his Eyes put out by his own Son.

John de Vega Viceroy of Sicily, on the Coast of Africk, took the City called Africa, formerly Leptis, on the 9th of September, expelling thence the Pyrat Dragut, who used to fet out thence and Ravage the Coasts of Sicily. He put a Garison into it, but soon after to fave Charges utterly demolish'd it.

At Ausburg in Autumn was opened the Diet of the Empire, at which the Emperor and his Son Prince Philip were present. The Emperor strove to make his Son King of the Romans, but his Brother King Ferdinand opposed it in favour of his own Son Maximilian, who was come back from Spain, being already chosen King of Bohemia, and was now with his Father at the Diet. It was proposed to assemble a-new the Council of Trent, and to make War upon Mecklenbourg, where the Catholick Religion was wholly excluded. Both these Propositions were offensive to Maurice Duke of Saxony, tho he was appointed General of that War; but what chiefly perplexed him was, that the Emperor did not release his Unkle the Landtgrave of Hesse. These were the Causes that moved the Duke to make War upon the Emperor, who being at that time unprovided for it, was

This Year was remarkable for the Jubilee, and for the great numbers of People that re-

Council of Pope Julius last December summoned the Bishops to meet again at Trent. The Emperor Trem a caused the Pope's Edicts to be read at the Diet at Ausburg. Duke Ostavius Farnessus gain sum very unscasonably put himself under the Protection of France. Ferrante Gonçaga, to put a ftop to his Proceedings, belieged him in Parma. This was the cause that Council was put off for fome time, but at length it was open'd in May. Cardinal Crecencius, the Pope's Legate, presided. The Ecclesiastical Electors, and many Prelates of Germany, Spain and Lady were there prefent. The King of France by his Embaffador protected against their Proceedings. Embaffadors came from some German Princes, to ask safe, Conducts for the Heretical Ministers and Divines, but the Conditions they proposed were so extravagant, the Fathers thought it a lessening of their Authority to grant them.

After the Diet at Ausburg broke up, Prince Philip return'd to Spain. His Cousin Maximilian bore him Company as far as Genoa, where he found the Princess Mary his Wife and his Children come thither by Sea out of Spain. With them he return'd in December to Inspruck, where the Emperor then was, that City lying near, to forward the Proceedings of the Council.

King Henry of France on the sudden commenced War in Flanders and Milan. He call'd Flanders. the Turkish Fleet to his Aid, which on the Coast of Sicily took the Town and Castle of Augusta, seated beyond the City Catania. Thence they failed over to Malta, but not succeeding there croffed the Sea, and on the Coast of Africk took Tripoli, deliver'd to them by the Knights of Malta, who had kept it ever fince Rhodes was lost. Two French Knights had the greatest share in that Treachery. The Spaniards paid dearly for their Loyalty, about 400 being put to the Sword. It was given out the Turks did this in Revenge of the taking of the City of Africa; but the truth was, they undertook this War at the Instigation of the French King, whose Embassadors were aboard the Fleet.

Hereticks Four Divines or Ministers of Wittemberg, the chief of whom was Brencius, came to Trent. at the They presented to the Council a Book called the Wittenberg Consession. All this was Council of only to amuse the Council, till such time as Duke Maurice had raised Men, and made other trent. warlike Preparations. On the 2d of April News was brought to Trent, that he had feized the City Ausburg, and that the Emperor was in danger at Inspruck, which caused the Council on a fudden to break up. On the other fide, Albertus Marquis of Brandenburg poffelfed himself of Treves, and the French of all Lorrain. The Emperor was much perplex'd. not being able to withstand so many Enemies. He resolved to release the Duke of Saxony and the Landtgrave, which pacified Duke Maurice. On the Borders of Italy, whither in the first Consternation he retired, Forces flock'd to him from all Parts. However he pardon'd the Marquis of Brandenburg, deligning to make use of him against the French. This done he laid Siege to Metz with a great Army on the 20th of Offober, but many of his Men perifhing, by reason of the badness of the Weather, he was forced to quit that Enterprize.

This Year died Henry d'Albret, King of Navarre, His Daughter Joanna, an abstinate

Heretick, succeeded him.

On the 5th of February a Truce was concluded for Five Years betwixt France and Spain. It was hoped that this Ceffation might end in a lafting Peace, both Parties being worn France and out with tedious Wars; but all fell to nothing, by reason of the War the Pope unseasonably raifed. At the beginning of this Year he began to persecute the Noblemen of the House of Coloma, some of them fled, others were taken, all whose Estates he prefently feized. The Catholick King ordered the Duke of Alva not to fuffer any wrong to be done to them. On the other fide, the king of France having entred into a League with the Pope, fent a powerful Army into Italy under the Conduct of the Duke of Guife. These Forces marched through Lombardy to Rome, where they stayed some time, and then marched to the Kingdom of Naples. They did nothing remarkable, but the greatest part of them died of Sickness, and the rest returned to France. Mean while the Duke of Alva having possessed himself of most of the Pope's Dominions near Rome, marched with his Army, and incamp'd before that City. He could eafily have facked it again, but he had such respect for the Place that he forbore, and made Peace with the Pope upon very reasonable terms. But this was about the end of the ensuing Year.

At the beginning of this War Cosmo Duke of Florence prevailed with the Catholick King en to the to deliver to him the City Siena; To obtain his desire, he alledged the Charge he had been Duke of at in the War with that City, and that some promise had been made of delivering it Florence: to him. The King yeilded to Necessity, and put the City into his hands upon his paying a Sum of Money down, and obliging himself to hold it of the Crown of Spain.

Anno 1557.

The War betwixt France and Spain was not thus at an end, but broke out in feveral newed be Parts. Success was so various, that neither side had any great advantage to boast of. Cardinal Michael Giflerius, born at Boschio in the Territory of Alexandria, a City of Pius V. Lombardy, and of the Order of S. Dominick, was on the 7th, of January chosen Pope: He chosen took the Name of Pius V. and Govern'd the Church 6 Years, 3 Months, and 23 Days. His Pope. Life and Conversation were fo Holy, few have been to compare to him.

The Catholick King was in the Forest of Balfain, by reason of the heat of the Summer, when on the 12th of August the Queen was deliver'd of a Daughter, called Elizabeth

The Archbishop of Toledo, after his Case had depended many Years, was by Order of Pope Pius the Fifth fent to Rome, where he arrived the 28th of May, and was fent Prifoner to the Castle of Santangelo till Judgment should be given.

The Rebellion in Flanders ran high, and continued for feveral Years. D. Ferdinand of Alva Go. Toledo, Duke of Alva, was fent by the King to quench this Fire: Soon after his arrival vernor of the Princess Margaret went away for Italy, and the Counts of Horn and Egmont were Countries, taken up by the Duke.

Rebels in The Rebel Hereticks in France besieged Paris. The Constable Montmorancy marched France be- to raise the Siege. They came to a Battel near St. Denis, where the Catholicks got the fiege Pa- Victory, but with the Death of the Constable. The Enemy with the Admiral their General were put to flight. Count Aremberg, who came from Flanders with 4000 Burgundians to the Assistance of the Catholicks, was very instrumental in obtaining this Victory.

Anno 1568.

On the 7th of March the Bodies of the Holy Martyrs, Paftor and Juftus, were brought from Huesca, and interr'd at Alcala de Henares, where they suffered and were born.

The principal Ring-leader of the Rebellion in the Low Countries was the Prince of Orange, who fearing to meet with what he deserv'd, was fled. His Brother Count Luis Orange Orange, who fearing to meet with what he delive, frizeland; Count Aremberg with his heads the with several Companies of Germans entred West-Frizeland; Count Aremberg with his him him him Rebels in Forces and the Spanish Regiment of D. Conçalo de Bracamonie march'd against him, but Holland being too halty in charging, was overthrown: The Count and many more being slain, the rest fled to Groningen through the Marishes, the Country being overflow'd by reason the Dikes were broken. Count Egmont and Count Horn being convicted of Treason (as is believed very wrongfully) were by the Duke of Alva's Order executed at Bruffels. They were publickly Beheaded on the 4th of June; and to prevent the People Mutinying, they were flrongly guarded to the Scaffold, and all the Streets lined. This Execution rather incenfed than appealed the People.

This done the Duke of Alva march'd against the Prince of Orange, who had entred that Province with his Forces, and made him retire, taking feveral Towns and Castles, and putting many Hereticks to the Sword.

At the same time the Morisco's, that is, those descended of the Moores, rebelled in the Rebel in Kingdom of Granada. These People were never Loyal, and were then incensed, for that certain Proclamations were publish'd against them. Many of them perish'd in the space of two Years that those Tunuits lasted. The Marquis of Mondejar overthrew them feven times, tho with some considerable loss, caused by the Diorderlines of his Men. Laftly, D. John of Austria being General they were fully subdu'd. The Punishment given to those Rebels has taken from them the power of rising again, by dispersing them through-

Almost at the same time died first Charles Prince of Spain in Prison, where his Father kept him, and then Queen Elizabeth his Mother-in-Law. She died of a Miscarriage, leaving only two Daughters, Elizabeth and Katherine, and never a Son, which was the reason the King her Husband married again a fourth time. His too much forwardness was the cause of the Prince's Death; many things were reported concerning the cause of his Imprisonment, and his Father's Displeasure: But there is no doubt but he was Poison'd by his Father's Command. The Prince of Orange was again this Year without any Bloodlined drove out of the Low Countries, and forced to retire into France, where he affifted the

Henry de Valois, Duke of Anjon and General of the King of France his Army, twice in twice over Battel overthrew the Hereticks. The first was on the 13th, of March at Bassac, a Village in the Province of Poitiers, where the Prince of Conde was killed, and the Admiral cfcap'd by flight; his Brother d'Andelot died fome time after of his Wounds. The second Engagement was at Montcontour on the 3d. of October; the fuccess was the same, only that of the Rebels the flaughter was greater, 16000 being kill'd. Two thouland Horfe and 4000 Foot fent by the Pope did good Service here, befides the Succours from Spain, which behaved themselves well upon all occasions. These Forces, after obtaining the Victory, return'd to Haly perifhing with Cold, Hunger and Sicknets.

After the departure of the Prince of Orange, the Low Countries were more at Peace. In France a Peace was concluded with the Hereticks, upon no very advantageous Terms, so great was the defire all Men had conceived to see that War at an end.

At Rome, Cosmo de Medicis obtained of the Pope the Title of Great Duke of Tuscany, to Cosmo crethe Diffatisfaction of other Princes, who thought his Advancement was a leffening of them, ated D. of Nevertheless Maximilian the Emperor confirmed that Title to Francis de Medicis his Bro-Tujcany. ther-in-law, and the Son of Colino.

But this Year was for nothing fo remarkable as for the War in Cyprus, which produced a Christian Holy League among the Christian Princes. After the Venetians had enjoyed Peace with the League a Turks the space of 30 years, Selymus the Great Turk having made Peace with the Persant, gainst the sont his Embassioners to require the Venetions to deliver up to him the stand of Cont. Turk ient his Embassadors to require the Venetians to deliver up to him the Island of Cyprus, which lyes near the Province of Cilicia in the leffer Asia; and in case they refused, to declare War against them. This Demand being so unreasonable, a War necessarily ensued; and the Turks landing in Cyprus about the beginning of July, under the Command of Muflapba, on the 9th of September, took Nicofia, one of the two principal Cities of that Island.

Famagusta, formerly called Salamis, held out longer. The Venetian Fleet sent to the Relief of the Besieged, arrived at Candia, where it was joined by 60 Gallies, sent by the Catholick Kings, under the Command of Andrew Doria, Prince of Melfi; but in Odlober, the Seafon being too far advanced, they all returned to winter in their Ports without doing any thing. Only Marius Quirinus a Venetian, with 12 Gallies, was ordered to put Suppiles of Men, Ammunition, and Provision into Famagusta, which he accordingly performed. At the same time, through the earnest Sollicitation of Pope Pins the 5th, a League was concluded against the Turks, betwixt his Holiness, his Catholick Majesty, and the Venerians. They agreed to fit out 200 Gallies, and furnish 50000 Foot and 4000 Horse, the Charge to be defrayed in this manner: The Pope was to pay the 6th part, the Venetians one 3d, and the King of Spain one half of the Expence. Marc Antony Colonna was appointed to command the Pope's Gallies, Sebastian Venerius, those of Venice, and D. John of Austria, by common Consent of all Parties, was constituted Admiral and Generalissimo of the Fleet and

The Confederate Fleet failed from Sicily on the 16th of September. They steered directly for the Islands Echinades, now called Cupolares, opposite to the Gulph of Lepanto, where they had Advice the Turkif Fleet lay. Both Officers and Soldiers were eager to fight, and prepared themselves with great Alacrity. The Venetian Gallies were on the left, Prince John Andrew Doria on the right, and D. John of Aufria, with the Spanifs Gallies in the Center, and with him Marc Antony Coloma, and the Venetian Admiral. The chief Commendary of Cashie, and D. Asyan Baçan Marquis of Sansta Cruz, with 30 Gallies, were left as a Referve to send Relief where the greatest Danger appeared. The Enemy came out of the Mouth of the Gulph, and ranged their Fleet, as is their Custom, in the form of a Half-Moon. Six Galeasses made the Forelorn of our Fleet, which firing their Cannon disordered the Enemy. Next to them D. John of Austria, the first boarded the Turkish Admiral, and after a doubtful Fight took her. In her was killed Hali Baffa, Admiral of the Fleet, and two Sons of his were taken, and presently Victory began to incline to the Christians. Tebali the Pyrat did great harm upon the right, taking to of our Gallies; but feeing the reft of the Fleet overthrown, he stood out to Sea, and escaped with several of his Gallies. It was a terrible Spectacle, all refounded with various Cries, and nothing was to be feen but killing, pursuing, battering, and finking of Vessels. The Sea was covered with Blood and dead Bodies, and the Air darkned with the Smoke. 200 Turkish Gallies were either taken or funk, 25000 Turks were killed, and 20000 Christian Captives set at liberty. Of the Christians many were killed, and among them no small number of Persons of note. In short, this was one of the greatest Victories that had been obtained in many years; and there was great rejoycing for it in all parts of Christendom, tho it was not pleasing to the Hereticks. This Battel was fought on the 7th of Odober, on which day the Memory of it is yearly celebrated as a Festival at Toledo.

Anno 1572. Pope Pius the 5th desiring to carry on this good Work, the last Summer sent his Nephew Cardinal of Alexandria, Michael Gisterius, his Legate, into France and Portugal, to perswate those Kings to enter into this League. With him went F. Francis Borgia, a holy Man, at that time General of the Jesuits in the place of F. James Lainez. These Endeavours were Pope Pius that time General of the jenues in the place of F. It was proposed to marry Margaret the French King's Sister to Henry of Bourbon, Prince of Siftermar- Navarre, by that means to allay the Tumults in France. Pope Pius laboured to hinder that into the League against the Tirks. However, the Prince of Navarre was preferred. His Mother Joanna Queen of Navarre died at Paris the 10th of June; and nevertheles, the Marriage was folemnized towards the end of the Summer with a great Concourse of Nomarriage was incimiled towards for the continuous and the same and a few shifts, as well of the Hereticks as Catholicks. This Imposition was so heavy to those Provinces mg the forn renny of all times lote. This important was to start you thought which depend chiefly upon Trade, that many Cities rebelled, and were foon supported by Forces that came to their Assistance out of England, Germany, and Fr.mce. Zeland and Holland, two inaccessible Provinces lying on the Sea, and encompassed with Water, were the front that rebelled. Mons, a strong City in Hainaust, followed their example. D. Frederick, Son to the Duke of Alva, layed siege to it; and leaving a sufficient Force to secure his Works, marched to meet 4000 French who were coming to relieve the Place. He overthrew them, killing a great number, taking Genlis their Commander Prisoner, who died afterwards in the Calle of Anterp. The Prince of Orange came allo with Forces out of Germany, but the Duke of Awa had so secured all things, he was forced to retire without making any at-

These Troubles, besides the other Harms they did, were the cause the League against the gainst the Turks was dissolved: For D. John of Austria having gathered a mightier Fleet at Messina Turk different by Many before story that the Many before story the Many before story that the Many before story the Many than the Year before, ftayed there a great while, being in care for the Affairs of the Low-Countries, and the more for that it was reported the French would make War on that fide. Thus the Season fit for Service being passed, he set out of that Port at the end of September to join the Venetians, and try the Fortune of another Battel. But the Enemies Fleet kept close about Modon, Coron, and Navarrino, in the Morea, refusing to come to a Battel. The Christian Fleet having lost all hopes of Fighting, and the Weather growing unseasonable, went to winter in several Ports.

The Venetians either in confideration of the little Advantage gained by this great Fleet, or because they had lost the rich Trade of the East, without regard to the Consederate ventions or because they nad for the rich trace of the Eart, without regard to the Confederate make princes, made a fhameful Peace with the Turks, yielding up to them not only the Island of Peacewith Cyprus, but several Towns they held in Sclavonia, and paying to them 200000 Ducats. In May, Henry Duke of Anjon, the French King's Brothert, was elected King of Poland.

It was reported the French Gold bought the Votes; but certain it is, that as foon as the Duke heard of his Election he raised the Siege he had layed to Robbil, and went to take

Anno 1574.

The Duke of Alva having leave to return home, D. Luis de Requesens, chief Commenthe Low- dary of Castile, was made Governor of the Low-Countries. He came from Milan to Flan-Commies ders at the beginning of the Year, and it was hoped his mild Disposition and Wisdom would remedy all the Disorders occasioned before by too much Severity. But it fell out otherwise than was expected; for the French, Flemish, and German Hereticks conspired to revenge the Death of the Admiral of France, and to fecure Antwerp and other places. They thought it would be eafly to compass their Deligns, because the King of France was improvided of an Army, and in Flanders the Spanish Soldiers mutinged for Pay, being three Years vided of an Army, and in Fianders the Spanish Soldiers mutinged for Pay, being three Years in Arrears. A great number of Horfe at the beginning of Lent repaired to the Forrest of S. Germain, through which the King of France was forced with all speed to retire to Paris. Francis de Montmorency was suspected to be the Author of this Design upon the King, as also of being a Favourer of the Hereticks. In Genoa a Mutiny broke out, in which the new Nobles expelled the old ones out of the City. To appeale those Tumults, the Cardinal John Moron was fent by the Pope, a Commit-Grey. To appear there I admits, the Catholick Bondia, and D. John Ideaquez Emballador there, were appointed by the Catholick King. These, after the Troubles had lasted two years, adjusted all Differences.

D. John of Austria came out of Italy into Spain, and obtained of the King his Brother D. John to appoint him his Lieutenant over all his Dominions in Italy, with the Title of Vicar, made Viby the Delays of the Viceroys. This done, in the fame Fleet that brought him, he returned to Italy, to be in a Readiness to oppose the Great Turk, who it was reported was preparing a mighty Fleet against the Christians.

This Report proved false. But Moluco, affisted by the Turks, took the Kingdoms of Fez and Morocco from his Nephew Muley Mahamet Cheribo. He pretended to justify this Proceeding by a Law some years before established, which ordained that the King's Brothers should inherit before their Children. Muley fled to Portugal, and was the occasion of the great

This Solemnity being performed, the King let out for Zaragoea in very rough Weather, the Winter Season not being yet past. Thither came also the Duke of Savoy by Sea, and was received with great Honour by the King his Father-in-Law. The Marriage was celebrated with great Pomp and Ostentation on the 18th. of March.

Pope Gree News was brought not long after that Pope Gregory, being very aged and famous for his gord ies, great Wildom, departed this Life at Rome the 12th of April. In May following Cardinal Sixus V. Pelix Montalto, who had first bin General of the Recolet Franciscus, then Bithop and after-thefen. wards Cardinal, was laftly promoted to S. Peter's Chair. He took the Name of Sixtus the Fifth, governed the Church five Years and four Months, and had many good Qualities; but as there is no Man without a fault, he is blamed for being too fevere and covetous, and for promoting of his Kinfinen more than was justifiable. He Canonized S. James of Alcala a Franciscan, whose Body is kept and Honour'd in the Monastery of that Order at

The Pope, who at first in favour of the Leaguers, had condemned the King of Navarre, now repenting, was averfe to their Proceedings, and showed himself more favourable to the King.

Anno 1587.

Mary Stuart Queen of Scotland was beheaded on the 17th of February, in Foderingay Q. of Scotland Castle, where she had been kept Prisoner 16 years. Elizabeth Queen of England gave Sentence of Death against her at London. This unfortunate Princess, by reason of the Rebellion in Scotland, retir'd into England upon Queen Elizabeth's Word given for her Safety, and nevertheless was kept Prisoner, and at last murdered.

It was thought the Christian Princes would not suffer her Death to be unrevenged; but the King of France, whom it chiefly concerned, fhe having been Wife to his Brother King Francis, was taken up with the Tumults of his own Kingdom. King Philip was providing for this Enterprize, at the time that Sir Francis Drake, who the laft Year had plun-SrF.Drake dered the Coasts of America, and carried a great quantity of Gold into England, had the attempts Boldness this Spring to attempt the Island of Cadiz; and had certainly possessed himself Cadig. of it, had not two Gallies that were in the Port, kept him in play till fuch time as the Neighbouring People came to succour the City, and among them the Duke of Medina

Soon after the Duke of Bouillen died. Thus the Catholicks began again to take heart. Spain was under no small Apprehenfions least that Plague should spread on this side of the Pyrenean Hills.

France suffered not only by those People, but was afflicted with Plague and Famine. Great Processions were made to appease the Divine Wrath. Whole Towns went out clad in white, with their Crosses, singing Hymns, and imploring the Mercy of God.

Anno 1588.

King Philip had in readiness a mighty Fleet at Lisbon to revenge the Death of the Inno-SpanishArcent Queen of Scots, and the many Wrongs done to himfelf. The Marquis of Santta Cruz mada awas appointed Admiral; but he dying in the midst of all these Preparations, the Duke of gainst Medina Sidonia was substituted in his place. He set sail in June with fair Weather, and destroyed. having turned Cape Finisterre, off of Coruña a violent Storm fo scattered and disabled the Fleet, that they could not put to Sea again till September. At length it came to the Coast of Flanders, the English Fleet always hovering upon their skirts, whose Cannon, and the many Sand Banks much endangered our Fleet. Some Ships were taken by the Enemy, and many fore battered by their Shot. For which reason, endeavouring to return home round the North of Scotland, many Ships perished in that stormy Season, and long Voyage. Besides, the extremity of the Cold, and want of Provisions, consumed most of the Men, so that very few Ships, and a finall number of Mariners and Soldiers, returned to several Ports of Spain. Thus Humane Deligns are disappointed by a superior Power. Doubtless the Flower of all the Spanish Soldiers was lost in this Expedition, and God by this Disaster punished the many Sins of this Nation.

The King of France resolved to punish the Duke of Guise, as Head of the League, and by Duke of that means to curb the rebellious Parisians, who supported him. To this purpose he Guise put brought into the City 4000 Foreigners. Their departure deliver'd Spain from great Apprehensions. At Lisbon a Conspiracy of the Citizens was discover'd, in Favour of the pretended Prince Antony. Some few of them were Executed for a Terror to the reft. The Nobility continued very Loyal, as those who had most to lose, if any Change of Government happen'd.

A Nun at Lisbon with her Counterfeit Sanctity had deceived not only the Vulgar fort, but Men of great Learning, and being now discover'd to the Inquisition, was punished as she deserved. Soon after died F. Luis de Granada, of the Order of S. Dominick, a Man well known for his Works and fingular Piety. John Davila, a Famous Preacher, was his Contemporary. At Barcelona the Plague raged violently. Many things were faid of the Cause of that Distemper, but nothing was proved.

This Year in the Kingdom of Toledo was finish'd the Famous Structure of St. Laurence the Royal, which had been Thirty Years in hand, fince King Philip began to build it near a Village called the Escuriall, in the Territory of Segovia. It confifts of a Monastery of the Order of S. Hierome, a Colledge, and a Palace for the Kings to divert themselves in Summer. The Work is truly Majelfick, equal to any of the former memorable Structures, and may well be accounted the Eighth Wonder.

Death of This Year was remarkable for the death of two Popes, Sixtus who died the 28th of two Popes. Angust, and Urban the Seventh, who lived but twelve days after his Exaltation to the Papacy. Neither did the Pope's Gregory the Fourteenth, and Innocent the Ninth fit above a few Months in S. Peter's Chair, till at last Clement the Eighth was elected, who held it longer and without reproach.

Autumn this Year was very fickly. Many People perished in Spain, but the greatest Mortality Mortality was in the Country, either for want of Medicines, or that there was lefs to oppose the Infection of the Air. Among the rest Dr. John Calderon, a Famous Divine and Canon of Toledo, fell fick in a pleasant place, whither he retired to pass the heat of the

He went into Aragon, there to deliver himself up to the Great Justice of that Kingdom, and answer for the death of Secretary Escobedo, whom he caused to be killed one Night as he was going from Court, together with other things laid to his Charge. The Joy some People conceived at his flight was foon changed into Tears. On the 24th of May this Year the Prisoner was remov'd from the Great Justice his Prison to that of the Inquisition. The Rabble mutinying, and taking up Arms with cries of Liberty, affaulted the House of D. Inigo de Mendoça, Marquis of Almenara, the Lieutenant. They had before conceived Malice against him, and now murder'd him. With the same Fury they ran next to the Prison of the Inquisition, which they broke open and restord innow Perez to the Prison where he was before. In pursuance hereof, on the 24th of September, the People rose again, because it was designed to carry back the Prisoner to the Inquisition, and breaking the Prison set him at Liberty. In this Tumult some were killed and wounded, Antony Muthiers for their Rebellion; for D. Alonfo de Vargas, an old Low Country Soldier, was sent thither with an Army, who reduced the City, and put to death many of the Muthiers, among whom was D. John de Lamuza the Great Justice, for that he appear'd in Arms against the King. D. James de Heredia and D. John de Luna, two of the chief Incendiaries, were beheaded with many more. The Duke of Villahermofa and Count de Aranda were taken and fent Prisoners to Castile, where they died not long after in Prison; but were afterwards acquitted of the Treason. In order to settle the Affairs of that Kingdom, the Cortes met at Taragona, at which D. Andrew de Bobadilla, Archbishop of Zaragoga, presided.

Anno 1592.

The King himself by the way of Valladolid, Burgos and Pamplona went thither at the end of this Year. With him were the Princes Elizabeth and her Brother Prince Philip, who at Pamblona and Taracona was fworn Heir of those Crowns. Thus the Tumults in Ara-Tumults gon were appeas'd almost two Years after they commenc'd, many of the Offenders being in Aragon punish'd, and Garisons put into Zaragoga and other places. At the beginning of this Year died in Flanders the Archduke Ernestus, who governed that Country for the King his Unkle. On the third of April Albertus the Archduke, his Archduke Brother, took possession of the Archdishoprick of Toledo. He never went to his Church Albertus or was confecrated, because the King his Unkle gave him the Government of the Nether-governs lands, for which he fet out from Madrid in Angulf. Garcia de Loxyla was left to govern the Nethe Bishoprick, and three Years after the Archduke resigning it, succeeded him in that therlands. Dignity. The Government of the Low Countries, upon the death of Erneftus the Archduke, was some time in the Hands of D. Peter Enriquez de Toledo, Earl of Fuentes, a notable Soldier. He on the 3d. of October, after a tedious Siege, took Cambray from the French, who attempted three times to relieve it, and were as often repulied.

The Pope on the 25th. of November made Valladolid a Bishops Sec, and the King soon Valladolid after gave it the Title and Priviledge of a City. Dr. Bartholomew de la Plaça was the made a first Bishop. About the end of this Year the Floods were very great, and the River at Bishoprick

Sevill breaking into the City, did much harm at the Custom-House.

The King of France being entirely reconciled to the Church, was at last absolved by the Pope, and immediately all his Kingdom fubmitted to him. D Peter de Toledo, Marquis of Villafranca, on the 23th of September took and plunder'd the City Patras in the Morea, having gone from Mellina with 20 Galleys upon that delign.

Ferdinand Tello, Governor of Dourlans for the Spaniards, having Intelligence with the Aniens ta People of Amiens, the chief City of Picardy, suprized and made hingslife Master of it. The Spaniards, King of France confidering the great Importance of that Place, came thither in Person, and laid fiege to it. Albertus the Archduke marched with about 20000 Men out of Artois, deligning to relieve the City; but finding the King too well posted, and having suffered somewhat by his Artillery, and in some small Skirmishes he refired; upon which the City was furrendred, the Garifon marching out with the usual Honourable Formalities.

Sigifmund Bator, Prince of Transitoania, who at this time with much Bravery maintained War against the Turks and Hereticks went to Vienna to attend the Emperor, who supplied him with Money, as did the Pope and Catholick King. But the hopes conceived of his Proceedings vanished; for he was taken sick, (some said he was bewitched) whereupon he forfook the War, and left his Wife, the Daughter of Charles the Archduke, and refigning up his Dominions to the Emperor, lived a private Life at Prague, where he died some years after.

Anno 1598.

Neiber This Year, on the 6th of May, the King gave up all the Low-Countries to his eldest lands gi Daughter Elizabeth, in order to marry her, as was afterwards done, to her Cousin the ven to the Archduke Albertus, who to that purpose resigned up his Cardinal's Cap, and the Arch-Princets bishoprick of Toledo, which was given to Garcia de Loaysa, Prince Philip's Tutor. Yet this Donation was in such manner, that those Countries were to be held of the Crown of Spain, to which also was referred the Order of the Golden Fleece, and the Prerogative of placing Governors in certain Caltles, such as Antwerp, Ghent, and Cambr.y. Soon after a Peace was concluded with France; in bringing the which to effect, the Pope laboured very

The Princels Margaret was born the 25th. of the same Month at Lerma. In November. by the contrivance of a certain Moor with whom private Correspondence was held, our Altrache Forces possessed the fire of the frong Castle of Alarache, a place of great importance in Africk upon the Coast of Africk on the Ocean. About it is a Bay and River called Mamora, which taken. was a Den of Pyrats. For this reason four Very after D. This reason four Very was a Den of Pyrats. For this reason four Years after D. Luis Faxardo, Admiral of the Fleet, possessed himself of that places, and built a good Castle, in which he left a institute Garifon. The Moores at first slocked thinker to hinder this Work, but prevailed not.

This Year was very remarkable for the banishing of all the Morisco's, that is those descended of the Moores, out of Spain. This wicked Race held correspondence with the Turks, and Barbary Moores. So great a Work could not be finished this Year, but was afterwards continued; however many are faid to have remain'd behind, not being well known to be such, tho the multitude of those that departed was incredible.

This Year was unfortunate for the death of Margaret of Austria Queen of Spain, who Spain dies for her extraordinary good Qualities was entirely beloved of all her Subjects. She was deliver'd on the 22th, of September at the Escuriall, of a Son call'd Alonso, who lived not out a Year, and she died on the 3d. of Odober. Her Body was buried in the Escuriall. She built at Madrid a Monastery of Nuns called of the Incarnation.

About this time came into Spain the Latin History of Monsieur de Thou, President of Parliament a great favourer of Hereticks and Enemy to Catholicks. He neither spares the Popes, nor Kings of France, being an utter Enemy to the House of Guise, once the great Popes, nor Kings of Prance, being an acter leading of the Holmo of sale, one of that Crown. He is fufficiently fluffed with Fallhoods, and was prohibited at Roome in the Year 1610. Soon after in Spain it was ordered to be purged. A French Man writ learnedly against him, and calls himself John Baptista Callus, which seems to be a seigned Name, none daring publickly to write against a Person so great in Power, as a President. Afalse Catholick does more harm than an open Heretick, as says S. Rernard.

Upon Saturday the 24th of May there happened an Earthquake in the Island Tercera, which did much harm. In the Town of Playa the Mischief was greater, for private Houses, Monasteries and Churches were overthrown. In the City Angla 11 Churches and 19 Chapels besides private Houses were destroyed.

Discovery This Year the Kingdoms of Grand Cathay and Tibet were discovered. They lye beyond Discovery India, bordering upon China on the North-fide, and are very large, delightful, and plenti-and Ithin, ful Countries. The People abhor the Mahometans, and fooff at the Pagans. They have particular Ceremonies of their own, and many Priefts, whom they call Lambas; some of whom live in Communities, others by themselves. All of them profess Poverty, live upon Charity, never marry, and spend much of the day in Prayer. Such of the People as have two Sons, dedicate one to this Peicelly Order. Their Churches are neat, the Walls and Roofs painted. The Images they use are of Gold, and among them one of a Woman, which they say represents the Mother of God. They acknowledge the Mysteries of the Incarnation, and blessed Trinity, and use Confession in some cases, but only to the chief Lamba. These and many other odd Rites seem to be the small Remains of the Doctrine of S. Thomas the Apostle. This Country was with incredible labour discovered by F. Antony de Andrade, a Portugues Jesuit.

D. Gregory Brito, Knight of the Order of Calatrava, a Portugues, and Governor of the City Lerida, considering of how great importance it would be to remove the French out Castle of of the Castle of Termes, a place of such strength that they called it Petit Rochel, being six Termes ta-Miles distant from Lerida, and three from Balaguer, march'd on the 6th. of April at mid-ken. night from Lerida with a body of Foot and some Horse towards that place. Before break of day he affaulted it with fuch bravery, that he made himself Master of it, putting most of the Garison to the Sword. This done he order'd his Horse to advance, and fired some Guns in hopes to draw out the Garison of Balaguer, but they stirred not. In this Cafile of Termes were found 1000 Muskets, 500 Suits of Armour, 10 pieces of Cannon, 10 Boats to make Bridges with the Carts to carry them, Tents to the value of 4000 Duccats, a great quantity of Merchandize, and much Ammunition and Provision; this place being one of the Enemies Magazines. The French in Garrifon at Balaguer thought to carry fome Timber and other Materals out of the Ruins of Termes to ferve in the Forfications they were raising, to which purpose they sent thither 100 Men with Mules for carriage, but D. Gregory Brito having notice of it circumvented the whole Party, and made them Prisoners without any bloodshed.

Italy enjoy'd Peace, but was now alarm'd with the News of the mighty Maritime Preparations made by the Ottoman Emperor, which moved the Viceroys of Sicily and Naples to put themselves into the best posture of Defence they were able. The Great Master of Malta fent all over Christendom to summon all the Knights of the Order to repair to him with what Supplies they could. The Vocations also judging all those Preparations were made against them, omitted nothing that could tend to the securing of their Dominions. At last, having held all Europe in suspense in singlety Storm sfell upon the Illand of Candia, where the Insides Soon made themselves Masters of the Fort S. Theodore, and the

His Holiness this Year in March created nine Cardinals. The Duke of Arcos new Viceroy of Naples came to Rome, where he was honourably received, and splendidly enter-tain'd by the Pope, after which he set forward for Naples.

Prince Thomas of Savoy entring some Miles into the Dukedom of Milan, possessed himself of Roca de Bejeuen, but presently retired thence and seized the Castle of Pro and fome Hills about it. The Marquls of Vilada, Governor of Milan march'd from Mortara with 7000 Foot and 8 Pieces of Cannon. He attack'd the Enemy with such Bravery that they were drove from their places of strength, having lost 1500 of their Foot, and among them 300 Officers. Prince Maurice of Savoy died afterwards of his Wounds, and Prince Thomas his Brother received two Musket-shots.

Harcour, the French Viceroy in Catalonia, laid Siege to Lerida a strong and important Over-City upon the River Segre, and the Borders of Catalonia and Aragon. Before this place he throw of lay five Months, hindring all manner of Succours from being put into it. The Marquis the French. de Leganes the Spanish General, after he had taken several small places to give a diversion to the Enemy, and cut off some of their Convoys, finding them not quit their Enterprize, being joined by the Duke det Infantado, and his Army now amounting to 25000 Men, refolved to attack the French in their Trenches, which accordingly he did, and after a hot dispute put them to flight, forcing them to take shelter at Balaguer. All their Baggage, Cannon, and great store of Ammunition and Provisions were taken. This Victory cost the Spaniards much Blood, being forc'd to drive the Enemy out of their Works, but the importance of relieving Lerida made amends for all.

Prince Thomas of Savoy who commanded the French in Italy in May, appear'd before the Ports Telamon and S. Stephen with a powerful Fleet and 20000 Men. He foon made himself Master of both those places, which done he possessed all the Posts about Orbitello, where Charles de la Gata a Spaniard commanded, and laid close Siege to it. He raised feveral Batteries which play'd furiously upon the Town, making large breaches in the Walls, and still carried on his Works with great Labour: But the Governour was no less industrious and vigilant, still making up what the Enemies Cannon had ruin'd, and with often fallies, firing and destroying their Works. At length the Fleet of Naples came to the Relief of the Besieged, and in some Encounters with the Enemy had always the best. The Spanifb Forces also of Naples and Milan being joined, and approaching to the affishance of the Besieged, Prince Thomas sinding his Army much diminish'd not only by the Assaults he had gwen, but much more by Sicknels, caused by the excessive heat of the Weather, retir'd back with his Army into Picdmant. Thus after a Siege of 60 days Orbitello was deliver'd from danger, whereas most Men judged it could not have held out above 20. It was not long before the French retrieved this Difgrace, for their Fleet being son refitted, returned under the Command of the Marcichal Meleraie, who possessing himself of Porto Longone in the Island Ilva, opposite to the City Plombin, with the same ease brought that

The War with Partugal was not this Year carried on with any great vigour, nor any notable Action done on that fide. Several Incursions were made by our Parties with good success. defeating those of the Enemy, and bringing away great Booties of Cattel. At last the Enemy with a powerful Army took the Field, defigning to befiege Badajoz, and threatning the whole Province of Estremadura. All this Preparation fell to nothing, for they compassed not the razing the Fort of Telena as they intended, but retired from before it with much precipitation upon the approach of the Spanifb Army, leaving the Fort as they found it.

The Low Countries the Duke of Anguier with an Army of 40000 Men, took Courtry the Low and Winosberg, and recovered Mardike, before furprized by the Spaniards. This done they Countries laid Siege to Dunkirk, which had been his principal delign; this place being of great importance, as the chief Port the Spaniards then reforted to, was bravely defended by the the French, Importance, as the chief Foreign Agon Men. But the Duke having a numerous Army Marquis de Lede with a Garifon of 4000 Men. But the Duke having a numerous Army which he no way spared, and the Hollanders with their Fleet lying before the Harbour, fo that no Relief could be put into the Place, it was at last furrendred upon honourable

King Philip having made choice of D. John Enriquez de Cabrera, Great Admiral of Cafile and late Viceroy of Naples, for the Embally to Kome, to yield Obedience to Pope Innocent the X. he performed that Ceremony on the 28th, of April, with the greatest Pomp and Magnificence that had been feen in Rome for many Years.

This Year the wonderful Bell of Vililla in Aragon rung of it felf three times in one day, which was Monday the 30th, of spril; the first time it gave 11 strokes, the second 8, and the third 7.

Anno 1647.

D. John of Anstria living retir'd at Ocana, was this Year called thence to take the Austria at command of Generalissimo by Sea: He set sail from Cadiz with a mighty Fleet, and entring the Streights took a rich French Ship, which carried Presents of great value to the Queen of Portugal. At Tarragona he landed 4000 Men for the Service of Catalonia, and fail'd thence to Naples.

A Deputy fent by the City Valencia to complain of certain Grievances came to the Court of Madrid, and was received by the King with all poslible Demonstrations of Honour, all the Grandees and Noblemen of the Court attending him, and his House was allow'd the fame Priviledges as those of Foreign Ministers.

After the defeat of Monsieur de Harcour at Lerida, the Prince of Conde was constituted Conde in General of the French Forces in Catalonia, and coming Post to Rarcelona took possession of Catalonia: that Command the 15th of April. On the 12th of May he laid Siege to Lerida, taking the same Posts that Harcor had done the Year before, and batter'd it suriously. D. Gregory de Brito, that famous Portugues, was then Governor of that City, who defended it with much bravery, making feveral fallies in which he kill'd many of the Enemy, and took feveral Prisoners. On the 18th. of June the Prince of Conde by night raised his Siege, and march'd over the River Noguera, to a place called Las Horcas de Lerida. Next day a supply of 1000 Foot with Ammunition and Provisions was put into the City. The Marquis de Aytona march'd with an Army of 12000 Foot and 3500 Horse against the Prince of Conde, who being too weak to oppose him, dispers'd his Forces into the strong Garisons, expecting new supplies from France

The Constable of Cashile, Governour of Milan, took Niza de la Palla, Alva, and other Monsfer-The Contains of capita, Governant of Prima, took evice as a cond, when, and other monitoring places in Moniferrat, rayaing the Country, and driving the Prench into their Places of rai invaftrength. The Duke of Areas, Viceroy of Naples, (ent him 2500 Men in 12 Galleys, deaby the commanded by Janetin Doria. He landed these Forces at Final, and in his return to Na. Spaniards. commanded by Janear Duria. The landed mode roles at Email, and in the teturn to Ivaples discovering the French Fleet, conflicting of 25 Men of War, 8 Fireflips and 13 Galleys, he retired into Savona, a Port of the Georgies, whether the French Fleet pursued, threatning to burn all our Galleys unless they furrendred. The Governour of Savona fent. to the French Admiral, to let him know if he fired a Shot, he would answer with all the Guns of the City, which made the French lie still, till hearing that the Spanish Fleet was coming they retir'd to Toulon.

In the Low Countries nothing considerable was done this Year, the French appear'd about Antwerp, and thence moved to Oudenard without attempting any thing of moment. A Truce was concluded with the Hollanders, and proclaim'd at the Hague, fo that a free Truce Trade was re-established between them and the Spanish Provinces. After the Archduke with Hol-Loopold had taken upon him the Government of the Low Countries, he assembled all his land. Forces, and took from the French Armentiers, Landress, and several other Places of less

In June the Articles of Marriage betwixt King Philip and the Archdutches Mary Anne, Eldest Daughter to the Emperor Ferdinand the III. were brought to Madrid, and received with great Joy and Satisfaction of the whole Court.

We will end this Year with the Relation of the most wonderful Rebellion that hapned Rebellion at Naples. After that City and Kingdom became subject to the Kings of Spain, it was of Naples. for some time govern'd with great Moderation, and had very ample Priviledges granted to it, especially by King Ferdinand and the Emperor Charles the V. under whom the People paid but moderate Taxes, and that by the Name of Donatives or Free Gifts. These in process of time were infinitely increased, and the infolency of the Receivers made them more intollerable, especially those Impositions that were upon Provisions. This burthen lay heaviest upon the Commonalty, of whom there is a vast multitude at Naples. Yet hitherto they had gone no farther than Complaints; but when the last Year an Excise was laid upon all manner of Fruits and Herbs, then the Clamours of the Multitude began to be more loud, and they opposed the Collectors. Such as had any hand in these Tumults were punished, and others for that time deterred. At length this Year the Complaints increasing, there statted up a base Fellow who took upon him to deliver his Country from those heavy Taxes. This was Thomas Aniello of Amalfi, (commonly call'd Massairello) a bold Youth that fold Fish, of a voluble Tongue, and all ways qualified to raise a Mutiny. It happen'd that some Fish he brought to Market was taken from him, for refusing to pay the Excise, which the more incensed him, so that he ceased not to go about the Markets perfwading the People not to pay the Duty, and that not in private but openly, and by his Emissires boasting he would soon cause all the Taxes to be remitted. Most Men of sence made finall account of fo inconfiderable a Fellow, but he, left his defign should be prevented, resolv'd to put it in Execution, and therefore upon Sunday the 7th of June came into the Market-place with a finall number of Boys following him, feveral of the Rabble there joining with him. A Contention arising between the Country People and the Collectors about the Payment of the Duty, Andrew Anaclerius the Clerk of the Market re-pair'd thither to appeale the Tumult, but the Multitude throwing Apples and other things at him, he was forc'd to withdraw himfelf, and hafted away to complain of that Infolency to the Viceroy. The Multitude now gather'd not only in the Markets, but in the Streets, began with loud crys to demand the Excise might be abolish'd. Mean while Massamello, who was still in the Market with his Gang, standing upon a Table made a feditious Harangue to the People, offering to head them, and put an end to all Taxes if they would ftand by him, which if they should not, he said, at least he should have the Satisfaction of dying for his Country. All the Rabble affenting to him, he immediately fet fire to all the little Offices where the Collectors used to receive the Excise. This done he goes up to the Viceroy, demanding all the Taxes should be remitted, and the Original Charters of King Ferdinand and Charles the V. produced, threatning further danger if his Demands were not granted. The Viceroy having labour'd by fair words to appeale the Mutiniers in vain, scattering some Money among them made his escape. Now their number was grown up to 50000, but the next day twice as many appear'd in Arms. Then all the Nobility being fled, Maffaniello was chosen their Commander with an unlimited Power. His first command was that they should all be ready in Arms. Then he set a Price upon Bread and other Provisions, after which he burnt all the other Offices of the Collectors which had escap'd the day before. Next he fell upon the Houses of all the Farmers of the Revenue, some of which he burnt with all the Riches in them, out of others he brought all the precious Furniture, Plate, and Money, which was all burnt in the Street, no Man daring to take the least thing in that great Treasure to his own use; for whosoever in this or any other matter transgeriled against his Orders, was instantly put to Death. No Person whatsoever was spared, which was the cause that all his Orders were most punctually obeyed. Upon the 4th day after this Mutiny broke out, the Duke of Matalone, and his Brother Joseph Caraffa, having hired 500 Banditti to kill Massamello, and some others of the principal Heads of the Rebellion, the Delign was difcovered; and not only the Banditti put to Death, but strict fearch was made after the Duke, and his Brother being taken, was dragged along the Streets, his Head being cut off by a Butcher, put upon a long Pole, which brought to Muffamello, he fcornfully pulled by the Beard. This terrified all the Nobility, but most of all the Viceroy, nor was he out of danger, for Maffamillo had forbid any Provision being carried into the Castle where he was, and ordered the Conduits of Water to be cut off. In this Conduits of Water to be cut off. fusion Cardinal Philomarini the Archbishop, order'd the Blesled Sacrament to be exposed in all runon Cardinal prinomaria in Attending point of the Brayers to be faid to appeal the Wrath of Heaven, going out to the furious Rabble, began to treat with Malfaniello as the chief Ringleader of the reft, of reftoring the City to Peace. The People demanded the abolishing of all Taxes imposed fince the Times of King Ferdinand and Charles the 5th, and to lithing of all 1 axes imposed lines the 1 lines of King returnate and control the Sin, and to have their Charters of Priviledges produced; befides this, an Act of Grace for all that had been done; which if granted, Maffaniello promifed to quit his Command, and that the People should lay down their Arms. The Viceroy, and Archbishop, finding no other Remedy ple fhould lay down their Arms. The Victory, and Artenhinly, indinging out in Remedy left, delivered to Malfamillo the Priviledges or Charters, promiting to fulfil all his other Demands; befides, the Archbifhop engaged to pay to Malfamiello a Monthly Penfion of 200 Crowns, which he refufed. Peace thus concluded, Malfamiello was brought by the Archbifhop to the Viceroy; and returning to the People, declared all that had been transfaced, fricitly enjoyning them to behave themselves in peaceable manner. Nevertheles he would not lay down Arms till fluch time as the Ratification of what had been concluded were brought from the Court of Spain. All these were the Transactions of one Week, besides many more too tedious for this place. Massamello having as he thought obtained his Ends, grew distracted. Some say it was caused by a Dose given him, others ascribe it to the multiplicity of Bufiness, which scarce allowed him time to eat or sleep. But he in his Madness tiplicity of Bufinets, which tearce allowed him time to eat or fleep. But he in his Madnes contradicting his own Orders, and becoming contemptible to his own People, was by the Contrivance of four of the Nobility, who laid hold of this Opportunity, killed. His Head being cut off, was put upon a Pole, and the Body dragged about the Streets by the Rabble foreveral days. This was the end of Maffaniello, the 10th day after he began the Rebellion. Yet tho the Head was taken away, the Multitude continued in Arms, infilting upon their Demands; but the Nobility taking Courage, had recourfe to the Viceroy, and raifing her is Followers, undertook to quell the Multitude by force. Thus the Bufinets was brought to a Chill Mad Park the Company the period of the Course of the romovers, materious to quest the maintance of sold of the City, the Viceroy and Nobility the Callet and Port. The Multitude wanted nothing but a Heady therefore not long after the Duke of Guife was fent to them out of France, and received with general Applaule, and great Acclamations. The Commonalty strengthned by his coming, a long time held out against the Viceroy. But at last growing weary of the War, they again returned to their Duty. A general Pardon was granted them, and they were received to Mercy in the King's Name by D. John of Austria. The Duke of Guife endeavouring to escape, was taken by the Spaniards.

Troubles This Year was fatal to France for the Troubles there raifed against the King in most part of France, of the Kingdom, but more especially at Paris by the Prince of Conde, and Duke of Longueville, the Heads of the Rebels. The Marquis de Caracena making his Advantage of their Confusions, with 8000 Foot and 4000 Horse, invaded the Dukedom of Modens, wasting and destroying all that Country; so that the Duke, for saken by the French, was forced to make use of the Duke of Parma to intercede for him, and adjust all matters in difference.

The French Rebels having prayed Aid of the Archduke Leopold, Governor of the Low Com-

tries, he marched with his Army as far as Senlis, which is but 10 Leagues from Paris; and having done nothing worthy that Trouble or Charge, returned towards Flanders. There ashamed of that fruitless Expedition, tho it were Winter, he ordered the Marquis Sprondiato to invest Ipres, in order to beliege it.

The French Fleet, commanded by Thomas Duke of Savoy, infelted the Coasts of the Kingdom of Naples, but in its return loft 4000 Men, cut off only by the Country People, as they ravaged the Country.

Aftions in The Marquis of Leganez, who commanded upon the Frontiers of Portugal, ordered D. Gre-Porugal. gory Ibarra, Commissary General of Badajoz, to make an Inroad into the Encinies Frontiers, with 6 Troops of Horse, and drive all the Cattel. He in pursuance of these Orders gathered about 400 Horse at Higuera, and with them entered into Portugal on the 8th of November; there they fpent 2 Nights and a Day, ranfacking all the Houses and Villages in the Territories of Cerps and Moura, and gathering all the Cattel. With this Booty they returned the 18th towards Castile to lye that Night near Oliva, where all the Cattel was conveniently flut up in the enclosed Fields. The Horse being dismounted to take their Rest, Parties went out to discover whether the Enemy moved. About 9 at night our advanced Centinels hear-

THE PPLEMENT

General History

From the Year 1650 till 1669.

Continued by F. Bafil Varen de Soto, once Provincial of the Regular Clergy.

HIS Year committened furceisful to the Crown of Spain; for Fortune, which before feem'd to have turn't her back upon it, now thought nothing too much to beltow on it. No place was befleged but yielded, and that without great Expence or 'lofs of Time.' Major-General Francis Totavila, bravely relieved the Caffle of Caffli-Leon in Val de Aran, and by that means fecured the Pallage over the Pyreneans into Catalonia. Several Emballadors came to the Court from divers Princes of Emrope, and among the reft one from the King of England then in Exile. The English Parliament fent a Reindent, who came to Court upon his Majefly's fafe Conduct on Whislanday, and on the Monday following ix Englishmen, Commel's upon pretence of welcoming him, entred his House and killed him at Table. The strangements of the Fact alarm'd the Court. They who had committed the Fact took Sanctuary down in the Hospital of S. Andrew of the Fleming!, where they were apprehended by D. Ferdi-John Millmand Altamirano, an Alcalde de Corte, who cast them into Prison, whilst the other Acaddes took cognizance of the Fact." The Prisoners pleaded the Sanctuary, and were restored to it. Asterward, to appeale Oliver Commell, one of them was drawn out of the Sanctuary deceitfully, whereupon the Vicar Excommunicated the Alcaddes. After much convassing the Matter, the Prisoner out of meer State Policy was Executed in the Vera 1653: For all this Time was spent in contesting between the Ecclesiastical and Secular Power. He that this Time was spent in contesting between the Ecclesiastical and Secular Power. He that fuffer'd was the principal Actor, though at their Examination every one of them faid he himself had kill'd the Envoy.

The Duke of Guize Peer of France, taken by D. John of Austria in the Troubles at Na-ples and sent into Spain, was kept Prisoner in the Castle of Segovia with an honourable Guard as became a Prince. He was attended by Gentlemen of his own Country, had 1000 Duccats a Month allowed for his Expences, and was upon all Festivals carried out in the Governour and Mayor's Coaches, to partake in the publick Joy. The Citizens relying upon his Honour grew carelels in oblerving him; and he, in order to make his etcape, feigned himfelf fick, that he might not be feen by any body; and having diffusited himfelf, on the 23d. of November made his efcape out of the Castle; but being miled, and Expresses fint all ways after him, he was taken by the Governour of Vitoria: He was sent back to fent all ways atter him, ne was taken by the Governour of ritoria: rie was tent back to Burgoi, and thence to Segovia, where he was more carefully oblerved, but fill kept with the fame Generofity; fuch was the extraordinary goodness of our King.

The recovery of Portologone, taken by the French, was a great Undertaking, and worthy Portological the Arms of Spain. D. John of Austria, Admiral of the Seas and Vicercy of Sicily, having generaken deputed the Duke of Montalio Governor of that Kingdom, and the Earl of Other left his Brother D. Beltram de Guevara to supply his place, they set sail with a powerful Fleet, and landed on the 19th of May at a convenient place for the invelting of that Town. The confequence of which is well known to those who are acquainted with the Coasts of haly, and the French had from thence put a stop to all Trade by their Privateers. Our Forces first took Piombino, which rendred the Conquest of the other the casier, and consequently soon after it submitted to His Majesty to his greater Honour, for that his Enemies had thought atter it fibmitted to His Majefly to his greater Honour, for that his Enemies had thought it impregnable.

The Duke of Bragama (King John of Portugal) drew most Garisons from the Frontiers to fecure the Sea-Coass, leaving most of the island defenceles. He also order'd all the Biskes to be brought out of the Garisons to Lisboh, where a Bulhel of Wheat was worth 150 Royals Plate. The English Fleet in June came before the Bar of Lisbon, which put the Inhabitants of be tought out of the Garisons to Lisboh, which put the Inhabitants of the Garison of the Coast of Lisbon, which put the Inhabitants of the Garison of the Coast of Lisbon, which put the Inhabitants of the Coast of Coast o The Duke of Bragança (King John of Portugal) drew most Carifons from the Frontiers to desperate Action, and perform a with much resolutely and emulation, the Water being up to the Mens Breaks, and the French bravely desending their Intrenchments upon the Ford. However the Valour of our Men overcame all difficulties, and by degrees they made them-felves Mafters of all the Works, and on the 26th of September were policified of the place. Next day they laid Siege to Wire the And its Califie is place thought impregnable, being feat-ed on a high Hill for rough and uncount tilere was no affaulting of it, and so rocky it was routing of a might rim to rough and uncount mere was no anaturing of it, and no locky it was mod difficult to undermine. The Walls were frong, being the antient Work of the Knights Templars built with Lime and Stone, which made the French and Catalonians within very facure. But Fortune favouring our delignes, the Caftle furrendred the 8th. of Odlober, the Governor being killd with a Musket-flot, which quite difcouraged the Defendants. The Marquis making use of this good Fortune, march'd thence and laid Siege to Tortofa on the were Aragonisms, Catalonisms, and Valencians led by the Viceroys of those Kingdoms, and paid by their. On the 19th, they took their Posts under the Cannon of the Town, the Principal Commanders viewing them, and giving the necessary Orders. A Bridge was laid over the River Ebro above the Town, where it might be leaft exposed to the Enemies Cannon. Our Army daily increasing; the Enemy Sought to give a Divertion on the side of Aragon, but without any success. On the 28th, the Trenches were opened and carried along the cover'd Way to the Monastery of S. Blas, where a small Fort was cast up in less than 3 days. Till the 3d. of November the Approaches were carried on. Then all the Batteries began to play, and on the oth. a Colonel was order'd with his Regiment to attack a small Fort upon the Bridge: He did fo, but meeting a vigorous relistance retired with the loss of 40 Men. and 60 wounded.

Whilst the Batteries continued to Play ashoar, the brave Duke of Albuquerque General of the Spanish Calleys, with 3 of his Squadron and one of Sarahina, fet out from Assaues where helay to hinder Relief being brought to Torsofa, and went tomeet the Mareschalde Ligns, who hely to mitted senier being oriented to array and went office in Array and Ammunition for that Place. At the same time the Duke de Merceur lay at Cambriles, in order to attack us by Land. Place. At the tame time time the base of Processing as at Commence, in order to attack is by Land. The Duke of Albaquerque meeting these Ships upon the Coalf of Tarragona on the 24th of November Ingaged, and after a Fight which lasted from morning till two in the afternoon, November Ingaged, and after a right winter latted from morning full two in the atternoon, made himself Mafter of them. This Action caused Tortosa to furrender, all their hopes depending on that Relief. The besieged Capitulated and delivered the Place upon honorantle Tortosa Conditions, they being to be shipped off for Barcelona. On the 27th of Novimber our Gene. Taken ral and the Governor of the Town figured the Articles, and on the 3d of December our Forces entred Tortofa. Thus the Two Important Places of Flix and Tortofa were Reduced, and all the length of the River Ebro Restored to his Majesty. After the surrender of these Two Places, the Catalonians desiring to cast off the French Yoke, and Return to their Allegiance to Flates, the James of the Prince, began every where to Treat the French Contemptibly. At Barcelona 8 well affected Catalonian posted themselves in the Market place in two Parties at a distance, well affected camman potted themselves in the manner page in two rathes at a uniance, and the one Party crying aloud, Les Spain Live, the other answered, Let it Live, the it Live, the the first cryed, Let France and its Government die; and the others answered, Let it die immediately. Thus the Tunnults increased till Night, no Body daring to oppose them. Next Day Lampoons were fet up in feveral Parts of the City, and none offered to take them down. At Christmas came the Syndies of the Towns about Barcelona to complain of the Infolencies of the French, of whom the Ecclefiaftical Deputy of the Principality asked Why they did not kill them, for then was the time? These Tumults made the Duke of Merceur Why lies also not know, for the man in time: Affect a luminous made the Lucicou narrown then Victory, D. Jefeh Margaris, and the principal French Commanders, as also those Catalonians that Sided with them, think of faving themselves from the sury of the Multitude. and accordingly they withdrew into Roufilon, fome of them going to Pare to acquaint the most Christian Queen and Cardinal Mazarine with the Posture of Affairs.

In Prance the Princes of Conde and Conti, and the Duke of Longueville being Summoned to a great Council, were there Apprehended, and fent Prisoners to the Castle of Vincennes under a firong Guard. This was the beginning of the mighty Troubles and Confusions that foon after enfued in that Kingdom. Many bloody Skirmilhes hapned betwirt the Peothat not also and the Forces of the Duke of Esperim, at last the Duke was worsted and glad to make his Escape with a small Retinue. The King still proceeding against the great Men in Prison, made the Duke of Mercaur High Admiral of France, which Honour was before given to the Prince of Conde; and Governors were fint to the Provinces of those secured. All the Employments of those suspected to be in the Conspiracy were disposed of, Mare-Schal Turenne who Commanded the Army in Germany marched with 9000 Foot, and 2000 Horfe to Releafe the Prisoners, many Men of Quality and Cities declaring for him. The same did the Parliament of Bourdanes, where were many of the Nobility. Thither the King marched with his Army, and forced the City to furrender in Ottober, upon Condition his most Christian Majesty should release the Princes that were in Prison, not Prosecute those that were absent, and give 100000, Crowns to the Parliament of Bourdeaux; put no Garrifon into that City, and endeavour a Peace with Spain. None of these Articles were performed, whereupon the Rebels took up Arms again.

The Throng was so great, the dor had fome Difficulty to pass to a Room richly adorned to receive him, where he half an Hour: Upon the Ambassadors coming into the House, the Speaker and all the Members stood up, and were uncovered, till he sat down on the Chair set for him, and made a fhort Speech in Spanish, which he delivered in writing, together with his Credentials, the Speaker answered in English, the Parliament would consider of what he had said, and return an Answer. After this Ceremony, the Ambassador returned home in the same manner, the Cannon at the Tower firing. All Europe was furprized at this Proceeding of D. Alonfo de Cardenas upon fuch an extraordinary Revolution of those Kingdoms. The Duke of Albuqurque, General of the Spanific Galleys went away to Port S. Mary to his Command, as did the Earl of Haro General of the Horse in Catalonia. D. Francis de To. tavila Duke of S. German and Governor of the Frontiers at Badajoz, understanding that so of the Enemies Horse had forded the River at Olivença, and lay in the Woods about a Cannon shot from the City, sent out 150 Horse in two Parties to fall upon them. This was slowly put in Execution, and after he was gone to Bed, he arose to speak with the General of the Horfe. Whilft they were Discoursing, Advice was brought that the Enemies Horse drove the Cattle that Grazed within Mulquet shot of the Walls: The Governor knowing the Enemy had no more Horse on the other side of the River, at one of the Clock in the morning iffued out of the City with the Horfe, and at about a Leagues distance recovered the small Cattle, which was about 5000 Head: Towards break of day having pursued the Enemy, he put them to flight, taking from them 300 Head of black Cattle.

French described and Army, flushed with Victory. The Catalonian, weary of the French, fought an opportunity catalonia to rid themselves of them. About 2000 French Foot and 1000 Horse were marching into Catalonia, but so jealous of the Country People that they durst not straggle the least, for fear of being cut off in the narrow and Mountanous Passes. Orders were now taken by the Council of France for fending supplies to Carabonia: It was also endeavoured to obtain a Truce for a considerable time in Flanders, but our Governors being averse to it, they were glad to take other measures. It was believed the King of France would take upon him the Government in September, the the Tumuli ran then so high, that some great Disaster was to be seared. The Prince of Condt made great Demands of Satisfaction for his Imprisonment, and other Noblemen had greater Pretentions than stood with the King's Sastery to grant. Cardinal Mazarine was at Bonne, the Court of the Elector of Cologne, and waited to be reflored to the Government of France.

In England a Squadron was fitting out to go against Prince Rupert, who lay at Toulon, and took many English Ships Trading to the East. Another Squadron was failed for Newfound land, to Convoy the Filhing-Fleet, and chase the French out of those Seas. A third was sent touthe Coast of Scotland, whither Gromwel was marching with a mighty Army to oppose the King. The Royal Sovereign with another Squadron was to cruize in the Channel. Another Squadron was defigned for the Coast of Ireland.

Advice being brought that 14 Sail were arrived at Tarragona in Catalonia from Naples, lader with Corn and Men, it was supposed the rest of the Fleet might be come with D. John of Aufria. Upon which the People of Lisbon mutinied, and began to nis rayourite to be apprenented. Opin which the recipie of Liber intuitine, and began to rail against the Duke, and that night many reflecting and threathing Lampoons were fet up in publick Places. Mean while certain Portugues Troops broke into Cassile; and having plundered four open Towns, carried away a confiderable Booty in Cattel. D. Franca Totavila, Duke of S. German, and General of the Frontiers of Estremadura, having notice of it, ordered Thomas Alardi, Earl of Trongan, one of his Lieutenants, to gather what Horle and Foot he could, and purfue them into Portugal. The Earl having affembled his Troops, purfued them; but finding they were gone, fent after them the Commissary General Jacome Maçacan. He the finding fiely were going and next morning about break of day discovered the Enemy at Ciliavin, being 250 Horse and 500 Foot, and having drove all the Cattel they found in their way. Massaan immediately charged the Enemy with such Bravery, that they were broke, and above 150 of their Men killed, among whom was a Captain of Horse, 2 Lieuxe. nants, 6 Captains of Foot, the Major, 5 Enfigns, and other Officers. 366 were taken, anoft efithem to desperately wounded that they died. On our side one Captain of Horse, one Enfign, and sour private Men were killed. Thus the Infolency of the Enemy was somewhat fuppressed, and Magacan gained much Reputation.

Advice was brought to Oran, that the Moors of Uladala and Zal had revolted; that they had fortified themselves upon a Break of the River, and thence pillaged the neighbouring Places. The Marquels of Floresta Davila, Governour of Oran, fell upon them, and brought away 200 Slaves, and their Chief, killing 100 more. Of the Alaferes and Ulirchrain, Two Heads of Families, which together make 100 Villages, he took 110 Slaves, and retired fighting all day with above 4000 Moors, of whomhe killed 300. In May he made another Invocate to the River Cique, whence he took 100 Slaves, and at other times above 120 Robbers who infelted the Country. He again marched against above 300 Villages at Venarasel (who are the ftoutest Moors of all that Country) and in the Plain of Abora made 150 Slaves. Understanding that a Moravito had built a small Town, and sortified it about 18 Leagues from Oran, at the Mouth of the River Zara, which ran through the midst of it, the Governour sent a Brave Officer with 200 Foot and 110 Horse to plunder it. The Count de Oñate Governed Naples with fingular Wisdom and good Conduct, as did the Marquess of Campo Reall the Island of Sardinia. The latter endeavoured to put an end to the Factions that disturbed the Quier of that Kingdom, and banishing the Heads of both Parties, established Peace. He sent Supplies to the Island Coralina de Tabarca, at the Request of the Governour of it, by which means that Place was delivered from the Danger of the Barbary Moors.

The Marquels of Caragena Governour of Milan, having with his Army infelted all the neighbouring Country, retired with a great Booty taken in Piemont about Turin, the Court of the Duke of Savoy, and notwithstanding 4000 of the Enemy endeavoured to cut off his Retreat, he passed all the difficult Mountains with his heavy Baggage and Train of Artillery, without loling one head of Cattel. This done, he dispersed his Army in the Territories of Tubine, Camag. nia, Concano, and Figurela. Here he expected the coming of 5 Regiments defigned for Catalonia, and hindred the French from fending Supplies to that Province. All the Cattel taken about Cazal he caused to be restored, the Governour of that Place and he of Torno, giving Security, they would for the future, no more molest, the Subjects of the Dukedom of Milan. Then ha ving fent 1600 Italians and Germans designed for Catalonia to Final, and made a General Muster, he put his Army into Winter Quarters.

In France all things tended to Rebellion. The Queen Mother brought the King to the Parliament of Park, to be recognized as their Lawful Sovereign, which they all offered to do when as things were disposed with the usual Pomp for so great a Ceremony, but as soon as they broke up, many of them sled to Rochelle. The Prince of Conde having formed and concluded the League, demanded more than it was possible to grant him. Yet after this, the Queen, Duke of Ordeans, Prince of Conde, and Parliament of Paris, were again united, but it lasted not long, for in a little time the Prince of Condetook the Field, as did also the King's Army.

The Duke of Beautia our King's Coulin died at Manich, his eldest son succeeded him?

Peace was concluded betwirk the Duke of Neuburg and Elector of Brandenburg, and in the midst of the publick Joy for the same died the Duke. The Emperor summoned the Diet to meet at Ratisbon, upon the 16th of May Cardinal Mazarin returning into France, the Treaty of Peace then on Foot wasbroke off, and the Prince of Conde's Forces daily increased. The City of London was exceedingly alarmed with the King's March out of Scotland, but Cromwel having defeated his Forces at Woresfer, returned victorious, and then marched to Scotland, where all Places submitted to him. This same Year, Cossimir King of Poland, gave the Tartars a very fignal Overthrow.

Anno 1652.

The Glory of his Catholick Majestie's Arms was much increased, by the recovery of all the Principality of Catalonia. Barcelona its Metropolis being reflored to his Obedience, as shall foon appear, D. John of Austria, the Marquels of Mortara, and the Constable of Castile, General of the Horle, having fignalized their admirable Conduct in all this Siege, which the' it enclosed a vast Tract of Ground, was managed only by 8000 Men. But let us first fay somewhat of the 3 General Chapters of the military Orders, Affembled by his Majeftie's special Command. Two Months before the time prefixed for the meeting, the King fent out his Summons to all the Commendaries, Knights, Superioris, and Clergy of those Orders to meet.

Those of the Order of Samingo on the first Day of July 1672, and those of Calatrava and Alcastara upon the roth of the Iame Month.

On the Day appointed, all the Members of the Order. der of Santiago received the Blelled Sacrament in the Church of S. Histone. His Majelty as perpetual Administrator for the Order, was seated on a Chair placed before the Altar, where a Pontifical Mass had been sung by the Prior of Ucles, the Chapter being kept within his Juris diction. The Knights and Friars were placed in Order according to their Senjority, the Knights with their white Cloaks, and the Clergy in their Surplices. On the King's right hand was the Prior of Ucles, and the chief Commendaries of his Precinct. The Vicar of Merida who is Porter to the Order, was ordered to shut out all secular Persons, and admit none without his Majellie's special Command. The Vicar of Tudia who is Secretary, was appointed to Register all that was done. Then by direction of the Prior of Ucles, one of the Friars with a loud Voice, read the Rules of the Order, and in his Majestie's Name the Chapter was told, that all that had been read, was, what they were bound to observe, for the Honour of Gods and the glorious Apolitie S. James, and what had been in former Chapters established, by the Kings Ferdinand, Charles, Philip the 2d and Philip the 3d, as perpetual Administrators of the Order. To which in the Name of the whole Chapter, they all standing up uncovered, the Prior of Ueles answered. He kissed his Majestie's hands, and humbly requested of him, to take into his Royal Care, the Preservation and Increase of that Holy Order, so advantageous to all Christendom, and always to Loyal to the Kings of Castile. Some Vacancies were there filled up, and the Angustin Monastery called of the Lady Mary of Aragon, was appointed for the Chapter to be continued in. With much the like Ceremony on the 10th of the Month, began the Chapter of the two Military Orders of Calutrava and Alcantara, the former being up on the right hand of the King, and the latter upon the left. The Convent of Beneditines cal-led S Martin was appointed for that of Calatrava to continue their Sefficns, and that of S. Bernard for the Knights of Aleantars. The particular Decrees of each Order made in those Chapters, are to be feen in Print, particularly those of Calatrava, published by D. Hierome de Masters, are to be feen in Print, particularly those of Calatrava, careñas Knights of that Order.

His Maiesty desirousto divert the Queen with some extraordinary Sights, brought to Court the Dedalus of our Times, who surpasses even him of Crete; this was a Florentine Gentleman well known in Germany and Italy, whose Name was Vaggio. The Theater of the Pallace at Buen Resirowas by him prepared, and there the most ingenious part of Ovid's Metamorphesis repreferred. Fortune appeared upon her Wheel breaking from amidd the Clouds, and charming the Auditory with her Lute and fweet Voice. The Heavens and Earth opened, and ming the Auditory with the Terreftrial Godsrifing out of the Bowels of the Earth. The Son of the most beautiful Goddels, appeared croffing the Ocean in a gilded Boat, surprizing their Majesties with his melodious Harmony. There were seen the samous Gardens of the Goddesand Queen of Cyprus, the noise Workmen of the God Vulcan, wonderful Shipurceks and terrible Storms of Thunder and Lightning. The 2d Day the Councils were admitted to this Entertainment, the 3d the Town of Madrid, and the 4th the rest of the Court, Multitudesflocking from all Parts of the Kingdom, to share in this Princely Magnificence.

The Count de Monterrey, considering the Destruction made by the Plague in Malaga, Sevil, Feat of S. Valencia, and Barcelona, and that now it began to spread in the Islands of Majorca, Minorca, "Valencia, and Barcelona, and that now it began to ipread in the illands of Majorca, Minora, and Sardinia, to prevent its further Progreß, thought good to have Recourfe to the Devotion-of the Bleffed S. Rofalia, who from her tender. Years, led the Life of an Anchorit on Mount Perelpino, mear Paleron. This baint by her Interceffion, has feveral times-delivered France, Italy, and the Empire from that Eyil, and was therefore by Pope Urban the 8th, declared the Deliverer of Sicily from the Plague." The very Moori fearful of her Power, never fail that way, but they leave fome Almis to her Chappel. The Count and fighreme Council of Italy, celebrated the Feat of this Saint in September at the Royal Monaftery of Nuns, called of the Angels, of the Order of S. Francis. The Service of the Church was performed with Mufick and great Popper, the Night being turned into Day with Illuminations and artificial Fire works. Pomp, the Night being turned into Day, with Illuminations and artificial Fire-works.

Pomp, the Night using turned into Day, with imminations and artificial frie-works. At length, Barcelona after a tedious Siege, was again reflored to his Majelfy on the 17th of Odiober, to the great Honour of the Generals commanding there, and universal Joy of the Inhabitants. Upon this News, his Majelfy went a horseback to the Church of Acoeba, the Streets were hung with rich Tapility, for three Nights the Town was enlightened with Illustreets were hung with rich Tapility, for three Nights the Town was enlightened with Illustreets. minations and Bonfires, and a Bull Feast was kept in the great Market-place. Barcelone fent a minatons and no make its submiffion to the Kingy between the submiffied the Recovered had been an Amballador from the most potent Monarch. After the King he visited the Queen and Princesses. He was nobly entertained, all things were adjusted and restored to the same

Posture they were in, before the Revolt of that City.

On the 3d of October happened a notable Fight, betwixt the Spanish and Pertuguer Horse. On the 30 of these nappeted a nongot 15th of the Alberta, the Night before it for our, a Party of 20 Horfe was feft to dicover the Convoy, which being upon the Point to march, the Lieutenant who Commanded the Party, gave Intelligence, that he had foy'd 5 squadrons marching towards the Field of Canes to lie in wait for the Convoy. The Troops of Talayera were ordered to join those before destined for the Convoy. Our General of Horse was defirous to meet the Enemy, and used his endeavours to that Purpole. The Scouts affirmed, the Enemies Squadrons marched towards the Watch-Tower of S. Fafar along the fide of the Enemies Squadrons marched towards the Watch-Lower of S. Japan along the inde of Conchuela. Our Men marched directly towards them, and understanding they retired to the Ford of Sanchs Brava, made halte to overtake them, and found the Enemy had joined the felt of their Hork. Our Troops drew up, those of Talavara were not yet come, but marched with all possible Speed. The Fight began, the Enemy who understood whad more Troops at hand, laying hold of the present Advantage, with 7 Squadrons Charged our Vanguard, which consisted of four. Our Men received them with fach Resolution, that they drove them back upon their main Body, and then confidering the Force they had to deal with, halted. The main Body of the Portuguafes, was advancing as the Troops of Talavera came in, but had not yet time to join our Battel. Our General ordered his Troops to fland their Ground, and receive the Enemies Charge. Both Vanguards charged, and fought fometime Sword in hand, without giving Ground, till at length the Enemies Rear began to file off. Ours did the like, and having made up their Squadrons, advanced towards the Enemy, who retired precipitant-

The Cortes of Maditid to express their Zeal to the Queen of Angels, sent P. Gonçalo de Castilla a Jesuit, Ambassador to Rôme, so obtain of the Popts that the Immaculate Conception might be made a matter of Faith, but he died at Rôme before any thing was done in that Affair.

The Billop of Valencia was appointed to succeed him. The Military Orders, of Santiago, Galatrows, and Alécutara, signalized their Devotion in this particular. On the 15th of December, the Order of Culturara keen this Solemnice. Sand continued it is Dave, the Members swasting the Order of Cilarava kept this Solemnity, and continued it 9 Days, the Members swearing to defend and maintain the immaculate Conception. The same was afterwards done by the two other Military Orders of Santiago and Alcantara. The Council of Madrid followed the Example of the Military Orders.

Example of the value of Milan Veneza.

The Marquels de Caracena of whom the Italians confels, that no Governour of Milan ever performed fo much with fo finall Forces, having received Orders from his Majefty to polleds himself of Trim, a molt important Place and then ill provided, overcoming all Difficulties, as nimient of 17th, a mort important reace and short in products, overcoming an immediate, as well of want of Men to trake, as Means to preferve that Place, with the greatest Secrecy imaginable resolved to attack that Place. He sent the Marquest Serra Major General from Milan on the 3d of May, and on the 4th, he secured all the Avenues to that Place. The Marques having given the necessary Orders to D. John Vazquez Coronado, Governour of the Castle of Milan for remounting the Cavalty, raifing the Militia, and for following him with the Grana Troops that then were coming into the Dukedom, went away himself to the Siege. 400 of the Enemies Foot were fent by the River Po to get into the Place, and landed not far from of the Enemies Foot were lent by the River at to get into the Flace, and landed nor lar from it in a Wood, whereof the Governoor of Milan having Intelligence, he fent the Marquess Serra to cut them off, but they retired in time to Creeentin, leaving their Boats, which were taken by our Men. The Marques de Viller gathered 1500 Foot, and 150 Horle, thinking to break through the Marques of Caragena's Quarters, and make his way into the Town, but was most vigorously repulled. Within 10 Days the Bulwarks were undermined, and so the Place surrendred the 30th of May. 500 Soldiers marched out of it, besides some sick. At this Siege the Marquels of Caracena gained the Reputation of a most expert General, in all forts of Martial Discipline and Knowledge.

Discipline and Knowledge.

The Marques encouraged by this Succes, resolved to attempt Cazal. This is a Place in Ital. Cazal the feleemed impregnable, and much coveted by all the neighbouring Princes. Its Cittade kar, was built by the Duke of Mantua, having obtained leave of King Philip the 2d, all Men believing it was rather raised for the Service of Spain, than of its own Prince. But time altering Mens Affections, the Owners searful of the Power of Spain, called in the French to defend it. About the middle of September the Marques set out to besiege this Place, and coming to Moncalvo firsteched out his Army to the Territory of Val de Grani for want of Forage. Then having the Best and the Spainards the Marques de Bargamentairs. Resimpers calvo fretched out his Army to the Territory of Val de Grani for want of Forage. Then having laid a Bridge over the Po, paffed over the Spaniards, the Marquefs de Borgameniro's Regiment of Germans, and that of Collone Beitin, because the Piemontese had drawn 400 Men out of Jadi, and led them by the way of Clavasso, 1300 remaining fill at Jadi; but they marched off by degrees, and hoped for some Succour from Veretii. The Piemonteses were much more concerned at some Passages betwire the Dukes of Savvy and Mantua, and to see the Spaniards for tife Rossman, Pontessura, and S. George near Cazal. The Marquefs quartered the Body of his Army near Moncasso, blocking up Cazal. The French thought to have put 400 Men into the Town, but the Marquefs of Savr Son to the Marquefs de son Balbasso, and General of the Men at Arms prevented them. Scowting all the Country 14 miles about, for the since of Men at Arms prevented them, fcowring all the Country 14 miles about, for the space of 8 days. Then the Marquess of Caragena drew near to attack the Place, and great Stores of Provisions and Ammunition were making at Milan. To hinder the French putting any Relief into the Town, the Marques possessed himself of the Hill, placing there 4 Regiments of Foot, the Horfe of Naples, that of the Commillary General Moron, and his own Troops of Guards. The Malques of Senso lay at Pianura with 4 Regiments of Foot, the Milanese and German Horse and some other Troops. On the other side the Po, was a Regiment of German Horse, and one of Foot. Besides these, our Governour drew our Forces out of Milan, and 5 Companies out of Alexandria to strengthen his Army, and gathered a great number of Pioniers to fecure all the Posts. Upon the 24th of September he invested the Place, posted himself, raised fecure all the Polts. Upon the 24th of September he inveited the Place, posted himself, raised his Batteries, and in 14 days began to undermine, which succeeding, overthrew two Towers of the Cittadel. Our Men gave the Assault, and carried icon with such Bravery, that they enter'd the Place before thought impregnable. The French retired to the City, and our Governour using his Victory with Moderation, gave them the usual honourable Conditions. Soo Men besides the sick, and those that guarded the Baggage, marched our with 2 Pieces of Cannon, and were conducted to Berna, A thousand Men were left in Garrison in the Place. The Duke of Manua who during the Siege lay at Mian, set our thence for Cazal, and was received with much Pomp and Applause into that City. The Duke being in the City, our Governour went to visit him. and sound such Entertainment, as became the Restorer of that City to its rightful Owner, the Cannon of the City and Army fining. Next day the Duke rety to its rightful Owner, the Cannon of the City and Army firing. Next day the Duke repayed the Vifit, and the Marqueß marched with his Army from Cazal, towards Valencia de Po, thence to Pavia, and lastly to Milan; where his Reception was in the manner of the Roman Triumphs.

Triumphs. Sea fide, to cover the Country from paying Contributions to the Enemy. The Duke of Orlean layed Siege to this Place tipon the 19th of May 1644, and took it the 28th of the Month following. D. Ferdinand de Solu Governour of this Place, performed the Duty of a brave Commander, keeping the Enemy 29 Days from the Ditch of the Counterfearp, then maintaining the Baltion, 20 Days, and at last marched out with all the Marks of Honour. From hence the French at their Pleasure insested all Flanders, and added many new Works to the old, Leopold the Archduke, and the Earl of Fuenfaldana, thought good to lay hold of the Opportunity now offered, the Count de Grave Governour of the place being absent. Having caused the Outworks to he viewed, and got an account of the Provisions and Ammunition that were in the Place, they resolved to beliege it notwithstanding many Difficulties that appeared, and particularly the want of Forage for their Horse. It was also very hard to prevent Succours particularly the want of Forage for their force. It was any very hard to present successive coming from Calais. On the 11th of April the Army began to march towards the Town, under the Command of D. Ferdinand de Solis, Governour of Winocks Reg, with Orders to post himself as near as might be. Count Fieenfaldana joined the Manquels Syrondare and the Prince of Ligni, and the Archduke marched and took his Quarters at Baurburg, the Army from all Parts repairing to the Siege. The Enemy was furprized and without hopes of Relief. However 400 Men from Bologn and Calair attempted to get in, but were fo received, that only 50 compafied it. On the other fide 300 from Dankirk tryed their Fortune, and 200 of them made their way to the Place. Our Attacks were carried on in four places, and the Enemy being ill provided, and despairing of Relief, surrendred on the 17th of April, and marched or the roth, being Whitfunday, with the usual honourable Formalities.

Presently after followed the taking of Dunkirk. In order to it, the Count de Fuensaldaña was commanded to provide all Necessaries, which he performed with great Diligence. On the 25th of Angust the Count fet out from Brussels, and came to Berg S. Wineck on the 1st of September. There the Prince de Ligni joined him, and having taken his Post, they raised two Batteries, one on the side of Fort Lion, which was committed to Major General Battasar Mereader, and the other on the Downs, where the Prince of Ligni's Quarters were, under the care of D. Ferdinand de Solis. Both Batteries looked towards those of the Enemy, at the Gate towards the Canal, which were to hinder the Approach of our Vessels, and cover their own. We foon difmounted all their Cannon, and drove those that guarded them from the Port. The next Night three Attacks were carried on with the Lofs of only 12 of our Men. Major General Charles Caupi was wounded in the Leg, and the Count Moteria in the Shoulder. The Works were carried on, and other Batteries railed, then his Highnes came into the Trenches, and was present at the taking of some of the Outworks. Advice was brought, that several Vessels were fitting at Calais, to put Relief into the Place; but Care being taken to obstruct them, they appeared not. Our Attacks being carried on, and the Lines of Communication between them perfected, our Men todged themselves at the Foot of the Pallisadoes. D. Baltasar Mercader gained a Post, and made a Lodgment which secured our passage to the Canal. On the 10th of September, a Deferter from the Town reported, the Governour was wounded in the Belly with a Cannon Ball, the Town Major lay fick, the King's Lieutenant was dead, the Town fickly, and the Soldiers mutinous. The same Day the besieged heing hard pressed, beat a Parley and capitulated. At the same time, the Duke of Mercaur having gathered 18 Sail of Men of War, and 4 Fireships in Britany, with 3000 Land men in them, for the Relief of Dunkirk, was coming into the Downs, where Admiral Blake lay with 20 Sail, resolved to hinder his passage. The Archduke commanded our Fleet to fet fail, and oppose the Approach of the Enemy. The French behaved themselves with much Bravery, but were utterly deleated, 4 of their Ships taken by the Spaniards, and 10 by the English. The befreged after this Loss, having no hopes less, performed the Articles before agreed upon, and on the 16th of September marched out, being 2000 Strong; and were conducted with their Baggage to Calais. Two days were allowed for their March, and 150 Waggons to carry their Baggage.

In France this Year happened a great Battel, betwixt the Prince of Conde who was in open

Turenne O Rebellion, and the King's Forces, commanded by the Mareschals de Turenne and Hocquincour, by Cande. wherein the latter were overthrown; with the lofs of 3500 Men, they both narrowly escaping. About the end of this Year, the Earl of Fuenfaldana General in Flanders, the Duke of Lorrain and Prince of Conde, had a Conference in which they agreed how to Act; the Earl leaving with the Prince the most of his Troops, and some Germans with store of Ammunition, and Directions for taking of Winter Quarters. The Prince thus reinforced, took Rhetel, S. Menebou, Barleduc, and Ligni, and other Places, whilst the Earl dismantled others; which hindred his Communication with Estaign and Moussian, into which the Prince put Garrisons. Thus having ranged in France from the 20th of Obtober till the last of November, the Troops of Flanders began to march into the Country of Luxemburg. Cardinal Mazarine was at Sedan, and hearing that the Forces of Spain were withdrawn, fent the Marefelal Turenne to recover the Places that had been loft He marched directly towards the Prince, who having put firong Garrisons into the Towns, advanced with the Horse to meet him. The Mareschal retired, the Prince ftill purling him close in the Rear. Turenne thought to have made good an advantageous Post, but Conde still pressing, he was forced to quit it, with the loss of all his Cannon and Baggage.

In Italy, Pope Innocent the X. having caused an exact List, of all the Monasteries in Italy and the adjacent Islands, with their Revenues to be taken, he suppressed many of all Orders, converting the Revenues of them to other Pious Uses. Over the City of Naples appeared a tiery Comet, in the shape of a large Beam: Mount Vesuvius also cast out mighty Flames.

The English and Dutch disputing about the Sovereignty of the Seas, fought a bloody Battel which lasted all Day, and the Victory being dubious, both sides made publick demonstrations of Joy. King Casimir of Polaind was overthrown by the Tartars and Cassacks, with the loss of 12000 Men, and all his Baggage and Cannon. The Elector of Bavaria married the Daughter of the Duke of Savoy. The Galleys of Malia being joined with the Venetians, purfied the Turkish Fleet, which escaped them, yet at two several times they took 4 Ships, which they sent to the Great Matter.

The Duke of Albaquerque, for his good Service at the Siege of Barcelona, was appointed Viceroy of Mexico, with the Reversion of the Viceroyship, of Peru, still recaining the Post of General of the Galleys of Spain, to between the bis Mother D. Gastar the la Cueva, and to his Mother was given a Pension of 4000 Ducasts. The Marques Framis Fores, who had been Major General at Milan, was constituted General of Catalonia, but subordinate to D. John of

As they began to pals, a Country-man brought word that the Enemy marched towards Anon, and immediately appeared a Company sent to discover, retring before a Body of the French, after which followed their whole Army, with a Resolution to attack the Marques! He considering that so many were passed that he could not avoid sighting, has the discovery the same that were behind, and posted himself in a place where the River sections a compass in form of the Letter C. In the narrow of it he drew up his Merial Country and the same of the placing 3 Regiments on a rifing Ground on the Left, and as many on the Right, which be cause it was not so advantageous a Post as the other, he fortified the best the time would permit. It being impossible by reason of the River to attack him any way but in the Front, he drew up the Foot before the Horse: This done, he advanced himself to view the Enemy, whom he discovered ranging his Battel about a Cannon-shot from him; and leaving two Companies to advertise him of their Motion, he returned to the Army. He was scarce come to is, when he perceived the two Companies retire, the Enemy advancing with all fpeed to attack him. Three Charges the Enemy gave upon the Right and Left Wing, but the fierest on the Right, as being the weakest; but our Foot behaved themselves with such Bravery, that Grance was forced to retire, having about 600 Men killed or wounded, besides the Priloners taken. Next day the Enemy marched away towards Monferrar, the Marquefs, the' inferior to him in number, keeping close after him. Several days passed in this manner, and the Marto him in number, according to the many parties in the rich Country up the Upper Not war-ques perceiving Grance's Delign was to get Quarters in the rich Country up the Upper Not war-vars, he prevented him only by two hours. The Floods now rifing, gave them a good Pretence to retire out of the Country, and were a convenient Excuse for us to suffer them so to do without molestation.

The Duke of Lorrain who being outed his Dominions by the French, had retired to Flanders Duke of and ferved there with great Reputation, was of late grown very flack in the Service, and no Larrain less burdensome to the Country, of his Friends, than that of his Enemy. For this reason hended it was thought fit to remove him from his Command; yet so as it might feem done rather it was thought in to remove min north in Sommand, yet to as a might come none rather to honour than offend him. The Count de Garees was appropried to manage this Affair with the Duke, and performed it with fingular dexterity, conducting him first to Answerp, and thence sending him to Spain, where he was Received and Entertained in the Castle of Toledo with all Princely Grandeur and Magnificence. This most fleendid Entertrainment was the cause that many could not see into the true cause of his Removal; but the sharpest fighted believed he held correspondence with France, in order to be restored to his Dominions.

The Duke of Guife who(as was faid in the year 1650 more at large) was Prisoner in Spain Duke of on account of the Troubles by him raised at Naples, having at length in Compliance to many Guife see Princes who made Suit for his Liberty, been Enlarged, taking a Jolemn Oath never to hear at therry. Arms against Spain, returned to France. There, after kiffing the Kings Hand, he asked leave (without regard to his Oath) to fit out a Fleet upon his own proper Cost, and Charges to be a Terror to all the Dominions of the Spaniard in Italy. The King easily granted his Required and promifed to affilt him with some of his Men of War. He went away to Mansieller, and there gave Orders for the fitting out of this Squalfron at Taulon, whis was performed with fich Expedition; that by the middle of October it was in a Readinols to fail. It conflided of 23 great Ships, 6 Galleys and other finall Vessels well Manned, and stored with all Necessaries; the Solls, Solliely and other mail veiets well Manned, and Hored with all Necetlaties; the Duke limitelf Commanding in Person. About the beginning of November the Fleet holiad Sall, and caime in fight of Sardinia, but was by the Weather drove to Cape Pole, in the Illand of Corpica. The Earl of Lemoi gave notice of it to the Victory of Naples: The Weather clearing up, the Duke of Guile feotice all the Coalt of Naples; till the Wind again carried him to Sielly, to the Illand-Rabiana near Trepano, where he took 200 Head of great Cattle, 1000 of finall, 1000 Barrels of Tunny Filh; and all the filhing Tackle. Hereupon the Duke del Infanted Victory of Siels Gilling Colours has help for the Cally and the Trepanol of Cally Carrels of the Tunny Filh; and all the filhing Tackle. Hereupon the Duke del Infantado Viceroy of Sicily failing close under the shore, in a Gally, got into Trepano to encourage the People. The Enemy by firefs of Weather was drove to the Channel of Manala, whence they were forced by the Cannon of that Place, and entred the Gulph of Venice, and came before Cafelamata. The Viceroy of Naples understanding that the French were plying upon the Coast so that no Body could judge of their Design, sent some Forces with Dying spon are control in the Carnot to Bais and Pascol to facure those Places. At the fanc timelie feat out 14 Gallege to observe the Enemy, but a fidden Storm arting, forced them back rice without great Danger of being cast away. Two Expresses came to the Viceroy, one from Lieutenant General Amadet; to acquaint him he had been fummoned by a Trumpet from the Duke of Guije, and had answered, he would defend that Place to the last. The other brought the fame News from the Earl of Chelano. Tho, it was thought unlikely that the linemy would attempt any thing against Cafelanar; both because it was an open Town, not fit for them to keep, as also for that there were then in it 800 Foot and two Troops of Horfe, belides a great number of Gentlemen and other People fit to bear Arms, yet the Viceroy fent thinter 4 Troops of Horfe, 170 Spanish Foot, and near 50 reformed Officers, a good Quantity of Ammunition and 2 Pieces of Cannon: Besides he sent a Gally with supplies thither by Saif and ordered General Francipant then at Salismo to march with all Expedition to Castelamar. But scarce had the Duke of Guife received the Answer Lent. him. by the Lieutenant General Amades, which he landed his Men, which done, the began from from the Fleet furionfly to Catrinonade the Town, those that were landed at the same time affaulting it in three Places. It was Night, and the Poot of the Regiment of Calabria perceiving a great number of French come down the Mountain, fled: the Governor thus forceiving a great number of vernor come down the Mountain, near the Governor thus for-faken, Capitulated. The Troops fent by the Viceroy came after the Surrender, and the Gally could not get in, the Place being furrounded by the Enemies Fleet. Having taken the Town, the French plundered it, shipping all the Booty, which the Duke of Guife afterwards excused, saying, It was done without his Orders. The Viceroy not knowing the Place was taken, had ordered General Charles de la Gota to march thither with all the Force he could from Seffa. As foon as the News of the Surrender was brought, the Nobillity and Commonalty of Naples offered the Viceroy to serve his Majelly with their Lives; so that a good Army was formed of only private Persons. The Duke of Guise landing with 1500 a good Anny was not by 500 Spanifi Foot, and 4 Troops of Horfe, who obliged him to retire with some lofs. He cut over another way towards the Tower of Ammeiada, and meeting there with another Party, was in like manner repulsed, and forced to fly. Another party of French was routed upon the Mountain at Gragnano: All the reft of the Forces drew of Ago of them delivered themselves up to General Charles de Gata, and declared that 1500 had been killed. The Night of the 21th, the Fleet was in a great Storm, which drove a Ship been killed. their Cells in the Conclave. That afternoon, before the Colledge was flux up, it was vilited by the Anballadors of foreign Princes, Bartons of Romes and a great number of Prelates.

On the 20th of January, the Colledge was flux up. After much Contention and making of Interests, on the 7th of April Cardinals Guife was chosen Pope, and called himself Alexander the 7th. Immiediately all the Cardinals made their Obelfance to him in the Champal of the the 7th. Immediately all the Cardinals made their Obeilance to him in the Chappel of the Colledge, the fame they did again in the Chappel of Sixtus, and the third time in that of S. Peter, the new Pope fitting on the left fide of the Altar, whereas others had used to fit in the

D. John of Austria having received Orders from his Majesty to go Post to Flanders, with all D John of possible speed sailed from Barcelona on the 4th of March, with only 2 Galleys and 9 of his Ser Justicia vants. Near Majorea they discovered 3 Sail, which proved to be Turks, by whom they were fent for 6 closely pursued, that they poured several Volleys of small Shot into them, killing the Mar-Raudett. quels Serra, and some other Persons of Note. At last a Storm arising in the Night, parted them, and the Galleys drove almost to the Coast of Barbary. On the 13th, they returned to the Coast of Genoa, and D. John taking Post-horses rid away to Milan. Thence through Vethe Coalt of verms, and D. John taning For horizonts in away to much. In ence through Venice and Trent, he paffed to Infpruch, and croffing Germany, came the first Day of May to Collem. Here the Prince de Isinguien Governour of Guilders, the next Province of his Catholick Majesties Dominions, expected him by Order of the Count de Fuensaldana, with 800 Horse to are jettes Dominions, expected min by Order of the Count as energinanta, with odd from the datend him, half of them belonging to his Majefty, and the other half to the Prince of Conde.

The Count de Fuenfaldana met D. John at Rusemend, with most of the Officers of the Army, and near Lovain the Prince of Conde.

On the 11th of May, D. John atted Bruffeld, the Burgermafters at the Gates presenting him the Keys; an the 12th, he was Complimented by all the Courts of Juffice.

About the middle of June, D. John set out of Brussels to relieve Valenciennes, and with him Descatos the Prince of Conde and Marquess of Caragena. The French had already gained the Ditch of the Fronth the Town, and a Half Moon, and lay so securely intrenched, that it seemed not practicable at Valenthe lown, and the great Confequence of lofing it, tiennet, caused all Difficulties to be little regarded. On the 16th of July, the Attack was given with Callier an Difficulties to be fixed regarded. Of the forthor 1995, the Attack was given with fixeh Success, that we forced the Line, making a great Slaughter of the Enemy, taking their Baggage, feveral Colours, and many Prifoners of Note, a Lift whereof was fent to Court. 500 of the Enemy were killed, and above 800 wounded. The Marefchal de Turenne with the Forces that lay on the other fide, and had not fuffered, retired to an advantageous Post near Quenoy, whether the dispersed Troops assembled to him, our Army encamping close by, ex-Queny, whether the dispersed 1 roops altermited to him, our Army encamping clote by, expecting he flouid decamp, as needs he mult very foon for want of Forage, when John hoped to obtain yet a greater Advantage, than he had done at Valenciemus. D. Alonfo de Cardena, who had been 16 Years in England, with the Character of Ambassidator, was now at Brussilia, and by his Care and Industry, the Army was supplied with Money and other Neccessia to take the Field, and substituting there; for which D. John of Austria and the Marquels of Cardena and the Marquels of C rena returned him due thanks. To Diem was ling at Madrid, for the relieving of Valanciemes one of the Confequences whereof, was the furrender of Conde, a Place of it fell ftrong, and more by a Garrison of 4000 Men, that marched out of it, without the loss of a Man on out fide. About the same time, certain Troops of ours, deseated 5 Squadrons of the Enemies

Hore, and in another place, a Regiment of Lerrainers.

The Marefehal Twenne retired under the Cannon of Arras, fearce thinking himfelf fecure there, his Army which confifted of 30000 Men at the beginning of the Siege of Valenciennes, being reduced to only 4000 Foot besides the Horse. Our Army was at Cambray threatning to enter France, that way to draw away Turenne, but things fell not out as was expected. Turenne with 4000 Horse and some Foot, drawn out of Garrisons, marched towards S. Venant, thinking to surprize that Place. The Governour having timely notice, had drawn together 1000 Men from other Garrisons for his Security, so that Turenne having given four Affaults, in which he lost 700 Men, and had above 1000 wounded, returned to Arras, leaving two Pieces of Cannon behind him. This is what Turenne did after his Retreat from Valenciennes. The News of the Surrender of Conde, was joyfally received at Court, it was delivered upon the 18th of August. To the Intent the Garrison which was above 4000 strong, might not inport mereme; according to Articles, they were conducted 100 Leagues about. D. John of Ametime the Enemy fate down before la Chapelle. It was thought fit to attempt the Relief of it, and by that means, the one was loft, and the other not taken. Our Army being put into Winter Quarters, the Province of Flanders confented to the raifing of 2400000 Florins for the Support of it that Winter.

To begin the Campaign on the 12th of March, the Marquels of Caragena marched towards S. Gillain, and on the 14th, D. John of Austria and the Prince of Conde followed him, the Ar. D. John my being there before according to Order. The Defign was to prevent the Succours the Enc. takes S. my defigned to put into that Place, or if that failed, to carry it by main Force; Provisions were fearce within, and there was no likelihood of its being relieved for want of Forage. On the 17th the Redoubts and a Horn-Work which covered the Sluces were attacked, the Inhabitants having already drowned rhe Country about, fo that there was no approaching, but along a narrow Dike; however in a little time, our Men made themselves Masters of all those Posts. The 21th at Night we gained the Pallifadoes, our Men attacking with the Water up to their Breafts. The 22d, the Garrison capitulated, and on the 23d, his Majestie's Forces took Posfellion of the Town, having lain but 7 Days before it.

The ill Success of the French Forces, moved them to join with the English, who fent con-Fronth and fiderable Troops to their Service, and the most Christian King went as far as Abeville to view them. Tureme at the fame time making Show, as if he intended to march that way. In his Army were 1800 Foot, and 8000 Horfe, with which on a fudden, he turned and marched Fifteen Leagues to Cambray, without halting more than an hour or two to refresh his Men. At Four of the Clock in the Morning on the 20th Day of May, his Horse In-Act rour of the Cook in the Anthropy of the System of the Place, and at Eleven, the Foot took their Pofts before it, pulling on the Works with great Vigour. That fame Day the News was carried to Bruffels. The Place was ill prowith great vigour. That talle Day the Videnty Garifon; and it being very difficult to affemble or wided, having in it only the ordinary Garifon; and it being very difficult to affemble or kind of the prince of Conde who had before receiv'd Orders to go to Valenciennes, whence he might cover Cambray, Bouchain. nao Denore I come to Grouns to go to removement, whether to linguistic terminal powers, and Downy, an Expres coming to him now, from D. John, and another from the Governour of Cambray, immediately marched to Bunchain. Herehaving ordered the Men and Hornous Cambray. nour of Cambray, miniculately material to Dandsman. It was agreed on all hands, that if 1000 Horle were ent to Cambray, 300 could not get in, which would be of no Moment; the Prince of Conde refolved at all hazards himfelt to attempt the Relief. At 100 klight he fee out from Bouchain, and at 12 came to the Line which had been halfilly thrown up. Here he drew up his Men, and ordering the Governour of Bouchain to make a falle Attack at reere he drew up his inten, and ordering the Governous of Boulding of Unace a faile Artack at a Place far diffant, and upon Pain of Death, forbidding any Man to fire Piffol, or take Prifoner, at one of the Clock he affaulted the Marefchal de Turenne's Quarters, and by two, was in the Town with 4000 Horfe, whence he fent to acquaint D. John with his Success. Had this Relief been delayed but 24 hours, it had been difficult to effect it without a great Army, and at that time there were but 500 Men in the Place, which requires 4000 to make a Defence. The Enemy immediately drew off, and encamped a League and a half off, between Cambray and Chaftelet. Next Day D. John went to Mom in order to meet the Prince of Conde, and confult about the further Operations of the Campagne.

The French having quitted their Defign upon Cambray, marched and layd Siege to Montminin the Province of Luxumbirg, a Place with much Difficulty to be fuccoured by us, because ay in the Province of Laxemourg, a riace with much Difficulty to be fuccoured by us, becaule furrended being furplied from Laremour, and want of Forage, and where they might eafly fubfilt, furrended being furplied from Laremo. On the 10th of June, the Marelchal de la Ferte invelted this Place, which was bravely maintained by the Garrison, confifting of 700 Men, without losing a foot of Ground till the 3d of July. Relief was defigued, but failed, and the Place was at

In February this Year; the most Christian King, voluntarily caused the Cittadel of Turin, to be delivered up to the Dutches of Savoy. Soon after the Differences betwike the Catholick King and Duke of Manusa, being reconciled by the Emperor Feedinand the 3d, upon Condition the Duke should admit a Garison of German into Casal, to be paid by the King of Spain; the King of France grew so jealous, that this might be destructive to his Designs upon Italy, that he again attempted to recover the Cittadel of Turin, he had so generously delivered. This Design was managed in the Night; by way of Escalae; but so unfortunately, that the French were sorced to dessit, after losing 800 Men.

They entred the State of Milan all together, to the number of $1000 Horse, and 7000 Foot, with all Necessaries to besiege Alexandria la Palla. Upon the 17th of July they la down before the Town, drew their Lines and began their Attacks. D. James de Rahanal, was Governour of the Town, who behaved himfelf with much Bravery, making several Sallies, in which he killed some number of the Enemy, and ruined part of their Works. The Count de Fuenfaldaña then Governour of Milan, marched with his Army to the Relief of Alexandria. At the same time the Governour of the Town, and the Forces without, attacked the Enemy with fingular Resolution, but the Enemies Horse coming down, obliged the Count to retire. The Count intrenched, and regularly made his

This was a poor Delence against to conflictable, and Armya. The Dutch had being for two Regimens out of Andalysia, one of Spanisarianal another of Infle, who understanding the danger the place was in, marched 26 Leagues in two days without leaving a Man behind, and The Ditch was narrow, and but a yard deep, and the Palifades were all goge to decay. This was a poor Defence againt, to confiderable an Armya. The Duke had before left for two Regimens out of Andalysis, one of Spaniardiand another of Irife, who understanding the danger the place was in marched 26 Leagues in two days without leaving a Man behind, and on the 2nd of Jans they entred Badejova. The Spaniar Regiment, Commanded by the Marchield of 1700 Soldiens, befides 150 Reformades. The Irife, whereof Six Water Dungas was Colonel, contained 450 Men. This, Succour much encouraged the Dinke's but because the Men. were extreamly harafied with that precipitate march, he caused them immediately 165 go to reft, resolving the Marquest bould the next, day go into the Fort. At midnigh the Anathem and the Perruguest hands in I woo, Regiments were got into the City, and haring made a ufficient Breach, decreed immediately to give the Asiault. Redoubts, came to the place where his Father was almost dead, but not overcome. The Marquess seeing him come to his affiltance, said to him, Charge, and mind mothing else. He the News of the Death of your Officers, for it is Satisfaction enough for me to die with them. the News of the Death of your Officers, for he sometime recogn for the in our with toom. Inside Words fo inflamed the Soldiers, that they charged again with fuch fury, that they put the PortugueGe to flight, killing 600 of them, and purfued them in hopes to gain the Battery. Here Captain Anton Paniagua was again wounded in the left Arm with a Spear, but gave no ground, the loft much Blood. Perceiving the whole Body of the Enemy's Army coming down upon them, the Spaniards retired to make good the Polis they had gained, and the Portugueses enraged to be so worsted by such a small Number, gave three Assaults to the Redouber, and were fill repulfed with great Slaughter. In this Attempt they loft 1800 Men, and the Hopes of taking Badajez, which now began to think it feli fecure. Of the Castilian 150 were killed, and 80 wounded. The Marques lived but 10 hours after he received the Shot, and was Buried with great Honour. His Regiment was given to his Son, who had so bravely Revenged his Death, tho' he was then but Eighteen Years of Age.

This ill Success rather enraged than discouraged the Portuguets; so they continued their Atracks, but to very little purpose: Wherefore after having spent 33 days before the Place, they drew off their Cannon to the Body of the Army. It was thought they would have quitthey arew of their Cannon to the body of the Army. It was thought they would have quitted the Siege j but they leaving a fufficient Force to guard their Line on that field Guadiana, paffed the River, which they ought to have done at first. The Siege of Fort S. Christopher was one of the most remarkable Actions that happed in the 28 Years War between Castile and persugal. Having paffed the River, the Enemy drew a Line 3 Leagues in length, enclosing the City, and worked at it 4 Months, where they confumed above half their Army, confiting, as has been faid, of 16000 Foot, and 2500 Hotfe, at the beginning of the Siege. This Enterprize 6 alarmed the Kingdom, that it obliged the great Favourite D. Lais de Haro to expose himself to the Danger of the War. During the Siege, the Duke of Offina went out to have intercepted a Convoy that was coming to the Enemy's Camp, but being discovered, retired, dividing his Horse into several Squadrons, that they might take fundry Fords. The Portugueses pursued with all their Horse and Foot, and the Duke's Guide having mitled the Ford, he was forced with only 400 Horfe to face the Enemy. In the heat of the Adtion the Horfe funk in a Bog, and altho almost stilled himself in the Mire, he mounted another Horse, and broke the first Battalion of the Portuguiest, receiving two Thrusts, which pierced his Armour and Doublet. One of the Enemy's Soldiers laid hands on him, whom he killed, and feeing himself and all his Horse in danger of being lost, he commanded them to take the River. where 40 of them were drowned. Next night he attacked one of the Enemy's Quarters, killed

200 of them, and brought away 40 Horfes.

On the 22d of July the Enemy attacked Fort S. Michael with 6000 Foot fulfatined by Horfe. The Duke of Olima drew out his Horfe, and was ordered with certain Platons of Musqueteers to charge the Enemy. D. July Pacheco, Lieutenam General of Horfe, led the Van, and fell on; but being over-powered by the Peringus Horic and Foot, was beat back. The Duke came on with his Troops, and repulfed the Enemy, giving time to D. John Paebeo to rally his Men, and charge again, but was fill forced to give way to the Multitude. The Duke being fill at hand in good Order, fuffered not the Enemy to purface our Vanguard. when broken, but advancing took the Ground where the Enemy had stood, which was within Piftol-fhot of the Enemy's Battalions, who fired upon him two hours, killing above 17 of his Squadron, and above 120 of the others, and yet no Man broke his Rank. In this posture he continued exposed to the Enemy's Fire, having his Horse killed under him, till the Fort being taken, he was ordered to retire. This Action latted 5 hours, with confiderable lofs on our fide, and of above 800 of the Enemy, On the 6th of August 1200 of our Horse broke through the Enemy's Line between two Forts, the Duke of Oslana attacking them in the Rear, and the Duke of S. German in the Front, driving them 6 Leagues as far as Albuquerque, where they halted. On the 22d of August the Enemy planted a Battery of 6 Cannon on the Hill called Cerro del Viento, where we had a Half-moon Palifaded with Redoubts and Flankers, which would contain 2000 Foot and 1000 Horse. Upon the 24th they began to play those 6 Pieces, and 2 from Fort S. Michael, and that day threw above 150 Eullets, but with out doing any considerable execution. On the 30th they fired upon Fort S. Christopher, and blew up the Mills; then they cast Bombs into the Quarters of S. Andrew and the Patters. From the roth of Odober the Fury of their Batteries began to flacken. That very day D. Luis de Haro fet forward from Merida with 12000 Foot and 4500 Horfe; which the Pertugues under Badajoe standing, drew off so silently in the Night, that their March could not be discovered, till relieved Morning showed their Army on the other side Guadiana, and they encamped under the Cannon of Campo Mayor on the 14th. The same day D. Luis de Hato entred Badajoz. Our Army palled the River, and followed the Enemy to the River (asp, which divides Coffile and Portugal, and foheld onto Elvas, burning all the Country. The Defence of Badajoz was one of the molt Glorious Actions during the War with Portugal, and in which the Duke of Offina gave most fignal Proofs of his Bravery and Conduct.

The Partugueles hired 6 English Merchant Ships, and fent aboard them to the Jews of Legborn 2200 Chefts of Sugar, much Brazil Wood, Spice and other Goods to the Value of 600000 Ducats.

The Ships were taken by the Algorines, who having lightned them of all the Merchandize, and made Priloners of 140 Partugueles and Italians, diffinified the English with their Veffels, being then at Peace with them, and gave each of the Mafters 25 Chefts of Sugar, to pay their Freight.

The Duke of Offina being come to the Frontiers of Califle, with the Pot of Captain General, encamped beyond the Bridge of Guidad Ravingo with Two Thouland Four Hundred Foot, Four hundred Horfe, and 4 Preces of Cannon. Thence he warched to Gallegos, a strong Gar-Offins his rison of ours, 2 Leagues and a half from Guidad Rodrigo, and so passed on Two Leagues and a half Actions in farther to Valdelamula, the first Town of the Enemy, a Place well fortified, and seated on a rifing Ground. He fent to fummon the Garrison, who returned a resolute Answer. The Dike appointed 4 Captains with each 100 Men, at once to scale the Walls in as many places, Dike appointed 4 Captains with each 100 Men, at once to lease the waits in a sinary places, who advanced courageoully, and thot the Enemy made a hot Fire, breaking down the Pallifadoes, layed their Ladders to the Walls, and mounted, making themselves Masters of the Fort. Many of the Defendants were killed, one Captain, some other Officers, and so Men made Prisoners. The Governour sled casting himself off the Wall, and Night savouring his Escape. Offour Men only 4 were killed, and as many wounded. The same Day, the Duke senta Summons to the Town and Castle of S. Peter, half a League from Valdelannila, and as much from Almeyda, but the Garrison refusing, he marched thither with a Regiment of Foot, and at first fight the Place was surrendred, upon Condition, the Inhabitants might depart with their Goods. Three Watch Towers in fight of Almeydu were taken and burnt, as were the Towns of Juncia and Malpartida. S. Peter's Fort was demolished, being so near Valdelamala. Almofala was also burnt, after the Inhabitants had made some Resistance. Much Corn was found in all these Places, which served the Horse for Forrage, and all the rest was burnt.

D. Roderick de Castro Count of Amezquitela, and General of the Province Traissmontes, was now marching towards these Frontiers, with 5000 Foot, and 6 Troops of Horse. The same did D. John de Melo, Governour of the Province Beira, with other 1000 Foot and some Horle. D. Sancho Manuel was also ordered this way with 3000 Foot, and 1500 Horle. The Duke of Offina finding himself too weak, to oppole fo great a Power, demolthed the Fort of Valdatamila, blew up the Tower, and burnt the Town, there being no possibility of relieving it if besleged. This done, he fortified Galleges, and then marching to Albergaria layed Siege to it. He had but 4 Pieces of Cannon, the 2 biggeft of which burft at the beginning of the Battery; yet he brought the other two nearer to the Wall, and having made a Breach, the Garrison Capitulated, and delivered the Place upon honourable Conditions. Hence he removed, and by Force took Soto and Quadra[a, both which he hurnt, overthrowing all the Works about them. In these three last Towns were taken from the Enemy, above 20000 bushel of Corn, and 30 Horses, and all the Mountain Gata with the Country about, were cleared of Enemies, for Albergaria and those other Towns, kept all that Country in awe, so that there was no Traffick, nor Security in any part.

The publick Joy for the Birth of this Prince, was redoubled with the News brought to Court, that on the 1st of November, was born the Dauphin of France, Grandson to his Catholick Majesty.

At Miloga on the 22d of September. between 7 and 8 in the Morning, all that City and the A terrible Country about, was fodarkened with black Clouds, that every body forelaw some Destruction like to follow. At 9 it began to thunder, lighten and rain, with such violence, that the Gutters could not carry the Water off the Houses, nor the Streets deliver the great Flood. This lasted till Noon, when the Rivulets that fall from the Mountain of Gibraltar swelled so high, that they filled the Houles in those Streets near them; and those Waters meeting with the Flood, isluing from Guadalmedina, which comes from the Hills of Casavermeja and Zambra, broke down the wooden Bridge oppofite to the new Gate, carrying it away, till it fluck a crofs the great Arch of the Stone Bridge, over against the Monaste you S. Dominick. That being a stop to the pasfage of the Waters, they bore down the Bridge with its Towers, and carried all away to the Sea, which at that time ran in Mountains, calling up its broken Waves to the Clouds. The Inundation bore away all the Houses from the Orchards of the 13 Crosses, as far as the Slaugterhouse Gare, fearce leaving any Monuments that there had been Buildings there. It also bore down the Wall at the new Gate, and broke into the City, filling several streets, and finding no way out, Itill role, drowning fome Quarters of the City, and in S. John's Street, came up to the Hoors of the scould Stories. All the Street de los Almhqunes, or of the Storehouses, was drowned, and all the Provisions and Merchandize laid up there were loft. Several Quarters of the City were totally ruined, as were the Monasteries of S. Dominick and S. Francis, being fo shaken, they were rendred uninhabitable. Great numbers of People fled to the tops of their Houses, which falling, they were carried away into the Mediterranean, or buried in the Ruines. Among the other Destruction made by the River Guadalmedina, it was observed, totake one corner House away intire, and carry it so for a great space, till at last it fell in pieces, with the death of 16 Persons that were in it. At 3 in the Asternoon, the Storm ceased, and at 5, the Water was gone out of the Streets, at which time the Bilhop and Governour gave great Alms, among the poor People that were found alive in the ruinated Houses. Above 1600 Houses were utterly destroyed, 3000 so shaken, that they threatned Ruine, above 2000 Per-

The Duke of Ossura being declared General of the Frontiers about Children Rodrigo, was at Duke of Madrid, without any Inclination to return to that Command; but having received repeated of mas as Madrid, without any memanation to that Command; out having received repeated opins a Orders to go to his Poft, obeyed. Immediately upon his arrival there, he appeared before gain in Valdelamnia with 2000 Foot, 800 Horfe, and 8 Pieces of Cannon. That Night he encamped Periogal. Valetammia with 2000 root, door notice, and o rises of cannon. I not aught ne encamped about the Fort, and raifed a Battery, which, he next morning began to play upon the Place. The Governour, who was no great Soldier, at Noon beat the Chamade, and furrendred, having at that time 250 Men, and the Fort in good Condition, with 4 strong Bassions. The having at that time 250 Men, and the rort in good Condition, with 4 ltrong Battions. The Duke finding it not practicable to fortific that place, made choice of a rifing Ground hard by it, on which, with the Advice of Monfieur Leoquet, a Franch Enginier fent him by D. John of AuliFria, he refolved to build a Fort Royal. The Work being drawn out, and fresh Supplies coming in, so that the Duke had 4000 Foot and 1200 Horte, more was done in a Month coming in, so that the Duke had 4000 Foot and 1200 Horse, more was done in a Month than could reasonable have been imagined, all the Officers and the Duke himself being continually prefent, and encouraging the Men. The Periumps searing the raising of the Fort might prove of ill consequence to them, gathered a Body of 1000 Foot and 1500 Horse, resolving by the way to take Albergaria. Their Design being discovered by the Duke, he sent at midnight D. Antony de Ijajke, Lieucenant General of Horse, who put some Companies of Foot and other necessary Supplies into the Town; which being known to the Enemy, they drew back the Troops sent to invest it. Being disappointed of that Enterprize, they advanced towards the Duke, who being sa inferior in Number, thought not fit to expose his Men in open Field, but drew into the Fort, which was now in a good posture of desence. He caused a Tenall, which was some to the Fort by a Covered way. to be finished, and pla-Men in open ricin, but are winto the rort, which was now in a good pointer of defence. He caused a Tenall, which was joined to the Fort by a Covered way, to be sinished, and placed therein 1000 Foot and 200 Horse. The rest of the Foot he drew into the Fort, placing ced therein 1000 root and 200 Horse. In a rest of the root ne grow into the Port, placing the Horse on the Flanks, and expected that Night the Enemy, who lay within Musquershor, should make some attempt. They fitted not, but kept the same Ground two days, the Cannon playing on both sides. The Paringuese having Intelligence that 250 Horse and 300 Flowers on their way to reinsorce the Duke, sent our 1000 Horse to intercept them; but the were on their way to reinforce the Duke, tent our 1000 Horie to intercept them; but the Duke fent them Orders to march another way, and he at the fame time alarming the Enemy's Camp, they came fafe to him. The Duke hearing a Shot from Almeida, guelfed it to be a Camp, they came are to thin. The Done hearing a chot from American guerned it to be a Signal of fome Convoy that was coming to the Enemy, he therefore commanded the Lieuter mant. General of Florie with all the Cavalry and 500 Fire Arms to march out and intercept it. Hant-General or from with an one casalty and you free Athin to thaten out and intercept it. He followed himself, having advanced two Cassitians to discover the Convoy; they met two Battalions of the Enemy, which retired hashily to their Body. The Portugues marched another way than the Duke had thought, who readily formed 6 Squadrons in the Vanguard, and ther way than the Duke had thought, who readily formed 6 Squadrons in the Vanguard, and drew them off to receive them. Our Vanguard charged theirs, which also consisted of 6 great Squadrons, and loto Parties sought with such Courage, that they changed their Ground, our being over-powered by the Multitude. The Duke, who was in the midlt of them, hasted to his that hat the street where his Horse received two Carabine Shots, and ordering them to charge the Pringers in Flank, broke both their Vanguard and main Battel, pursing them to their Foot with great Shughter. They rallied under the covert of their Musqueteers; and that ours might have time to make up the Disorder caused by the Charge, the Duke ordered the Reserve of the old Guards and Companies of D. Ansony Ramirez, and the Coura & Buste to advance. The Enemy retired within their Lines, having lost 700 Horse, and among them many Persons of Note. Their speedy retreat by Night fussiliently testified the loss they had suitained. The great advantage of raising that Fort was, that it covered all our Country, and commanded a great part of the Enemy's above 40 Towns in a rich Soil being threeby brought under Contribution, and the Enemy obliged to maintain great Garisson in Alfayarts. brought under Contribution, and the Enemy obliged to maintain great Garrisons in Alfayares, ollogic unger Continuous, and other Places. War be. Leopold the Emperor on the 5th of January gave Audience to the Ambassador of the Most twist the Christian King to the Diet of Raishon, where his Imperial Majesty then was, and the next Emperor day heard the Pontifical Mass, and performed his Devotions to beg of God the Union of Christian Princes, and Success of their Arms against the Turks. It appeared Almighty God heard his Prayers, for that very Day he obtained a compleat Victory over his Enemies, under nearo ms prayers, for that very Day in obtained a Compact very of the Conduct of the Noble Count Serini, who after a Peace was concluded between the Two Empires, was unfortunately killed by a Boar in Hunting. The Count joining his Forces with Count Hobenice, marched out of Creatia with 12000 Horfe and Foot, and lay close in ambush in the Mountain, for a Convoy of Provisions and Ammunition that was going to Newbausel, guarded by 10000 Time. He fell upon them to fuccelsfully, that he killed 4000, took 2000 Prifoners, and carried away the Convoy to his own Caftle of Serin. Not above 60 Christians were lost in this great Action. He not enduring to be idle, tho' never so short a time, on the 18th of January marched again with 20000 Horse and Foot, passed the Drave upon the loe, making himself Master of several of the lesser strong Holds, and burning and bringing under Contribution a great number of Villages. On the 28th of the Month he came before Sigeth, and leaving Count Hobensee with his Troops to besiege it, marched on himself to the Bridge of Esser. To reduce the Castle's at the Foot of it, he sent marched on himself to the Bridge of Elfect. To reduce the Cather at the Foot of it, the sent Colonel Sirgats with 3000 Creats and acoo Dragogins. He meeting 6000 Turkish Horse and Foot, overthrew them, killing 1800. The Fort immediately surrendered, and that wonderful Bridge was broke down, which would oblige the Turki to stetch a compass of 80 Leagues to relieve their Gartisons on this side the Drawe. This done, the Colonel returned to Count Serini, who sent a Summons to the Governour of Free Chamber, and he offered to deliver up Sermi, who lent a Summons to the Governon of Free Champles; and he offered to deliver up one of the Gates: But 500 Men approaching to take posselling of it, he caused such Volleys of great and simall Shot to be poured upon them, that above 250 were killed or wounded. This is irritated the General and all his Army, that they unanimoully gave a general Assault to the Town; and the it was valiantly defended by the Turk, entred it by force, putting all to the Sword, except 2500 Women and Children, laved by the General. Soon after, as he lay before the Town with 2000 Men, and had almost reduced it to furrender, Intelligence was brought him that the Grand Viller was marching with 80000 Men to the Relief of Canifa. Count Strozzi immediately magned with 10000 Men to prevent his passing the River Mur which falls into the Drave, and on the 7th of Jame the Tark attempting to Ford the River, it was so desperately distincted on both files, that the Fight continued after Night by Moon light. At last the Turks having lost 2300 North, desilied. Of the Christians 400 were killed, and among them Count Strozzi. Mean while Count Stroin raised the Siege of Canifa in great disforder, his Men being in a Constantation, apprehending the approach of the Enemy. The Turks attacked the Island of Stroin, which the bravely delended, was at last abandoned, the Governour and most of the Men realring over the Bridge, and all had been seved-but that it broke as they were passing. The Enemy having razed the Castle of Stroin, again attempted to pass the River Man, but were fill repulsed by the Counts Stroin and Hobernow, who had built Forts along the Banks, and with 12000 flow the Turks of the Place with only 10000 Foot. the General History of SPAIN.

First went the King's Trumpets and Kertledrums, then the Town Musick, then 16 Alguaziles of their Liberty, and after them, some of the Spanish and Swifs Guards, with their Lieutenants. At a small distance followed the orderly Troop of Noblemen and Gentlemen her longing to the Court, and the Captains of the Guards. Next them were the Four Macebearers with fhort Roman Crimson Coats and Gilt Maces on their shoulders: Then came the Regidores, and next them the Kings at Arms with their Embroidered Coats, and laftly the Corregidor and Duke of Medina on the right Hand carrying the Standard. In this manner they came to the grand Market Place, which the large, was then too little to contain the Multitude: In the midft of it was raifed a Scaffold covered with rich Carpets, about s or 6 Foot high, 30 in length and 20 inbreadth, with a Staire-case 12 Foot wide and Railed.

The Duke and Corregidor, the Secretaries and the 4 Kings at Armes on both fides of them, facing the Windows where the Kings use to see publick Spectacles; then the eldest King at Arms, who was then D. John de Mendoza with a loud Voice Three times Cried, Silence, filence, filence, Hear, hear, hear. Then the Duke also with a loud Voice, faid Three times, Cafile, Cafile, Cafile, for the Catholick King Charles II, of the Name, whom God preferve The Multitude unanimously shouted, Let him Live, let him Live, let him Live. This Ceremony being ended in the Market Place, all the Company went to the Palace, where the King was Seated in the Chair of the Emperor Charles V. thence he went and did the same in the Town. All this being performed, the Duke required of the Secretaries and Notaries to give it him under their Hands, that he again Restored the Standard to D. Francis de Her. rera Enriquez, Corregidor of the Town. The Corregidor having received it, went up to the Council Chamber of the Town, and fixed it in the Balcony under a rich Canopy, there to remain 8 days and nights, the continual lights in the Streets displaying the richness of Moors. It seemed not decent, that in a City taken from the Moors, they should possess the bett Church, this might in time have been regulated, but the Archilhops haft, had the great like to have runed all. He agreed with the Queen to take it forcibly, from them by Night, Church and accordingly breaking open the Doors, call out all that belonged to the Mahometans, e-taken for rected Altars, and hanging a Bell in the Steeple, called together the Christians to affilt at chily room Divine Service. This Alarm'd the Infidels, to that they could fearer efrain from recording the Most Divine Service. This Alarm'd the Infidels, to that they could fearer efrain from recording the Most Divine Service. toArticles what had been done was brought to the King, he was greatly inraged, and Polled away to Toledo, with full refolution to punish this breach of Articles, with the utmost feverity. All the principal linhabitants of Toledo, knowing his delign, went out in Mourning to meet him, and the Clergy in Procedion, and being come to his prefence, Profirate on the ground, begged Patolon. Their interacties were of no force, for he perfilted—infexible. God Almighty in an unexpected manner, put a flop to the evil that was feared, for the chilef of the mighty in an unexpected manner, put a ftop to the evut that was reared, for the clieft of the Moors, their Pallionbeing over, confidered, if the King used any feverity on their account, it might after his days turn to their Ruin, wentout of the City, and meeting the King, begged The Moors he would forgive the Queen, and Archbithop, so they might for the future, be secured in the property of the Polechions. This requisit, made by the Infidels, was so surprizing, that he not only parther used to the property of the promited that he would ever remember that day, and and the property of and archibe favourable to them for the Love they had shown him. All the City rejoiced, and it was ordained, that the Memory of this day, being the 24 of January, flould be for ever preferved, making it a Feffival under the Name of Our Lady of Peace.

It was then the Cuftom of Spain, in purfuence of a Decree, of the Eighth General Council, which was the last of Constantinople, that no Metropolitans should be Conferenced, or exercise their Function, till their Election was confirmed by the Pope, and he had sent them the Pall. This process of time was extended to Bishops, they not the two Motives the Archbishop resolved to go to Rome, but before his departure, with the King's Approbation, he gathered a Synod of Bishops, and Confectated the Cathedral of Toledo, under the Invocation of St. Many, St. Peter, St. Paul, St. Stephen, and the Holy-Cross. Orban II. being Pope, in the Year 1088. Rernard the Archbishop being at Rome, obtained all he defired, to wit, the recalling of the Legate, and the confirming of himself Primate of all Spain, and that part of France called Gallia Gotbica. By this Authority, being returned from Rome, he Archbia and that part of France Canno Commo Control of Section 19, 196 to the Control Control of Section 19, 196 to the Control Control of Section 196 to the Control of Section 196 to the Control Control Control of Section 196 to the Co Spain. Primate, and the Lepate used such means that at length they prevailed, yet so that in the AnMissian and cient Churches, the Ancient form should still be continued. Which is observed to this day; And that Service is still used on certain Festivals in those Churches; Besides, in the Cathedral there is a Chapel, to which belongs a number of Chaplains called Moçarabes, or more properly Mixinarabes, who still use that Massal and Breviary This name of Mixinarabes, corruptly Moçarabes, was given to the Christians, that in the time of the Moors, lived under their Government, and mixed with the Infidels. All the new Churches in Toleday, were ordered to fay Mais according to the *Comman Liturgy. This debate being ended, the City began to flourish, beautiful new Buildings were erected, many of the *Moors went away, and their places were *City to Churches *City to Chu neantini new Binitings were erected, many of the Abbors went away, and their places were filled by Chrittian inhabitants, to whom were granted Priviledges and Immunities, as appears by the Royal Charters, fill preferved among the Records of Toledo. In the Year 1091. Bernard the Primate, who fludyed nothing but the publick good, gathered a Synod at Leon at which was perfent Cardinal Raynering, the Pope's Legate, who fluceeded Ribbard the Cardinal. Many Decrees were here made for Reformation of the Clergy, at that time grown very corrupt. It was also ordained, that for the feture, in all publick Writings the Gobbick Character should be no longer used, but instead of it the French.

How the

It will not be amifs in this place briefly to show how the Archbishops of Toledo, came first to be Primates and Metropolitants of all Spain. Some will deduce it from the time of the Apostles, and pretend, that S. Eugenius the Martyr came to Spain, and was the first Arch-Apolites, and pretend, that S. Eugenus the Martyr came to Spain, and was the first Archibled to the Councils it appears, that their Authority of Modern Authoris for it. By the Ancient be Prior to them, in the first place. There were formerly in Spain 5, Archibliopricks, via. Tarragona, all Spain.

Braga, Marida, Sevil, and Toledo, and none of these acknowledged any Superior but the Pope, and each took place in Councils according to the Seniority of his Conference. Now the Gotts, who at first pollessed themselves of the Kingdom of Toledo, having subdead all others. ther Barbarous Nations in Spain, and made themselves Masters of the whole Country, hence this City being the Court of those Kings, began to assume a Superiority over all the rest. This Authority took its first force in the Seventh Council of Toledo, which ordained, that all the Neighbouring Bishops, should in their turns, being called by him their Primate, repair to that City, and there attend on the King and Archbishop for the space of a Mouth. The that city, and there accent on the range and recommend on the pattern a mount. The Archbiftops Superiority being thus far effabilited, was much advanced in the twelfth. Comell of that City, which decreed that the Election of all the Biftops in Spain, fineall be confirmed by him of Toledo, as had till then been done by the King. From that there forwards, all the other Bifnops allowed him precedence, and he figured first to the Acts of Councils. This was all the Priviledge those Prelates then injoy'd above others. When Spain had fallen under the flavery of the Moors, for a long time that City had no Bishops. At length when it was recovered by the Christians, the Archbishops were not only restored to their former Dignity, but made Primates of all Spain. Pope Orbin the Second, was the first that gave them this Prerogative, and it was afterwards confirmed by Pafqualis Gelafius, Henovius Celeftinus, Innocent, Lucius, Eugenius III. Adrian IV. Alexander III. Orban III. Honorius III. Gregory IX. and many others, whose Bulls are preserved to this day, among the Records of the Cathedral of Toledo. Many Archbishops have had their Cross carryed before them, throughout all parts of Spain, yet at feveral times have met with some Opposition. At present they exercise no of Spain, yet at leveral times have met with 10me Oppontion. At pretent trey exercise in printifiction, over theother Provinces, but only enjoy the Titck, and have Precedence. It was said above, that King Alonfo had two Wives, Agnes, and Conflance, by the latter, K. Manfo he had glab Princes Unraa. Of her was born D. Sandbo, a Prince of great hopes had he lived. The King after this Marry'd a Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth time, with Reta of Tylefany, Elizabeth of France, and Beatrix, whofe Birth is not known. By Elizabeth, he had two Daughters, Sandba Marry'd to Earl Roderick, and Elvina Wife to Reger King of Sixily. King Alloujo had beliefes, by a Militrifs called Ximona, two Daughters, Floura Marryed to Roymind Field of Taughter and Teefa, Wife of these of Lorents. Earl of Touloufe, and Terefa, Wife of Henry of Lorrain. D. Urraea the King's chleft Daughter was Marry'd to Raymund, Brother to the Earl of Burgundy, they had illue first D. Sancha, and then D. Alonfo, who for the many Kingdoms he United, was called the Emperor. Thus much is Collected out of very Grave Authors, yet Pelagius Bilhop of Oviedo, who lived about that time, and in the very close of his History fays, King Alonfo had but five Wives, and that

King Aloufo thought not this a rime to be idle, when the Moors of Africk were joyned with those of Spain, and therefore reloved to be before-hand with them. To this purpose, he made all necessary Preparations, gathering Arms, Horses, Provisions and Money. Not only the Lainer and the Christians of the Christians and Christians and Arms and an excellence and Complicate selections. several strangers follicited from abroad. Many Strangers moved by the great danger Spain was in, and defiome to ring to ferve in that War, came over, especially out of France. Among these, Raymond, Earl Gervea gainst the Europe, and his Kinsman Henry, who was Born at Besancen, was of the House of gainst the Lorrain, and in process of time, the Founder of the Kingdom of Portugal. Besides these, Lorrain, and in process of time, the Pointer of the Kingdom of Toring to Lorrain, and the process of the Carlot of Toring of With them came a good number of Brave and Experienced French Soldiers. D. Sambo, King of Aragon, was not wanting, he tho' very ancient, yet had the Vivacity and Courage of Youth, and was an excellent Commander, having gain'd Experience in the continual Wars he had with the Moors. All these Forces made up

gain a experience not communar was ne nea with the source. At these corress made up to great an Army, that they refolved to invade the Enemies Country. They entred Andaleusa, plundring and welting all where-ever they came. It was no time for the Moors to be idle, both Armies came in light of one another, near a Town called Alagueto, but Joseph ldle, both Armies came in tight of one another, near a 10wn cailed Alagueto, but Joseph finding himfell inferior to the Christians, fhund fighting. His retreat was more like to a diforderly Flight, for he lost great part of the Baggage. King Alanjo thought it better to content himfelf with the Honour gained, than to tempt Fortune; beides, that his Army, being composed of for many different Nations could not long hold together. Thus he returned home, his Army loaded with Spoils, and pleased with their Success. After this for some time, the discounter of the country of th ed home, his Army loaded with Spoils, and pleafed with their Success. After this for fome time, the Almoravides attempted nothing farther, for Toleph was forced to repair to Africk, to fetch his new acquired Kingdom. Mean while, King Anno Angole fleet not, expeding the War would foon break out again. Therefore he reloived to frengeluen himself with Frech Allies king Anno Armond. In the first place, he gave three of his Daughters in Marriage to those three Lords fo Marries that came to his affiltance out of France. Raymund, Earl of Touloufs, Marryd D. Elvira, J. Raymand, of Bugendy, had the Government of Calicia, with the Title of Earl, then ufually given to the Governors of Provinces, yet the belt of his Portion, was the hopes of flucceding in the Throne, if Sancha, the King's Sond dy'd. The Earl of Touloufe, received his Portion in Money and Jewels, but no Lands in Spain, because he refolved to return to France, where he had large Polelions of his own. There are Authors, who write, that the City of Liven was taken by King Alonfo, in the Year 1093. but this is doubtful, for it was often taken from the Moors, and lost again, till fome time after this, it was gain'd by the Christians, and has ever since remained in their hands. Much about this time began the Holy-War in the East, carried on by most of nanos. nucurados uns une organ une rouy-voa in une bar, carried of principles the Christian Princes, for recovery of the Holy-Land. Peter, a Hermit, who Travel'd in-TheHolyto Palefine, was the firth Promoter of it, for he making his Obfervations there, difcourfed Warin Simon, Bilhop of Jerufalem, about it, and having received Lettersfrom him, moved the fame thing the Eaft to the Pope. Urban who then fate in S. Peter's Chair, ordered a Council of Bilhops to meet at Clermont, in France, to promote the carrying on of this War, and the mean while, by his Legaces, stirred up all the Princes of Christendom to share in so Glorious an Undertaking. His Endeavours prov'd fo fuccefsful, that all Countries founded of nothing but Warlike Preparations, most Princes aimed to fignalize themselves, by showing their Zeal in so Plous a War, and Thousands of private Persons voluntarily Enrolled themselves to serve upon their own cost. But we must not stray too far into Affairs so Foreign. Let us return to what hap'ned in Spain.

CHAP. II.

The great Actions of D. Sancho Ramirez, King of Aragon. He is killed at the Siege of Huelca, his Sons continue the Siege, Rout a great Army of Moors and Christians, that come to raise it, and take the Place.

IN the Year 1094, was Born D. Alonfo, Son to Henry of Lorrain, and his Wife Terela, 1094, who by his Valour made the Name of Forusal famous, extended his Dominions, and was Birth of the first of those Frinces that assumed the Title of Kings, which he maintained in opposition to Monifo F. Kings of Caffile. The same Year was unhappy for the unfortunate death of D. Sancho I. Kings of Aragon, who merited the effects of his Subjects, not only for having governed and main-sanch is a single of Margon in the Moniform of Margon, maintained themselves by the natural strength of those Places, into the Plains, where he took many Cities and Towns. He had continual Wars with the Moniform of Baldguer, Levida, Monoson, Barbalton, and Frages, and oblided them to use him Tribute. Then after a took many Cities and Towns. He had continual Wars with the Moorijh Kings of Balagur, Levida, Moncon, Barbaffro, and Fraga, and obliged them to pay him Tribute. Then after a long and tedious Siege, took Barbafro, a Noble City on the Banks of the River Yero, in a delightful Country. Tho' the strength of the Walls was great, yet the King's constancy Hisalions and indefatigable Labour of his Men, overcame all Difficulties; to that it was entred by against the Affault, and Plundered. From that time Barbaffro was annexed to the Bishoptick of Rboda, Moers, Affault, and Plundered. From that time Barbaffro was flain, and thence called Armengaud of Barbaffro. At this Siege Armengaud, Earl of Uzgel, was slain, and thence called Armengaud of Barbaffro. He being the King's Father-in-law, and Father to his Queen Felicia, his death was revenged with great flaughter of the Townsimen. Bolea, a Town on the Borders of Navarre, upon the Biver Ginza, after a long resistance, was taken from the Moers. So also Moncou a strong with great flaughter of the Townsimen. Bolea, a Town on the Borders of Navarre, upon the River Ginga, after a long resistance, was taken from the Moors. So also Mongons, a Brong Town in that Territory, with many other Towns and Castles, too tedious to rehearte. Estela, then a small Town in Navarre, now a famous City, was built at this time. King Sancho having a design upon Zaragora, raised a Castle, called Castlestar, five Leagues beyond that City, on the Banks of the River Esro, to bridle the Moors, and waste the Country about, in which, that Garrison was so successful, that the City was often reduced to such that was the sum of the Moors of Long and the Sancho San Icetans, was built the Town of Luna, remarkable for nothing more than for being the Origi-Town of nal of the Noble Family of that Name, in Aragon. The King who was much given to Piety, obtained Luna built a Grant of Pope Alexander II. by which, the Monafter yo fst. John de la Peña, and others in Kingdom, were exempted from the Jurifdiction of the Bithops. This was done under colour, that the Bithops thro' Covetoufies took to themelves the Revenues of the Monafteries. Certain it is in their times the Monafteries and the Pietries of the Monafteries took to the Pietries. fteries. Certain it is, in those times the Monks aspired after too much Liberty, which made their Abbots obtain the Privilege of using the Miter and Crosser, to betoken Episcopal Po-Monkscass wer, by which means they cast off the subjection due to their Ordinaries. The principal Vice the of subjection King himfelf was taxed with, was Avarice; for he made use of the Ecclesiaftical Revenues, in a total and Treasures of the Churches. This feemed exclusible, on account of the general Poverty, although the contract of the contract of the general Poverty, although the contract of the general Poverty although the gen and 1 reatures of the Churches. I his teemed excutable, on account of the general Foverty, and extraordinary Charges of continual Wars. Besides that, he obtained a Bull from Pope Gregory UII. by which, he had full Authority given him absolutely to dispose of the Tenths of all such Churches as were erected of new, or regained from the Moors. Neverthelets, some Years before his Death, in the Church of St. Vidovian of Robad, he publickly asked Pardon of that offence, promiting amendment. Raymandus Dalmachius, Bishop of that City, was present, to whom, he caused Restitution to be made of all that had been taken from him. The King never careful infession that had been taken from him. The King never ceafed infefting the Moors, and was particularly bent against Abderhaman, King of Huesea. He had already possess the himself of all the neighbouring Towns, and Forring of Emerge. He mad arready potention intent of all the neighbouring I owin, and rot-tify'd Montaragon, that it might curb that City. At length he fate down with his Army before it, Ecrured all the Avenues, and placed his Head-quarters on a Hillock; which ever fince, is called Popo de Sancho. The City was very firong, and the chief Bulwark of the Monta-

Dominions on that fide, therefore the Siege was protracted, there being no possibility of tording it. The Belieged fixed to Alonfo, King of Caffie, for Relief. Kings for the moft part have more regard to their particular Interest, than the publick Good. It was seanalous, openly to side with the Moors, therefore he thought it a good expedient to Invade Navoure, by the way of Bifay, and so to give a diversion. Count Saucho was sent to put that Arm, fo that the Wound proved Mortal. He dy'd on the 4th or june, his body was carried to Montaragon, and deposited in the Church of Jefus of Nazarebb, which he had built. Thence it was translated to 5. Juliu de la Peña, where is to be seen the Tomb of his Queen Telesca, who dy'd some time before. Nevertheles, his Sons, as had been ordain'd by their Fether, continued the Siege, resolving not to fir till they had destroy'd the City. D. Peter, whith his Father was yet living, called himself King of Ribagorga and Sobrave, and had by the Wish Fether of June 250 of his even Name, are others will have it. Called Cando Peter fue cocks him. Nis Wife Berta, or Agnes, a Son of his own Name, or as others will have it, called Sancho, the Wife Berta, or Agnes, a Son of his own Name, or as others will have it, called Sancho, This Peter inherited all his Father's Dominions. D. Alonfo had fome Lands affigned him, and the youngeft Brother, called D. Ramiro, was a Monk. The Stege of Hunfa lafted no and the youngest Brother, called D. Ramiro, was a Monk. The Siege of Huessa lasted no less than 6 Months, others say above two Years. At length, the Belieged tired with want, called to their aid Almogahen, King of Zaragoga, D. Garcia, Earl of Cabra, and another great Man, whose Name was D. Gonzalo, for in those consisted when the sheld no shame for Christians, the same of the state of the same than the same of the same than the same same and they marched together from Zaragoga. Things being in this posture, D. Garcia, we have siege, there out of good will, or deceiffully, is not known, advised the new King Peter, to raise the Siege, there out of good will, or deceiffully, is not known, advised the new King Peter, to raise the Siege, sand hast home. Honour, and the Promise made to their Father at the hour of this Death, prevailed with the Brothers. Near the City is a large Plain, called Alcorae. Samous Death, prevailed with the Brothers. Near the City is a large Plain, called Alexax, famous for this Battle, where the Christians resolved to meet their Enemies. The Night before the Fight, the King in a Vision, saw a more than Humane Person that assured him of the Victory. Prince Alonjo led the Van, the King brought up the Rear, the main Body was under the Conduct of two famous Commanders, Lifana, and Bacalla, Men of known Valour and Worth. The Horfe were placed in the Front, and began the Battle, then the Foot fell in the numbers of Infidels filled all the neighbouring fields. Both Bodies being come to clofe, the Fight was defiperately maintained. Nothing could be heard but dying grouns, acclamations of those that fought, and the noise of Arms. Night put an end to the Battle, without routed by deciding which fide had the better. Our fide had the advantage in Valour and Conduct, the routed by the Chri. Enemy in number. All Night the Christians stood to their Arms, Morning discovered the Moors and their King Almozaben, retired with all speed to Zaragoça. Being closly pursu'd, 4000 of them were put to the Sword. Scarce 1000 Christians were lost, and none of Note. 4000 of them were put to the Sword. Scarce 1000 Chriftians were loft, and none of Nete. D. Garcia was taken, the Booty was great, and all the Fields were covered with Weapons, Blood, and Dead Bodies. Some fay, S. George was feen fighting, and by his help, the Viktory was obtained. Others affirm, that a Gentleyman of the Family of Moneada, who had that time was in the Holy Land, appeared a Horfe-back in this Fight. It is common to increase the fame of a Victory to feign Miracles. Authors agree, That from that time, the Arms of the Kings of Aragon, were Agent a Croft, the colour is not named, with a Heads in this state, which was fought on the 18th of November, and the stylind agree, that Noble City, Bruffelia. having loft all hopes of Relief, was Surrendred. On the 17th of December Tollowing, the Great Pre-parations WW Hillf these things happed in Spain, all the rest of Christendom founded of nothing but Preparations for the Holy War. Pope Trhan, at the General Council he held parations of the courts of all Christian Princes, filtred by War them up to undertake this Religious Work. Many Bishops, Princes, and Men of Note, Lifted themselves, and wore the Cross, then the Mark of being engaged in that War. A-mong the rest, Bernard, Archbishop of Toledo, having settled the Government of that Church, and Conflituted 30 Canons, and as many Half-Canons, taking up the Crofs, departed to Brustel, wards the Holy Land. No fooner was he gone, but the Canons he had appointed, met, and Archibitation of the Canons had been considered by Research of the Canon wards the Holy Land. No looner was ne gone, but the canons ne had appointed, met, and chofe another Archimop, Expelling those that opposed this unlawful Proceeding. D. Bernard understanding what had been done, returned to Toledo, and Expelling all that had a unforthand in that Disorder, put Monks of the Monastery of Sabagan, in their places. This done, Holy-land he sets forward again, and being some to Rome, was obliged by the Dope to return home again, as believing his Presence was necessary at Toledo, being a place but lately recovered, and unstetled. He absolved him of the Vow he had made, to go to the Holy-Land, upon condition to the Monaster the Money he had designed for that Evendition in Rebuilding of and unfetted. He abiolved him of the Vow he had made, to go to the Holy-Land, upon condition he fhould lay out the Money he had deligned for that Expedition, in Rebuilding of Faragona, a City then newly taken from the Moora, by the Earl of Barcelona. In the time of the Romans, it was a Noble City, and the Seat of their Empire in Spain, fince, reduced to pack a finall number of poor Houles. D. Barad Repaired it, and Translated Baragonius, Bithop of Vique, thicker, with the Dignity of Archbiflop. Yet the new Archbiflop forgeting this Favour, afterwards contended with Remand about the Bibles of the Burnes. ing this Favour, afterwards contended with Bernard about the Right of the Primacy. Pope Thus are an end to the ftrife, affigning the Supremacy of all Spain, to Bernard, and his Successors. Bernard, the Archbishop, in his way thro' France, brought along with him many Learned and Pious Men into Spain, who were afterwards promoted to great Dignities. Among them also came Burdinus, not worthy to be named among them, for he afterwards made himself Anti-pope, and caused a Schism in the Church, as shall be hinted in its

Haya, he that had been King of Toleda, was then in feated, benotifion of it, having inherited it of his Father Almanon, to whom it belonged. The Lord fiega of Deria, Xativa, and Tordia, I aid coles Siege to it. The King of Zaragora thought to releved. The himself upon the Ruins of others; for the Besieged having sent to him for Releft, he have during the colours of this besieged that the colours of this besieged that the colours of this besieged having sent to him for Releft, he hoped under that colour to subdue both them, and the Besiegers. He agreed with Roderick nopeu under that colour to undue buth them, and the Benegers. He agreed with Roderick Dists, and both marched, thither. The Lord of Denia knowing himfleft inferior to them, made Peace with Palentia, and raifed the Siege. Nevertheleis, the King of Zaragosa, would have policifed himfleft of Valentia, had not Roderick Dists, opposed him, for that it was under the Protection of the King is Mafter. Hereupon, that King returned home. Roderick Dists, under colour of affilting the King of Valentia, made his own advantage, obliging all the Moors thereabouts to pay him Tribute; with which, and the Booty, he maintained the charge of the War. King Edward before growing online to his Gabberts, encogedial thair hatted, by heiror than the Moors. the War. King Hiaya, before grown odious to his Subjects, encreafed their hatred, by being a Friend to the Christians, so that they called in the Almoravides, then grown Powerful, who killed Hisya, and gave the Sovereignty of the City to Abenaxa, the Contriver of that Re-Ruica rriaya, and gave the sovereignly of the Carly to Journals, the Constitute of that Revolution. Roberts Dist defining to punifit their Treachery, and reloying that an opportunity was offered him of taking that Noble City, refolved to lay Siege to it. Palentia was well flored with Provisions, Warlike Ammunition, a good Carlifon, and a great number of refolute Citizens, yet his Confiancy overcame all those Difficulties. He laid close Siege to reionnte Citizens; yet his Contraicy overcame alt those Dinicuties. To the King, for that he had favoured his defigns, he fent a Prefent of 200 choice Horfes, with as many Seymiters hanging at the Saddles. Such was the poflure of Roderick Diac's Affairs, when two young Lords, called Earls of Carrion, their Names, James and Ferdinand, Men Marries of great Birth, but mean degenerate Souls, having obtained the King's Recommendation, history of great Birth, but mean degenerate Souls, having obtained the King's Recommendation, history of great Birth, but mean degenerate Souls, having obtained the King's Recommendation, history of great Birth, but mean degenerate Souls and the souls of they both hid themselves in an undecent place; and at another time, in a Skirmish with the Earls of Moors they fied. These things made them grow contemptible to their Father-in-law, who Carrier. Reproached them and they ftudy'd Revenge. Suero, their Uncle, who ought to have given them better advice, heightned their malice. Having refolved upon the Villany they were to act, they prepared to return home. Their Father-in-iaw having accompanied them part of the they prepared to return home. Their Father-in-law haviting accompanied them part of the way, returned to Valencia, and they profecuted their Journey, till they came to a Wood, on the Frontiers of Cafilie, after they had palled the River Duro. There fending away most of their Retinue, they took the two Ladies into the Wood, and having ftripd them naked, whipped them till they lay for dead, wallowing in their blood. In this manner they were Cruel found by Ordonius, fent after them, by their Father, who fufpected fome ill defign. held at Toledo. Judges were appointed to determine what was to be done, the chief whereof, was Raymund of Burgundy, the King's Son-in-law. After a full hearing, it was decreed, that those two Lords should restore all that they had received with their Wives, and that they and their Uncle Suero, should Combat with three others, appointed on his part by Roderick Diaz. Three Men of note, whose Names were Bermudo, Antolin, and Gustio, undertook his Quarrel. The young Lords endeavoured to evade the Combat, by gaining time, fo Roderick Dias went away to Valencia, and they to their Effate. But the King not fatisfied, obliged them to fight at Carrion, where they were all three overcome. Roderick Diaz's two Daughters were Marry'd again, D. Elvira to D. Ramiro, Son to D. Sancho Garcia, King of Navarre, who was killed by his Brother Raymand, as was faid above, D. Sol, to D. Peter, Son to the King of Aragon, of the fame Name; both which, fent to demand them in Marriage, D. Ramiro had by D. Elvira, Garci Ramirez, who was afterwards King of Navarre. D. Peter dy'd before his Father, and left no libe. Two feveral times King Bucar, who came out of Africk, was overthrown in fight of Valencia, by Roderick Diaz and his Forces, who kept that City as long as he lived, which was five Years after the taking of it. He was near his Death when the time Bucar came again before the City, and perceiving it could not be maintained after his Death, ordered in his Will, that they should all in a Body quit the place, and return relation to Caffile. The Moors believing it was a powerful Army, that defined to give them Battle, abandoned drew off. Thofe Christians marched without cealing till they came to Caffile, and Valencia by the being left without any Garifon, fell again into the hands of the Moors. They that came from Christians Valencia, brought with them the Body of Roderick Diaz, which was Bury'd with great Magmificence, in the Monastery of S. Peter of Cardena, near Burgos, K. Alonso, and Roderick Diaz's two Sons-in-law being present. Many look upon most of this Relation as Fabulous; and I write more than I believe, because I would not wholly omit what others affirm. In the Church of S. Peter of Cardena, are to be feen five Tombs, that of Roderick Diaz, that of his Wife, and those of his Son and Daughters. Perhaps, they are only empty Monuments, such as are

Rederick de Bitur's

The Death of Rederick Diate. de Bitura, was a great 10st to the Christians for his extraordinary Valour, Conduck and Prosperity. Authors do not agree about the Year in which it hap'ned, the most likely Opinion is, that it was in the Year of our Lord 1093. About this time, Pope Wham translated the Bishoprick of Fria, to Compylella, at the request of the See of Butmandian, who was the first Bishop of that City, and made it independant of the See of Butmandian, who was the first Bishop of that City, and made it independant of the See of Butmandian, who was the first Bishop of that City, and made it or that states the through the More was the proposed to the done for that states the More was the the More was ons into Andalucia, which was the more easie to be done, for that Joseph, the Moor, was returned into Africk. This gave the Christians some time of breathing, which the King made use of turned into Africk. This gave the Chriftians fome time of breathing, which the King made use of K. Almojo to encrease the Religious Worhip. He built a Monallery of Beneditines at Toledo, of the Involved to the Control of S. German, on there say, he only repaired it. Belides, he crested two Monasteries of Nuns, the one Dedicated to S. Peter, the other to S. Dominick Osilos. At Buggos, without the Walls, he Founded another Convent, now called S. John of Buggos. The Year following, which was 1090, was remarkable for the Death of Pope Urban, and the Green of S. German and Control of S. John of Buggos, without the Walls, who had been Legate in Spain, a Person of great Worth and Experience, fucceeded Urban, by the Name of Passagnia, the tention of his Passagnia, and that the Billhops of that See might use the Passagnia and that the Billhops of that See might use the Passagnia Year, which was 1100. proved no less Delastine nunops or that see might not the ran, an Orlandern Decorating greater Audiotry, than that of common Bilhops. The next enfoing year, which was 1100. proved on lefs pleafing to the Christians, by reason of the Death of Joseph, who was Sovereign of all the Moors in Spains, doubt during the space of 12 Years, and of those in Africk, about 22, than it was at last unfortunities of the untimely end of D. Sanebo, Prince of Castile, which will be seen in the next Monarch. Chapter.

He gave the command of his Army to the Earl D. Garcia, and for the greater Honour, fent his Son D. Sancho, the very young, with him. Near Veles, the two Armies met and engaged. In the heat of the Fight, the Prince was struck down, D. Garcia covered him with his Shield, and with his Sword kept off the Moors that affailed him on all fides. Long he kept them at a diffance, till being weakned by many wounds, he fell down dead upon him he defended. This difafter made the Infidels Victorious. It is need. The Infilefs to relate how grievous this lofs was to the King; he asked what might be the reason of debvilto-being so often overthrown by the Moors, and a wife Man answered, That the Soldiers were rious. debauched with Ease and Luxury, which made them unfit for Service. Hereupon, the King ordered all incentives of Luxury to be taken away, and among the reft, caused the Baths, then much used in Spain, after the manner of the Moors, to be destroy'd. Some hope remained in D. Alonso, the King's Grandchild, by D. Orraca, his Daughter, but he was very Young, and a Womans Government feem'd not feafonable.

The continual good Fortune of the King of Aragon, diminished the Joy of the Moors for their fuccels in Caftile. Of late, the Infidels went down the wind in Aragon, for the Chriftians had taken from them the Castle of Calasarz, the Town of Perusa, on the River Canadre, and the City Barbastro, whither the Bishoprick of Rboda was Translated. Now the name, and the Christophia and the complete M compared with health and polygonians bent all their Stength againft the City Zaragoza, which the Almoraviate had polygonian bent all their Stength againft the City Zaragoza, which the Almoraviate had polygonian bent all their Stength and polygonian the City Zaragoza, which the Almoraviate had polygonian the fill the Almoraviate had polygonian the City Caragoza, which the Almoraviate had polygonian the City Caragoza, which the Almoraviate had polygonian bent all their Stength and polygonian the City Caragoza, which the Almoraviate had polygonian the City Caragoza, which the City Car mazazin, then Abdelmelich, and then Hamas, Sirnamed dimegacayo, whom the Ameravide Zariged deprived of the Kingdom. At this time, in France, Albo, who after the Death of Raymund, Earl of Barcelona, Father of Arnaldas, had Ulirped the Sovereignty of the City Carcalfonne, where he had been Governour, was expelled the piace by the Inhabitants, and it refored to its Lawful Prince, in the Year 1102. This fame Year, Armangaud, Earl of Orgel, was flain its Lawful Prince, in the Year 1102. This fame Year, Jomengaud, Earl of Coppel, was flain by the Moors in the Illand of Majorea, whither he went to flow his Valour, and was therefore called Belaraius. Armengaud, was Marry'd to a Daughter of Peranzule, a great Man in Capile, and Lord of Palladolid. By her he left a young Son, during whole Minority, the Grandfather governed, and afterwards Marry'd him to a Lady, called Affenda. The Year of our Lord 1104. was unfortunate for the Death of three great Perfons. Anolog, Brother to the late King, fuc. Mooffice ceded him in the Throne. His Reign was long, and his Actions great, by which he much a ceded him in the Throne. His Reign was long, and his Actions great, by which he much we tended the Dominions left him by his Ancelrors. In the fecond Year of his Reign, he Married D. Uraca, Daughter to King, Anolog, of Caffrie. This Match was made by the King, contrary to the defires of all the Nobility, who would have had her Marry'd to D. Gomez, contrary to the defires of them durft open this to the King, therefore they charged a Jean of Candelpina. None of them durft open this to the King, therefore they charged a Jean who was the King's Doctor, upon the first opportunity to acquaint him with their Thoughts. This Jew, as the King was one day diverting himfelf, broke the business to him. It highly offended the King that the Nobles flould pretinue to dispose of his Daughter; therefore he for ever forboth the Phylician coming into his preferee; and then hathed the therefore he for ever forbid the Phylician coming into his presence; and then hastned the Marriage of his Daughter, which was performed with great State at Toledo, in the Year 1106. King Monjo formewhat eased with the fatisfaction of this Match, and defining to revenge the death of his Son, tho' very ancient, took the Field again, and entring Andalucia, destroyed all the Province with Fire and Sword, sparing neither Man nor Beast. This done, he figure the remainder of his Days in quiet, not only forbearing from Martial Affairs, but eafing himfelf of the Government as much as could be. Yet he took care that Salamanca, and Segonia, which had been ruined by the Wars, should be repaired, fortified and embelished. Peranzules, a Man at that time in great vogue, who had been Tutor to the Princess Urraca in her Minority, and was now the King's Favourite, had the whole management of publick Affairs, and by his Prudence and Vertue, feem'd to fupport the Government. The King now quite figent withage, for he lived 79 Years, grew fickly, and was languishing a Year, and feven Months, yet by the advice of the Phyticians, he rode out daily; but the natural warmth being decay'd, at length, he dy'd at Toledo, on Thuyflay, the first for flush 100. as Pelaguia of Oviedo, who lived at that time tefficis. He Reign'd 4.3 Years, was modelt in Prosperity, and Toledo, in a dualanted in Adversity. After the Death of King Adonfo, the Inabitants of Toledo, in a definition, were about abandoning the City. The King's Bod' was kept there 20 days, King of Confernation, were about abandoning the City. The King's Bod' was kept there 20 days, Confernation, were about abandoning the City. The King's Bod' was kept there 20 days, Galfie. Bury'd with great Pomp; the greateft, that of the Tears of his Subjects, who lamented 60 great a lofs, as they had in him. These Tears feemed to forbode those Calamities that or fined, and the very Stones at Leon, prefaged this General Lamentation. At the foot of the Altar, where the Priest uses to stand at Mass, in the Church of S. Ipsoni, in Leon, the Strango Stones fled water, not where they joy'n'd, but in the very middle, for the space of three days continually, which were Tours flap, Friday and Saturday, according to Pelaguis, who then lived. This hap'ned 8 days before the King's death, and betokend the Tears of all Spain. The Bishops and Clergy, hereupon, made Procellions, to appeale God's Wrath. In this King's Reign, one Lesints, a French-man, lived in great opinion of Sanctity at Burgos, his in her Minority, and was now the King's Favourite, had the whole management of publick

Besides, the Queen for her dislotte Life was Imprisoned in the Castle called Castellar, whence she made her escape into Castile. She found not the Reception she expected, for the Nobility fent her back to her Husband, who again put her in Prilon. Mean while, the Nobiles of Gaticia, where D. Aloujo, and D. Orraca's Son was bred, held Confultation to oppose the Defigns of the Argonians. They were glad they had found a flaw in that Match, which they had fo much opposed, and therefore gave out, that the People were not obliged to own him that was not their lawful King. Hereupon, they fent an Embally to Pope Pafqualis II, who committed the Examination of that Affair to James Gelmires. Billop of Santiago. After the taking of the City, the rest feemed easie, when on a sudden News was brought that the Moors, Landing on the Coast of Barcelona, had struck a general Terror into all the Country, and besieged the City. The Earl man, had thus a general terror mot at the country, and an edge time of the new forcet to go over to the Continent, leaving the Geneefes charge to fecure the filands. At his first approach the Insidels raised the Siege, he pursued, and overthrew them near Motorel. This Action was Tunmiltarry, and difforderly, the Battles not being formed. Two Accidents concurred to lessen the joy of this Victory. One was that the Geneefes Bribed by the Moors went away, and quitted the Islands, as the Writers of Catalonia affirm, for in the Hiflories of Genoa, there is no mention of this Expedition. The other was the lofs of the City Garcassone in France. Anno 1655.

Tetuan a strong City on the Coast of Barbary not far from Ceuta, was distressed by the Moor Geilan. The Governor implored the affiltance of Benbucar, who finding it difficult to relieve the Place by force, made the Governor and Geian friends, and put his own Brother called Benbucar the younger, Governor into that City. The Moor desiring to do something remarkable, marched thence to Ceuta thinking to surprize it, or at left to cut off such as were abroad in the Country, knowing the Inhabitants uled to go out for Water, and to cut Wood in the Forrells of Tetran. The Marqueß de los Areo famous in Flanders and Catalonia, by the Name of Count Teneria, was then Governor of Centa, who understanding Benbucar was coming to besiege him, drew out his Force which amounted not to above 320 Men into the coming to benege him, drew out his Force which amounted not to above 320 Men into the Trenches. Benbucar perceiving he was diffeovered, drew up 20000 in 4 Bodies, and attacked the Trenches; but after giving 3 Affaults which lafted 3 Hours, was glad to retire, leaving 2000 dead Men, belides the wounded. This Action happed on the 10th of Jime. Peace and Friendflip feemed to be well Ethablished betwitt this Crown and England.

To make it the more firm, his Majelty ordered the Marquels de Leite Admiral of Flanders, and Governor of Dunkirk to go over with the Chareter of Ambaslador Extraordinary to O. and Governor of Dunatik to go over with the Littleton Management Entertaining your liver Crommell then Protector. He made a flately publick Entry, was honourably Received, and Emetained at the Charge of the Protector for 8 days, after which he Refided at the House of the Ambassador in Ordinary D. Alunfo de Cardenar, till his Return to Flanders. Notwithstanding all these exterior Demonstrations, our Jealousies ceased not, the Protector having withflanding all these exterior Demonstrations, our Jealousies ceased not, the Procedor having fent out two great Squadrons: One Commanded by Admiral Pan, and consisting of 40 Sail, steered away to the Ocean, upon Pretence of suppressing of Pyrates. The other of 30 Sail under Blake went for the Streights. That Squadron under Pan being come to Barbades, met there 30 Sail of Franch and Dutch, all which he took. Then joining 20 of those Ships to his own Fleet, he put to Sea again, none being able to guess at his Design. He also fent so Men to Caucedo, which lay to Windward, and where there was only a Creek to land, all the reft of the Coaft being high and rocky. Upon Sunday the 2xth of April, the Enemy landed 600 Men on the side of Nilmo, 10 Leagues from the City therefore Orders were sent to Captain Damin del Castillo who was at Ximo, with what Forces he could, to hinder the Approach of the Enemy, laying Ambushes and cutting them off. Collonel John Morfa was commanded to second Castillo, and to endeavour to take off. Collonel John Morfa was commanded to tecond. Galitio, and to endeavour to take fome Prifoner, of whom they might have Intelligence. Both these Commanders obeyed their Orders, leaving Captain Alonfo Garavito at Xains, where the Enemy landed another Regiment of Foot, which joining those before alhore made up above 7000 Men, who all giving one Volley matched towards the City then threngthened by spipplies come from 8e-veral Places. A Prifoner taken gave an account that Fleet was sent by Oser Cremwell, and brought betwixt 8 and 10000 Men to subdue that Island, and thence to passover to Jamaica, Cuba, Cartagena and other Places. He further faid the Fleet would not enter the Port till the English Colours were fet upon the Walls, for fear of the new Platform of 6 Pieces of Cannon, All things being disposed for the Desence of the City, 200 Men were sent towards Xiina, to And things being culposed for the Detention the City, 200 Ment were tent rowards Xinna, to cut off the Enemy in Ambulcades; but they not appearing, our Men retired to the Walls next the Plain. Fresh Advice being brought of the Approach of the English, 130 of our Foot lay close about the foot of the Mountain, which is very rough and uncouth. These behaved themselves so well that they obliged all the Enemies Army to Retire, because they sustained great loss from the Fort S. Hierome, Elmatadero, Fort Grande, and the Wall, all which commanded the Plain. The English retired to the mouth of Xaina, leaving behind them Provision, Ammunition and Arms. Next day all the Fleet came up, and Cannonaded the City, and Castle, and 14 of them came to an Anchor at Traquia, whence they continued their Fire against the City; but they received so much harm from thence, that they were glad to stand out again. On the 20th of April 300 of our Men went abroad to discover, and laid feveral Ambushes, then Advice being brought by a Spie that the Enemy advanced, they were so hotly received, that they were again driven back to Xiana. On the 5th of May the Enemy marched the way of Esperilla, and falling into one of our Ambuscades, lost 800 Men, and retired, leaving behind their Arms, Baggage, Colours, scaling Ladders and Drums. At last a Storm arising in the Night, parted them, and the Galleys drove almost to the Coast of Barbary. On the 13th, they returned to the Coast of Genea, and D. John taking Post horses rid away to Milan. Thence through Venice and Irent, he palled to Inspruch, and croffing Germany, came the first Day of May to Collen. Here the Prince de Isinguien Governour of Guilders, the next Province of his Catholick Maightes Dominions, expected him by Order of the Count de Fuenfaldaña, with 800 Horfe to attend him, half of them belonging to his Majefly, and the other half to the Prince of Conde. The Count de Fuenfaldaña met D. John at Ruremond, with most of the Officers of the Army, and near Lovain the Prince of Conde. On the 11th of May, D. John entred Bruffels, the Burgermasters at the Gates presenting him the Keys; an the 12th, he was Complimented by all the Courts of Justice.

About the middle of June, D. John fet out of Bruffels to relieve Valenciemes, and with him Defeat of the Prince of Conde and Marquels of Caragena. The French had already gained the Dirch of the French the Town, and a Half Moon, and lay so securely intrenched, that it seemed not practicable at Valorto force their Lines. But the danger the Town was in, and the great Confequence of losing it, stimut, cauled all Difficulties to be little regarded. On the 16th of July, the Attack was given with tended an Difficulties to be made regarded. On the foliator jury, the Arasan was given with the facts success, that we forced the Line, making a great Slaughter of the Enemy, taking their Baggage, feveral Colours, and many Prifoners of Note, a Lift whereof was fent to Court. 500 of the Enemy were killed, and above 800 wounded. The Marefehal de Turenne with the Forces that lay on the other fide, and had not fuffered, retired to an advantageous Post near Quency, whether the dispersed Troops assembled to him, our Army encamping close by, expecting he should decamp, as needs he mult very soon for want of Forage, when D. John pectnig in mount example, and income in that very note for wait of conages, when D. Joun hoped to obtain yet a greater Advantage, than he had done at Velenciamer. D. Alonjo de Cardenas, who had been 16 Years in England, with the Character of Ambassachor, was now at Brusselist, and hoped his Care and Industry, the Army was supplied with Money and other Necessachor is to take the Field, and substitute there; for which D. John of Austria and the Marquels of Caragena returned him due thanks. Te Deum was fung at Madrid, for the relieving of Valenciennes one of the Confequences whereof, was the furrender of Conde, a Piace of it fell strong, and more by a Garrison of 4000 Men, that marched out of it, without the loss of a Man on our side. About the same time, certain Troops of ours, defeated 5 Squadrons of the Enemies Horse, and in another place, a Regiment of Lerrainers.

The Mareschal Turenne retired under the Cannon of Arras, scarce thinking himself secure there, his Army which confifted of 30000 Men at the beginning of the Siege of Valenciennes, being reduced to only 4000 Foot besides the Horse. Our Army was at Cambray threatning to enter France, that way to draw away Turenne, but things fell not out as was expected. The renne with 4000 Horse and some Foot, drawn out of Garrisons, marched towards S. Venant, thinking to furprize that Place. The Governour having timely notice, had drawn to-gether 1000 Men from other Garrisons for his Security, so that Turenne having given sour Affaults, in which he loft 700 Men, and had above 1000 wounded, returned to Arras, leaving two Pieces of Cannon behind him. This is what Turenne did after his Retreat from Valenciennes. The News of the Surrender of Conde, was joyfully received at Court, it was delivered upon the 18th of August. To the Intent the Garrison which was above 4000 strong, might not joyn Turenne; according to Articles, they were conducted 100 Leagues about. D. John of Au-firia to profecute his good Fortune, laid Siege to the strong Fort of S. Gillain, and at the same time the Enemy fate down before la Chapelle. It was thought fit to attempt the Relief of it, and by that means, the one was loft, and the other not taken. Our Army being put into Winter Quarters, the Province of Flanders confented to the raifing of 2400000 Florins for the Support of it that Winter.

About the beginning of this Year, two Ships failed from Majores, and performed many no Exploit: table Exploits which merit the Remembrance. First they gave Chaec to the Admind of Arro Madier alors, forcing him to retire for fafety, under the Cannon of Galeta. Thence they flood over to quint. the Coalf of France, where they plyed a long time, before the Habour of Antielles, oblitue-ting all the Tade of that Port. Two Franch Mafters of Saties, attempting to get in, were taken, and the Prize valued at 4000 Pieces of Eight. Sailing towards Cypras. they met a Vessel for Malaga, and another of Sardinia, with whom they joined. On the 7th of April they difof Malaga, and another of Sardinia, with whom they joined. On the 7th of April they difcovered a great Ship on the Coalt of Cyprus, which they tookafter a Fight of Four hours. It was loaded with Flax and Cotton, and efterm'd worth 20000 Fices of Eight. Then flant ding towards Timer.near S. John of Acre, they took a final Velled of the Moors, which they call a Saique, laden with Rice, and having divided it among the four Ships, funk the Vellel. Near Alexandria they took a French Setie laden with Flax and Hides, worth 17000 Fices of Eight Here they discovered an English and a French Man of War, both which to flum them ran aground, the Men getting afloars, the Ships were fired by our Men. Near the Illand Lampadia, they had a flars Finagement with an English Ship. which being totally dishled, and no ground, the Men gening amount, the simps were included on Men. Assa the mand composition (a, they had a sharp Engagement with an English Ship, which being totally disblote, and no hope of escaping leth, blew itself up. After this, on the Coalf of Earbury, they took an English Ship worth 27000 Crowns, which defended it fell with great Bravery. About the same life Ship worth 27000 Crowns, which defended it fell with great Bravery. About the same life the Manufacture of our shad been loft, from the Ship Change of the Manufacture of the Manufa if not relieved in time: the Turk was so battered She sunk downlight; only 18 of her Men being faved, and about 300 drowned. Not far from Candia they took an English Merchant Ship valued at 20000 Crowns. About the Far of Melfina after a bloody Fight, they made themselves Malters of a Privateer, belonging to certain French Knights of Milta, but the Great Malter demanding them, they were delivered to him. In their Return homewards, they mer an Eng-life Ship iron Perugal, loaden with Spice, which they pollelled themselves of, and it was efteemed at 50000 Ducats. Laftly, on the Coast of Tunez, they drove ashoar a Turkyli Pyrate, the Men laving themselves upon Land. After they were in Port at Majorca, they discovered at Sea, a Tark giving Chale to a Vessel, which laboured to get under the Cannon of vereu at Sca, a 2ms groung Chaire for venue, which anomate to get under the Cannon of our Forts, but in vain; whereupon the biggeft of the four ships, put to Sca again, and refueud the Ship, which they found to be a Humburgher, carrying Prefents from King Philip, to the King of Hungary, and several Prelates and other Pallengers to Rome. On Wednesday the 20th of November the Queen was delivered of a Prince; he was Baptized on the 13th of December by Baltafar de Mojcojo, Cradinal and Archbilhop of Toledo, and called Philip Profper.

About the beginning of April this Year, Blake the English Admiral lying upon the Coast of About the beginning of April this sear, make the Engling Adminiar sying apon the Coat of Spain, had Intelligence that the Spain|Well_India Fleet was put into the Bay of Santa Cares, in Well in Hand of Traviff, one of the Canaries. On the 13th he fet fail towards them, and upon dia Fleet the 20th discovered them in the Haven, drawn up in a Half-moon, and well guarded. At burnty the 20th discovered them in the Haven, drawn up in a Hall-moon, and well guarded. At bourst, the Mouth of the Harbour is a flrong Caffle, with many Pleces of Cannon to lecture the En. Blake. transe, and round the Bay 7 finall Forts, with 4 or 7 Guns each, befoldes the Lines of Communication between them lined with Mulqueteers. D. James Disgues the Spanish Admiral, had moored the leffer Ships, being 10 in number, clote under the Shoar, 6 great Galcons lying farther out at Anchor, with their Broad fides towards the Sea. The Malter of a Dateb Merchant-ship that lay in the Bay perceiving there would be Mischiel, and learning to partake of than thip that lay in the Bay perceiving there would be Mischiel, and learning to partake of it, asked leave of D. James to depart; who answered him, Do yeap of you will, and let Blake comes the dears. Blake fent in a Soundron under Cantain Stainer, who not regarding the come if he dares. Blake fent in a Squadron under Captain Stainer, who not regarding the come is as an extension and appearing time a capacity of the first state of the first sta them, and himself with the rest of the Fleet joined Captain Stainer. After some hours fight, the Spaniards abandoned the Ships, as the others had done the Forts, and Blake feeing no polfibility of carrying them off, burnt them all except two, which finis for deep that nothing but the Tops of the Mafts appared above water. This done, Blake failed out without losing a Ship, and returned to his former Poft at Cadiz.

To conclude this Year's Campagne, the Mareschal de Turenne being joined by the English Forces, laid fiege to S. Venani, where the English having by main force taken a Half-moon, the Town foon furrendered. Hence they removed before Mardyke, and having by continual Battery drove the Defendants out of the Wooden Fort, the Town was delivered the 23d of September upon Differction. The Fort was put into the hands of the English, some French being joined with them. Defent of Austria considering how great a Check that Place was upon the Garrison of Dunkirk, resolved to attempt the recovery of it by Escalado in the Night. On the 22d of October 4000 English, Scots, and Irish, with some Spaniard., Commanded by the Duke of York and Marquels of Caragena, in the dead of Night gave the Affault, and having passed the Ditch laid their Scaling-Ladders to the Wall; but the English within being in a readiness to receive them, and the Guns from the Fleet siercely siring being directed by 4 Torches fet upon the Angles of the Fort, the Affailants were repulfed with great lofs. Nevertheless, about 4 of the Clock the Affault was renewned with greater Fury, but no better Success. Day approaching, they retreated, carrying off the Dead in Carts, so that the Number was not known.

The Mareschal de Turenne, with the French and English Forces, laid siege to Dunkirk, which taken by extreamly alarmed D. John of Austria, confidering the great Importance of that Place, and the French therefore he refolved at any rate to relieve it. Mean while the Enemy carried on their Works vigoroully, and had advanced their Trenches to the Counterfearp of the Place; fo that if the Relief was delayed, the Place must of necessity fall into the hands of the Enemy. D. John therefore having drained his Garrifons to make up an Army of 15000 Men, marched with all possible speed through Farnes, and encamped on the Sandy Hills about a mile and half from the Enemy. The English and French Officers having met in Council to consider of removing the Spanish refolved not to delay it any longer, but give them Battel the next morning. A fufficient Force being left to keep in the Befieged, molf of the English were drawn out, and joined with the French Horle. D. Join keep his Men upon the Detenwier, as having the Advantage of the Ground; but the English advanced with all speed, thinking to come in to the Butt end of their Mulquets, our Men pouring in their Volleys upon them to hotly, that those first Battalions were forced to make a Halt; but a Reserve of theirs coming up fresh, they gained the Hills, and falling to Club-nufquet, put the Spanish Foot to flight. The Fench Horfe feeing the Success of the English, gave a Charge upon our Cavalry, who disheartned upon the Flight of their Infantry, took to their Heels, the Fench furiously pursuing them. Above 1000 of our Men were killed, and 1500 taken, besides 800 Officers, all the Artillery and Baggage. The French refused to ransom or exchange the Prisoners, because the Number of Officers being fo great, D. John would be at a loss to recruit his Army. After this Victory, the Enemy returned to the Siege of Dunkirk, where the Marquels de Lede, Governour of the Place, making a desperate Sally, was killed with a Musquet-Ball. The unfortunate Death of the Governour so discouraged the Garrison, that they immediately capitulated, and having obtained the ufual Honourable Conditions, marched out 1000 flrong, on the 23d of June about 700 fick and wounded following them as they recovered.

This Year was remarkable and fatal for the continual Rains and vaft Floods that enfued, which deftroyed multitudes of Cattel and many Buildings. At Sea there were prodigious Storms, and a great number of Ships cast away. Winter being farther advanced, the Frost storms, and a great number of the was followed; it deflroyed all Plants and great numbers of Fruit-Trees. This mighty Froff gave occasion to Charlet Alonjo, called fitfit the Palatine of Deappent, and afterwards King of Sweden, to perform the boldeth Adion that ever was attempted by Man This Prince, about the end of November, marched his whole Army, in which were 5000 Horfe, with all the Artillery and Baggage over the Sea upon Ice, from futland in Denmark to the Island Alien, and thence to Langelandt, which is 8 miles distant from the other. From Langelandt he marched bill over the Ice to Laland, thence to Falfter, and so to Zeelandt, the greatest Island of Denmark, in which is the Court of that Kingdom at Copenhagen.

In the Spring of this Year came to the Court of Madrid an Ambassador of the Black King of Arda, a Heathen. The Ambassador's Name was Abani; he was received and entertained with all possible Grandeur, the Design of his coming being to obtain Preachers for the intro-ducing the Christian Religion into that Kingdom. Twelve Capucins were appointed by the King for that Miffion, and in his Letters to that Prince he promifed if the Faith were once fettled in his Dominions, he would erect Seminaries of that Nation not only in India, but in Spain also, for the Education of the Youth of Arda, who having received Holy Orders should be fent home to instruct the People.

In Catalonia the Marquels of Mortara, Viceroy and Captain General of that Kingdom, unof Mortara derstanding the French had laid siege to the Castle of Canderon, marched from Vich with 1800 attacks Horse and above 1000 Foot, and encamped not far from Canderon, in fight of the Enemy, the French, upon a Hill. The Enemy feeing him, pushed on their Attacks, and at the same time in a and is re- finall Plain drew out 2300 Horfe, and about 4000 Foot, leaving enough to fecure their Works. Jeseph de Tapia, Governour of the Castle, having by Signs given the Viceroy to understand that he could not hold out above two days, his Excellency refolved to relieve him. In order to it he fent down D James Cavallero, with the best part of our Forces, to ford the to it in lent down I which runs though the Valley on that part opposite to the Enemy's Right Wing. Mean while the Viceroy himself dew up the rel of his Troops, and marched down on the Right opposite to the Enemy's Light Wing. Dr. James took no notice of 30 Front that were right opposite that the Energy's Lat Mings Dy James took in lottice of 30 breith that were in a Tower that thood in list way, but palling by it, charged the Energy with fach Bravery, that he obliged them to fly in great Diforder. At the Jame time D. Marco Alexandro Borro fell on upon the other Flank, to that he gave them no leifline to fiscour their Wing that gave way. D James still advancing to the Enemy's Works, found they kept close within them, and therefore he sent D. Alexander Morera and D. Alenso de Villar to dislodge them, who executed it, killing a great number, and taking two Pieces of Cannon that battered the Callle. Onr Foot on the Left Wing advanced to the Regiment of Champagne, and put it to the rout. D. James Cavallero pursued the flying Enemy, thinking to cut off their Retreat; but tho? he took feveral Prisoners, he could not compass his Design, the Horse being of little use in the Mountain. We had not above 100 Men killed and wounded. Of the Enemy a great number was killed, and 1600 taken, and among them the Marquels of Montnegre. General of the Horfe, his Brother, 7 Colonels, 80 Captains, feveral Colours, and all the

This Year a small Squadron of Privateers failed from Majorca to the Westward, under the Command of Jaime Llorens. They scoured all the Mediterranean to the Streights of Gibralian, taking several Prizes of great Value, and then sailing into the Ocean, ran all along the Coast of Portugal as far as Cape Finisterre, alarming all those Coasts; but meeting with no Booty, they returned into the Streights.

The Duke of S. German had taken Olivença from the Portugueses, who could not relieve it-Emanuel de Saldana the Governour marched out with the Garrison, and was Prisoner afterwards at Lisbon, as not having performed his Duty. After this it was propoled to take Ebvas, a City 3 Leagues distant from Badajoz, seated on a rising Ground, which is all taken up with it and the Citadel, there being no other Hill near it. Its ancient Walls are enclosed within new ones, strengthened with Bulwarks, Ditches, Ravelins, and a covered Way; so that it is accounted one of the strongest Places in Christendom. D. Luis de Huro resolved to carry this Place by flarving it. He encamped before it, and took his Quarters near the Conduits that carry the Water into the City, which were immediately cut off. The Town was much straitned for want of Provisions, and it was thought might have been taken but that our Officers were not unanimous, and envied D. Lais de Haro the Honour of reducing that Fortress. Difcord fo prevailed with them, that they suffered the Enemy to relieve the Place, and so they were forced with Difgrace to quit that Enterprize.

The Duke of Offiana. General of the Horfe in Estremadura, understanding that the Enemy Duke of gathered Forces about Elvas to break into his Province, broke in himfelf with 5000 Horfe Offuna that way, burning the Country, and driving a great Booty of Cattel. The Enemy posted Irruption that way, burning the County, and Foot on a Hill in the Duke's way, and he finding it not into Ports. practicable to attack them there, endeavoured to draw them into the Plain, but could not gal. This moved the Duke to march another way, the Portugueses keeping still within view, whilst he burnt all the Country, and retired without any loss. The Duke of S. German, upon the news of the Enemy's Preparations at Elvas, refolved to fend the Duke with 2000 Horse to make another Incursion higher into the Country. On the 13th of April he set forwards, and the next day was betwix Portalegre and Aronches, having all that way burnt the Villages, drove the Cattel, and cut down the Corn. To put a ftop to these Mischies, the Enemy, to the number of 1500 Horse and 800 Foot, posted themselves in an advantageous Ground, where it was impossible to attack them, by reason of the difficult access to them. The Duke feeing they did not offer to moleft him, continued his march, and having burnt all for the space of 22 Leagues, returned with 8000 Head of small Cattel, 1000 of large, and 300

Horses and Mules. On the 30th of May the Duke of Offina marched with 1300 Horse and 200 Foot, to take a strong Watch-Tower within half a League of Elvas. Having viewed the Place, he placed 200 Horse in the Road to Campomayor, to hinder the Enemy's Retreat on that side, and as many more in the way to Elvas. He lay with the rest of the Troops betwirt both Places, ready to relieve either. 300 Men were in the Watch-Tower, well provided with all things for their defence. Our Troops befer it at the same time that 3 Regiments of Foot and 17 Squadrons of Horfe, with 5 Pieces of Cannon, came out of Elvas to relieve those in the Tower. The Duke having drawn up his Horse in the Plain, with his 200 Foot, affaulted the Tower Outworks, and carried them, and then began to undermine the Tower. Mean while the Enemy's Troops posted themselves among certain old Walls and Olive-Gardens, playing their Cannon thence; and the Duke perceiving they could not be drawn to Battel, filed his troops off from the Rear and possessed himself of a Post a Musquet-shot from them. The commander of the Tower for fear of being blown up, furrendred upon difcretion. The Tower and another ftrong House were blown up; which done, the Enemy retired, and the Duke returned with Honour to Badajoz.

Badajir. The Dake of S. Garman being well affured that the Portuguefer intended to befrege Badajics befreged had prefled for Succours to enable him to oppose them, but all in vain. He had in the Town by the Portuguefer and about 300 Foot, and scarce Provisions for 6 days, at sinch time as the Enemy approached with an Army of 16000 Foot, and 3500 Horfe. The Town was in a manner open, having no Defence but an Old Wall scarce a Yard thick, and that in many places open, having no for the Portuguefer any other Outwork. All its Strength consisted in a Fort called Schridandars on the first party to Pertuguefer that they are fit to make any considerable. Fort called S. Christopher, on the fide next to Partugal, but that not fit to make any confiderable Defence. Baddges stands on the Banks of the River Guadiana, by which it is divided from Detence. Badejoz. Itands on the Banks of the Kiver Guadama, by which it is divided from Portugal, and over which it has a frong Stone Bridge. The Channel is broad and muddy, but not deep, fo that at that time, being the 13th of June, when the Enemy appeared it was fordable in feweral places. John Mendez de Vijemelov, who had ferved well in Planders, was General of the Portuguifer. Their ready way to gain the Toom without expence had been to find out the Fords, which were but weakly guarded, without flaying to poffes themselves of Fort S. Christopher. The Duke of S. Girman well knew that the only way to prefere the Circ was to diver the Enemy. Int bufving him on the otherfide in taking the themselves of Fort S. Christopher. The Duke of S. German went snew mat the only way to preferve the City was to divert the Enemy, but bulying him on the otherside in taking the Fort, fo to gain time. D. Ventura de Turragona, General of the Artillery, and Governour of Fort, S. Christopher, being an Enginier, threw up certain Redoubts in the Valley at 30 paces forthe S. Christopher, being an Enginier, threw up certain Redoubts in the Valley at 30 paces distance from the covered way, which put a stop to the Enemy's course, who had they at first possessing the Christopher of the Calle of Radsing, and commands it and covered way. Fort S. Christopher is opposite to the Castle of B.dajoz, and commands it and the City; but on the fide next to Paragal is not so high. Its Fortification at that time confifted in two Bulwarks, and a half Bastion very narrow in the neck, all the compass of the Fort being fo finall, that the Garrilon might easily have been dillodged with only Bombs: The Dirch was narrow, and but a yard deep, and the Palifades were all gone to decay. This was a poor Defence against fo confiderable an Army. The Duke had before fent for two Regiments out of Antidactas, one of Spaniards and another of Irifh, who understanding the danging ger the place was in, marched 26 Leagues in two days without leaving a Man behind, and ger the prace was in minimum to Lengues in two days without reading a than bounting and on the 22d of June they entred Badujoe. The Spanify Regiment, Commanded by the Marquies de Lauprave, confilled of 570 Soldiers, befides 150 Reformades. The Fifth, whereof Sir Walter Durgan was Colonel, contained 450 Men. This Succoun much encouraged the Duke's but because the Men were extreamly harafled with that precipitate march, he caused them immediately to go to rest, resolving the Marques should the next day go into the Fort. At midnight the Alarm beat; for the Portugueles hearing the Two Regiments were got into At midnight the Alarm beat; for the Portugueles hearing, the Two Regiments were got into the City, and having made a fufficient Breach, decreed immediately to give the Affault. Folm Mondez thier General chole 6000 Men for the Attack. There was a Line of Communication from the foot of the Bridge to the Fort, this was first affaulted and forced, all the Defendants being put to the Sword. The same happed at the Redoubts and covered way, and the Enemy lodged themselves upon the Breach. After much debating among our Chief Ollicers, at the instance of the Marques Langrave, whose Name was Deter Pomiagua, it was reloved to Gend the Marquess his Major and two Captains, whereof one was his Eldest Son with 70 Foot, and two Squadrons of Horse to the relief of the Fort. These Men were looked upon as 10d the Adrion was 60 descrete: ver those their Horse forsook them, the Enemy's non a loft, the Adion was fo deferate; yet the their Horle forfook them, the Enemy's Cavalry being bent upon purfuing of them, the Foot broke through 300 of the Enemy, and got into the Fort with the lost of only one Reformed Captain. D. Femura de Tarragoma, who Commanded in the Fort, ordered the Major that got in with his 70 Men to attack the Enemy, who were making their Lodgments on the Breach and in the Redoubts. The Major conwho were making their Logaments on the oreach and in the Accountable of the fidering it was a rallness for 70 Men to assault 2000 who were fortified, represented it so to sidering it was a rallness for 70 Men to assault 2000 who were fortified, represented it so to sidering it was a rallness for 70 Men to assault 2000 men as a rallness for the Major obeyed. First the dove the Enemy from a Line whence they did much harm to the Fort, and passing on to the Redoubts, Enemy from a Line whence they did much harm to the Fort, and passing on to the Redoubts. the Major was killed, and of the 70 only 16 remained, whereof one was the Marquels's Son, who never looked back, tho fruck through the Arm with a Spear, till D. Ventura fent him a who never looked back, the fruct through the Arm with a spear, on D. remuta ent min a pofitive Command to retire. He thought fit to make good the Line taken at first, because it commanded the Redoubts, and being supplied with 70 Fire-Arms, he made great havock in the Redoubts, where the Men standing thick, never a Shot was lost.

D. Venture acquainted the Duke with all that had happed, affirming the Fort was not to be maintained, unless the Enemy could be beaten from the Breach, and he must be forced to happed in the beater of the Reach commanded all the Darade which the Enemy could be seen from the Breach of the Breach of the Breach which the Enemy which the Enemy could be beaten from the Breach and the Breach commanded all the Darade which the Enemy could be beaten from the Breach that the Breach commanded all the Darade which the Enemy could be beaten from the Breach that the Breach commanded the Breach that the Breach commanded the Breach that the Breach the Breach that t

A Council was again called to confider whether the Place ought to be relieved, and the Marques D. Peter Paniagua again prevailed for it, undertaking the Action himself with soo Men, reposing more Confidence in their valour than Number. Belone break of day he was at the foot of the Bridge, and attacked the Enemies Trenches with fisch Rediction, that he himself was the first that enred them. This no way diffused the Partaguafe; who tho' they had lost their Trenches, confiding in their Numbers, being then ten to one of ours, made fuch a furious Fight in the Redoubst, that the Victory was long doubtful. The Marques wentfrom a furious Fight in the Redoubst, that the Victory was long doubtful. The Marques wentfrom a furious Fight in the Redoubst, that the Victory was long doubtful. Redoubts, came to the place where his Father was almost dead, but not overcome. The Marques feeing him come to his assistance, said to him, Chorge, and mind nothing else. He did so that the Marques feeing his Men discouraged, faid to them, Go to Badajoz, and earry the New of the Death of your Officers, for it is Satisfallian enough for me to the with them. These Wortes so instance the Soldiers, that they charged again with such surp, that they put the Portugus's to flight, killing 600 of them, and putsed them in hopes to gain the Battery. Here Captain Anton Paniagua was again wounded in the left Arm with a Spear, but gave no ground, tho' he lost much Blood. Perceiving the whole Body of the Enemy's Army coming down upon them, the Spaniards retired to make good the Posts they had gained, and the Portugus's enaged to be so worsted by such a similar burber, gave three Assaults to the Recuber, and were still repulsed with great Slaughter. In this Attempt they lost 1800 Men, and the Hopes of staking Badajace, which now began to think it fell secure. Of the Castillian 150 were killed, and 80 wounded. The Marques lived but 10 hours after he received the Shot, and was Buried with great Honour. His Regiment was given to his Son, who had so havely Revenged his Death, tho' he was then but Eighteen Years of Age.

This ill Success rather enraged than discouraged the Portugus(s) so they continued their Attacits, but to very little purpose: Wherefore after having spent; 13 days before the Place, they cleave of their Cannon to the Body of the Army. It was thought they would have quite the before the Internet was the supposed to the store of the tree of the store.

This ill Succels rather enraged than difcouraged the Portigues 3 fo they continued their Attacles, but to very little purpole: Wherefore after having spent 23 days before the Place, they clrew off their Cannon to the Body of the Army. It was thought they would have quieted the Siege 5 but they leaving a fulficient Force to guard their Line on that fide Guadham, palfed the River, which they ought to have done at Irth. The Siege of Fort S. Christophem was orte of the molt remarkable Actions that hapned in the 28 Years War between Cashit and Portug. It. Having passed the River, the Enemy drew a Line 3 Leagues in length, enclosing the City, and worked at it. 4 Months, where they confined above half their Army, consisting, it is a been faid, of 16000 Foot, and 2500 Horse, at the beginning of the Siege. This Enterprize so alarmed the Kingdom, that it obliged the great Favourite D. Lais de Have to expose himself to the Danger of the War. During the Siege, the Ducke of Offician went out to have intercepted a Convoy that was coming to the Enemy's Camp, but being discovered, retired, dividing his Horte into Several Squadtoms, that they might take sindry Fords. The Porty, he was forced with only 400 Horse to face the Enemy. In the heat of the Action his Horse sind shows a first of the Action his Horse sinds have a some and a short of the Action his Horse sinds have some and Doublet. One of the Enemy's Soldiers laid hands on him, whom he killed, and feeing himself and all his Horse in danger of being lost, he commanded them to take the River, where 40 of them were drowned. Next night he attacked one of the Enemy's Quarters, killed 2000 of them, and brought away 40 Horses.

200 of them, and brought away 40 Hories.

On the 21 do 1 Jb / the Enemy attacked Fort S. Michael with 6000 Foot fulfained by Horle. The Duke of Offina drew out his Horle, and was ordered with certain Platoons of Mulipaeters to charge the Enemy. D. John Pachco, Lieutenant General of Horle, led the Van, and fell on; but being over-powered by the Porngue Horle and Foot, was beat back. The Duke came on with his Troops, and repulfed the Enemy, giving time to D. John Pachco to rally his Men, and charge again, but was filli lorced to give way to the Multitude. The Duke being fill at hand in good Order, fuffered not the Enemy to purfue our Vanguard when broken, but advancing took the Ground where the Enemy had flood, which was within Piftol-fhot of the Enemy's Battalions, who fired upon him two hours, killing above 17 of his Squadron, and above 120 of the others, and yet no Man broke his Rank. In this poffure he continued exposed to the Enemy's Fire, having his Horse kined under him, till the For being taken, he was ordered to retire. This Action latted 5 hours, with confiderable loss on our fide, and of above 800 of the Enemy, On the 6th of Angul 1200 of our Horfe broke through the Enemy's Line between two Forts, the Duke of Offlana attacking them in the Rear, and the Duke of S. German in the Front, driving them 6 Leagues as far as albuquerque, where they halted. On the 22d of August the Enemy planted a Battery of 6 Cannon on the Hill called Gerro del Viente, where we had a Half-moon Paiiladed with Redoubts and Flankers, which would contain 2000 Foot and 1000 Horfe. Upon the 24th they began to play those 6 Pieces, and 2 from Fort S. Michael, and that day threw above 150 Bullets, but without doing any confiderable execution. On the 30th they fired upon Fort S. Christopher, and blew up the wills; then they cast Bombs into the Quarters of S. Andrew and the Petter, From the 10th of Offober the Fury of their Batteries began to flacken. That very day D. Luis de Haro fet forward from Merida with 12000 Foot and 4500 Horle; which the Portuguefes under-Badejot. standing, drew off so silently in the Night, that their March could not be discovered, till relieved. Morning showed their Army on the other side Guadiana, and they encamped under the Cannon of Campo Mayor on the 14th. The fame day D. Luis de Haro entred Bad ijoz. Our Army and to things aways on the latt. The fainted by Lemis transfered bindyes. Our Miny partied the River, and followed the Enemy to the River Gays, which divides Cafille and Portugal, and fo held onto Elous, burning all the Country. The Delence of Endique was one of the most Clorious Actions during the War with Paringal, and in which the Duke of Offins gave most signal Proofs of his Bravery and Conduct.

The little Spuadron of Majorea mentioned in the foregoing Year, this Spring took 4 English Ships richly laden from Venice, but in the Fight with them, Jayme Lloren Admiral of the Privatiers had an Arm taken off by a Cannon Ball, of which he foon after died at Malaga. The King of Great Britain come through France Incognito, and to prevent Suspition entred Spain by the way of Aragon, whence he came through Navarre to the Conference, and was there attended with all the Respect due to his Person, being Served by the King of Spain's immediate Servants and

The Plenipotentiaries fent Presents to one another, and D. Luis understanding that the The Plenipotentiaries fent Pretents to one another, and D. Lule understanding that the case for drid to faishe his Curiofity. Some days were spent in adjusting the Place and manner of their meeting. At last it was agreed that a House should be Built in a small sland that lies in the middle of the River Vladfog which parts $\int_{\text{olive}}$ and France, one half of it was Built by the French, and the other half by the $\int_{\text{olive}}$ and be a small sland that lies in this House, where after Embracing, and other Acts of Civility, they sat down, and the Constrence lasted from Noon till half an Hour past Four, when they parted, appointing the last of the last the last Manifor on the state of the last of the last the last Manifor on the state of the last of th ing the next Meeting on the 16th.

On the 2d of September, when the 8th Conference was held, came thither the Duke d'Agremont Ambassador Extraordinary from the most Christian King to his Catholick Majefty. He came to Madrid on the 16th of October: The end of his Embaffy was, to ask the Princels Mary Terefa in Marriage for the King his Master. His Reception and Enterthe Princess many large in Marriage for the Ring his Maller. This Recombination and Entertainment were greater and more magnificent than any had ever been before. His flay was flort, for having obtained what he came to ask, he returned home richly prefented, and fatisfied with the Success of his Negociation. The Treaty of the Peace went on flowly, but at last it was concluded on the 7th of November, and an Express carried the News of it Peace to Madrid. The Marriage of the Most Christian King with the Princes, was the Bond Concluto make this Agreement Firm, and Lafting. In this Treaty Kinne hip hip had pecial Re-gard to the Reftoring of the Prince of Conde, in regard to the great Fidelity wherewith he Served Spain for many Years. Hereupon the Prince returned to Court, was gracioully Received by the King, and again admitted to his Farour. By this Treaty allo the Duke of Lorrain was fet at Liberty, and went over to France.

On the 15th of Neverther between 5 and 6 in the afternoon at Velilla de Ebro 5 in the Allal

Church of S. Niebdan feated on a Mountain that Encompaffes the Town, a Bell was feen Ruser to Ring of it felf without the help of any Body. This Bell was called Mary Niebdan, and K Edf. was call in the Year 1655. The manner of its Ringing was, that the Clapper moved, and gave 3, or 4, or 6, even to 10 Stroaks, sometimes more, sometimes less, on the East-side, gave 3, or 4, or 6, even to 10 - Stroaks, Sometimes more, iometimes ies, on the Eatt-inder, and one or two on the Welf-inde ; this by Intervals or Intermittion of about half a Minute. The firokes were Vigorous, as if guided by a firong Arm, and lafted the fpace of Two hours; many of the Townfinen being Eyewitneffes to it. In that Scepele there are 3 Bells, which hang along one fide of the Wall, in Three Arched Windows. That which is towards Zarageps is the ancient Bell for much fpoken of by our Hilforians Nextro it in the middle hangs another called S. Agarbs, which has been also heard to Ring of it felf, and next to it. is the last I now speak of. Strange and Remarkable accidents have happened after this fort of Ringing; which sometimes have proved unfortunate, and other times prosperous.

This Year the Knights of Malta took 7 Ships of Argiers and Times, of a very great Va-lue. A most notable Victory was obtained by the Poles and Brandenbughers, Over Charles Adalphus, the Palatine of Deacpoints who had lain long at the Siege of Copenhagues, the Metropolis of the Kingdom of Denmark. He had 3000 Men killed, besides a great number of Officers. The Poles took 1750 Priloners, 102 Pieces of Cannon, 112 Colours, a great quantity of Ammunition, and all the Baggage. Of the Victorious Army many were killed and wounded, as may be supposed in so great an Action.

King Philip the next day fet out towards Madrid, whither he came on the 26th, having by the way been Entertained with all Princely Grandeur at Valladolid.

The Marriage of the most Christian King and Queen was Celebrated in the Church of riage of S. John de Luz on the 9th of June.

On the 12th, their Majesties gave Audience to the Ambassadors of Poland, Sweden, Venice, Genoa and Savoy, who came to Congratulate their happy Conjunction. That fame day arrived at that Town the Count de Fuenfaldana, with a mighty Train of Spanish and Italian Gentry, 36 Sumptures, 20 State Horses, 8 Coaches, and 100 Footmen, their Liveries Embroidered with Gold and Silver. Some Perfons of Quality, and the Introductor of of Ambiffators went out to Meet, and Conducted him to the Palace, where he was VI-fixed by all the Nobility. Next day he had Audience of their most Christian Majellies. The King and Queen Departing towards Paris on the 2d of August, came to Fontainbleau, a most delightful Palace. On the 10th they went to Bois de Vincennes, where they stayed, that all things might be in a readiness for their Reception at Paris. Hence they set out the 26th, and things might be in a readiness for their exception at 1 min. There energy for our the 20th, and in the Suburb of S. Antonic of Paris, flooped in a flately Hall built on purpole, and richly adorned to receive the Compliments of the Clergy, Magistrates, and University. From this Place to the Palace of the Lowers, was made a Lane of the 16 Regiments of Militia of that City, each conflitting of 700 Men, in all, 11200, richly clad, through which the King and Overs. Wild at the City delega. and Queen passed to the said Palace.

Thus Peace was restored not only to France and Spain, but almost to all Europe, this most memorable Year 1660, and Germany had leisure to provide, to oppose the Designs of the Ortoman Emperor, whose mighty Army was coming into Hungary, threatning Destruction to all those Countreys. Venice still continued the War against the Insidels in Candia. England rejoiced in the Restoration of its rightful Sovereign.

Anno 1661.

D. John of Austria being Commissioned to command the Army against Portugal, came to D. Many of the Defendants were killed, one Captain, fome other Officers, and 60 Men made Prifoners. The Governour fled casting himself off the Wall, and Night savouring his Escape. Of our Men only 4 were killed, and as many wounded. The fame Day, the Duke fent a Summons to the Town and Caffle of S. Peter, half a League from Valdelamula, and as much from Almeyda, but the Garrison refusing, he marched thither with a Regiment of Foot, and at first fight the Place was furrendred, upon Condition, the Inhabitants might depart with their Goods. Three Watch Towers in fight of Almeydo were taken and burnt, as were the Towns of Juncia and Malpartida. S. Peter's Fort was demolished, being so near Valdelamula. Almofala was also burnt, after the Inhabitants had made some Resistance. Much Corn was sound in all these Places, which served the Horse for Forrage, and all the rest was burnt.

D. Roderick de Castro Count of Amexquitela, and General of the Province Tralosmontes, was now marching towards these Frontiers, with 5000 Foot, and 6 Troops of Horse. The same did D. John de Melo, Governour of the Province Beira, with other 5000 Foot and some Horse. D. Sancho Manuel was also ordered this way with 3000 Foot, and 1500 Horse. The Duke of Offma finding himfelf too weak, to oppole for great a Power, demoltified the Fort of Validamida, blew up the Tower, and burnt the Town, there being no posibility of relieving its beinged. This done, he fortified Galleys, and then marching to Albergaria layed Siege to it. He had but 4Picces of Cannon, the 2 bigget of which burth at the beginning of the Battery; yet he brought the other two neare to the Wall, and having made a Preach, the Garifon Capitulated, and delivered the Place upon honourable Conditions. Hence he removed, and by Force took Soto and Quadrafa, both which he hurnt, overthrowing all the Works ahout them. In these three last Towns were taken from the Enemy, above 20000 bushel of Corn, and 30 Horses, and all the Mountain Gata with the Country about, were cleared of Enemies, for Albergaria and those other Towns, kept all that Country in awe, so that there was no Traffick, nor Security in any part.

At Malaga on the 22d of September- between 7 and 8 in the Morning, all that City and the A terrible Country about, was fo darkened with black Clouds, that every body forefaw fome Destruction like to follow. At 9 it began to thunder, lighten and rain, with fuch violence, that the Gutters could not carry the Water off the Houses, nor the Streets deliver the great Flood. This lasted till Noon, when the Rivulets that fall from the Mountain of Gibraltar swelled so high, that they filled the Houses in those Streets near them; and those Waters meeting with the Flood, iffuing from Guadalmedina, which comes from the Hills of Casavermeja and Zambra, broke down the wooden Bridge, over against the Monastery of S. Dominick. That being a flop or the Stone Bridge, over against the Monastery of S. Dominick. That being a flop on the part flage of the Waters, they bore down the Bridge with its Towers, and carried all away to the Sea, which at that time ran in Mountains, calting up its broken Waves to the Clouds. The Inundation bore away all the Houses from the Orchards of the 13 Crosses, as sar as the Slaugterhouse Gate, scarce seaving any Monuments that there had been Buildings there. It also bore down the Wall at the new Gate, and broke into the City, filling feveral Streets, and finding no way out, flill rofe, drowning fome Quarters of the City, and in S. John Street, came up to the Floors of the fecond Stories. All the Street de los Almagenes, or of the Stories had been and Merchandize laid up there were loft. Several Quarters ters of the City were totally ruined, as were the Monasteries of S. Dominick and S. Francis, being so shaken, they were rendred uninhabitable. Great numbers of People fied to the tops of their Houses, which falling, they were carried away into the Mediterranean, or buried in the Ruines. Among the other Destruction made by the River Guadalmedina, it was observed, totake one corner House away intire, and carry it so for a great space, till at last it fell in pieces, with the death of 16 Persons that were in it. At 3 in the Asternoon, the Storm ceased, and at 5, the Water was gone out of the Streets, at which time the Bishop and Governous gave great Alms, among the poor People that were found alive in the ruinated Houses. Above 1600 Houses were utterly destroyed, 3000 so shaken, that they threatned Ruine; above 2000 Perfons loft, and the whole Dammage was computed at, above 3 Millions.

Amar Aga Alcaide and Governour of Tremeen, had destroyed all the Corn belonging to Marquest those Moors that lived about Oran, and had submitted themselves to the Spanish Governour of de Legathat Place, who was then the Marques of Legans. These Moors used to bring their Corn to mr. defell to that City, and the Garrison substituted upon it.

The Marques finding that no lair Means, they man or Threats prevailed upon those People to reduce them, marched out with 350 Foot, and ny Mores 180 Horfe, and forded the River Cid Soliman, fix Leagues from Oran; then falling upon the about Moors who live along that River, he took 6+ Slaves, 12 Horses, and a great number of Cattle, whereof notice was immediately given to Amar Aga. He gathering his Turks, lay in wait for the Marques in his Return, at the Ford of the River Coque, where they engaged, and 15 Turks were killed, among whom was Xeque Salem Beniabim.

Amar Aga Was in danger of being taken, having his Morfe killed, and escaped upon another, given him by his Guards. The Turks retired to Tremecen, and the Marques returned victorious to Oran. Not content with this, he went out again with the same number of Horse and Foot, and marching 7 Leagues to Zanua, Zafa, and Mediona brought under 9 Hords of Arabi, containing 986 Moors, 132 Tents, and 16000 Head of Cattle. Thus all those neighbouring Moors were again brought under Subjection, and the Turks disappointed, to the great Honour of the Mar-

This Year our Army in Eftremadura, under the Command of D. Jubi of Anfria, being D. Jubi very numerous, pierced into Parigal as far as Evara, which was furrended without any D. Jubi Bloodflied. This thruck a Terror into the City of Lubion, as being fo near, and the King that takes Kuthoughts of withdrawing from thence to fome Place of more Salety. D. Jubi retiring towards and in Badajaze, to join a Body of Foot that was there ready, and fo to continue what he had fo well routed began, was charged by the Enemy's Forces near Eftranze, in a place where the Horfe could on os Service. The Enemy at the first onset by the Control of the World on the Horfe could be supported by the Horfe could be supported by the Control of the World on Service. The Enemy at the first onset by the Salety and they distorted ing the Foot, the whole Army was put to the rout, losing all their Baggage, and several Perfors of Note were taken Prisoners, among whom was the Marquels of Lube, and D. The Duke of Offuna being declared General of the Frontiers about Cuidad Rodrigo, was at Duke of Madrid, without any Inclination to return to that Command; but having received repeated of fund as Mataria, without any inclination to recent to that Community, on naving received repeated before given to Orders to go to his Polt, obeyed. Immediately upon his artival there, he appeared before given in Valdelamula with 2000 Foot, 800 Horfe, and 8 Pieces of Cannon. That Night he encamped Period about the Fort, and raifed a Battery, which he next morning began to play upon the Place. The Governour, who was no great Soldier, at Noon beat the Chamade, and furrendred, having at that time 250 Men, and the Fort in good Condition, with 4 ftrong Bassions. The Duke finding it not practicable to fortifie that place, made choice of a rifing Ground hard by Duke mining it not practicated to other than parce, made choice of a rining oround nared by it; on which, with the Advice of Monfleur Logquet, a French Engineire fine this my D. John of Austria, he refolved to build a Fort Royal. The Work being drawn out, and fresh Supplies coming in, so that the Duke had 2000 Foot and 1200 Horse, more was done in a Month coming in, to that the Duke had 4000 Foot and 1200 Horte, more was done in a Month than could reasonable have been imagined, all the Officers and the Duke blindfil being continually prefent, and encouraging the Men. The Partingues fearing the raising of the Fort might prove of ill consequence to them, gathered a Body of 10000 Foot and 1500 Horse, resolving by the way to take Abbergain. Their Design, being discovered by the Duke, he fent at midnight D. Amony de Isoste, Licatenant-General of Horte, who put some Companies of Foot and other necessary Supplies into the Town; which being known to the Enemy, and also bed the Treasons four to invest it. Being dispressived of the Enemysh that extremely the set. of Foot and other necessary supplies into the Town; which occur known to the Enemy, they drew back the Troops fent to invelf it. Being dilappointed of that Enterprize, they advanced towards the Duke, who being far inferior in Number, thought not fit to expole his Men in open Field, but drew into the Fort, which was now in a good politure of defence. He caused a Tenail, which was joined to the Fort by a Covered way, to be finished, and pla-He cauled a Lenau, which was poment to the Fort by a Lovered way, to be finished, and placed therein 1000 Foot and 200 Hofe. The relf of the Foot he drew into the Fort, placing the Horse on the Flanks, and expected that Night the Enemy, who lay within Musques thor, should make form attempt. They fittered not, but kept the same Ground two days, the Cannon playing on both fides. The Foringus(s) having Intelligence that 230 Horse and 300 Foot were on their way to reinforce the Duke, font out 1000 Horse to intercept them; but the Duke fent them Orders to march another way, and he at the fame time alarming the Enemy's Camp, they came fafe to him. The Duke hearing a Shot from Almeida, guelfed it to be a Signal of some Convoy that was coming to the Enemy, he therefore commanded the Lieutenant General of Horse with all the Cavalry and 500 Fire Arms to march out and intercept it. He followed himself, having advanced two Castilians to discover the Convoy; they met two Battalions of the Enemy, which retired haftlif to their Body. The Postingues marched another way than the Duke had thought, who readily formed 6 Squadrons in the Vanguard, and drew them off to receive them. Our Vanguard charged theirs, which also consided of 6 great Squadrons, and both Parties fought with fuch Courage, that they changed their Ground, ours being over-powered by the Multitude. The Duke, who was in the midft of them, hafted to his main Battel, where his Horse received two Carabine Shors, and ordering them to charge the Portuguefes in Flank, broke both their Vanguard and main Battel, purfuing them to their Foot with great Slaughter. They rallied under the covert of their Mulqueteers; and that ours might have time to make up the Diforder caufed by the Charge, the Duke ordered the Referve of the old Guards and Companies of D. Antony Ramirez, and the Count de Bueto to advance. The Enemy retired within their Lines, having loft 700 Horfe, and among them many Persons of Note. Their speedy retreat by Night sofficiently tellified the loss they had fullatined. The great advantage of raifing that fort was, that it covered all our Country, and commanded a great part of the Enemy's, above 40 Towns in a rich Soil being thereby brought under Contribution, and the Enemy obliged to maintain great Garrifons in Alpayates, Almey la, Cafel Redeige, and other Places. In the Place where Fort Falselannals flood, was erected a Watch Tower to hold fixteen Men, who could thence discover all the Country

This Year came to Mobid Sir Richard Panfham, Amhaffador from his Majeffy of Great Bri. The Exit, with his Wife, and a preat Retinne. The Count of Pating also came from the Emperor Daugher to ask the Lady Margare of Amhria, Daughter to King Platify W. In Marriage. The Articles Margine being agreed upon, were read in Council upon the 18th of December, which was celebrated with great Demonstrations of Publick Joy and Satisfaction.

The Duke de Crequi, the most Christian King's Ambassador at Rome, having one of his Servans killed by 6 me of the Pope's Guards by his Wife's Coach-side, complained to the King his Mafter of this Affront, who fo highly referred it, that the Pope was forced to give him all the Satisfaction he could demand. In Demmark a Conspiracy was discovered against that King, for which some Persons suffered death, and others sied. The King of Poland hat ving broke off the Treaty of Peace with the Musicovites, invaded their Territories, doing great harm, and taking many Towns. The Turks entring Hungary with 150000 Men, laid Siege to Newbau[el, which tho' well defended, was at lalt forced to furrender, after which feveral other places were taken. They in vain attempted the Island of Schurs, which was made good against them by Count Serini. The Grand Visier, after this prosperous Expedition, leaving the Bassa Hali with sufficient Force upon the Frontiers, returned to Con-

Anno 1664

This Year not being remarkable for any Action at home, because the War with Portugal was for the most part defensive, and nothing considerable hapned therein, it will not be amis to make it up with fomething not altogether foreign; that is, the Success of the Wars betwixt the Emperor and the Turks. I account this Relation not fo much from our purpole, in regard it belongs to the House of Auitria, and also that King Philip sent considerable Supplies in fa-

your of his Imperial Majesty.

Leopold the Emperor on the 5th of January gave Audience to the Ambassador of the Most twist the Christian King to the Diet of Rainbon, where his Imperial Majesty then was, and the next Emperor day heard the Pontifical Mass, and performed his Devetions to beg of God the Union of and the Christian Princes, and Success of their Arms against the Turks. It appeared Almighty God heard his Prayers, for that very Day he obtained a compleat Victory over his Enemies, under the Conduct of the Noble Count Serini, who after a Peace was concluded betwixt the Two Empires, was unfortunately killed by a Boar in Hunting. The Count pining his Forces with Count Hobenber, marched out of Croatia with 12000 Horfe and Foot, and lay close in ambush in the Mountain, for a Convoy of Provitions and Ammunition that was going to Newbaufel, guarded by 10000 Turks. He fell upon them fo fuccefsfully, that hekilled 4000, took 2000 Prisoners, and carried away the Convoy to his own Castle of Seris. Not above 60 Christians seer loft in this great Action. For this and other his good Services, his Imperial Majetly de-clared Count Seriai Generaliffino of all his Forces in Hangary. He not enduring to be idle, the peer fo fhort a time, on the 18th of Jamaary marched again with 2000 Horte and Foot, paffed the Dever upon the Ice, making himfelf Mafter of feveral of the lefter Strong Holds, and burning and bringing under Contributions great number of Villages. Onthe 28th of the Month he came before Sigeth, and leaving Count Hubenler with his Troops to befiege it, marched on himfelf to the Bridge of Effect: To reduce the Callel at the Foot of it, he fent Colonel Sirgats with 3000 Croats and 2000 Dragoons. He meeting 6000 Turkish Horse and Foot, overthrew them, killing 1800. The Fort immediately furrendred, and that wonderful Budge was broke down, which would oblige the Turks to fetch a compass of 80 Leagues to relieve their Garrisons on this side the Drave. This done, the Colonel returned to Count Serini, who fent a Summons to the Governont of Five-Churches, and he offered to deliver up one of the Gates: But 900 Men approaching to take possession of it, he caused such Volleys of great and small Shot to be poured upon them, that above 260 were killed or wounded. This great and manison to be poured upon them, that above zower shaded with other for irritated the General and all his Army, that they unanimoully gave a general Affault to the Town; and the it was valiantly defended by the Turks, entired it by force, putting all to the Sword, except 2500 Women and Children, faved by the General. The Soldiers had the Plunder of the Place for three days, all the Boory being valued at above a millions of Ducats, for that there was found 2200 Holfe, a great quantity of Provisions and Ammunition, and abundance of Cloth laid in to cloath the Turkijh Army, informed that after the Count's Army was plentifully furnished, there remained 300 Waggon Loads. The Count, no longer able to keep the Field, by reason of the Extremity of the Weather, set fire to the City, but left 3000 Men, with Provisions for 5 Months in the Citadel, and then marched to Sigeth, where joining Count Hobenloe, he returned laden with Booty to Croatia. This Expedition fo fensibly touched the Ostomen Emperour, that he vowed the next Campagne to invade Hungary with 25000 Men, and to demolish the Castle of Serin so as no Memory of it should remain; besides, he offered great Rewards to any that should deliver the Count to him dead or alive.

Baron Souches, General of Silesia, at the same time demolished several Forts of the Enemy, burnt many Villages, and took by Affault the strong Fortress of Neurra, so that the Infidels had nothing lest them from Newbaufel to Canifa. Newbaufel was not belieged, because the Plague raged to violently there, that the Garrison, which at first consisted of 6000 Men, was reduced to 600. But a Party of Hulfart took 30 Waggons carrying Provisions to Newbandel; and 200 Turks that guarded it escaping that Danger, tell into the hands of Baron Perceni, who was abroad with 300 Hofe, and killed 100 of them, taking 18 Prisoners. Count Serini laid siege to Canifa, of which the Grand Visier having notice, sent 600 Carts guarded by 8000

Men, most of them Janizaries to relieve the Place. The Count met them with 12000 Horse and Foot, and killing 1800, took the whole Convoy. Soon after, as he lay before the Town with 20000 Men, and had almost reduced it to surrender, Intelligence was brought him that the Grand Visier was marching with 80000 Men to the Relief of Canifa. Count Strozzi immediately marched with 10000 Men to prevent his passing the River Mur which falls into the Drave, and on the 7th of June the Turks attempting to Ford the River, it was so desperately disputed on both sides, that the Fight continued after Night by Moon light. At last the Turks having lost 2300 Men, defilted. Of the Christians 400 were killed, and among them Count Strozzi. Mean while Count Serini raised the Siege of Canisa in great disorder, his Men being in a Consternation, apprehending the approach of the Enemy. The Tinks attacked the Island of Serin, which the bravely defended, was at last abandoned, the Governour and most filland of serm, which the bravely edictated, was at this abundance, the sovermous and most ofthe Men retiring over the Bridge, and all had been faved but that it broke as they were paffing. The Enemy having razed the Caltle of Serin, again attempted to past the River Mar, but were fill repulfed by the Counts Serini and Habenles, who had built Forts along the Banks, and with their Cannon did great execution. The Basia of Buda with 25000 Men laid siege to Lewenz in the Upper Hungary, but the Count de Susse coming to the relief of the Place with only 10000 Foot, totally routed him, killing 12000 of his Men, and taking 1500 Prisoners, above 100 Colours, 2000 Waggons, a great quantity of Provision and Ammunition, 20000 Chequins in Gold, 20 Pieces of Cannon, much Baggage, and many Horses and Mules. The Prince of Transylvania hearing of this Victory, call off the Turkilli Yoke, and submitted himself to the Emperor, aiding him with 25000 Transstructions. Baron Souches took and burnt the Town and Castle of Barkan and many other Places, putting to the Sword many of the Enemy that were scattered after the late Rout. Others of them repaired to another Body of theirs upon the River Raab, and being increased to the number of 30000, thought of belieging the strong Town of that Name. The Marques of Baden being reinforced by the Auxiliary Forces that had joined him, and now having an Army of 38000 Men, marched towards the Enemy, whom on the 31st of July he found encamped on the other fide the River Raab. The Christian Army posted themselves near the Town of S. Gotbart, their Cannon playing upon the Enemy. Next a Party of Turks and Tartars being discovered their Cannon playing upon the Enterly. Area a Fairy of Ames and America Configuration and America Configuration and America Configuration and America Configuration. The whole Body of the Enemy advanced in the Figure of a Half-moon, and attacked the Troops of the Empire that were in the Body of the Configuration. Army, which after a vigorous Refiltance were forced to give way, till fresh supplies coming in, they drove the Inflate back to the River, By this time both the main Battels came to engage, which was done with great Furry by the Christians, that they forced the Enemy with great Slaughter into the River, where many that had escaped the Sword, or Shot, pe-The din the Water, being born down in that confusion. The Imperial Hose pursuing their Victory, made mighty havock, obliging the Infield to quit their Camp, leaving a great number of Hories, Camels, Arms, much Provision and Annuntition, and all their Baggage, which became a Prey to the Victorious Army. This Battel was fought the First Day of August it lasted from Nine in the Morning till Four in the Asternoon. Of the Enemy above 6000 were flain, whereof many of Note; of the Imperialifts 1500 died in the Action. These great Losses moved the Turk to desire Peace, which was concluded, or rather a Truce for Twenty Years, by the Emperor's Ambassador, who all this while resided at Constantings: and Signed by the Great Turk at Adrianople, who thence fent a Chiaux to Vienna the 6th of

For the carrying on of this War, his Imperial Majesty was affished by all the Princes and States of the Empire, who fent their Quota's of Men at their own Charge, as did the Kings of France, Sweden, and Denmark. King Philip IV. being taken up with the Wars in Portuga could fend no Forces of his own, but fent the Emperour 300000 Ducats, and allowed 12000 Men to be raifed in Germany, and maintained at his cost. To the Venetians he gave 100000 Ducats a year, and fent them 4000 Men for Defence of the Province of Field.

In France this Year the Queen was delivered of a Daughter, who lived but a few days, and her Majesty was in extream Danger but recovered. The Duke of Beaufort, Admiral of France, failed with a Fleet provided at Toulon and Marfeilles, and confifting of 14 Men of War, 8 Galleys, Fireflips, 10 Brigantines, 10 other Veffels, and 30 Barks laden with Provisions, Ammunition, Lime, Brick, and other Necessaries for Building. In this Fleet were 1500 Seamen, and 5000 Land-Soldiers, besides 500 Voluntiers of Quality. In Pert Muon in the Island Minorca, he stayed till the Galleys of Malta joined him on the 17th of July, and then they lailed together for the Coalt of Barbary, where they lipent fome Shot against Bugia, but to little effect. On the 22d they Anchored before Giguieri, about 60 Leagues Eaftward of Argieri; and notwithstanding the Opposition made by the Enemy, landed their Men, as they did at Night 30 Pieces of Cannon. Three Batteries being raifed, played feven days and nights, at the end of which the French made themfelves Masters of the Place, having only 300 Men killed and wounded in the Action. This Place is subject to the Government of Argiers, and the Country about it has plenty of Cattel. The Algerines having gathered 20000 Men, on the 20th of October appeared before this Place, and that Night attacked a Redoubt of the Caffle; but were fo well plied with the Cannon from the Sea and the Works, that they drew off with great los Again, on the 23d before day, they gave a furious Aslault, and were again re-puted, leaving behind 2000 of their Men killed and wounded. The Infields being with friefh Supplies now 40000 ftnong, gave a third Attack on the 27th, and poliefled themselves of the Redoubt; then following their Success, they made themselves Masters of the Lines and Outworks, tho bravely defended by the French. The Duke of Beaufurt finding it impossible to maintain the Place, the Outworks being lost, shipped his Men the 30th of October, and returned to France.

Another Squadron of 10 Ships failed from Rochel, carrying 1600 Men, with Masons, Carpenters, and all manner of Necessaries for erecting a Colony, which they accordingly performed, 4 Degrees Northward of the River of the Amazons in America, having found there an old Fort, which they repaired and fortified with new Works.

Stugh. The English having built feveral Forts about Tangier, Gailar the Moor many times to detect the dad attempted to gain them, but fill came off with lofs, and among others had his stuffed own Brother killed. To revenge his Death, and so many Disappointments, he lay in the study of the s the Town with the best of the Garrison to take a Prey, encompassed them, and cut off the greatest part.

From Rome he went to Naples, to take Polletilion of the Viceroy ship of that Kingdom, and being desirous to Return to Spain, obtained leave of the Queen to resign that Command to his Brother D. Peter of Aragon. The Inquisitor General for the time being, was also appointed one of the Governors, and the Queen as Governess to the King her Son, Superior to them all. Her Majelty out of her great Respect to F. Everard a German, her Confessor, and a Jesuit, raised him to the Honour of Counsellor of State and Inquisitor General, by which he also became one of the Governors. After the death of King Philip, all the Counfels went to Kils the New King Charlet the 2d lis Hand, and to Recognize him as their Lawlul Sovereign, the day after his Fathers death. On the zyth, they conducted the Royal Body to the Eleunal with due Pomp and Magnificence, many Noblemen, and the Horfe-guards attending, till they delivered him to the Prior of the Convent. There he lies in one of those stately Urns, which whilst living he Erected in Honour of his Predecessors.

A few days after the Town of Madrid resolved to be the first in Proclaiming his Majesty K Christ A Rew days after the 16wh of Madria lelowed to be the lift in Froctaming instractly it of spain King Charles II. and made choice of the Duke of Medina de las Torres to display the Standard proclaim in his Name, as the Cultom of Spain is. On the 8th of October the Duke accompanied by many of the Nobility, went on Horfeback from the Count de Onates's House to the Town Court house, where they alighted, and were received by the Mayor and Aldermen and other Officers of the Corporation. The Duke went up to the Council Chamber and fate cown on the right Hand of D. Francis de Herrera Enriquez Knight of the Order of Calatrava, Corregidor of the Town. After a fhort Confultation, they both flood up at once, and the Corregidor taking the Standard, bid the Secretaries and Notaries give it him under their Hands, that he deliverd it to the Duke, that the Town might display it in the Name of King Charles II. The Duke courteously received it, and mounting on Horseback the Cavalcade began in manner following.

First went the King's Trumpets and Kettledrums, then the Town Musick, then 16 Alguaziles of their Liberty, and after them, fome of the Spanish and Swiss Guards, with their Lieutenants. At a small distance followed the orderly Troop of Noblemen and Gentlemen belonging to the Court, and the Captains of the Guards. Next them were the Four Macebearers with short Roman Crimson Coats and Gilt Maces on their shoulders: Then came the Regidores, and next them the Kings at Arms with their Embroidered Coats, and laftly the Corregidor and Duke of Medina on the right Hand carrying the Standard. In this manner they came to the grand Market Place, which tho large, was then too little to contain the Multitude: In the midft of it was raifed a Scaffold covered with rich Carpets, about s or 6 Foot high, 30 in length and 20 in breadth, with a Staire case 12 Foot wide and Railed. The Duke and Corregidor, the Secretaries and the 4 Kings at Armes on both fides of them, facing the Windows where the Kings use to see publick Spectacles; then the eldest King at Arms, who was then D. John de Mendoza with a loud Voice Three times Cried, Silence, filence, filence, Hear, hear, Then the Duke also with a loud Voice, said Three times: Cafile, Cafile, Cafile, for the Catholick King Charles II, of the Name, whom God preserve The Multitude unanimoully shouted, Let him Live, let him Live, let him Live. This Cere mony being ended in the Market Place, all the Company went to the Palace, where the King was Seated in the Chair of the Emperor Charles V. thence he went and did the fame in the Town. All this being performed, the Duke required of the Secretaries and Notaries to give it him under their Hands, that he again Restored the Sandard to D. Frantis de Her-rea Euriquez, Corregidor of the Town. The Corregidor having received it, went up to the Council Chamber of the Town, and fixed it in the Balcony under a rich Canopy, there to remain 8 days and nights, the continual lights in the Streets displaying the richnels of

This Year began with a Treaty of Peace betwixt Callule and Portugal : Some proposals This Year began with a Treaty of reace Detwin Confirm and roungs Tooling proposed of Peace were offered by the Military Commanders of both Kingdoms to the Two Queens, then Go. Overtures verning for their Sons, who were both under Age. These proposals being altogether ma between naged at a diltance by 3 Persons, they could not come to any Agreement, and both Parties spain and were still in Arms.

It pleased God to take to himself the Queen Mother of France, Ann Mauricia of Austria; upon whole death the King her Son began new Commotions, there being none to allay Referitments betwirk the Two Nations. No Bedy could guess what his great Preparations tended to, for he like a good Soldier kept his Counfels fecret; raiting great jealoulies in all the Neighbouring Princes. The Queen Regent of Portugal also departed this Life on the 25th resignouring rinces. The Queen regent of rough an operated this Line of the 24th of April the Princes Margaret of Anjeria, was Contracted to her Queen Uncle Leopoldus Ignatius the Emperor. Her departure was fixed for the 28th of the same Regent of Month: She Travelled to Denia thinking to Embark there; but being dilappointed, went forngal thence to Barcelona. Her Imperial Majefty came the 18th of July to Monjuy, diffant half a dies. League from Barcelona, whither she came by Sea. D. Law Gonzaga the Viceroy first, then the Bishop, Chapter, and Magistrates went out to welcome, and kis her Hand; which Ceremony lasted from 6 in the Morning, till Noon. All this while she was upon the Sea in the Admiral Gally, encompassed by 27 others, and much bigger than any of them, being guilt all over even to the Oars, the Stem and Stern set round with Christal Glas, through which appeared her Majellies Bed. At Noon the came to the Mole of the City, and all the Cannon was Three times fired round, the Gallys answering. She stept out of the Gally upon a Bridge made on purpole, that ran 200 yards into the Sea, was Railed on both sides, the Rails covered with Crimfon Damask, and the Ground with Red and Yellow Bays. The Duke of Albuquerque handed her out, then followed the Dutchels, the Ladies, Cardinal Cilonas, Two Bilhops and the Dukes Two Brothers. These were covered, but the Viceray and other Nobility had their Hats in their Hands. At the Foot of the Bridge were Two rich Chairs, which took up the Empres and Dutches, the rest went a Foot to the Mole 3

where they again came out of their Chairs and went into a Coach, the Cannon now Firing the 4th time. The Empress spent 3 days in Visiting the City and Churches, all which time there were Fireworks and Illuminations at Night, other sports being sorbidden on account of the King's death. Six days before her Majesty Embarked, came 7 Galleys of Malta, which Saluted 7 times with Vollies of finall, as well as great Shot. Every Salute was answered by the City, and the Rejoicing Iafled Two Hours. The 10th of Angul her Majetly Embatked, being 3 times faluted by the Cannon of the Town, her Fleet consisted of 34 Galleys, Contrary Winds obliged them to put into Roser and Cadaques, at length they arrived at Final, where Cardinal Nepor the Pope's Legate, the Duke of Savoy, the Duke of Modena, the Duke of Florence his Brother, with other great Men expected her Majesty, accompanied by 10000 Men to guard her to Trent. There the Duke of Albuquerque delivered her to the Imperial Ministers fent to Receive her, and taking his leave, returned with all the Spaniards,

The 27th, the Governor Posted all his Men, Assigning every Officer his Charge, reserving himfelf with a Party to be ready wherever the greatest danger called, On the 1st of Marchaster midnight the Enemy began to draw near, which our Centries perceiving, made feveral shot, and about 4 in the morning the Moors gave the Assault upon all Sides at once with hideous Cries. Those that Attacked on the Side of the Land Gate possessible themselves of the Ravelin that covers the Gate, filling all the Place with their Multitude. Here the Vollies of fmall thot and the Pedreroes from the Flanks, made fuch Havock, that they were at length forced to abandon the Place, leaving it covered with dead Bodies, tho' they carried off many. The same Fate followed them attempting to Scale the Wall on the Side of S. Francis, whither the Governor himself repaired, encouraging his Men; as finding the Moors made their greatest Efforts on that Side. Another Party cut down the Barrier before the Ravelin at the Foot of S. Martins Caltle, yet found such Opposition, that the' they kept their Ground till it was broad day, they then quitted it with great loss: Nor were the Redoubts of S. Antony and Santiago forgotten by the Enemy, who made their utmost Efforts there, tho? with as little Success as in the other Places. At the same time that the Moors gave the Affault by Land, 5 Barques came up the River full of Men, to Scale the Walls on that Side. They thinking it convenient first to secure a Genoese Setie that had brought Provisions, boarded her all at once, but were received with fuch bravery that they were obliged to draw off, leaving many dead in the River, and one of the Barques aground, most of the Men in her being killed. When it was open day the Colours were displaied upon the Walls, and the Garrison went out to strip the dead. We lost but 11 Men, it was reported the Enemy had 4000 killed, and a greater number wounded. In the afternoon the Enemy put up a white Flag, which was for leave to bury their dead, and was granted.

The Bernardin Gubert, Quartermalter to the Guard of Archers, being in the Palaceupon the 7th of July, a Woman came up, and viewing him well, drew a Pithol from under her Veil and shot him in the Head, of which he died within Two Hours. She was apprehenged. cd for the Murder, and paffing by the Church of S. Seviner, pleaded Sanctuary, the carried in a Sedan, and Perfons above Exception gave their Opinions for her.
